The winter of 1855-56 was one of exceptional severity. A severe storm of snow commenced on the 22d of December, and for the succeeding six weeks the storms were almost incessant. The snow averaged fifteen inches in depth, the roads on the prairie being nearly impassible. The thermometer sank to eighteen degrees below zero, and in the poorly-built and [illegible] unfinished houses of the new towns in Kansas there was extreme suffering. At this time there were but very few houses in Topeka that were proof against the driving snow and cold winds, and the Eastern emigrants, particularly the women, accustomed to all the comforts of an old-settled country, had many a homesick hour when trying in vain to keep the little cabin, or poorly-built house, warm enough for ordinary comfort.

FIRST FREE-STATE LEGISLATURE.

On the 4th of March, 1856, the first session of the Kansas State Legislature was opened. It was greatly feared that suitable accommodations could not be provided for the large number of people that would be present, and objections to that effect had been urged by rival cities. Topeka, however, was equal to the occasion. The Garvey house was always able to accommodate a few more. Mr. Chase had established his boarding house on Quincy street, which became famous before the close of the session, not only for good cheer and good fare, but for a quiet influence exerted there, which won members of the Legislature to feel that Topeka was the place of all places most suitable for the capital of the State.

In anticipation of the session of the Legislature, a new hotel was commenced in the winter on the site now occupied by the new Government building. Prof. Oakleys, an earnest Free-state man, who started the enterprise, labored through the entire winter to hurry the work, even shoveling the snow away for his excavation during the most severe weather. The hotel was not finished until summer. It was a three-story building, painted red on the outside, concrete walls to the third story. Mr. Harrison Nichols was the first landlord of the house.

On the 23d of April, 1856, there was a public sale of lots by the Topeka Association. The average obtained was about $200 for ordinary sized business lots. The full lots (75 by 100 feet), on the corner of Kansas avenue and Sixth street, sold at the rate of $810 per lot.

EARLY SCHOOLS.

A private school was taught during the summer of 1855 by Miss Sarah Harland, and on the 2d of January, 1856, "The Topeka Academy" was opened by James Cowles, A. B., Principal, but the Town Association took no decisive steps toward erecting a schoolhouse until February, 1856. On the 8th of that month the subject was brought before the association, and Mr. Amos Trott was appointed on the 20th to the work of soliciting subscriptions and making a plan for a schoolhouse. Two lots were set apart for a schoolhouse site the following month, but the Emigrant Aid Society, which had agreed to build a schoolhouse, in consideration of certain lots reserved to it, did not erect the building until the summer of 1857, when a brick building, about 18 x 24, and two stories in height, was put up on the southwest corner of Fifth and Harrison—the first schoolhouse in the city.

CONSTITUTION HALL.

On the 13th of March, 1855, the brothers John and Loring Farnsworth left Boston with the Second Emigration Company of 300 persons, under charge of Dr. Charles Robinson, and arrived at Topeka late in the same month. In Mr. Loring Farnsworth's "statement," deposited in the State Historical Rooms, he says: "We came across the Shunganunga towards night, and drove up upon the town site, perhaps as far as where the State House now is. We could see nothing, and thought perhaps we had mistaken the place, and we went back and camped on the Shungunungs. Next day we came over and found the town down near the river; the town house, another log house a little east of it, and east of Kansas avenue, two or three sod houses." In April, 1855, Farnsworth brothers commenced the erection of the building afterwards known as "Constitution Hall." It was originally intended as a store for the proprietors, with rooms to be rented for other purposes. It was situated on the west side of Kansas avenue, between Fourth and Fifth streets, and was a substantial two-story stone building, with a basement. The stone for the walls was taken from a ravine back of the present site of the Gordon House. The foundation of the building was 34 x 44 feet, and the inside measure of the hall about 30 x 40. W. H. Weymouth worked on the building as carpenter, and William E. Bowker as mason. Early in the fall, as soon as the roof was on, William W. Ross moved in and started a printing office. The basement had been previously used for a meat shop, and the first story occupied by Mr. Joseph C. Miller and family as a dwelling. Mr. John Farnsworth returned to the East early in the summer, and his brother not being able to complete the building, it was hired by the Topeka Association for the use of the Constitutional Convention (October, 1855), the association agreeing to plaster it in consideration of its use. From the time of that convention, the hall, for many years, was used for all public meetings in Topeka. The first Legislature—the Legislature of July, 1856, which was dissolved by Col. Sumner—the first church services of the Episcopal Church, local political caucuses, lectures, all were held in Constitution Hall, while the basement was utilized during the troublous years of 1856-57 as a place of storage for the spoils which the "boys" succeeded in "jayhawking" from the common enemy. By act of Legislature, approved March 2, 1863, the Secretary of State was directed to enter into a contract on behalf of the State with Messrs. Gordon, Mills, Gage and Farnsworth, to erect a temporary capitol building upon lots 131, 133, 135 and 137 Kansas avenue, in the city of Topeka. The building was erected and taken possession of by the State officers the following autumn. This building embraced within its limits old "Constitution Hall," the principal room, in which was framed the first Free-state Constitution of Kansas, becoming the Senate Chamber of the new capitol building. Since the erection of the State House, the building on Kansas avenue has been used for purposes of trade, and in 1882 there are comparatively few, except the "old settlers" of Topeka, who can point out the site of the building so famous in the annals of the town.

KANSAS EMIGRANT ROUTE.

The southern terminus of this famous emigrant route, over which John Brown and James Lane so often passed, was at Topeka, and Topeka people felt a special interest in it. From Nebraska City to Topeka the route was 140 miles in length, and at the opening of the route, in May, 1856, there was not a residence of a white man along its entire line. With the first train that passed over the route was the Milwaukee company, Mr. E. G. Ross and family and Mr. J. E. Rastall being among the emigrants. Col. M. C. Dickey, of Topeka, had charge of the train through Kansas, the road having been previously staked out by some of the members of the Topeka military company. In Iowa the train was increased by a large number who had been recruited in the East through the labors of Morris Hunt, Dr. George E. Cutler, Lane and others, and on reaching Kansas it numbered five hundred persons and sixty wagons. After passing the northern line of Kansas, parties dropped from the ranks, forming settlements along the route, the last before arriving in Topeka being at Holton, which was settled principally by Milwaukeans. On the 13th of August the remainder of the train reached Topeka, and crossing the ferry near the foot of what is now Polk street, ate their first supper in Topeka at the Garvey House, or Farmers' Hotel, as it was called at that time, and were given a public reception in the evening at Constitution Hall.

Gen. Lane's emigrant party, which entered the Territory under the superintendence of Col. Eldridge and S. C. Pomeroy, on the 10th of the following September, and which was stopped by United States troops near the northern line, and afterwards disarmed by order of Gov. Reeder at Indianola, a little north of the Kansas River, arrived at Topeka on the 14th, and camped on the town site.

This route served as a path to safety for many colored fugitives. In 1857, an underground railroad was established through the exertions of John Armstrong, of Topeka. The first car that passed over the track was in the shape of a close carriage drawn by a span of mules. The northern terminus of the Topeka branch was Civil Bend, Iowa. Among the stockholders were Dr. Charles Robinson, S. N. Wood and Maj. J. B. Abbott.

The last train that passed over the road, in 1859, had on board John Brown and a party of his colored friends. When between Topeka and Holton the fugitives were attacked by a horde of border ruffians, and were rescued from their peril by a band from Topeka under command of John Ritchie. They then passed over the road to safety.

TROUBLES OF 1856–57.

After the dispersion of the Legislature,* July 4, 1856, by United States troops, the Free-state citizens of Topeka, in common with those of other towns, felt that they were completely adrift, having no faith in the Territorial Government, and no immediate prospect of a better. The Missouri River towns were in the hands of the Pro-slavery party and it became almost impossible to procure even the necessaries of life. In the attempt to get supplies from Leavenworth or Kansas City, lives were often lost, and the teams almost invariably captured. An organization was perfected at Topeka, some slight fortifications thrown up on the lots on Quincy street which had been donated by the city to the Methodist Church, the ba-ement of Constitution Hall pressed into service as a receptacle for prizes which should be captured in the foraging expeditions of the company, and a regular system of reprisal on the enemy established, which was carried on until supplies could be brought to Topeka in a regular manner, without danger of attack from border ruffians. The Free-state organization at Topeka was known as Company B, Second Regiment Kansas Volunteers. Col. Whipple (Aaron D. Stephens), was Colonel of the regiment, and William F. Creitz, Captain of the company. L. C. Wilmarth was Chief of Commissary, and Dr. Crane's little office, at the foot of Quincy street, served as a sort of hospital for the sick and wounded. Expeditions were made by the company to the various Pro-slavery towns in the vicinity of Topeka—Tecumseh, Osawkie, Lecompton. The company usually returned with supplies sufficient to feed the boys for a time at least.

Free-state version—In September the situation in Topeka was deplorable. There was no food to be bought in the city. Mr. John Farnsworth's team was taken, with all his goods, by the border ruffians near Westport, and a man sent from Topeka to try to get supplies at Leavenworth was murdered. While in the adjoining Pro-slavery towns there was "enough and to spare," the Free-state men of Topeka literally feared they should "perish with hunger," unless they could supply themselves from the surplus wealth of their neighbors. Tecumseh was accordingly visited by "Lane's men," and "taken," the Leavenworth Herald says, "even to the brooms." The Topeka forces were commanded by "Col. Whipple," and among them were Horne, Cleveland, Ritchie, Moffett and others well known to Topeka. The richest prize was found at the store of Benjamin D. Castleman, who lost, according to his own statement before the Claim Commissioners, about $6,000, and never recovered anything but a meal sieve and a tin pan, which some conscientious individual returned to him on finding his trade-mark upon them. The victorious party returned to Topeka with their spoils laden in several wagons, which they took out as "army ambulances." At Osawkie, which place was visited soon after, the company captured thirty loaded muskets, the store of William Dyer being the main object of attack. As soon as Governor Geary arrived, and the blockade was removed from the Missouri, and food could be got legitimately without risking life, all these things ceased—they were war measures.

BULL CREEK.

The raid of the Missourians, under Capt. John Ried, on the town of Osawatomie, occurred on the 29th of August. The Topeka company was in Lawrence at the time, having just reached the place in response to a summons from from Gen. Lane. On the morning that the news was received at that place, in company with the Lawrence company, they marched to Bnll Creek, where the enemy had encamped on their return to Missouri, arriving about dark, after a fatiguing march of thirty-five miles under a hot August sun, and with no water for the last eight miles. A small body of cavalry had passed on ahead and halted for the infantry to come up. They found the enemy ready to receive them, with four pieces of artillery planted in front of his camp. For some reason, either of prudence or policy, Gen. Lane decided to fall back without attacking the camp. The command accordingly fell back eight miles to Black Jack, where there was water, and rolling themselves in their blankets, laid down for rest and sleep.

On the departure of the Topeka company to the assistance of Gen. Lane, Secretary Woodson ordered Col. Cooke, with his command, "to proceed at the earliest moment to invest the town of Topeka, disarm the insurrectionists, or aggressive invaders against the organized Government of the Territory to be found at or near that point, leveling with the ground their breastworks, forts and fortifications, keep the head men or leaders in close confinement, and all persons found in arms against the Government as prisoners, subject to the orders of the Marshal."

The news of this order reached the Topeka boys the morning after their arrival at Lawrence on their return. They forgot their long march of the previous day under a burning August sun, forgot their fatigue, and only remembered Topeka and the homes it contained. On their hurried march home they passed the smoking ruins of six Free-state dwellings, which Woodson's "Territorial Militia" had destroyed, the sight bringing terrible forebodings of even greater disaster at the little village farther up the Kaw. When they reached Big Springs they received the welcome tidings that all was well. Col. Cooke was not the kind of a man to execute the inhuman order he had received. He knew the limit of Territorial authority.

There is no doubt that "Lane's men," as they were styled, were at this time almost desperate, and ready to retaliate both in kind and degree the outrages that had been heaped upon themselves and friends. No man's life was safe. The roads were infested with armed robbers, and murders for the sake of plunder, or merely for difference of opinion, were of frequent occurence. The journey from Topeka to Lawrence could not be made with safety, those two cities being chiefly abhorrent to the enemy, and their residents more jealously watched and suspected.

On the 3d of September, 1856, a detachment of about fifty from the encampment of "Lane's men" at Topeka, all mounted and armed, and under the command of one Captain Cleveland, aided by Jameson and Charles Maffet, made a raid on the neighboring Pro-slavery town of Tecumseh and committed several robberies. The following day a larger detachment numbering some two hundred, and also under the command of Cleveland, mounted and accompanied with wagons, marched into Tecumseh, and among other outrages, plundered the store of B. D. Castleman, who had been a resident of the Territory but two months, of everything it contained. Other places in the town were robbed, but the largest amount of spoils was taken from Castleman's store. Everything was confiscated—nothing was too good or too mean for the plunderers. Groceries, dry goods, medicines, guns, tinware, brooms, hair oils, books and three barrels of excellent brandy—all were loaded into the wagons and taken to Topeka, where they weredivided among the crowd. Mr. Castleman never received any of his property, or any pay for what was taken, with the exception of ninety cents received from A. M. Jordan for a broom and meal sieve, which was given him in the distribution of the spoils at Topeka, and which he paid for when he found Mr. Castleman's mark upon them. The persons concerned in this raid were mostly newly arrived emigrants who had come in over the northern trail during August. The above facts are taken from the report of the claim commission.

HICKORY POINT.

On the arrival of Gov. Geary in Kansas, Gen. Lane determined to leave the Territory by way of Nebraska. He started from Topeka with a few men, on the 11th of September, and on arriving at Osawkie learned that a large Pro-slavery force was in the neighborhood. He sent to Topeka for reinforcements, and was joined by about fifty men commanded by "Capt. Whipple."* This company left on the evening of the 11th, and joined Lane at Osawkie the following morning.

*See State History.

*Aaron D. Stephens, alias Capt. or Col. Whipple, was, as heretofore stated, an officer in Gen. Lane's Free-state force. He was born in Lisbon, New London County, Conn., and lived in that State until the opening of the Mexican war, when he entered the United States service, and was reported to be a very brave soldier. After his return he was imprisoned at Fort Leavenworth for chastising an officer who was abusing a private soldier. He escaped from confinement and came to Topeka, where his fearlessness and knowledge of military movements made him a leader of the rather inexperienced military force. He assumed the name of Whipple when he escaped from Leavenworth. When John Brown left Kansas, in January, 1859, he accompanied him, and was one of the "nineteen men so few" that were with him at Harper's Ferry. Mr. Stephens was executed at Charleston, Va., March 16, 1860.

On the morning of the 12th, the "Atchison Guards," Capt. Robertson, then on the way to Lecompton, burned the store of Capt. Crosby at Grasshopper Falls, and then returned to Hickory Point, where they joined the force of Capt. Lowe, whose property was threatened by Lane, and fortifying themselves in several small buildings, the best being a blacksmith shop, awaited an attack.

Gen. Lane, with John Ritchie as Chief of Staff, arrived on the spot about 11 o'clock, and finding he could not dislodge the enemy without artillery, sent to Lawrence for reinforcements. He then returned to Osawkie, and there received the Governor's proclamation ordering all armed forces to disband. In accordance with the command, he instructed the Topeka company to return home and to avoid any collision with United States troops, which they did.

In the meantime, the Lawrence company, under Col. Harvey, and provided with a cannon, proceeded directly to Hickory Point, and on the morning of Sunday, the 14th, had an encounter with the force there assembled under Lowe and Robertson, which resulted in no particular advantage to either party. On their return to Lawrence, Col. Harvey's men were taken prisoners by United States troops, and imprisoned at Lecompton. On the 18th of September, a few days after the return of the Topeka company, Gov. Geary and United States Marshal Donaldson visited Topeka for the purpose of making arrests. A squad of cavalry was stationed near the corner of Fifth street and Kansas avenue, and a line of infantry and several pieces of artillery farther east on Fifth The arrests were mainly confined to members of the company who had been engaged in the late disturbances. Among the Topeka men arrested at and about this time were Messrs. Mitchell, Ritchie, Kagi, Rastall and Sexton. They were imprisoned at Lecompton.

The indictments were mainly on the ground of participation in the fight at Hickory Point. Kagi and Ritchie being accused of being in the affray on the 14th, when Newhall, of the Atchison company, was killed, were with others indicted for "murder in the first degree." They were taken before the Territorial Court, October 25, 1856, but their witnesses not being ready, their cases were laid over.

Mr. Sexton, who was Quartermaster of the company, was, in addition to the general charge, indicted for "appropriating oats for the use of the cavalry horses." Mr. Ritchie, in addition to the general charge, was held to answer to that preferred by Mr. Dyer, of Osawkie, according to his affidavit.

The prisoners were at first placed in the United States encampment near Lecompton, the "Prisoners' Camp" being a square of open prairie, guarded by three lines of sentinels. The members of Col. Harvey's company were in this camp also.

After examination, the prisoners were recommitted for trial, and imprisoned in an old house, guarded by a company of militia under Col. Titus. At the trial in October a few were acquitted, but the most were convicted of various degrees of manslaughter, and placed in charge of Sheriff Jones being afterwards transferred to the custody of Capt. Hampden, Warden of the Territorial Prison, and a kind, considerate and humane gentleman, of whose treatment none complained. A part of the prisoners, among whom was J. H Kagi, of the Topeka company, were afterwards removed to Tecumseh, where they received kind attentions and many favors from Mr. and Mrs Osborn, of the Free State Hotel, and from other Free-state citizens. In a letter written to the Kansas Tribune, dated "Tecumseh, December 17, 1856," Mr. Kagi says: "At Lecompton we were puzzled to keep from freezing; here there is still greater difficulty in keeping from smothering to death. For some time we have numbered sixteen men, in a brick-floored room twelve by sixteen, with one window two feet square. We have one small box stove, with a single place for cooking. In this hole, as I may truthfully call it, we cook, eat and sleep, and pass away Kansas life. * * * * There are now but twelve of us here. Old Mr. Davis, and Mr. Hazeltine of the Wakarusa, have lately been released by giving bail to appear at the next term of Court at Lecompton, to answer to a charge of murder at Fort Titus last August. Both proved by Pro-slavery witnesses that they were at home, several miles distant from the fort at the time of the fight. * * * * * C. A. Sexton, of your place (Topeka), was bailed out last night on the same charge, by first proving an alibi. I may get out in the same way to-day, but think it is uncertain. Cato has sworn that he will not let me go, he cares not what proof may be brought in my favor. I have already established by three witnesses that I was at or near Topeka at the time of the commission of the offense with which I am charged was perpetrated at Lecompton. However, to-day I will introduce another witness, and if this will not satisfy the court, I shall issue a draft upon my legs for bail bonds." Mr. Kagi was released upon giving bail to appear at the next term of Court at Lecompton. He was one of the most uncompromising opponents of the Pro-slavery party, a warm friend of John Brown, and therefore particularly obnoxious to the officers of the Territorial Government. Being a skillful phonographic reporter, he employed himself after his release in reporting the various public meetings and conventions, both Free-state and Pro-slavery, that were held in the vicinity of Lawrence during the winter of 1857.

While reporting the proceedings of the "bogus legislature" at Lecompton, January, 1857, he was again taken prisoner. The occurrence is given in his own words, taken from his report of the proceedings:

> I should be able to give you more particulars concerning the doings of the Legislature and convention both, had I not lost some of my notes yesterday. While correcting them, the Marshal entered the Council Chamber where I was writing, and politely informed me that I was his prisoner. Being, as the immortal Sam Salters would express it, "a law and abiding man," I immediately accompanied him to the court-room, intending to apply for bail. Finding the Supreme Court in session, however, I went before Dr. Wood, who has been commissioned by Judge Lecompte to admit to bail, and gave bonds for my appearance at the next term of court. I was arrested on the same charge for which I had but three weeks ago given $5,000 bail. The object, as afterwards avowed, was to prevent me from reporting; they supposing that being from home, I could not give the requisite bond immediately. As I went from the hall with the Marshal, I left my notes scattered upon my desk. A friend gathered up a portion, but the others were lost. Last night a crowd followed me to the platform of the stairs leading from the hall of the house to the ground with the intention of throwing me off, but learning their purpose, I escaped by hurrying forward and mingling with the crowd so as to prevent them from distinguishing me. I learned this morning that a plan has been secretly and deliberately laid to kill me to-day or to-night. I expect that I will yet be compelled to leave town.

Mr. Kagi's forebodings in respect to being prevented from further reporting proved correct. After the second day's session he left Lecompton for Lawrence, at which place he gave mortal offense to Judge Elmore by a statement in one of his letters published in the Topeka paper, accusing the Judge of being concerned in an attempt to assassinate him. The affair resulted in a personal encounter between the parties a short time after at Tecumseh, both gentlemen being injured.

Mr. Kagi subsequently was interested in assisting and forwarding emigration over the Nebraska route, and finally, joining fortunes with John Brown, became his most trusted officer, followed him to Virginia, and there lost his life, being shot while fighting at Harper's Ferry.

Col. S. S. Prouty, in his address before the Historical Society of Kansas, January 27, 1881, says of him:

"One of the correspondents of Eastern papers was J. H. Kagi, a native of a Southern State. He was an Abolitionist and a bitter opponent of the institution of slavery. He ably wrote and valiantly fought for the Free-state cause. There was not in the Territory a man of more generous impulses, or of greater moral or physical courage. He, too, died a martyr for human liberty with Old John Brown."

All the prisoners remaining in the custody of Capt. Hampton at Lecompton were pardoned and liberated by Gov. Geary, in March, 1857, in compliance with numerous petitions, and on the ground that "their continued punishment could neither subserve the ends of justice nor the interests of the Territory."

Many of the prisoners had previously made their escape, among others John E. Rastall and John Ritchie, of Topeka. The latter liberated himself from the prison at Lecompton, and after visiting Topeka, went to Indiana, where he remained some little time. The former escaped soon after he was taken, and went for a time to Iowa. An act was passed by the Legislature of 1859 (February 11), granting amnesty for political offences, and under the protection of that act, Mr. Ritchie again took up his residence in Topeka.

On Friday, April 20, 1860, Deputy U. S. Marshal L. Arms attempted to arrest Mr. Ritchie for an offense (mail robbing) alleged to have been committed in 1856. The arrest was in violation of the Amnesty Act, and was resisted by Mr. Ritchie. The officer persisting, Mr. Ritchie shot him dead, Mr. R. standing in his own door at the time. A preliminary examination was held before Justice Miller, of Topeka, on the following day. Mr. Ritchie was defended by Lorenzo Dow, J. H. Lane, and A. L. Winans, Esq., and was discharged. The citizens of Topeka held a meeting and passed resolutions approving his course.

With the winter of 1856-57, the hardest trials of the residents of Topeka disappeared. The spring brought a large immigration, and affairs in the Territory being comparatively quiet, if not settled, the city had a chance to look more closely to its own special interests. After the incorporation of the city the growth was so rapid that particular notice of private improvements or enterprises would be tiresome.

FURTHER PROGRESS.

Some account has already been given of the decisive measures taken by the pioneer settlers of Topeka, to stamp out liquor-selling at the very outset of their new enterprise. An organization called "The Temperance Union" was formed at the opening of 1856, but the names of the officers are not published. At the first annual meeting of the society, January, 1857, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, H. W. Farnsworth; Vice-President, A. F. Whiting; Secretary and Treasurer, J. F. Cummings. Meetings were to be held the first Wednesday evening in each month, Rev. L. Bodwell being announced as the speaker at the next meeting, February 14, 1857.

Two days after the meeting, the following pledge was circulated, and received the signatures below given:

"We, the undersigned, owners of hotel buildings, and proprietors of hotels, and members of business firms, ready to do what we can to prevent the introduction and sale of intoxicating liquors in our midst, do agree with each other, and with the citizens of this community, that we will not sell, or encourage, or consent to the sale or distribution of intoxicating liquors to be used as a beverage. (Signed.) Gordon & Bro., A. & L. W. Allen, Enoch Chase, Walter Oakley, E. C. K. Garvey, J. Willets, J. Allen, D. M. Thurston, J. W. Farnsworth, C. Twitchell.

After several months' trial, the temperance people, finding that their efforts in the line of "counsel, reproof, and exhortation," proved, in many cases, unavailing, made up their minds that patience and moral suasion had ceased to be the sort of weapons most needed for the kind of warfare in which they were engaged. The measure resorted to is indicated in an article in the Kansas Tribune, the local paper of Topeka. In the issue of July 18, 1857, the editor writes:

"LIQUOR SPILLING."

> A case of this kind occurred in our place on Saturday, the 11th inst. It is said that about $1,500 worth of liquors were destroyed at the various places where it had been kept for sale. What had induced the owners to provide such a quantity for the use of a staunch temperance community like Topeka, we are at a loss to conceive. The affair was participated in by a large number of our most prominent and respectable citizens, and, what is equally as important, with the entire approval of the ladies.
>
> We sincerely deprecate the adoption of any measure which looks to violence, for the remedying of a public evil, but we regret still more deeply the necessity for such measure. It is a choice of evils. In the absence of all municipal regulations for the suppression of the traffic, no recourse was left our citizens but to take the matter in hand as they did, or quietly submit to the still greater evil and imposition of the unrestricted sale of liquor among us, with its concomitant evils of drunkenness and crime. To those who have been the losers in this affair, we have no condolements or sympathy to offer. Most of them had been duly warned of the consequences of persisting in the traffic—some of them had given written pledges that they would desist from it, and all were engaged in it with a full knowledge of the fact that a very large majority of our people were strongly opposed to it.
>
> Whether the action taken will have the desired effect, remains to be seen. We hope, for the good of the community, as well as those who have suffered in the destruction of the liquor, that they will consult the feelings of those among whom they live, as well as their own reputation, and allow themselves to be influenced accordingly.
>
> In this connection, we can not omit a word in regard to the position of the Town Association in reference to the sale of liquor in the town. A provision exists in the constitution of the association, whereby the owner of property under it forfeits the same by permitting the sale of intoxicating liquor on it, and every man who has purchased property of the association, has done so with a full knowledge of that fact, thereby making the interdiction and forfeiture perfectly valid and binding. This being the case, the association has the power to prevent the sale of ardent spirits within its jurisdiction, and the public will hold its members amenable to the charge of culpable neglect of duty and the public good, if they do not use every means at their disposal for the suppression of the nefarious traffic among us.

Soon after the demonstration of the 11th of July, a mass meeting of the citizens of Topeka and vicinity was called for consultation "on the present position, aspect, and prospect of the liquor traffic in this place," and to ascertain somewhat definitely the sentiments of the people on the subject. H. P. Burgess was chairman, and S. N. Frazier, secretary, of the meeting.

By the following report, which was offered and adopted, it will be seen that the participants in this meeting were in favor of deciding the temperance issue, so far as Topeka was concerned, at the polls. The report was offered by the following committee: S. P. Thompson, Walter Oakley, M. L. Gaylord, J. C. Miller, and M. C. Dickey. It read as follows:

1st. The sale and use of intoxicating liquors as a beverage in Topeka, is a nuisance and a plague, and all who regard the reputation and prosperity of the place, and the morals and safety of its inhabitants, should unite to banish this scourge from our town.

2d. In the absence of law for our protection, the people are justified in using force to drive this traffic from our community—petition, persuasion, remonstrance, and the ordinances of the Town Association having utterly failed to accomplish this work.

3d. That this convention call an election of the citizens of Topeka and vicinity, on Saturday, the 18th inst., the polls to be opened at two o'clock p. m., and to remain open till sunset, to determine by ballot whether or not they are in favor of the sale of intoxicating liquors in their midst.

4th. If a majority shall be found opposed to such sale, then a committee shall be elected by ballot, whose duties shall be: 1st, to notify liquor dealers of the fact, and to request them to desist from the traffic; and, 2d, if they refuse to comply with this request, to proceed to search for, and, with the help of such citizens as they may call to their aid, to destroy all liquors kept for the purpose heretofore designated.

Dr. Ritchie, H. P. Waters, and C. C. Tuttle, were constituted a committee to give notice, and act as judges of said election.

As no notice of an election of the kind proposed, appears in the local paper, it is presumed it did not occur; but the early temperance people fought heroically to prevent the evil from gaining a secure foothold in the young town, and it should ever be remembered and recorded to their credit.

AULD LANG SYNE.

Dr. F. L. Crane, one of the early Topeka pioneers, celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday January 10, 1883, by a reunion of the old settlers. An account of the gathering, which appeared in the Topeka Capital, is given below:

Our venerable and long-time friend, Dr. F. L. Crane, was seventy-five years old on the 10th inst. He took advantage of the occasion to invite to dinner at the Copeland all of the members of the old Topeka Town Association who could be reached. The Doctor was vice-president of that association. Some other gentlemen were also invited. The following is a complete list of those who sat down to a well-spread table at 10 o'clock P. M. Those marked * were members of the Topeka Town Association:

Daniel H. Horne*, H. W. Farnsworth*, G. G. Gage, Dr. Hogeboom, S. S. Prouty, F. B. Foster*, A. J. Huntoon, F. W. Giles*, Col. Holliday*, Enoch Chase*, I. I. Bonebrake, W. P. Douthitt, J. R. Mulvane, F. P. Baker, W. H. Jenkins, James Steele, G. W. Veale, Jacob Smith, John Ritchie*, W. W. Weymouth*, O. T. Welch, Timothy McIntire*, G. A. Cutler*, Silas Rain, Judge Greer*, John T. Morton, D. Auter, J. A. Hickey*, Cope Gordon*, Kirk Rowley, A. B. Quinton, two sons of the doctor, George and Jesse, and Frank, a grandson, George's boy; F. G. Adams, H. F. Gee, H. Kline, S. E. Martin*, Jacob Willets*, and Walter Oakley*.

Of these, all but nine came into what is now the State of Kansas while it was yet a Territory. Dr. Crane and F. P. Baker sat at the head of one table, and Col. Holliday and Judge Morton at the other. Col. Holliday acted as master of ceremonies. The dinner was equal to the many good dinners that Cope Gordon has in the past given on such occasions, and that is all that is necessary to say about it.

After all had eaten their fill, Col. Holliday rapped on the table, and proposed the health of the host, Dr. F. L. Crane. Those who have known the Colonel in the past, know how happy he is on such occasions. He spoke of his first meeting with Dr. Crane on a steamer on the Missouri River, a stranger, and how he was attracted to him by his evident guileless disposition and honesty. He followed the course of the Doctor from that time to this, reciting many thing exemplifying the men and the times. He said that it could be said of Dr. Crane what Abe Lincoln said on an occasion, that his life had been passed "with charity for all, malice towards none," and his old friends concurred with this view.

The Doctor was very much affected, and it was some time before he could control his voice to reply to the toast to him, which, by the way, was drank in cold water, standing. We shall not attempt to report the Doctor's speech, only giving a few points. He said he remembered circumstances which happened in 1811, and recited them, and that he was then but three years old. He described the manners of the times when he was young. The spinning on the old-fashioned spinning wheels, the reaping of grain with sickles, the weaving of cloth on old looms, the threshing of grain with flails, the glass windows in vogue, only six by eight inches, the wooden latches on the front doors, with the strings hanging out, the great open fire-places, with logs for firewood, etc. After much of this kind which was interesting, he related his first experience in Kansas, and closed as follows:

"I beg leave to propose for the gentleman who accompanied me in 1854 up the Missouri River in the steamboat F. X. Aubrey, whose valuable traits of character I then commenced to learn and appreciate during our seven days from St. Louis. For him, the president of the association, I pray for long life and continued prosperity, with every comfort which he knows so well how to appreciate."

This called out Col. Holliday, who said that Dr. Crane, as vice-president of the Town Association, had more to do than he did with the allotments, and that his services for the association had been great. The first settlers started out with the intention of making Topeka the capital of the State and succeeded, with the intention of making it the largest place in the State, and have succeeded. The Colonel predicted that Topeka would in the next five to eight years have as many thousand population as Dr. Crane had lived years. The Colonel was very eloquent and very much in earnest.

Dr. G. A. Cutler, Mr. T. McIntire, Col. Ritchie and James Steele were called out and made short and appropriate speeches.

Col. Holliday then read letters of regret from G. F. Crowe, Guilford Dudley, J. Lee Knight, S. T. Walkley, now of Springfield, Mo., William Stevens, of Kansas City, Robert Klotz, formerly of this city, but now a member of Congress from Pennsylvania, and ex-Gov. Charles Robinson.

The last two letters are worthy of publication, and we shall try to soon find room for at least a portion of them.

At this stage of the proceedings Jacob Smith and G. G. Gage went to the door, and threw it open, and wheeled in an elegant easy chair for the Doctor, which some of the friends present had purchased, and now presented to him with another neat little speech from Col. Holliday. The Doctor was too much affected to respond, although he tried to do so.

This closed one of the most happy events which has transpired in Topeka for some time.

Speaking of the dinner, a lady, over the signature of "Katherine," wrote to the Kansas City Journal as follows:

A remarkable number of our earliest citizens were present, and reminiscence was the occupation of the happy hours, and that reminds me of the old Topeka, and gives me an opportunity to say that this city was blessed in its earliest days by the presence of real ladies and gentlemen, whose shaping influence has continued to this day. The population has been remarkably permanent; a great flood of people have come in, but the families your correspondent knew in her girlhood are still here. What nice people they were. There were the Wards, whose beautiful daughters were known all over Kansas. I doubt if any modern Kansas belle has ever eclipsed Mary Ward; and there was the sweet singer, Mollie Campbell, and the Hollidays, and the Gordons, and the Farnsworths, the Stewarts, the Kellams, the Chases, the Giles, the Steeles, the Whitneys, and many others whose names are still among us. The earliest ordinary and social gatherings here were marked by taste and refinement. The second generation of families now lead the young society here, and it is pleasant to see the faces of the pretty young matrons of the "60s" repeated in the girls of 1883. I doubt if any city has ever maintained a purer or healthier social life than ours. All this has been suggested by the mention of the gathering at the good Dr. Crane's. It is all true, and the truth must be spoken even though it may sound like self-praise.

INCORPORATION.

Topeka was incorporated as a city by act of the Territorial Legislature, February 14, 1857. Its boundaries, as defined in the act, embraced all of Section 31 and the northeast fractional quarter of Section 30, in Town 11, Range 16 east. Its limits were essentially the same as the plat of the "town," which had been located by Holliday and his companions in 1854, a sketch of which has already been given. The title to the land of the original town plat was, as is well known, held in abeyance, subsequent to its occupation by the town company, in wait for the public sale by the Government. Minor disputes as to whom the original pre-emption title would be vested in at the time of the sale, had also occurred to increase the uncertainty of the tenure of the town company, from whom and through whom all the deeds to the numerous purchasers were ultimately to come. This uncertainty was a serious hindrance to the growth of the town; indeed, such as to debar many from investing in the lots or making improvements thereon, who otherwise stood ready to buy and build.

The Wyandotte Floats.—In the treaty with the Wyandotte Indians, in 1854, in addition to their reservation, the tribe was granted thirty-two "floating sections," which might be located on any of the public lands west of the Mississippi. These sections (640 acres each), known as "Wyandotte Floats," were sold, some as low as $800. They could be located, even before the public survey was made, and the title become complete beyond question, at the time of the location. They proved a most convenient mode of adjusting the difficulties as to title to many of the new towns.

C. K. Holliday, being then President of the Topeka Town Association, in order to perfect the title to the town site, bought, October 2, 1855, from Isaiah Walker, a member of the Wyandotte Nation, a "Float," and located it upon the site of the town. He purchased it largely with his own means, but dealing in good faith with the association, whose agent he was in the transaction, had the transfers so made as to validate the title to all lands sold by it before or after his location. Thus the title to all lands on the original float, now in Wards 3 and 4 of the city, are traced in the abstracts to Isaiah Walker, who sold the floats to C. K. Holliday, trustee. The notice of the location appeared in the Kansas Freeman, October 1, 1855, and read as follows:

To All Whom it May Concern:

The undersigned, holding by virtue of his purchase from Isaiah Walker, made and concluded the twenty-second day of October, in the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty-five, a grant of land containing six hundred and forty acres, as provided by treaties between the United States Government and the Wyandotte Indian Nation, hereby notifies the public that he has, in pursuance of powers and privileges lawfully vested in him by the said purchase, selected and located one section of land, containing six hundred and forty acres, bounded and described as follows, to-wit: Commencing at the common corner or stake of the farm claims of M. C. Dickey, Enoch Chase, D. H. Horne and Harvey G. Young, as determined on or about the 29th day of October, A. D. 1855, by survey of A. D. Searl; thence in an easterly direction a distance of one mile to a post or surveyor's stake; thence in a northerly direction a distance of one mile to a post or surveyor's stake; thence in a westerly direction a distance of one mile to a post or surveyor's stake; thence in a southerly direction a distance of one mile to the place of beginning; the same containing one section of land of six hundred and forty acres.

All persons are hereby warned not to trespass upon said land, as the above vests in me a complete title, and renders any settlement thereon by any person whatever completely null and void.

Done at Topeka, Kansas Territory, this first day of November, in the year one thousand, eight hundred and fifty-five.

CYRUS K. HOLLIDAY.

At the time of the charter the village had grown to quite respectable dimensions, and had great expectations of future greatness and importance. It was the soon to be permanent county seat; the capital (temporary) of the provisional State, under the provisional Topeka constitution; and the prospective railroad center (in the minds of some of its sanguine proprietors) which it has since become. In addition to these anticipatory claims to greatness, it was, in reality, the third city in Kansas, being rivaled only by Leavenworth and Lawrence. From the local paper, and other sources, the following more detailed description of the city at this time is gathered: The population had increased to between 600 and 700, principally from the Northern and Eastern States; a few from Missouri and the South. In the immediate vicinity of the town improved claims could be bought at prices ranging from $1,000 to $2,000; a few miles out, they were sold at $300 or $400. Town shares, embracing ten lots, brought from $400 to $600. Single lots, well located for business purposes, 25x130 feet in size, averaged about $130. Dwelling lots, near business streets, 75x150, were about the same price. No church building had as yet been erected, Constitution Hall being the usual place of holding religious services. The Town Association had donated lots to the Methodist Church, on Quincy street, but the spot was occupied by fortifications built in anticipation of "Border Ruffian raids." The Congregational and Baptist Churches had been organized—the former in the cabin of James Cowles; the latter in the basement of J. C. Miller's house, on Sixth avenue. A schoolhouse was built for the public school, on the corner of Harrison and Fifth streets, and a select school was taught by Mr. James Cowles.

There were two hotels—the "Garvey House," and the "Topeka House;" one newspaper, the Kansas Tribune; five general stores; J. W. Farnsworth, in Constitution Hall; Allen & Gorden, corner of Kansas avenue and Fourth street; Murphy & Perley, in Garvey's Block, on Kansas avenue; J. Willitts, Kansas avenue, between Second and Third; and Amos Trott's general variety store.

Four physicians were located in the village—Drs. Martin, Penfield, Thurston and Cutler. Messrs. Holliday & Thornton, attorneys, were at No. 6 Kansas avenue; Wheeler & Ingersol, civil engineers, No. 67 Sixth street; Joseph C. Miller's dwelling and hardware shop was 53 Sixth street; Timothy McIntire, contractor and builder, had his office on Fifth street, and Lewis C. Wilmarth, and R. N. Mitchell had shops on the corner of Harrison and Sixth. Kellam Bro's. new drug store was on the corner of Kansas avenue and Fifth street. Two stage lines were in operation—the "Topeka and Manhatten," and the "Topeka and Lawrence." Early in the spring the Ritchie Block was commenced, on the southeast corner of Kansas and Sixth avenues, and the "Chase House," on the south side of Sixth, near Kansas—the first large brick building in the city.

EXTENSION OF CORPORATE LIMITS.

At the time Topeka was made a city its limits were confined to the original town plot; lots 1 and 2, Section 30, and all of Section 31, Town 11, Range 16 east, being the square mile covered by the Wyandotte float before mentioned, and some fractional parts of Section 30, lying north and along the river bank. Additions have been made from time to time, increasing the city limits fourfold since its incorporation. They have been as follows, in order of date:

(1) Town of Eugene (North Topeka)—was annexed by ordinance April 9, 1867, C. K Holliday, Mayor. Ordinance, No. 27.

(2) Crane's Addition—April 20, 1867, C. K. Holliday, Mayor. Ordinance, No. 29.

(3) Young's and Horne's Additions—May 31, 1867, C. K. Holliday, Mayor. Ordinance, No. 40.

(4) Huntoon's and Ritchie's Additions—June 1, 1867, C. K. Holliday, Mayor. Ordinance, No. 44.

(5) Holliday's and Ritchie's Additions—August 27, 1867, C. K. Holliday, Mayor. Ordinance, No. 55. (6) October 31, 1868, Orin T. Welch, Mayor. Ordinance, No. 79. (7) April 20, 1869, C. K. Holliday, Mayor. Ordinance, No. 74.

(8) King's and Meisker's Additions—February 28, 1871, J. B. McAffee, Mayor. Ordinance, No. 121. (9) February 6, 1872, D. H. Horne, Acting Mayor. Ordinance, No. 162. (10) August 12, 1872, Orrin T. Welch, Mayor. Ordinance, No. 186. (11) April 15, 1875, T. J. Anderson, Mayor. Ordinance, No. 237. (12) March 12, 1880, M. H. Case, Mayor. Ordinance, No. 337.

Ordinance, No. 416, was approved February 25, 1882—J. C. Wilson, Mayor. It defined accurately the boundaries of the city at the time of its passage, including the various additions above named. The present limits of the city embrace nearly four square miles—three on the south, and one on the north side of the Kansas River.

The ward limits have been changed from time to time as additions have been made; the present ward boundaries being in accordance with Ordinance No. 122, approved March 6, 1871, which divided the city into four wards, as follows: The First ward including all that portion of the city of Topeka lying north of the Kansas River; the Second ward all that portion of the city of Topeka east of Kansas avenue north of Eighth street and south of the First ward; the Third ward all that portion of the city of Topeka south of Eighth street; the Fourth ward all that portion of the city of Topeka lying west of Kansas avenue north of Eighth street and south of the First ward.

The town of Eugene, now a part of the city of Topeka, was established as a station on the Union Pacific road, being annexed by a city ordinance, published April 11, 1867. It was surveyed by Capt. J. R. Ellinwood, in 1865, and during the same year the Pontoon bridge connecting the town with Topeka, was built. On Monday, January 1, 1866, the first train over the Union Pacific railway arrived at Eugene. The town was then a wilderness—the depot and the warehouse of L. C. Wilmarth being the only buildings north of the river. The arrival of the train was celebrated by the citizens of Topeka in good style. The Mayors and Council of Wyandotte and Lawrence, the President of the Road, R. M. Shoemaker, Gen. J. H. Lane, and other distinguished guests were entertained by the officials of the city, Gen. Lane making the speech of the occasion.

As late as the winter of 1865, after it was attached to Topeka, the Kaws were more numerous in the village than the whites. Kansas avenue north, was a row of stumps, and a few log-houses, occupied by fifteen families, with one or two stores constituted all of what is now a very attractive place. The fine, natural growth of timber on the Kansas and Soldier bottoms, makes the site of North Topeka especially beautiful.

MUNICIPAL ROSTER.

In January, 1858, Franklin L. Crane, Thomas G. Thornton, Milton C. Dickey, Loring G. Cleveland and Samuel F. Walkley, who incorporated the city of Topeka the previous year, appointed Loring Farnsworth, J. C. Miller and A. F. Whitney, judges of the first municipal election, which took place January 28, 1858, at the office of Moore, Hill & Co. It resulted as follows: Mayor, Loring Farnsworth; President of the Council, W. W. Ross; Register, S. N. Frazier, succeeded by Guilford Dudley; Marshal, W. L. Gordon; Treasurer, J. C. Miller. The office of Register and Clerk were one and the same, and in the absence of the Clerk at the meetings of the Mayor and Councilmen, held at several different places from time to time, one of the Councilmen acted as Clerk, pro. tem.

1859: Mayor, Lorenzo Dow; President of the Council, J. F. Cummings; Recorder or Clerk, Guilford Dudley; Marshal, John Fletcher; Treasurer, C. C. Kellam.

July 2, 1859, there was a special election, at which C. K. Holliday was chosen Mayor, C. C. Whiting, Councilman, and on or after August 10, 1859, David B. Smith was chosen Recorder or Clerk.

1860: Mayor, H. W. Farnsworth; President of the Council, Justus Brockway; Recorder or Clerk, James Fletcher; Marshal, S. L. Hunter; Treasurer, Dwight Perry; City Surveyor, J. B. Whittaker; Street Commissioner, J. B. Whitaker; Assessor, G. G. Gage. December 6, 1860, C. C. Whiting was elected Recorder.

1861: Mayor, Harris F. Otis; President of the Council, Justus Brockway; Register or Clerk, John G. Otis; Treasurer, Charles King; Street Commissioner, J. W. Emerson; Marshal, Ephraim Baker; Attorney, William P. Douthitt; Assessors, Joshua Knowles, Theodore Mills, S. E. Martin; Auditors, S. H. Fletcher, Joshua Knowles, Justus Brockway. June 12, 1861, a special election was held, and N. W. Cox was elected Mayor to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Harris F. Otis.

1862: Mayor, N. W. Cox; Presidents of the Council, Justus Brockway; Register or Clerk, John G. Otis; Treasurer, J. B. Billings; Marshal, Ephraim Baker; Attorney, David Brockway; Street Commissioner, E. B. Williams; Assessors, J. Knowles, A. F. Whiting.

1863: Mayor, J. F. Cummings; President of the Council, J. W. Farnsworth; Register or Clerk, E. L. Wheeler; Treasurer, C. C. Kellam; Marshal, Byron Jewell.

1864: Mayor, Samuel H. Fletcher; President of the Council, J. W. Farnsworth; Register or Clerk, G. O. Wilmarth; Treasurer, C. C. Kellam, George W. Anderson; Marshal, Byron Jewell.

1865: Mayor, William W. Ross; President of the Council, John W. Farnsworth; Register or Clerk, G. O. Wilmarth; Treasurer, George W. Anderson; Attorney, A. L. Williams; Marshal, Byron Jewell.

1866: Mayor, Ross Burns; President of the Council, John G. Otis, Hiram T. Beman; Register or Clerk, G. O. Wilmarth; Treasurer, George W. Anderson; Marshal, John F. Carter; Surveyor, J. B. Whittaker; Street Commissioner, John Armstrong.

1867: Mayor, C. K. Holliday; President of the Council, ———; Clerk, George O. Wilmarth; Treasurer, A. J. Huntoon; Marshal, John F. DeLong; Engineer, Joel Huntoon; Attorney, James W. Steel.

1868: Mayor, Orrin T. Welch; President of the Council, E. G. Moore; Clerk, George O. Wilmarth; Marshal, O. F. Reed; Assessor, F. L. Crane; Police Judge, John H. Putnam; Engineer, Joel Huntoon; Street Commissioner, John Armstrong; Treasurer, G. F. Merriam; Attorney, A. L. Williams.

1869: Mayor, C. K. Holliday; President of the Council, E. G. Moore; Clerk, George O. Wilmarth; Marshal, O. F. Reed; Police Judge, George B. Holmes; Treasurer, A. D. Craigue; Engineer, Joel Huntoon; Street Commissioner, O. F. Reed; Attorney, A. L. Williams.

1870: Mayor, J. R. McAfee; President of the Council, Harvey H. Wilcox; Clerk, H. C. Holcomb; Marshal, O. F. Reed; Assessor, W. C. Gilpatrick; Police Judge, George B. Holmes; Engineer, William Tweeddale; Street Commissioner, John S. Branner; Attorney, David Brockway; Treasurer, A. D. Craigue.

1871: Mayor, Orrin T. Welch; President of the Council, Daniel H. Horne; Clerk, R. H. C. Searle; Treasurer, A. D. Craigue; Marshal, Tobias Billings; Police Judge, John H. Putnam; Assessor, Gustavus F. Merriam; Engineer, William Tweeddale; Street Commissioner, John S. Branner; Attorney, David Brockway.

1872: Mayor, Orrin T. Welch; President of the Council, Daniel H. Horne; Marshal, Samuel Hindman; Police Judge, George B. Holmes; Treasurer, A. D. Craigue; Clerk, R. H. C. Searle; Attorney, M. H. Case; Police Judge, George B. Holmes; Engineer, William Tweeddale; Street Commissioner, Michael Voorhees.

1873: Mayor, Henry Bartling; President of the Council, A. W. Knowles; Treasurer, Peter D. Cook; Clerk, R. H. C. Searle; Attorney, Ross Burns; Engineer, Harry B. Mitchell; Street Commissioner, Michael Voorhees; Police Judge, George B. Holmes; Marshal, J. B. Hannum.

1874: Mayor, Henry Bartling; President of the Council, E. H. Blake; Treasurer, Peter D. Cook; Clerk, R. H. C. Searle; Attorney, Ross Burns; Engineer, William Tweeddale; Street Commissioner, Benjamin Boyd; Police Judge, H. W. Farnsworth; Marshal, H. C. Lindsey; Assessor, A. J. Huntoon.

1875: Mayor, Thomas J. Anderson; President of the Council, E. H. Blake; Treasurer, Peter D. Cook; Clerk, R. H. C. Searle; Attorney, B. J. Ricker; Engineer, Joel Huntoon; Street Commissioner, Benjamin Boyd; Police Judge, George B. Holmes; Marshal, H. C. Lindsey; Assessor, A. J. Huntoon.

1876: Mayor, Thomas J. Anderson; President of the Council, George W. Veale; Treasurer, A. W. Knowles; Clerk, W. H. Cook; Attorney, Lewis Hanback; Engineer, William Tweeddale; Street Commissioner, Benjamin Boyd; Police Judge, George B. Holmes; Marshal, H. C. Lindsey.

1877: Mayor, M. H. Case; President of the Council, S. S. McFadden; Treasurer, Albert W. Knowles; Clerk, H. H. Wilcox; Attorney, D. A. Harvey; Engineer, J. B. Whittaker; Street Commissioner, Albert Fowkes; Police Judge, Chester Thomas; Marshal, James Dustan.

1878: Mayor, M. H. Case; President of the Council, S. S. McFadden; Treasurer, Alfred W. Knowles; Clerk, H. H. Wilcox; Attorney, D. A. Harvey; Engineer, J. B. Whittaker; Street Commissioner, J. T. Franklin; Police Judge, Chester Thomas; Marshal, Tobias Billings.

1880: Clerk George Tauber; Engineer, Joel Huntoon.

TOPEKA OF 1882.

The Topeka of to-day is in the transition state, between the young, rough vigor of stirring western towns and the more regulated, substantial life of Eastern cities. Public and private improvements are progressing at such a rate that within a few years her outward surface will be harmonized and embellished into an enduring and a beautiful form. Already many of her business blocks are solid and metropolitan in appearance; her streets are being systematically graded; tasteful and costly churches, and home-like and palatial residences adorn the resident portions of the city, testifying to her material prosperity and her social refinement. Topeka's avenues are broad, her founders seeming to have a vision of a western "City of Magnificent Distances," above whose energy of life and developing form should tower one of the most magnificent State houses of the country, and a beautiful and costly custom house. Two fine opera houses, several superior hotels, railroad shops, in which are invested hundreds of thousands of dollars, water and gas works, well maintained schools, electric lights, telephones, manufactures of every description, large wholesale and retail stores, ably conducted newspapers, polished society, present prosperity and brisk life everywhere; hope, faith and a logically founded confidence that the Topeka of the future is to be one of the largest commercial centers and the most charming cities of the West. These facts and traits are what stand out so prominently before all observing eyes and minds. Without further preface the facts are presented.

PUBLIC AND PRIVATE SCHOOLS.

The following record of the growth and development of the public schools of Topeka is given by F. W. Giles in an article published in the city directory (Rogers') of 1878. After alluding to the schoolhouse built by the Emigrant Aid Society in 1857, of which mention is made in "Early Schools," Mr. Giles says: "Under the Districting of Shawnee County in 1861, the city of Topeka constituted District No. 24. We have been unable to find any record of its proceedings, except such suggestions as could be gleaned from a treasurer's book, dating back to 1863; from that we learn that the amount of revenue received from the County Treasurer from July 1863, to July, 1864, was $2,340.45, and for the year next succeeding, the disbursements were for teachers wages $1,628, and for incidental expenses, $387.11."

In 1865 the Harrison Street schoolhouse was erected, being the first school building erected at the expense of the city. It comprised the front only of that building as it now stands (1878), the site being the same as donated by the Topeka Association in 1856.

It had been supposed that the amount of school room thus provided would be ample for the wants of the District for some years, but during the year 1865 the increase of scholars was equal to the capacity of the room provided.

In 1865, a little wooden building on Sixth avenue, between Kansas avenue and Quincy street—south side—was hired for school purposes, and a school opened for colored children, and in 1866 the colored school was put in the attic of the building, and the lower room used for white children. Baptist Hall was also used for school purposes in 1866, and in 1867 a school was held in the "Gale Block" (site of Costa's Opera House). A school was also held in the basement of the building, on the southwest corner of Kansas avenue and Seventh street, at various periods.

The year 1867 had been one of continuous excitement with the School Board, from the pressing demands for more room, more teachers, and more money for the schools, and 1868 dawned upon them with no prospect of immediate relief. Supported, however, by an enlightened public sentiment that knew no way of relief from the urgent calls for schools but by supplying them, the Board went boldly on to do what could be done.

To add to the embarrassment of the Board, in the spring of 1868 the Aid Company house was sold, and became unavailable for school purposes.

On the 10th of July the city voted an appropriation of $10,000 for the purchase of sites and the erection of school buildings, and on the same day contracts were entered into for an addition to the Harrison School building, at an expenditure of over $4,000. In September, the Board hired buildings at No. 51 Monroe street and at No. 211 Kansas avenue. At the close of 1868, notwithstanding the enlargement of the Harrison street house, the city had under rent at least four buildings for school purposes.

On the 5th of May the School Board determined upon the erection of more spacious accommodations for the schools, and asked the city to vote an appropriation of $40,000 for that purpose. On the 13th of July, lots 50, 52, and 54, Monroe street, were purchased, and a building constructed at a cost of $7,100.

On the 23d of August the site of Lincoln School was purchased, at a cost of $2,500. In the fall of 1869, a site was purchased on Quincy and Thirteenth streets, and a schoolhouse erected, at a cost of $2,300. At this time the city had under rent for school purposes, buildings or rooms at Nos. 110, 128, 191 and 241 Kansas avenue; at 51 Monroe street, and a church in the "bottom."

Lincoln School building was under contract at $34,449, and the year closed with an estimated requirement for school expenses the ensuing year of $12,000.

By January, 1870, the demands for more school room in the First Ward necessitated arrangements with an adjacent country district for accommodations. During all of that year the necessity for hired buildings continued. Work upon the Lincoln building progressed slowly, and it was September, 1871, before it was completed for occupancy.

In 1871, $18,000 was expended in building a new house in the First Ward, which was accepted with special satisfaction on the 15th of April, 1872. The Washburn schoolhouse was also purchased in August, 1871, at a cost of $15,000. In the fall of 1872, a lot was purchased, and temporary accommodations prepared, on Clay street, at a cost of $825. Thus, at the close of 1872 there were owned and occupied for school purposes, the Harrison building, in its present capacity, the Quincy building, Monroe building, the old First Ward property, the old Clay street house, Washburn building, the Thirteenth street property and Lincoln in all its greatness. It was thought that these were ample for all existing and contingent wants, and that from the burdens of schoolhouse building the people might reasonably anticipate exemption, for some years at least. During 1873 and 1874 matters went on to general satisfaction.

In 1875, however, there came up a voice from the western part of the city that could not be put off. The First Ward building had been regarded as the most satisfactory result of expenditure made, and it was determined to erect a similar house on Clay street. An appropriation for the purpose of $8,000 was made, and the house completed about the close of the year, to general satisfaction of all concerned. The expenditures of Topeka for school buildings and furniture, in the space of about ten years, aggregate fully $1[illegible],000.

The school property, and the management of the school interests, is now (1878) vested in the hands of a Board of Education, consisting of two members elected from each of the four wards of the city, and holding their office for the term of two years, in accordance with the provisions of an act of the Legislature, passed in 1872, regulating public schools in cities of the second class. In 1878, twenty-eight teachers were employed, their salaries aggregating about $16,000 per year.

From the fifteenth annual report of the superintendent of city schools, it appears that in the school year of 1881-82 fourteen schools had been regularly taught. These were Adams, Buchanan, Clay, Douglas, Harrison, High School, Klein, Lane, Lincoln, Madison, Parkdale, Polk, Quincy and Sumner. In three of these, terms were abbreviated three weeks on account of small-pox. Expenses incurred for all purposes, including salaries, repairs new buildings and miscellaneous items, footed up $32,884.67. Forty-six teachers were employed at an average salary of about $400. During the year there was an average enrollment of 1,203.12 boys, and 1,292.67 girls, or a total of 2,495.79. The per cent of attendance on average enrollment was 93.3, a figure rarely reached in any of the schools of the State. During the past year the system of half day schools has been tried in a few grades, and been so satisfactory as to lead to its recommendation by the superintendent for more extended application. The course of study has also been carefully revised to suit the necessities of the case, and is now one of the most rational and well arranged to be found anywhere. Under the care of experienced teachers, ably seconded by the superintendent, the public schools of Topeka may fairly look for most gratifying results, and though future Solons may not occupy all the seats, the product of these schools will add to the city and State many a valuable citizen who can trace his success directly to this early training.

Topeka Board of Education.—May 21, 1867, the citizens of Topeka voted to establish a city Board of Education. The vote for the school law was 214, against the school law, 1. The school board then elected was as follows: First ward, one year, C. W. Parks, two years, H. W. Farnsworth; Second ward, one year, L. C. Wilmarth, two years, David Brockway; Third ward, one year, John Guthrie, two years, W. H. Butterfield. This election was held under an act of the legislature, approved February 27, 1867.

Board for 1882: First ward, John H. Foucht, M. R. Miller and O. C. Skinner; Second, C. W. Jewell, W. W. Gavitt and Orrin T. Welch; Third, A. M. Callahan, E. H. White and W. B. Gibson; Fourth, C. P. Baker, H. X. Devendorf and George S. Chase.

Washburn College.—This institution was incorporated on the 6th of February, 1865, under the name of "Lincoln College." In the fall of the same year a stone building for the use of the preparatory department was completed on the southeast corner of the capitol square. The buildings had recitation rooms sufficiently commodious for 150 students, and the first term of the college opened January, 1866, with five teachers and about thirty pupils. The number of students the first year was ninety-two. Trustees.—Lewis Bodwell, president; S. D. Storrs, J. D. Liggett, Ira H. Smith, Richard Cordley, Harrison Hannahs, John Ritchie, H. D. Rice, William E. Bowker, J. W. Fox, H. W. Farnsworth.

The name of the institution was changed November 19, 1868, to Washburn College, in memory of Hon. Ichabod Washburn, who donated $25,000 to the endowment fund. The permanent buildings of the college were erected on a beautiful site comprising one quarter section about one and a half miles southwest of the capitol, which was donated to the institution by Gen. John Ritchie. Although under the especial patronage of the Congregationalists, the college in educational methods and policy is entirely unsectarian.

Scholarships have been established, tuition free for children of home missionaries, students intending to become ministers or teachers, disabled soldiers, soldiers honorably discharged after two years' service, and children of soldiers that died in the service. The college has now a choice library, fine mathematical and philosophical apparatus, and every facility for acquiring a most thorough and liberal education. The course of study is optional—business, scientific, academic and collegiate. Peter McVicar is now president.

The property of the college has been largely increased since the donation of Mr. Washburn and the gift of a quarter section of land by Mr. Ritchie, and now embraces an endowment of over $60,000, and 480 acres of land. The latter, lying near the city, is already of considerable value, and is being sold for building lots at as high as $700 per acre.

The college buildings consist of the large stone hall first erected, which was occupied in 1874, although not fully completed until several years later, and three cottages used as dormitories. The first of these cottage-dormitories was built by funds largely derived from friends in Hartford, Conn., and is named the Hartford Cottage. The second is named, though hardly for the same reason, the New Haven Cottage. Both these are occupied by lady students.

A third building was completed in the fall of 1882, but was not named, except as the young men's dormitory. Still another cottage, the Kansas, is projected, and funds to the amount of $2,000 have been raised for it. The cost of these buildings is about $5,000 each. There are now about 150 students in attendance, and the number seems to increase as rapidly as room can be found for applicants.

The faculty is as follows: Peter McVicar, M. A., D. D., president, professor of moral and mental philosophy; George M. Stearns, B. A., professor of the Greek and Latin languages; J. T. Lovewell, Ph. D., professor of mathematics and natural science; Howard Bliss, professor of French; F. W. Craigin, professor of German and zoology; Orestes H. St John, instructor in geology; James H. Carruth, M. A., instructor in botany; Miss Caroline L. White, preceptress of Ladies Department; Miss Mary Johnson, instructor in instrumental music; M. A. Pond, instructor in penmanship; Rev. Albert Maison, instructor in vocal music; Howard Bliss, M. A., librarian.

College of the Sisters of Bethany.—This institution has grown to its present size and importance from a modest parish school started by Rev. Charles Calloway, the first Episcopal clergyman in Topeka. It was first opened for pupils in 1860 under the charge of Rev. N. O. Preston, afterwards pastor of Grace Church, being then called the "Episcopal Female Seminary." Towards the close of the War of the Rebellion, the school suspended for a short time, but re-opened in September, 1865, under the charge of Rev. J. N. Lee, with seventeen pupils. Commodious buildings were procured on the corner of Topeka avenue and Ninth street, and the institution, being the only Protestant school exclusively for girls in the State, and being under the care of experienced and able instructors, steadily increased in influence and popularity. In 1870, the school having outgrown the older building, a new and elegant structure was commenced on a square of twenty acres, owned by the institution in the west part of the city, and was completed in 1873. On removing to the new location, a year before the completion of the building, the name of the institution was changed to that under which it is now known—College of the Sisters of Bethany. It is the aim of this institution to begin in its kindergarten school the education of girls, and carry them through the primary, preparatory, and collegiate departments, to the completion of their education. How well this is done is shown by the constantly increasing number of pupils especially in the musical and art departments, which numbered in 1882 respectively 112 and 34. The officers and faculty for 1882 and 1883 are: Rt. Rev. Thomas H. Vail, D.D., LL.D., president, Christian doctrine; Rev. Joseph A. Russell, A. M., chaplain, moral science, mathematics, evidences, book-keeping; Mr. T. C. Vail, bursar; Miss Florida Breiner, house-mother, constitutional law, U. S. history; Miss Carrie E. Campbell, Latin, French, German, physiology, astronomy, botany, English literature; Miss Emma F. Root, logic, mathematics, and natural sciences; Miss Mary S. Stewart, grammar, ancient history, English branches, light gymnastics; Miss Emma Powell, Latin, Greek, Italian, French, belles-lettres; Miss Julia M. Watson and Miss Ruth Chamberlain, primary department; Mrs. Ruth Gilman, kindergarten department; Miss M. W. Warner, assistant in kindergarten; J. S. Hougham, LL.D., lecturer in chemistry and natural philosophy; Mrs. H. T. Stone, instrumental music and thorough base; Mrs. M. W. Radway, Miss Frank A. Brookins, and Miss Kate Gillmore, assistants in instrumental music; Miss Aletta Waterbury, vocal culture, choral class, and elocution; Miss Marion J. Hall, drawing and painting; Mrs. C. H. Vail, matron.

The school buildings are two in number—Wolfe hall, completed in 1873 at a cost of $8,500, and Holmes hall, completed in 1881 at a cost of $17,000. The former of these buildings is five stories in height, 74x100 feet, and is built of rough Ashler stone. Holmes hall is four stories in height, 40x80 feet, and of the same durable and suitable material. Plans for a large wing three stories in height, 116x52 feet, and also of rough Ashler, have recently been submitted, and the building will probably be begun late in 1882, and completed in time for use during the ensuing school year. The cost will be $22,000. When this work is completed, the school will have a total property of $159,000.

The College of the Sisters of Charity is located on Jackson street near Eighth avenue. It was established by the Catholic Church in 1875, through the influence of Father Defouri, then pastor of the Church of the Assumption, and under the special and immediate charge of the Sisters of Charity.

Kansas Theological School—This institution, established especially for the education of an Episcopalian clergy, is situated on Topeka avenue between Eighth avenue and Ninth street. It is an incorporated institution and possesses property amounting to $25,000. The school building is large and commodious, serving for the residence of the students and faculty. Rt. Rev. Thomas H. Vail, President. The Kansas Churchman is also published and edited by the Bishop, having a large circulation and influence in denominational circles.

THE STATE CAPITOL.

From the time of the Topeka Constitutional Convention, when Topeka was designated as the temporary capital, the citizens of the town were determined to leave no honorable means untried to secure the honor permanently. All worked—men and women—the men in conventions, the women at home, and the event proved that they worked to good avail. Section 8, of the Wyandotte Constitution reads as follows: "The temporary seat of government is hereby located at the city of Topeka, county of Shawnee. The first Legislature under this Constitution shall provide by law for submitting the question of the permanent location of the capital to a popular vote, and a majority of all the votes cast at some general election shall be necessary for such location."

At the session of the first State Legislature at Topeka, March 26, 1861, an act was passed to provide for the permanent location of the State capital. The first section of the Act reads as follows: "There shall be an election for the permanent location of the State capital on Tuesday succeeding the first Monday in November A. D. 1861, and no place receiving a majority of all the votes cast, an election shall be held at each succeeding general election, on the Tuesday succeeding the first Monday, until some place shall receive a majority of all the votes cast."

This election was a matter of great interest to Lawrence and Topeka, the principal competitors for the prize, and all the political machinery available was freely used by both parties. The election took place on the 5th of November, with the following result: Topeka, 7,996; Lawrence, 5,291; all others, 1,184. Total vote, 14,471.

During 1861, 1862 and 1863, the sessions of the House of Representatives were held in a building, now forming a part of Crawford's Opera-house, and the sessions of the Senate were held in Ritchie's Block (since burned) on the southeast corner of Kansas and Sixth avenues.

In the summer of 1863, the State erected a temporary Capitol building on the west side of Kansas avenue between Fourth and Fifth (lots 131, 133, 135 and 137), which was occupied by the State offices from the time of its completion in the fall until the fall of 1870.

At the legislative session of 1862, the Topeka Association, through its president, C. K. Holliday, made a tender to the State of twenty acres of ground for the site of State buildings, which was accepted and deed recorded. An appropriation for building a State Capitol was made by the Legislature of 1866, and work was commenced on the foundation, but the stone used proving of poor quality, the work was abandoned.

The first appropriation for the present State House was made in 1866, and amounted to $42,000. Work was at once begun on the east wing and pushed quite rapidly. The foundations having been laid it was decided to make the superstructure of a sort of sandstone, found near Topeka and a few courses of this material were put in place before it was discovered that it suffered so much from the weather as to be thoroughly unsuitable. It was then discarded and the Junction City limestone adopted. This change caused an extra expenditure on the east wing of some $10,000, which can hardly be charged to its actual cost. In 1869 the work was so far advanced as to furnish quarters for the State officers, but it was not until 1873, that all was completed. A report published soon after set the total cost of this wing at upwards of $480,000, but as both bonds and scrip sold at a discount it seems more accurate to place the figures, as is done by State Auditor Bonebrake, at about $450,000.

The first appropriation for the west wing of the State House was made in 1879, and the money expended in the fiscal year of 1880. The funds thus applied consisted of $60,000, appropriated directly from the State treasury, and $31,592.43 derived from the half-mill tax for 1879. The expenditures of the succeeding year amounted to $118,793.69, all derived from the half-mill assessment. The fiscal year ending June 30, 1882, showed an outlay of $72,844.21, and brought the grand total up to $283,230.33. In the third biennial report of the State Auditor it was estimated that a little over $21,000 more would be needed for the completion of the work. This would make the total cost $305,000, from which expenditure there will probably be but little variation. This wing contains besides the offices of various State officers, the Representatives' hall—one of the finest in the United States, finished in thirteen different varieties of marble—the product of the quarries all over the United States and Italy. The spectators' galleries are at the east and west ends of the hall. Upon the ceiling are finely-conceived, allegorical paintings, representing History, Justice, The First Dawn of Liberty and Law. The building stone of the west wing is Cottonwood limestone, from Strong City, Chase County.

The main building, like the west wing, is built by funds supplied by a half-mill tax on all taxable property in the State. This for the year 1882 amounted to $93,064.08. The total taxable property of the State was in round numbers, $160,000,000 in 1880, and $186,000,000 in 1882. The tax list of 1884 will probably aggregate over $200,000,000, and increase more rapidly than ever before. It will readily be seen that the increased revenue for State House construction will be ample for all necessities. The contract for the foundation walls has been awarded for $174,775, and work is well under way. When finished the main building will be a fitting crown to the parts already completed.

The plan is cruciform, the building being composed of a main central building, fronting north and south, and wings fronting east and west. Its total length from east to west, inclusive of steps, will be about 490 feet, and from north to south about 416 feet. The diameter of the central portion through the peristyle, or range of columns above the base will be 106 feet, and above the peristyle eighty-six feet. The body of the building stands on a basement story eighteen feet above the ground. Above this are two stories comprised between the basement and Roman Corinthian entablatures. The sides of the building are ornamented with pilasters bearing Corinthian capitals. The east and west fronts are adorned with porticos with six fluted columns, the north and south fronts with porticos of eight columns each

Under the system of direct taxation already explained this work will, it is thought, be completed as rapidly as under the appropriation plan, yet it must, from its very nature, be an affair of from six to ten years. Even in its little finished condition the State House is a landmark for miles around, and when it shall be completed its lofty dome will glisten in the upper air far above the base of smaller buildings, a fit emblem of the mighty State, which reared it.

INSANE ASYLUM.

In the laws passed by the Legislature of 1875, is one bearing date in March, which provides for the institution at Topeka of an asylum for the insane, and appropriates $25,000 for the erection of buildings. To this was added by Shawnee County a gift of land located about two miles northwest of the State House. Preliminaries thus arranged, the work of building was begun on what is now the northeast wing. Progress was, however, slow, and when, in 1879, Dr. B. D. Eastman was appointed superintendent, the two northeast buildings were unfinished shells. By the first of June, of that year, thanks to the doctor's energetic management, sufficient work had been done to admit of the reception of patients, and the first name was enrolled. This was followed by a large number who had been in waiting, and the two buildings were soon filled. Work was then begun on the third building, which completes the northeast wing, and it was pushed to completion. This gave room for 250 patients, and was for the time adequate, yet it was evident that much more room would be needed, and the plans were changed to their present form. As now projected the complete asylum will have accommodations for 500 patients, and will consist of a main building facing south, with wings of three buildings, each branching off to the northeast and northwest. All these buildings are of the limestone common in the county, trimmed with a different variety from the Cottonwood quarries. The last appropriation for the institution consisted of $75,000 for buildings and $13,000 for lands. This brings the amount so far received up to about $191,100. For the completion of the work twice as much more will be needed, making a total of about $600,000.

There are now under treatment 197 patients, who constitute but a part of the total number treated, as besides those removed to their homes as improved or partially cured, there have been discharged entirely recovered seventy-eight.

It can readily be seen from the work done by this institution in the three brief years of its existence how important it is that it should be given ample room for proper working, and it can hardly be doubted that the necessary funds will be cheerfully appropriated for further construction.

STATE REFORM SCHOOL.

At the eighteenth session of the Legislature, convened January 14, 1879, an act was passed providing for a State Reform School, of which the Board of Trustees of State Charitable Institutions should have supervision and control, they to make and submit to the governor on or before the 15th of December, 1880, such a law as they should deem suitable for the government and management of said school, the same to be submitted by the governor to the Legislature of 1881. The draft of the law for the government of the school, as submitted, was amended in some particulars by the Legislature, and so amended took effect March 13, 1881. It provided that the officers of the institution should consist of superintendent, matron, and such other officers and teachers as should be found necessary.

Any boy under sixteen years "convicted of any offense known to the laws of the State, and punishable by imprisonment;" any boy under sixteen years, "with the consent of his parents or guardian, against whom any charge of committing any crime or misdemeanor shall have been made, the punishment of which, on conviction, would be confinement in jail or prison;" any boy under the same age, "who is incorrigible, and habitually disregards the commands of his father or mother or guardian, and who leads a vagrant life, or resorts to immoral places or practices, and neglects and refuses to perform labor suitable to his years and condition, and to attend school," could be committed to the institution.

Provided, that before sentence and committal a complaint should be filed, setting forth the charges complained of in writing; and before the court investigate the charge he should give five days notice to all persons interested, of the filing of the complaint, and the time and place of hearing of the same, and if on the final hearing he is satisfied that the case comes within the provisions of the act he may commit. Every boy committed shall remain until he is twenty-one, unless reported by the superintendent as fully reformed, or bound as an apprentice. These are merely some of the primary conditions, of which full particulars are found in the published rules and regulations of the institution.

The site of the reform school is a farm on Soldier Creek, two and a half miles north of North Topeka, and containing 160 acres. The present building, which will, when filled to its full capacity, accommodate one hundred and twenty-five boys, is now too small for the number seeking admission. It is a brick and stone double cottage with wings. The school was opened for the reception of boys June 6, 1881, under the management of J. G. Eckles, Superintendent, and Mrs. Eckles as Matron. On March 1, 1882, J. F. Buck and his wife, Mrs. L. A. Buck, became respectively Superintendent and Matron, and still fill those positions. The institution opened by the admission of two boys. Seventy-three were admitted during the first year, seven discharged, six returned to the authorities and twelve escaped. Of these boys fifty-six were white, and seventeen colored. The following are the names of the Board of Trustees, January, 1883: Edwin Knowles, of Sabetha, president; C. E. Faulkner, of Salina, secretary; A. T. Sharpe, of Ottawa, treasurer; J. M. Hogue, of Emporia, and C. R. Mitchell, of Geuda Springs.

CITY AND PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS.

Water Works.—The erection of water works was first decided upon in September, 1881, although the need for such great aid to the health and prosperity of the city had long been apparent. The ordinance conferring power upon the Topeka Water Supply Company to put in water pipes and perform the other work incident to such an undertaking is a voluminous one, but may be briefly summarized as follows: Water was to be taken from the Kansas River and properly purified; not less than fifteen miles of pipe should be laid; the privilege of necessary excavations in the streets, subject to the usual conditions, was given the company; these rights were conferred for twenty years, and at the expiration of that time the city agreed to buy the works of the company at a fair valuation, set by the District Court of Shawnee County; the city rented one hundred and fifty fire hydrants, and had the right to increase this number to three hundred, beyond which number the rental of fifty dollars per year was abolished. A clause was also added giving the Water Supply Company the right to issue bonds, and providing for the free supply of water to the fire department, the city buildings, the public schools and six watering post fountains. It was also stipulated that work should be begun by October, 1881, and water be laid on in the fifteen miles of pipe by September, 1882, and that the city might enforce the laying of mains in any readily accessible graded street. These terms were acceded to by the company, and work was at once begun by the contractors, Messrs Russell & Alexander, to whom had been given the entire work of construction, as also the furnishing of the pumping apparatus and the digging of the mammoth well which was to supply it. For this work they received $158,000 in cash. This did not, however, include the purchase of the lands owned by the company, and consisting of the island, containing about six acres, and eight city lots, on the south bank of the river. Work was pushed rapidly, and on July 4, 1882, water was placed in the mains and an official test made. The machinery was found adequate to the task, and threw ten one-inch streams through fifty feet of hose, and one hundred feet in height. The pumps employed are of the Holley pattern, each of the two frames at the pumping works carrying four engines and four pumps. Under ordinary circumstances but one frame is kept in operation, but the other is always ready for instant use. While the power of these pumps is officially stated at three million gallons every twenty-four hours, it is fully five millions, as the regular working of the pumps of thirty-two strokes per minute might safely be doubled. The water supply, while practically from the Kansas River, is drawn from a giant well seventy-five feet in diameter and extending seven feet below the bottom of the river bed. This is located upon the island, while the pumping machinery is upon the south bank of the river. The officers of the company are: C. C. Wheeler, president; M. H. Case, vice-president; Byron Roberts, secretary; John Francis, treasurer; Robert Mood, superintendent. The Directors are: C. C. Wheeler, M. H. Case, Byron Roberts, P. I. Bonebrake, D. W. Stormont, W. S. Mellen, Geo. R. Peck, A. S. Johnson and S. S. McFadden.

Fire Department.—Up to the year 1870 no steps had been taken towards protecting the city from fire, and after the destruction of the post-office and other prominent buildings in 1869, it was deemed advisable to organize a Fire Department. In February, 1870, the city authorities purchased fire apparatus to the amount of $8,000, consisting of one Silsby, third-class, fire engine, hose-carts, hose, etc. In March, 1870, a volunteer fire department, composed of sixty-five members, was organized under the following named officers: G. A. Finch, president; H. T. Beman, vice-president; W. Peck, secretary; A. Knowles, treasurer; T. Billings, chief engineer; A. Foulkes, foreman engine company; G. W. Veale, foreman hook and ladder company. One of the first purchases after the organization was effected, was a pair of horses for the steam engine. One of these horses, "old Charlie," now twenty-two years of age, is still in the service on the "retired list," and is the pet of the department.

During 1872 a Babcock chemical fire engine was added to the apparatus. In April, 1872, T. Billings was succeeded by G. O. Wilmarth as chief engineer, which position he has retained up to the present time. At this time the only engine house in use was a building on Quincy street, south of the old Methodist Church. In October, 1873, the department occupied a large commodious stone and brick building, 50x100 feet, on Quincy street, north of the old Methodist Church, which was erected by the city for that purpose. In 1874 a Champion two-horse chemical fire engine was purchased at a cost of $1,700.

In January, 1875, the force was reduced to sixteen efficient men, and made a "Paid Department," with its discipline increased and improved accordingly. In 1877 a new steam fire engine was purchased at a cost of $4,200. It is of the size known as "second-class," and is in every respect one of the finest steam fire engines in the West. During the year following the department moved into the new city building, erected on the corner of Seventh and Kansas avenue, which place they still occupy, and which is provided with all the modern improvements and facilities for quick and speedy work, as well as affording comfort and conveniences for the men. The cost of this department building with all its fittings and fixtures necessary to the work, was $10,000. As the growth of the city increased, improvements were from time to time added to the working appliances of the organization, and the discipline and system improved until at the present time it is one of the indispensable departments of the municipal organization, and is at that state of efficiency which makes it the pride of the city.

The present apparatus consists of two steam fire engines, three horse hose-reels, one hook and ladder truck, two two-horse chemical engines and 3,300 feet of hose. The Gamewell Fire Alarm Telegraph has been placed in the service for the use of the department, at a cost of $3,300, and now thirteen signal stations are located in various parts of the city.

By the close and careful inspection of fire risks and hazards, together with the strict enforcement of the building laws and the efficiency of this department, is attributed to Topeka's immunity from disastrous fires.

Police Department.—The present efficient police department of this city has grown into an organization, without which the municipal government of Topeka would be endangered.

At the first meeting of the first city council, held February 11, 1858, the appointment of A. L. Gordon was confirmed, as City Marshal. From this dates the establishment of the police force. In 1870 John Reed was appointed Marshal, and was assisted in his duties by two policemen. In 1875, the police force was increased to a chief of police and six men, H. C. Lindsey, Chief. In 1877, the force was reduced to five men; James Dustan, chief. In 1879, the force was increased to eight men, T. Billings, Chief. In 1881, the force was composed of eleven men, which was subsequently increased to twenty men. The present police force number thirteen men, under T. W. Cochran, Chief, and J. F. Carter, deputy.

The Excelsior Coke and Gas Company.—On June 8, 1869, an ordinance was published by the city authorities relative to proposed illumination of the city by gas. The provisions of this instrument were in favor of the Excelsior Coke and Gas Company of Topeka, and conferred the exclusive right to lay gas pipes in the public thoroughfares for the twenty-one years ensuing. The only limitations set upon the gas company were the repairing of breaks in the streets caused by their work; the erection of the gas works within the corporation; uniformity in price with companies in other cities, and the completion of the work within a year of the time of its commencement. Work was begun at once, the building on the corner of First and Monroe Streets erected and the entire system placed in operation within the required time. But the immensely rapid growth of the city had not been estimated and the works were hardly completed befor it was found necessary to construct additions. Thus it went on from year to year until in 1880 it was decided to build anew, and the stone structure now in use was commenced. This work was completed in 1882, and crowned an expenditure by the company of about $60,000. Representing this sum are the old and new works and about ten miles of pipe. A large gas retort, having a capacity of 60,000 feet, was erected in 1880. This can hardly be regarded as a criterion of the capacity of the works as they can furnish 350,000 feet of gas daily. By January 1, 1883, improvements now in progress will be completed and a capacity adequate for a city of 50,000 inhabitants be secured. The force of men at the works is from six to ten, and on street work from five to thirty. The present officers of the company are, Col. C. K. Holliday, president; J. T. Clark, secretary; D. L. Lakin, treasurer; B. E. Choliar, superintendent.

The company was organized December 2, 1868, C. K. Holliday having been president from the first. The works commenced supplying gas January 10, 1870, having laid two and a half miles of pipe.

Topeka City Railway Company.—This company was first chartered under the name of The City Railway Co., September 10, 1880. Incorporators were, F. W. Giles, E. Wilder, J. Thomas, J. L. Shellabarger, P. McVicar, J. W. Hartzell, Theodore Terry, and E. C. Devereaux. The first directors were Messrs. Hartzell, Terry, Devereaux, Giles, and Wilder. The first officers were, F. W. Giles, president; E. C. Devereaux, secretary; E. Wilder, treasurer. The capital stock was $25,000, which was increased to $35,000 in June, 1881. The enterprise passed into new hands before the building was commenced. The new officers and directors were: Directors—W. B. Strong, E. Wilder, A. Prescott, Joab Mulvane, George O. Manchester, J. W. Hartzell, and D. W. Stormont. Officers—Joab Mulvane, president; E. Wilder, secretary and treasurer; J. Hartzell, superintendent.

Under this management the track was laid during the months of April and May, 1881; from Topeka avenue, along Tenth avenue to Kansas avenue; thence north along Kansas avenue across the bridge, and as far north as Gordon street. A branch was also built from the main track east on Fifth street, to the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe passenger depot. The road as then built gave transit along the full length of the principal street, to all the leading hotels, the State capitol buildings, and to both railroad depots. The stable was built on Tenth avenue, near Kansas avenue, and the road equipped with six ten foot and two twelve foot cars, and twenty-eight horses. The business of the road was encouraging from the beginning. Cars commenced running January 7, 1881.

August 8, 1881, a new company under the name of The Topeka City Railway was organized, with a capital stock of $50,000. The incorporators were: G. O. Manchester, Joab Mulvane, T. J. Kellam, I. T. Lockard, J. F. Goddard and A. Prescott.

The directors were: Wm. B. Strong, E. Wilder, Joab Mulvane, George O. Manchester, A. Prescott, J. W. Hartzell and D. W. Stormont. Officers were: Joab Mulvane, president; E. Wilder, secretary and treasurer. The new company bought all the stock, property and franchises of the original company, and continued the conducting of the business. October 1, 1881, Mr. Jesse Shaw was elected superintendent. On the morning of October 21, about 3 o'clock, a fire broke out in the barn which totally destroyed the cars, horses, and tools of the company, involving a loss of nearly $8,000 above the insurance. The origin of the fire was never discovered, and was supposed to be the work of an incendiary.

The barn was immediately rebuilt, and cars temporarily hired. In the following December, new twelve foot cars were purchased and put upon the road, being drawn by mules. In April, 1882, the road was extended on Tenth street, as far west as Polk street, and a double track laid between Fourth and Tenth streets on Kansas avenue. In June, 1882, the track was extended north from Gordon street to Hartzell's Park, and adequate additions made to the rolling stock of the road. The system contemplates the laying of a track westward on Sixth avenue, from Kansas avenue, so soon as the grade is permanently established. Already the company have in operation four miles of road, built in the most approved manner, four foot gauge with solid Macadamized road bed and tram rail. The company now runs seventeen cars, and owns upwards of forty mules. Its barn, rebuilt on the site of the one burned, is 50x100 feet in size.

The officers for 1882, were Joab Mulvane, president; G. O. Manchester, vice-president; E. Wilder, secretary and treasurer. Directors, besides the above, C. C. Wheeler, J. R. Mulvane, D. W. Stormont, and C. K. Holliday.

Topeka Bridges.—The contract for building the first bridge across the Kaw, was let to Messrs Jones, Kidney & Co., the work to be completed in May, 1858. The cost of the structure was estimated at about $12,000, the bridge to be 900 feet in length, with a turn-table 100 feet in length in the center, to admit of the passage of river boats. The officers of the Bridge Company were: President, Dr. F. L. Crane; Secretary, J. Fin Hill; Treasurer, F. W. Giles. It was finished according to contract, Saturday, May 1, 1858, and while it lasted was a source of great pride to Topeka. The local paper of May 8, says: "The tide of travel across the river at this point is increasing daily and hourly. * * * Besides the local travel for miles up and down the river, which is itself very considerable, this is the point of crossing for all trains for southern and southeastern Kansas, New Mexico, Arizona, California, and much of the travel to Utah and Oregon." The article states that twenty emigrant teams, or 250 head of cattle, can pass the bridge at the same time. The anticipations of the citizens of Topeka in regard to the commercial prosperity which the bridge was to bring to their doors, were speedily dashed to the ground. The great flood of July, 1858, raised the Kaw to the flooring of the structure, and on the 17th it divided and was carried in sections down the stream.

Ferries were re-established, and no other bridge was built until October, 1865, when a pontoon bridge was completed, Dr. Crane being again president of the bridge company. That answered a pretty good purpose until the present bridge was finished, in 1870. This is a "King's patent wrought iron tubular arch bridge." Six spans of 150 feet each set on stone piers, a roadway for vehicles and a foot walk on either side. The net cost was $81,000. It was first established as a toll bridge, but on July 15, 1871, the city and county voted the requisite amount of bonds, and it was made a free bridge. The bridge was commenced October 14, 1869, and finished February 24, 1870. The officers of the Bridge Company were: Mortimer Cook, president; C. N. Rix, treasurer; F. L. Crane, secretary. Company incorporated January 5, 1865.

The railroads centering in Topeka are sketched in the general State history.

The Brush Electric Light and Power Company, was organized August 1, 1881. Capital stock $100,000. One tower has been built, and a second one is proposed. Present officers, 1882: F. P. Baker, president; R. R. Moore, secretary and treasurer; directors, F. P. Baker, P. I. Bonebrake, R. R. Moore, W. H. Ward, N. Sneddicker, W. W. Gavitt and M. Edson.

The Topeka Power Company was organized in May, 1882. Capital stock, $10,500. Officers for 1882: Dr. S. E. Sheldon, president; I. N. Baker, secretary; John Francis, treasurer; directors, S. E. Sheldon, I. N. Baker, John Francis, M. H. Case and C. B. Smith.

Telephone Exchange Company.—The Topeka Telephone Exchange Company was chartered July 31, 1880, the incorporators being W. B. Strong, John R. Mulvane, Joab Mulvane, E. L. Smith and Joseph A. Corby. In October, 1881, the present telephone headquarters were purchased of the Western Union Telegraph Company, and a permanent organization effected, with the following officers: John R. Mulvane, president; W. B. Strong, vice-president; Joab Mulvane, treasurer; E. S. Smith, manager and secretary. The board of directors is composed of these officers and James A. Corby. The company now has a capital of $16,-200, and operates about 100 miles of wire and 180 telephones.

Postoffice.—A postoffice was established at Topeka March 3, 1855, Fry W. Giles being appointed Postmaster. The postoffice was destroyed by fire in the spring of 1869, being then located at No. 108 Sixth street.

The postmasters have been as follows, in the order named: F. W. Giles, C. C. Kellam, S. H. Fletcher (postoffice destroyed in his administration), H. W. Farnsworth, Capt. Henry King, T. J. Anderson, present incumbent, whose duties commenced in May, 1881. The money order register was the only record saved at the time of the fire. The money order office was established July 3, 1865, Charles Clarkson purchasing money order No. 1. The postoffice was made an office of the first class in July, 1871, and the delivery system was established in 1879. Seven men are employed on the present force.

At present a magnificent stone custom house is being built on Kansas avenue, which will soon be occupied. When completed its cost will be not less than $300,000.

OPERA HOUSES AND HOTELS.

Topeka Opera House.—A stock company was chartered in October, 1881, with a capital stock of $10,000, for the purpose of erecting an opera house. The work on the building, located on the corner of Seventh avenue and Jackson street, was immediately commenced, and was completed and opened September 11, 1882. The structure, a substantial brick, is 70x140 feet, with a stage 60x67 feet. The auditorium is divided into parquette, dress circle and family circle, with a seating capacity of 1,500.

Constructed at a cost of $60,000, it is one of the most elegant and commodious temples of amusement to be found in the West. This opera house has twenty-one places of exit, and when filled to its utmost capacity, can be emptied in one minute and a half. The present officers of the company are (no president): George W. Herron, vice-president: George M. Knox, treasurer; G. E. Quinton, secretary; George C. Crowther, manager.

Crawford's New Opera House.—This new opera house is the successor of the old Costa's opera house, remodeled by L. M. Crawford in 1880, and destroyed by fire on December 2, of the same year. The present building was erected in 1881 at a cost of $40,000, and opened on September 4. Numerous additions were made during 1882, and the house was reopened September 11, 1882. Entrance is had, through heavy stuff curtains to the two galleries and the auditorium. The latter is fitted with upholstered spring seat opera chairs of the best construction, and carpeted from the doors to the stage with fine Brussels. Near the stage are placed gas log fires in open grates, and above them tall plate glass mirrors. The stage is 30 x 50 feet; the seating capacity 1,000, and the aggregate width of the seven entrances sixty-two feet. L. M. Crawford is sole owner and manager.

Lukens' Opera House is located on Kansas avenue, North Topeka, about three blocks above the bridge, and was built by J. A. Lukens in the summer of 1880 at a cost in round figures of $10,000. Its size is 60 x 70 feet, or a frontage of nearly three lots. It can seat comfortably 800 people; has a single gallery and a stage 20x50 feet. Arrangements have been made for movable opera chairs which admit of the temporary use of the auditorium as a ball room or skating rink. During the two years since its opening this theater has maintained a reputation for bringing out only first-class companies, and has enjoyed a liberal patronage from both sides of the town. Mr. Lukens has always been sole owner and manager.

Topeka has as fine hotel accommodations as any city of its size in the country. Among the leading houses which have given her a reputation may be mentioned the splendid Windsor Hotel, opened in February, 1881; the "Old Gordon," built in 1855, but enlarged and finely furnished in 1880 at a total cost of $35,000, now called the "New Gordon;" Adams House, built in 1871 at a cost of $55,000; the Dutton, erected in 1880 for $10,000, and the Palace, rebuilt in 1878 at an expense of $12,000. The Copeland, when finished, will be as complete in its appointments as any in Topeka. It will be opened in December, 1882; building and furniture to cost $55,000. The Fifth Avenue House stands well also with the traveling public. The Capitol Hotel was rebuilt in 1880 for $8,000.

THE PRESS.

The Kansas Freeman was founded July 4, 1855, by E. C. K. Garvey, editor and proprietor. It was published as a Free-state weekly until October 23; a daily edition being issued during the sessions of the Constitutional Convention. The paper suspended during the spring of 1856.

The Kansas Tribune was founded by John Speer, and published at Lawrence from January 5, 1855, until the following November, Messrs. John Speer and S. N. Wood being associate editors during that period. After suspending publication for a few weeks Mr. Speer removed the paper to Topeka, and forming a partnership with W. W. Ross, issued the first number at that place December 10, 1855. During the session of the State Legislature, the following spring (March, 1856,) a daily edition was issued, full proceedings being reported. Mr. Speer's connection with the Kansas Tribune terminated in December, 1856; and Messrs. W. W. and E. G. Ross became editors and proprietors. In September, 1858, Ross Bros. retired from the paper, its publication being continued by Shepherd & Cummings, and later by Cummings alone. In 1863-4 it was sold to Andrew Stark. Mr. Stark issued a daily edition during the legislative session of 1864, and retained proprietorship until the following spring. May 5, 1865, Garvey & Holliday purchased it and resold to John P. Greer, October 27, 1866. The paper was then issued as a daily for a short time, Mr. Greer's proprietorship closing February 23, 1867. The Daily Tribune was re-issued December 6, 1867, by Messrs. Greer & Williams, and continued during the legislative session of 1868, soon after which it was finally discontinued.

The Kansas State Record (weekly) was established by E. G. and W. W. Ross, October 1, 1859. The changes in proprietorship were as follows: Spring of 1861, W. W. Ross sold to E. G. Ross; August 19, 1862, E. G. Ross to S. D. McDonald and F. G. Adams; February 1, 1863, F. G. Adams to F. P. Baker; February 6, 1868, McDonald to F. P. Baker.

The Kansas State Record (daily) was established by F. P. Baker June 3, 1868. April 20, 1869, Mr. Baker sold half interest to Henry King. (For the succeeding month only a half sheet could be issued owing to the destruction of the office by fire, April 3, 1869.) From 1870 to 1871 the Record was published by a joint stock company—Henry King, president; F. P. Baker, secretary and business manager. On February 15, 1871, Henry King retired from the concern, and G. D. Baker became president. On December 7, 1871, the Daily Record was consolidated with the Commonwealth. The Weekly Record was continued by G. D. Baker and S. D. McDonald, (who purchased the material of the Commonwealth Printing Company), until May 25, 1875, when it also was absorbed in the Commonwealth.

The Kansas Farmer, devoted to agriculture and kindred topics, was established May 1, 1863, as the organ of the State Agricultural Society, and published monthly at Topeka, under the immediate charge of F. G. Adams, secretary of the society. The paper was transferred to J. S. Brown, January 1, 1865, who removed it to Lawrence, and continued it till August 1, 1867. It was then purchased by George T. Anthony, and published by him at Leavenworth, with George A. Crawford as associate editor and traveling agent till May 15, 1872, when it was issued as a semi-monthly. In January, 1873, the Farmer was sold to M. S. Grant, who employed as editor Dr. A. G. Chase, who had been assistant editor under Anthony. Grant continued the publication to November 15, 1873, when the establishment was purchased by J. K. Hudson, who removed it to Topeka, January 1, 1874, and first issued the paper as a weekly on the 7th of the same month. The publication was continued by Hudson to May 1, 1878, when a half interest was sold to E. E. Ewing. At the end of one year it was re-purchased by Mr. Hudson, and was subsequently sold to DeMotte & Kicks in 1882. It existed under the name of "Kansas Farmer Company;" H. C. DeMotte, president; R. R. Brown, treasurer and business manager; H. A. Heath, general business agent; William A. Peffer, editor.

The Kansas Educational Journal, Rev. Peter McVicar, editor, was established January 1, 1864, and had an existence of ten years—nine in book form, one as a quarto. It had numerous contributors among the students of the State.

The Topeka Leader was founded December 9, 1865, J. F. Cummings and Ward Burlingame, proprietors. Mr. Burlingame edited the paper a few weeks, when he withdrew, and Mr. Cummings took sole charge until March 4, 1869, when it was absorbed in the Commonwealth. In September, 1876, Cummings and Johnson revived the Leader, but after a brief existence it was again merged in the Commonwealth.

The Commonwealth was established May 1, 1869, as a daily and weekly Republican paper, by S. S. Prouty and J. B. Davis, Ward Burlingame being chief editor. July 1, 1869, Prouty sold his interest to A. W. Edwards and George W. Crane, but re-purchased Edwards' interest in the latter part of the same month, when the firm became Prouty, Davis & Crane. Subsequently F. L. Crane and S. D. McDonald bought the interest of Davis & Crane, and the firm became S. S. Prouty & Co. December 7, 1871, the Commonwealth and Daily State Record were consolidated under the name of the Commonwealth, which was published by a stock company, S. S. Prouty, general manager; Henry King, managing editor. W. H. Rossington became one of the editors of the Commonwealth in November, 1872, and April 1, 1873, managing editor. Henry King became publisher and managing editor, August 17, 1873, S. S. Prouty severing his connection with the establishment at that time. October 30th of the same year, the Commonwealth building with all its material, was destroyed by fire. The paper was issued in the form of a half sheet from the Topeka Blade office for a month. When George W. Veale became the proprietor new material was procured, and the paper issued in its old form. Mr. Veale remained proprietor until January 1, 1875, when the paper was sold to F. P. Baker, who assumed control March 7, 1875, with N. L. Prentis as local and news editor. June 1, 1876, Mr. Baker associated his three sons with him as partners, the publishing company being F. P. Baker & Sons. May 1, 1881, the Commonwealth Company was organized under the general statutes of the State, and since that time the paper has been conducted essentially under the same management as heretofore. The capital stock of the company is $75,000, divided into 7,500 shares of $10 each. The paid up capital $42,000. The officers are (1882) as follows: Floyd P. Baker, president; Nestor R. Baker, secretary and treasurer; F. P. Baker, editor-in-chief; T. B. Murdock, managing editor; C. C. Baker, city editor. The paper has been, and is now, the leading State organ of the Republican party, its province as such being vigorously contested by the Capital.

The Topeka Capital was established, as an evening daily paper, by J. K. Hudson and E. E. Ewing, who had, up to that time, been jointly interested in the publication of the Kansas Farmer, and in the American Young Folks, started by Mr. Hudson, in 1875. With an excellent job office and the prestige of success in former journalistic ventures, the firm issued the first number April 21, 1879. It was quite modest in its proportions and pretensions, being a five-column folio, independently Republican in politics, and professing to publish the latest news. It was popular from the beginning. At the end of one month it was increased in size to six columns; three months after to seven columns, and before the end of its first year to eight columns. It was enlarged to its present proportions—eight pages, six columns—January 1, 1881.

November 1, 1881, it was made a morning paper, published every day in the year. It has, from that day, increased constantly in patronage and popularity, and now takes rank as one of the leading newspapers of the great West, being recognized throughout the Union, outside the State, by more frequent quotations from its columns, than any other Kansas journal. It remained under the proprietorship of Messrs. Hudson & Ewing until January 31, 1880, at which time the partnership was dissolved, Mr. Ewing becoming the proprietor of the Kansas Farmer, and Mr. Hudson remaining as the proprietor of The Capital.

August 9, 1881, the Topeka Daily Capital Publishing Company was incorporated under the provisions of the general statutes of the State, and, September 1, bought of Mr. Hudson the Capital with his publishing house, printing office, and the general good will of his whole establishment. The company comprised some of the leading citizens and capitalists of the State, and stands in credit equal to any like corporation in the country. The cash capital of the company is $30,000. Its purpose as recorded was: "to publish the Topeka Daily and Weekly Capital, and to carry on a general publishing and printing business." Its officers are E. B. Purcell, Manhattan, Kas., president; W. A. Johnston, secretary; Jno. R. Mulvane, Topeka, treasurer; J. K. Hudson, business manager; Henry King, editor-in-chief.

Mr. J. K. Hudson was the editor of the paper until November 1, 1881, the date at which it became a morning daily. At that time Mr. Henry King became editor-in-chief, and now (1882) holds that position.

The Capital, under the present business and editorial management, already having attained the foremost journalistic rank in the State, gives well grounded hopes to its numerous friends of becoming the leading metropolitan journal of the central region, lying midway between the great oceans. In politics the paper has been always unequivocally Republican, and, on the question of the prohibition of the sale of spirituous liquors, since it became a local issue, an outspoken advocate of prohibition, and the law as established by constitutional amendment in Kansas. The present company, in addition to the publishing of the daily and weekly editions of the Capital, print The Kansas Farmer, The American Young Folks, The Educational, The Faithful Witness, The Churchman, and other papers and magazines. It has in connection with its publishing office, one of the best appointed and largest job-printing and book-binding establishments in the West. The Capital is now the official State paper.

The National Workman, a weekly seven-column paper, established May 25, 1882, and devoted to the interests of labor and labor reform and the anti-monopoly party. Mr. H. T. Wakefield, editor and proprietor, all home print, one dollar per year. This paper is the chief organ of the Knights of Labor of Kansas and western Missouri.

The North Topeka Mail was issued October 20, 1882. F. H. Collier and W. E. Coutant, publishers; C. G. Coutant and F. H. Collier, editors.

The North Topeka Times, Republican, established by C. Maynard, March 16, 1871, was sold to J. V. Admire, May 30, 1872, and re-sold to V. P. Wilson, January 1, 1874. The Times was published as a weekly by Mr. Wilson until the spring of 1875, when (it having been removed to the south of the river), it was issued as an evening daily, until May 25, 1876, the publishing company being Wilson & Sons. It was then purchased by N. R. Baker, and published by him for six weeks, with S. S. Prouty as editor, when it was merged in the Commonwealth.

North Topeka Times (2d). Frank A. Root purchased the material of the Kansas Magazine, and June 8, 1876, commenced the publication of the Times, a weekly Republican paper. September 22, 1877, he sold a half interest to George S. Irwin, the publishers being Root & Irwin. Frank A. Root severed his connection with the Times in December, 1879, leaving Mr. Irwin as the manager. In November, 1881, Mr. Irwin was succeeded by F. H. Roberts, J. S. Temple and J. A. Carruth, Mr. Carruth staying in but a short time. February 15, 1882, C. G. Coutant bought out Messrs. Roberts & Temple's interest; by contract Mr. Temple remained three weeks; Mr. Roberts, until July 1, 1882. Mr. Roberts has succeeded his father, J. W. Roberts, on the Oskaloosa Independent (Jefferson County) and the paper was under the complete control of C. G. Coutant, who enlarged the weekly from a forty to a fifty-column paper, from eight to ten pages. Under Mr. Irwin's management there was an evening daily issued from the office for the last year of his connection with the paper. October 7, 1882, F. S. Shembaugh & A. B. Whiting took possession of all the material, books, good will, etc., of the Times. They put several hundred dollars' worth of new material in the office, and material from the Walnut City Blade, of Rush County. Before the departure of Mr. Coutant from the office, the Times had been managed by the "North Topeka Printing Company," and the Evening Republic was run for nine weeks. January 1, 1883, it was owned by A. B. Whiting and his son, H. S. Whiting, who is editor and publisher.

The Topeka Blade was founded August 1, 1873, as a daily evening independent paper, by J. Clarke Swayze. It was discontinued from January 31, 1874, until January 7, 1875, when its publication was resumed by Swayze, and continued until his death, March 27, 1877. The paper was run under the supervision of Mrs. Swayze until February 28, 1878, when it was bought by Capt. George W. Reed, of Chicago, and published as a Republican paper, its name being changed in September, 1879.

The Kansas State Journal was established under its present name in September, 1879, it being the successor of the Topeka Blade, purchased by George W. Reed, who has remained the sole proprietor, publisher and business manager from then to the present time, November 10, 1882. His success has been such as to prove his ability, both as a business manager and a journalist of the highest grade of excellence.

The paper was run as a Republican paper until about December, 1880, when it became an organ of the Greenback and Labor Reform Party, and has continued the leading advocate of the advance doctrines of financial reform since that time. Its first nominal editor, after the new departure, was D. P. Mitchell. Failing health brought to his aid as associate editor, Col. Samuel N. Wood, who, on his death, which occurred September, 1881, became sole editor, and has so remained since that time. The paper has now the largest weekly circulation of any paper in the State, and is on a firm, financial basis, having, in addition to the patronage of the paper, published daily and weekly, one of the largest and most finely appointed printing establishments in the State.

The Evening Herald.—This is a five-column folio daily, published every evening. Its publishers and proprietors are Wesley C. Gregory, C. F. Dutcher and George W. Brizier. These gentlemen possess journalistic and newspaper experience. It claims to be independent, in politics, neutral in religion, and aggressive in its devotion to principle.

The Kansas Valley Times.—This paper commenced its existence at St. Mary's, Pottawatomie County, in 1874, its proprietor being O. LeRoy Sedgwick. In 1879, the paper was removed to Rossville, Shawnee County, and June 15, 1882, it was removed to Topeka, Mr. Sedgwick having disposed of it to the Kansas Valley Publishing Company. Its office is 70 Kansas avenue; its editor, F. W. Kroenke, who intends to make it the Central Real Estate Banner of Kansas. Mr. Kroenke is a native of Germany. He landed at Charleston, S. C. in 1846, and was there mainly devoted to journalism until 1854, when he returned to Europe, and was absent a year. He speaks fluently the German, French and English languages.

The American Young Folks was established by J. K. Hudson, in 1875. It was a sixteen-page illustrated monthly, issued quarterly during 1875, and subsequently as a monthly. He sold it in October, 1881, to Messrs. Longshore & Smith, by whom it is now (1882), published.

The Deutsche Zeitung and Kansas Telegraph.—H. VonLangen, editor and proprietor. This paper was established at Marion Center, May 5, 1880, and was there continued until December 1880, when it was removed to Atchison, and changed to a small daily, and so remained until July 27, 1881, when it was moved to Topeka, and commenced as a semi-weekly, July 27, 1881, and on June 1, 1882, it was made an eight-page weekly. It is printed in German, and it has a circulation among the German farmers of the State, and of the laboring German population of the city. Nearly 100 copies are sent to different places in Germany. Mr. VonLangen is an indefatigable worker in those things that he deems vital to the best interests of his class of people in these United States.

The Colored Patriot.—This paper was started at Fort Scott in September, 1877, as The Colored Citizen, by William L. Eagleson & Bro. They moved it to Topeka, July 15, 1878 and there the management was under Rev. Thomas W. Henderson and William L. Eagleson until May 15, 1820. It was known as the Herald of Kansas, for three weeks, and on June 24, 1879, it was run as the Topeka Tribune, by E. H. White. It underwent some changes in the autumn of 1879, and about the 1st of September, 1881, it was under the management to which it had passed, brought to a close. April 20, 1882, E. H. White revived it under the name of the Colored Patriot, and it is at present leased to Gregory, Dutcher & Brazee, the present proprietors of The Evening Herald, an afternoon daily, published at 186 Kansas avenue.

The Kansas Methodist.—This paper commenced its existence as a monthly, in January, 1879; the office was 202 Kansas avenue; its publishers and editors were Rev. James E. Gilbert and Rev. John D. Knox. Mr. Gilbert was then Pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, of Topeka, and Mr. Knox was a banker and retired minister, performing only occasional ministerial service. It was an eight-page paper. In January, 1880, Silas Slussen became publisher, its editors remaining the same. In December of this year, Rev. Mr. Gilbert having removed to Milwaukee, Wis.; entering upon the field of labor which Rev. O. J. Cowles had occupied, his labors as editor terminated. January 6, 1881, the paper appeared as a weekly, Rev. O. J. Cowles, D. D., the successor of Mr. Gilbert as Pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, here, was associated with Mr. Knox as editor; Walter Oakley was associated with Mr. Slussen as publisher. In January, 1882, the paper was increased four inches in length. Its price is $1.25 per year. It is now published at 182 Kansas avenue.

Defunct Papers.—The list of papers that have been born only to die, in this ambitious city of the West, is a long one, and includes many which, in their short day, made no mean pretensions to excellence:

The Topeka Tribune, a campaign paper, was started by the Topeka Greenback Publishing Company as a tri-weekly, October 15, 1881.

The Tanner and Cobbler was published by M. R. Moore, and J. L. King, during the fall of 1872, as a campaign paper in the interest of Grant and Wilson.

The Topeka Bulletin, a daily evening paper, was published for one week by L. M. Crawford. F. G. Adams, editor.

The Living Age was published five weeks in the campaign of 1880; it advocated the support of James B. Weaver for President. Edited by J. C. Hebbard.

The Independent, J. F. Cummings publisher, was issued for a few months in the fall of 1870.

The Kansas Staats Zeitung was established September 15, 1871, by George Tauber, and published by him for about one year. The material was then purchased by A. Thoman and others, who continued the publication of the paper during the campaign of 1872, in the interest of Horace Greeley. The material was then employed in printing a Swedish paper called the Kansas Monitor, which survived about a year.

The Star of Empire was published by the National Land Company, with Dr. W. E. Webb, as editor, during the years 1869 and 1870. It was a monthly, and was printed at the Record office, a very large edition being issued.

The Advertiser, a monthly real estate paper, was published by Mills & Smith, commencing about 1868. It was afterwards published by J. P. Ennis & Co.

The Kansas Magazine was published by an incorporated company consisting of the following members: S. S. Prouty, Henry King, D. W. Wilder, C. W. Babcock, T. A. Osborn, John A. Martin, D. M. Valentine, M. W. Reynolds, and W. H. Smallwood. The company was incorporated November 8, 1871. The first number of the Magazine was issued January 1872, Henry King being the first editor. James W. Steele succeeded Mr. King as editor. At the expiration of one year the Magazine was discontinued, October, 1873.

The Wood Chopper, a campaign paper, was published by F. P. Baker, in 1872, in the interest of Greeley.

The Commercial Advertiser was published in 1877 by E. F. Campbell.

The Capital City News was issued September 30, 1872, by an association of printers, the company being L. H. Hascall, James W. Fox, W. H. Johnson, and W. P. Newhart. It was a campaign paper, in support of Horace Greeley. J. G. Waters was editor. It ran two months, the last issue being November 9, 1872.

CHURCHES.

The First Methodist Episcopal Church.—On the 21st of March, 1855, a small number of men and women met and formed themselves into this church organization. Rev. A. Still was the presiding elder, Rev. James S. Griffing the Pastor, and J. Case, class leader; H. H. Wentworth, Sunday-school superintendent. The first quarterly meeting was held at the house of Osborne Naylor. In 1856, G. W. Pipher was Pastor, and through his efforts, and those of some of the members, the Town Company donated to the church the lots on the west side of Quincy street, between Fifth and Sixth, for church purposes. In 1857 and 1858 J. V. Holliday was Pastor; in 1859 and 1860 Ira Blackford. In 1860 the church building was commenced, and work was sufficiently advanced so that the basement was occupied as a place of worship during the year.

In 1861, and in 1862, John Paulson was the Pastor; and in 1863, and in 1864, Thomas A. Parker; in 1865, 1866, and in 1867, John D. Knox. In 1867, the church building was generally improved; the steeple finished and the clock put in. In 1868, 1869, 1870, T. J. Leak was the Pastor. In 1870, the church building was enlarged. In 1871 and in 1872, D. P. Mitchell was the Pastor. In 1873, 1874, and until August, 1875, J. J. Thompson was the Pastor; but, at that time, owing to the transfer of the presiding elder—Rev. J. Boynton—to the Michigan Conference, Rev. J. J. Thompson was appointed presiding elder of the conference, and Rev. D. J. Holmes became the Pastor, remaining as such through the years of 1876 and 1877.

In 1873, the long remaining debts on the church were paid; in 1877, the church building was beautified and stained glass put in the doors. In 1878, 1879, and until near the close of 1880, Rev. James E. Gilbert was the Pastor. A parsonage was purchased in 1878 for $2,500, and suitably furnished. The church membership at that time was 353; probationers, 109; Sunday-school scholars, 500. In 1879, the parsonage was sold and a new one purchased at the cost of $7,000, on the southwest corner of Sixth and Harrison streets. In October, 1880, O. J. Cowles was appointed Pastor, and he remains as such.

In 1881, the new church edifice on the southwest corner of Harrison and Sixth streets was erected, at a cost of $30,000. The building is 116x70, exclusive of steps and areas, with the extension of the south end, westward, 33x40 feet. The auditorium is 68x57, with gallery around three sides. It is forty-nine feet from floor to ceiling. The main walls are sixty-two feet from the ground to the peak of the gable. The roof is open timber work handsomely decorated. The style of the exterior is English gothic, built of stone. The building is heated throughout with steam. There are two towers, the taller one at the corner of Sixth avenue and Harrison street, 124 feet high, containing the bell and clock. The partitions between the auditorium and Sunday-school room are so constructed as to be opened, and thus the two rooms are thrown into one when desired. The seating capacity of the building, when all the departments are thrown open, is about 1300. The building was dedicated by Bishop Hurst, June 11, 1882.

The First Congregational Church.—The history of this organization is one of the most interesting of any in the city of Topeka or the county of Shawnee. This history has been so well delineated by President Peter McVicar, of Washburn College, in his memorial discourse of April 23, 1880, that the following gleanings are gathered therefrom.

The first sermon ever preached at Topeka was on December 29, 1854, by Rev. Samuel Y. Lum, then pastor of the Plymouth Congregational Church at Lawrence, at the house of Mr. A. A. Ward, near the bank of the Kansas River.

October 14, 1855, nine persons met in a small cabin constructed of boards and oak bark, the home of Mr. James Cowles, to consult in reference to the formation of an Anti-slavery Congregational Church. Their names were, Rev. Paul Shepherd, John Ritchie, William E. Bowker, Milton C. Dickey, A. H. Barnard, William Scales, H. H. Cowles, James Cowles and Charles A. Sexton. Mr. Shepherd was elected chairman, and James Cowles secretary. A committee was appointed to draft articles of faith and covenant, and report on the following Sabbath. A subscription was started to procure funds wherewith to erect a house of worship, and it aggregated $330 from those present. July 14, 1856, a meeting was held at Constitution Hall, "to completely organize our body by the election of deacons, trustees and clerk." James Cowles and H. W. Farnsworth were chosen deacons; John Ritchie, Milton C. Dickey and H. P. Waters, trustees; Martin Luther Gaylord, clerk. Application having been made by the trustees to the Topeka Town Association for a grant of suitable lots as a site for a house of worship, a donation was made of six lots 25x150 each, on the southwest corner of Seventh and Harrison streets, four of which constitute the present location.

The first pastor of this church, Rev. Lewis Bodwell, of Clifton, N. Y., who had come to Topeka with a commission from the Home Missionary Society, said in a report made to the society: "There was but little to cheer a minister of the Gospel." One of the nine members had gone East, another was in Ohio, a third was just recovering from severe illness, a fourth was a territorial prisoner at Lecompton.

The clerk entered a minute upon the church records as follows: "We are perplexed and somewhat cast down in view of the state of society, resulting from the outrages perpetrated upon the people of our Territory—outrages unparalleled in the history of our Nation.

Notwithstanding the discouragements of the Pro-slavery times, pastor and people went to work, and on December 9, 1856, although the membership of the church was but sixteen, it was voted to build a house of worship, and subscriptions to the amount of $700 were secured, which, augmented by donations from friends at the East, and pledges of citizens, warranted the laying of a church foundation 42x70, early in the autumn of 1857. A year later the walls were ready for the roof, but owing to the lateness of the season and the lack of means, the roofing was postponed till spring. June 19, 1859, a sweeping storm struck the unprotected walls, and the greater portion of the rear and side walls were demolished. In the autumn came a pledge of $300 from the American Congregational Union, and efforts at rebuilding commenced in the spring of 1860; but in the latter part of May another violent gale laid the south wall in ruins. A third time the building of the edifice was commenced, after the removal of the debris, and before 1861 the building was enclosed, and on January 1, 1861, the first sermon was preached in the sanctuary. Constitution Hall, Old Union Hall, Museum Hall and the Brick Schoolhouse had been the worshiping places of the congregation through these years.

January 3, 1864, the house was dedicated; Mr. Bodwell preached the dedicatory sermon. The building cost $7,000. In October, 1860, Rev. Mr. McVicar was called to the pastorate, and he remained in the work until July, 1866, when he was succeeded by Rev. Mr. Bodwell, whose second term of service extended into the summer of 1869. Then Rev. J. G. Merrill became Pastor, remaining for one year. Mr. Merrill was succeeded in September, 1870, by Rev. Linus Blakesley, the present Pastor; Mr. Merrill having entered upon the general superintendency of Home Missions for Kansas.

During Mr. Blakesley's pastorate there has been an increase of the membership of over 400. The necessity arising for a larger structure, on May 18, 1880, the contracts for the present edifice were let, and work on the same soon after began. The building has cost $21,000, and is entirely free from debt. It was dedicated January 2, 1881; Rev. Richard Cordley, D. D., of Emporia, preached the dedicatory sermon. The former church building was occupied by the first State Legislature in the spring of 1861, and therein was born the motto of Kansas: "Ad astra per Aspera." The present edifice is a model in its convenience of arrangement. The form of the main auditorium is amphitheatral, the slips being curved and the sides descending and centering towards the platform. The spacious lecture room adjoins the auditorium, which, by lowering the large stained glass windows between, can be used to increase the seating capacity of the church. In the rear of the pulpit is a beautiful pipe organ, built by Hook, Hastings & Co., of Boston, Mass., and secured for the church through the "Monday Club," an organization of the young people of the church and the congregation, which has provided lectures and concerts from distinguished persons, for the benefit and gratification of the citizens of Topeka.

The First Baptist Church of Topeka was organized March 1, 1857. Its constituent members were Jesse Stone, Joseph C. Miller, Sarah E. Miller, Christopher Fitzgerald, Charles A. Bliss and William Jordan. The organization was effected in the basement of the house of J. C. Miller, on Sixth avenue, Revs. James Gilpatrick and Edward Seagraves being present. Rev. R. M. Fish, of Auburn, preached for them a part of the time thereafter, until C. C. Hutchinson became pastor of the church, June 18, 1859. He remained with them, being partly supported by the Baptist Missionary Board, until 1861. In 1862 they completed a small hall over Mr. Miller's store, which they occupied until January, 1879, when they entered their new house of worship on Ninth street, opposite the State House.

The church consisted of about twenty-five members, when Mr. Hutchinson was compelled to abandon the field, because of the pecuniary inability of the church. Rev. E. Alward received an appointment March 30, 1862, from the Mission Board, dividing his time between this church and the one in Burlingame, until 1865, when his whole labor was devoted to this church. He remained until the first of June, 1866, forty-seven persons having been added to the church during his pastorate. October 21, 1866, Rev. Isaac Sawyer, D. D., accepted a call to the pastorate. He remained until June, 1868. Rev. H. B. Fitch became the pastor, August 1, 1869, and remained one year. The foundation of the church edifice was laid under the administration of Dr. Sawyer, and was so far completed that the congregation occupied the basement. Rev. E. O. Taylor, of Chicago, took charge of the church April 12, 1871, and remained two years and ten months. Rev. J. L. Moore, D. D., of Piqua, Ohio, supplied the pulpit a portion of this time. Mr. Taylor's labors closed the first of February, 1874, and on July 6, 1874, Rev. C. Monjeau accepted the pastorate. For more than five years he remained pastor, during which period all the church debts were paid, the edifice was artistically completed, and the grounds graded and ornamented. Mr. Monjeau's labors terminated here early in 1880, and in February, 1881, Rev. C. C. Foote, from Philadelphia, came to this field of labor, and is the present pastor. The membership of the church is now about 175. The average attendance at Sunday-school is about 120.

H. M. Billingsley, the long-standing Sunday-school superintendent, in 1882, was succeeded by Samuel Dalton.

Grace Episcopal Cathedral.—In 1857, Rev. Charles Callaway began this mission. In 1860, the parish was organized with about twelve communicants. In 1864, Rev. N. O. Preston then having charge of the church, the edifice located on the southwest corner of Seventh and Jackson streets was so far completed as to be open for divine service. From June, 1865, to June 1869, Rev. J. N. Lee was Rector, when he resigned, and the Rev. Charles Stewart succeeded him, remaining as Rector until March, 1871. For seven months thereafter, Rev. D. O. Kellogg, of Lawrence, officiated as Rector. In the autumn of 1871, Rev. John Lukewell ministered to the church until June, 1875, when he resigned on account of ill health. When he left, the church edifice had been so extensively remodeled, enlarged and improved, as to constitute it virtually a new building. In January, 1876, Rev. Henry H. Loring was called to the Rectorship, and in October, 1879, Rev. J. F. Walker became Rector, but his labors did not long continue, for death claimed him as her own, February 25, 1880. The present Rector and Dean, Rev. Richard Ellerby, entered upon his labors August 1, 1880.

First Presbyterian Church.—On December 19, 1859, Rev. A. T. Rankin, of the Highland Presbytery, organized this church at the house of Mr. John Jackson, the members consisting of eight males and nine females. The ruling elders chosen were J. M. Hamilton and Ephraim Herriett.

A session was held February 15, 1860, for securing right of corporation, and the following named persons were recorded as members:

Mr. J. M. Hamilton, Mrs. M. A. Hamilton, H. H. Hukill, Mrs. M. V. Hukill, Charles McDonald, Mrs. M. J. McDonald, Ephraim Herriett, E. B. Conklin, Mrs. H. Conklin, W. H. Fitzpatrick, Mrs. Fitzpatrick, Andrew J. Ritchie, John Pilly, Mrs. Pilly, John Jackson, Mrs. R. W. Jackson, Mrs. Freeland, Mrs. Deming and Mrs. W. P. Douthitt. John A. Steele was Pastor; John Jackson, J. M. Hamilton, A. J. Ritchie and H. H. Hukill, trustees; E. R. Conklin, clerk.

The first house of worship was situated on the east side of Kansas avenue, between Seventh and Eighth streets.

Rev. Mr. Steele was a native of Greenbrier, Va; he graduated at Athens, Ohio; took a theological course at the Union Theological Seminary, of Virginia; was ordained and installed as pastor of the church at Stanton, Va., by the Presbytery of Lexington, Va. He removed with a colony to Grandview, Ill., where he built up a successful work in the ministry.

Consequent upon the drouth of 1860, there were removals from the place. The pastor was absent East, obtaining assistance for the people of Kansas, and the residence of some of the early members was lost. There were scarcely any records for 1861.

The first certificate of transfer of membership was that of Mrs. Sylvia Blake, from the North Church of St. Louis to that of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and was here recorded December 23, 1861.

Rev. Mr. Steele died October 12, 1864, aged sixty-two years.

From this time to November, 1865 the church was without regular services; then Rev. S. T. McLure, a licentiate from Vincennes, Ind., commenced labors with the church, and remained four months. April 5, 1866, there was a regular call given Rev. John Ekin, D. D., of the Presbytery of Miami, Ohio, and he was installed as pastor November 7, 1866. There were then about thirty-seven members.

The new chapel situated on the south side of Eighth street, east of the corner of Kansas avenue, was opened for service October 5, 1867. It was a very fortunate selection of a site, and the wisdom of its founders has been attested. November 28, 1868, Rev. Alexander Sterrett, D. D., of the Presbytery of Indiana, came upon the field, and Rev. Francis S. McCabe, of Franklin, Ind., who had commenced his ministerial labors, September 28, 1868, was, through Mr. Sterrett's action, placed in full pastoral relations to the church, and from January 1, 1869, to April 16, 1882, he has steadily labored for the prosperity of this society, and through his ministry the communicants have increased tenfold, the number now exceeding 300. The church edifice and grounds are beautifully located, and their value is $15,000.

R. B. Gemmell is the Sunday-school superintendent; he has served for many years, and there is a membership of about 300. Rev H. W. George succeeded Dr. McCabe in 1882

Rev. Dr. McCabe has gathered and organized several churches in Shawnee County.

(1). Bethel Church, seven miles southeast of Topeka, organized May 28, 1871.

(2). Pleasant Ridge Church, nine miles northwest of Topeka, organized July 16, 1876; Silverlake and Kingsville Churches are its adjuncts.

(3). Wakarusa Church, twelve miles south of Topeka, organized December 5, 1877.

(4). North Topeka Church, organized September 15, 1878.

(5). Mission Center Church, six miles west of Topeka, organized January 16, 1881. All of these churches, except Wakarusa, received their original membership largely from the Topeka Church. These churches have good houses of worship which are free from debt, except Mission Center Church, which has obtained its grounds for the church building and parsonage and will build ere long. The aggregate value of this outlying church property is $10,000.

Church of the Assumption (Catholic).—This congregation, one of the oldest church organizations in the city, was organized prior to 1862, by Rev. James H. Defouri. The first church edifice, the oldest in the city, was completed in August, 1862.

This building, located near the corner of Eighth avenue and Jackson street, is now occupied as a parochial school, under the auspices of the Sisters of Charity. The school, which has an attendance of two hundred and forty pupils, employs six teachers.

In 1881, the foundations for a new and more commodious edifice were laid. The building, which is a handsome brick structure, 56x115 feet, was completed in the winter of 1882-83, at a cost of $20,000.

Assumption Cemetery, which was established in 1873, occupies a tract of five acres, lying four miles southwest of the city.

A flourishing Sabbath school of two hundred pupils is connected with the church, which numbers seventeen hundred communicants under the pastorate of Rev. James Riley.

Congregational Church (North Topeka).—In May, 1866, Rev. Rodney Paine commenced his labors as a missionary in North Topeka, and in July, 1869, this church was organized under Mr. Paine's pastorate, with a membership of eleven: Rev. Rodney Paine, Martha Paine, C. R. Paine, J. L. Paine, Deacon Elisha Ward and wife, Mr. and Mrs. George Ward, Catharine Garamier, Elizabeth Van Order and Martha M. Finn. Rev. Mr. Paine continued his labors until the autumn of 1870, when he resigned his charge in consequence of ill health. Rev. John H. Barrows succeeded Mr. Paine, as a stated supply for three months, and he was succeeded by Rev. Walter M. Barrows who preached as a stated supply for nine months. In September, 1871, Rev. T. W. Jones was called to the pastorate, his labors having commenced the Sabbath following the dedication of the present church edifice, which had been begun and finished during the ministry of Rev. Walter M. Barrows.

The first house of worship was a log building, then standing upon the southwest corner of Kansas avenue and Laurent street.

The present edifice is located upon the northeast corner of Laurent and Jackson streets. It was dedicated August 13, 1871; the dedicatory sermon was preached by Rev. William Kincaid, of Leavenworth. The organization then numbered twenty-four.

The edifice, including the ground and bell, which is an 800 pounds Meneely, the gift of E. W. Baker to the church, cost something in excess of $4 000; the bell with its fixtures and setting cost $655.

Rev. H. C. Scotford succeeded Mr. Jones in June, 1876, and in September, 1877, he was succeeded by its present pastor, Rev. Samuel P. Dunlap. The church is entirely free from debt, and its prospects for an enduring growth and influence are very encouraging. Its present membership is about seventy-five. Its Sunday school averages about seventy.

Spiritualists.—The First Society of Spiritualists in the city was organized in the spring of 1867, obtaining the services of occasional speakers. In the autumn of 1868 they secured Mrs. H. T. Thomas, a distinguished inspirationalist, and they held meetings Sundays, morning and evening, at Odd Fellows Hall, No. 158 Kansas avenue. In September, 1868, the society was incorporated, and through the kind munificence of its President, Dr. F. L. Crane, it became the owner of a good house and lot, which was used as a parsonage. In 1872, Mrs. Thomas passed to the higher life, and the society employed as lecturer, Rev. T. B. Taylor, A. M., M. D., who, for many years had been a leading and successful clergyman in the Methodist Episcopal Church.

It is several years since there have been stated and regular public services of this society, but weekly meetings are held each Sunday evening at the residence of Mrs. E. Greer, northeast corner Sixth and Topeka avenues.

Lutheran Church, (Swedish).—This society has a church edifice on the west side of Tyler street, between Second and Third streets; was organized prior to 1868 with ten members. Present church edifice was erected in 1869-70. Present number of members twenty-five. No regular pastor at present.

United Brethren Church.—This church was organized in July, 1869, with eight members. In the following autumn they commenced the erection of their church edifice, 30x45 feet, located on the corner of Van Buren and Fourteenth streets, and it was completed in 1870. Rev. Loren G. Condry was their pastor and in 1872 the church had a membership of eighty.

North Topeka Baptist Church.—This church was organized April 4, 1869, by Rev. J. Barratt, who came to Topeka in September, 1868, and preached three months for the First Baptist Church, which society then worshiped in a hall over J. C. Miller's store. This church then had a membership of thirty-five, and they desired Mr. Barratt to become their pastor, but finding them unable to build a house of worship, he went to North Topeka and there commenced a work which has ultimated in a very strong church. At the organization there were eleven member. Their names are, J. Barratt, D. Barratt, A. C. Beckwith, Anna Beckwith, O. Vaughn, Fanny Vaughn, Sophronia Vaughn, Esther Vaughn, Sevasta Vaughn, Daniel Scott and Jane Bickell.

The schoolhouse on the west side of Kansas avenue, between Laurent and Gordon streets, had at first been used by them in common with other denominations as a house of worship; but, in 1871, the church occupied the basement of their edifice on the northeast corner of Laurent and Harrison streets.

In 1879 the building was completed. The main audience room has a seating capacity for 550 persons. The edifice is a beautiful two story stone building 40x75 feet; its cost was $11,000; it is entirely free from debt. Its bell cost $225; is one of the clearest toned ones in the city, and can be heard several miles from the church.

Rev. Mr. Barratt, resigned his pastorate November 16, 1881, and his successor is Rev. C. W. Gregory. The present membership of the church exceeds 200, and there is an average attendance of 150 at its Sunday-school. The Superintendent, Mr. William G. Shaw, is a most efficient and indefatigable worker, and he has had his reward in the great success attending his labors.

The ladies of the church have a Mission Society, and their minimum contribution to the Home Mission cause has been five dollars per month, while to the Foreign Missions they make liberal contributions.

The First Swedish Church, (Topeka).—This church was organized December 31, 1880, with twelve members. Its pastor is Rev. ——— Dolcrist, a graduate from a Swedish theological seminary. Its present membership is about twenty-five. Their regular services are held in the Swedish language. Their Sunday school is of recent origin and comparatively prosperous.

Their church edifice on Sixth and Fillmore streets, was erected at a cost of $2,000. Its present indebtedness is $300.

The Madison Street Church (Topeka).—This organization was formed December 16, 1881, with a membership of twenty-eight. Its pastor Rev. A. N. Petty, came from Meriden, Jefferson County, and he has been very successful in his fields of labor. The Sunday school has an average of 100 members. The church building is on the east side of Madison street just south of the Madison school building. It cost $2,000, and is free from debt.

The Perryville Church (Jefferson County).—The organization at Perryville, Jefferson County, sixteen miles east of Topeka, on the U. P. R. R., was formed December 16, 1881, with forty-two members. Their edifice cost $2,100, and they have two Sunday schools, averaging about seventy-five each.

Methodist Episcopal Church (North Topeka).—Rev. P. T. Rhodes, who had a large circuit, embracing Grantville, Jefferson County, Indian Creek, Half Day and Rochester, in the autumn of 1870, organized this church with a membership of seventeen. Ira Markham, Permelia Curtis, Elias Pierson, Benjamin F. Kistler, Cynthia Smith and Mrs. Keiser were some of the first members. Its membership rapidly increased and other religious organizations have grown out of this. The schoolhouse on Kansas Avenue was its first place of worship, and in 1874 an edifice was erected on the south side of Laurent street on No. 85 Quincy, which consisted of a lecture room and two class rooms and contiguous to it was a comfortable parsonage.

In 1880, this property was disposed of to a colored Methodist society and the congregation now worship in a very spacious and commodious structure which was completed in 1881, at a cost of $7,500 and is situated on Kansas avenue just above its junction with Central avenue. It is a brick structure lighted by gas, and is still somewhat encumbered by debts incurred in its construction.

Its first pastor was Rev. P. T. Rhodes, with the following successors: From 1871 to 1874, Rev. C. J. Lovejoy; in 1874, 1875 and 1876, Rev. J. B. Orwig; in 1877 and 1878, Rev. S. P. Jacobs; in 1879 and a part of 1880, Rev. George W. Henning; since then Rev. James Lawrence, who resigned, was succeeded by Rev. C. S. King. Church now (1882) without a pastor. The Sunday school is largely attended and its management is in the hands of Mr. J. M. Baird, its efficient superintendent.

German Methodist Episcopal Church.—This church was organized in 1870 with ten members, Rev. John P. Miller pastor. A brick church edifice was erected by the society in 1871 on Jackson street, between Fifth and Sixth streets. It was 26x40; its cost was $3,000. The society has sold this property and it is erecting (1882) a frame house of worship on the northeast corner of Fifth and Tyler streets. The church has fifty members. H. Kreuger is its pastor. W. Vesper is the Sunday-school superintendent, and the school averages eighty members. The society expects soon to build a parsonage.

Unitarian Church.—The first Unitarian society was organized in August, 1871; articles of association were adopted; in November a minister was called and officers were elected. Rev. George Patton was the minister; the trustees were H. Bartling, C. Reed, E. S. Robinson, R. H. C. Searle and Mrs. A. P. Wilder. A. P. Wilder was secretary and treasurer. The place of worship was in Unitarian Hall, Kansas avenue near the corner of Eighth avenue. The Sunday-school, which was organized simultaneously with the society, had at the close of the first year nearly seventy-five pupils. Its superintendent was Mrs. A. P. Wilder. At a later period J. C. Collins, of Olathe, Kan., the Chief Clerk in the office of State Treasurer, was added to the force of workers, but a subsequent removal of many of the early workers from the city caused the movement to decline and die.

United Presbyterian Church.—The edifice belonging to this body of worshipers was built in the autumn of 1872, and dedicated under the pastorate of Rev B. L. Boldridge. It is located on the corner of Eighth and Topeka avenues. The present pastor is Rev. W. E. Dunlap.

Lutheran Church (German).—This society has a stone church edifice located on the southeast corner of Van Buren and Second streets, and it has a good frame dwelling for a parsonage. The value of the church property and parsonage is $4,000. The church was organized March 1, 1874, having nine voting members. P. F. Germaine was its first pastor. There has been a membership of considerable number who have removed to other places, and the present number is eighteen. Its Sunday-school numbers fifty, and the pastor, F. Temekamp, is its superintendent.

The Universalist Church (North Topeka).—A Universalist Church was organized in North Topeka April 3, 1874, by the Rev. V. P. Wilson, and the parish contained about twenty families. The deacons were C. H. Bowen and C. S. Gregg. The trustees were C. T. Tompkins, J. S. Morey and J. G. Schoonover. The first members of the church embraced C. H. Bowen, Lucinda Bowen, S. C. Gregg, Matilda Gregg, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Schoonover, Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Tompkins and Allen Gregg. The services were held in the school building and the membership reached about thirty. Allen Gregg was superintendent of the Sunday-school, which numbered about seventy-five. Mr. Gregg returned to Springboro, Ohio, and Mr. Wilson to Dickinson County, consequent upon which events the church organization came to a dissolution, but during the years 1880 and 1881, Rev. T. W. Woodson preached at Union Hall and other places for the Universalists.

Southwestern Holiness Association.—At Bismarck Grove in June, 1878, an organization was effected embracing members who were residents of Missouri and Kansas, and the following named persons were among its officers: President, Rev. S. P. Jacobs; Vice-President, Rev. J. W. Caughlan; Secretary, Rev. R. E. O'Byrne; Treasurer, Rev. J. H. Poland; other members with the above as incorporators, Rev. A. M. Kelgan and H. C. McKinley. This organization held their first annual meeting in December, 1879, in the Methodist church in Lawrence; and in June, 1882 they became incorporated at North Topeka. Their trustees being H. C. McKinley William Embree, John W. Smith, Joseph Middaugh and George H. Cramer. This association of Christians are quite numerous at St. Joseph and Chillicothe, Mo., and they are extending their work into Iowa, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. They have as organs devoted to the propagation of their tenets the National Holiness Association, published by Inskip & Wood, at Philadelphia, Pa.; the Advocate of Holiness, by McDonald & Watson, of the same place; the Guide to Holiness, at New York. Their first president, Rev. S. P. Jacobs, being a former pastor of the North Topeka Methodist Episcopal Church, quite an impetus was given the movement here in consequence, and quite a number of the members of this church have gone into and helped develop this association. Mr. Jacobs is now a missionary in India, and his work has culminated here in the erection of a church edifice by a band of devoted followers, which is a neat brick building situated on the southeast corner of Grant and Jackson streets, twenty-seven by forty-four feet, capable of seating 200 persons, erected at a cost of $1,300. Rev. J. B. Williams is their pastor and their church services are held at the usual hours. Their Sunday-school has just been formed with a membership of about thirty. Members are coming in from various religious organizations and the tests required can be expressed in the following brief declaration: To be living in the clear light of Christian holiness.

North Presbyterian Church (North Topeka).—This church was organized by Rev. F. S. McCabe, late pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Topeka, September 15, 1878, with twenty-six members. Their names are: Dr. M. R. Mitchell, Mrs. M. M. Mitchell, Mr. J. A. Miller, Mrs. E. J. Miller, Charles McDonald, Mrs. Mary J. McDonald, John N. Ross, Mrs. Rebecca Ross, Miss Alice Ross, Mrs. S. C. Arnold, Mrs. C. F. Lyman, Mrs. Lizzie M. Hale, Mrs. Elizabeth Norris, Mrs. Jane Taylor, Miss Annie Taylor, E. S. Ward, Mrs. Z. N. Ward, Mr. C. L. Ward, Mr. William A. Ward, Miss O. J. Ward, Miss I. F. Ward, Miss L. B. Ward, Miss M. E. Ward, Mrs. M. J. Ward, Mrs. Mary Sage, and Mr. O. P. Giffin. The Ruling Elders were M. R. Mitchell, J. N. Rose, and E. S. Ward. The church first worshiped in the school building on the avenue, but on November 16, 1879, they dedicated a neat, substantial stone building, 40x60 feet, which is located on Quincy street, between Laurent and Gordon, nearly opposite the Quincy School building. Its cost somewhat exceeded $3,000. In the southeast part of the edifice is a neatly finished and nicely furnished study and pastor's library, in which the weekly meetings of the Sunday-school teachers are held. Its pastor, Rev. J. C. Miller, began his labors for the church and congregation December 12, 1878, and he has been very untiring in his labors here, and at some outlying preaching places. Its Sunday-school is under the superintendency of M. R. Mitchell, M. D., and it numbers nearly one hundred. Rev. Mr. Miller preached for the Bethel Church until 1881, but since his labors have been exclusively devoted to upbuilding this work.

Wesleyan Methodist Church.—This church society erected their chapel in 1878, on the east side of Jefferson street, between Third and Fourth streets. Rev. Mr. McIntosh is pastor.

The Topeka Society of the New Jerusalem was organized in October, 1880, with Rev. Howard C. Dunham as minister, and J. F. Goddard, J. F. Scott, and Edward Wilder, trustees. The first services, with this end in view, were held at the residence of Mr. Edward Wilder, No. 117 Harrison street, on the second Sunday of June, 1880, on which occasion there were nine persons present. Services were held at the same place for over a year. In the summer of 1881 an attractive little chapel was erected on the corner of Harrison and Sixth streets, which was dedicated on Sunday, the 9th of October. A parsonage, in architectural harmony with the chapel, is built within the same enclosure. This society, although small, is steadily increasing, the attendance at Divine worship averaging about fifty. The Sunday-school contains over twenty children and an adult class. Meetings are held, during a large part of the year, on Thursday evenings, for the study of religious truth and the advancement of the interests of the society. The trustees for the year 1882 are G. F. Goddard, E. H. Davis, and Edward Wilder.

First Christian Church.—The people known as Disciples of Christ, Church of Christ, or the Christian Church, were few in number among the first settlers of Topeka. In November, 1870, a roll of members was found of twenty-two names. These brethren met in a hall until June, 1873, at which time ninety-four names had been enrolled. During this two years and a half the congregation was under the leadership of elders, with now and then an evangelist, who would remain but a short time, until Elder J. W. Mousen was called to be their pastor, but whose stay was probably but a few months. All work having been suspended in June, 1873, as far as seen from the records, all traces of organization seem to have been lost up to the year 1880, during which period of about seven years, however, several brethren who were passing through preached in borrowed houses. On the 2d day of December, 1879, Dr. S. T. Dodd, of Leavenworth City, preached in the Lutheran Church, on Topeka avenue, and on the 11th day of May, 1880, began a protracted meeting in the same house, which continued one week, resulting in the enrollment of about eighty names, some of whom afterward proved to be of the Christian connection and Advent persuasion. There were three elders and three deacons with a clerk appointed by the minister at his closing meeting, with the concurrence of the audience, to act temporarily in securing a place of worship and the services of a minister to continue the work. From neglect of duty the above work was not performed, but by the persistent effort of a few individuals a call was extended to Dr. S. T. Dodd, dated December 14, 1880, with ten names pledged to his support and co-operation in a continued effort to permanently establish a church in this city. This permanent work accordingly began the 1st day of January, 1881, in the Y. M. C. A. hall, under the management of Mr. Dodd as evangelist, who by the 30th day of June, 1881, had enrolled fifty-six names, all of which were pledged to the work, at which time an organization was effected. A charter was secured for the "First Christian Church, of Topeka," December 17, 1881, with Ira B. Miller, David Eckert, E. H. Rodebush, W. H. Niccum, and G. W. Faught, as trustees.

Mr. Dodd having received a unanimous call to serve the congregation as pastor during the year 1882, entered upon his duties with a desire to secure, at least, lots for building purposes during the year, which result has not at this date, July 25th, been reached, the subscriptions for which are at present being taken, however. The present membership of this church is 140. It meets regularly in the Y. M. C. A. Hall, and has a Sunday-school of 175 members. There is also connected with the congregation a Ladies' Auxiliary Mission Society, and the Juvenile Band or "Helping Hands."

Third Presbyterian Church.—The location of the church edifice of this society is on the northwest corner of Third and Hancock streets. Was organized December 12, 1880, with sixteen members, by Rev. F. S. McCabe, D. D., and Rev. J. W. Crawford. Present edifice is a handsome stone structure, 35x53 feet, erected at a cost of $4,000. A Sabbath-school was organized in connection December 12, 1880, and has a present membership of 183 scholars, under the pastorate of its present pastor, Rev. J. W. Crawford. The church has a membership of thirty-five.

Third Baptist Church (colored).—This society owns its place of worship, at 79 First avenue, East.

Fourth Baptist Church (colored).—The congregation of this church have an edifice on the corner of Second and Jackson streets. Was organized in 1870, with thirty-five members. Present church edifice was built in 1871-72, at a cost of $1,200. Rev. William Bell, present pastor.

African Methodist Episcopal Church.—This is the oldest colored church organization in the city. Their church edifice is on Monroe street, between First avenue and Second. Rev. J. W. Wilkenson is pastor.

Methodist Episcopal Church of America (colored).—Was organized October 22, 1882, with nineteen members, by Rev. B. Smith, P. E., and C. E. Wortchell, pastor. Regular services are held on the corner of Fourteenth and Quincy streets.

Parkdale Methodist Episcopal Church.—This church organization have a house of worship on the northeast corner of Seventh and Lime streets. An organization was perfected in the spring of 1881, with thirty-five members, by Rev. O. H. Call, who remained as pastor until spring of 1882. The present church edifice, a frame structure, 30x60, was built in 1879 by the Quincy Street Methodist Episcopal Church at a cost of $1,000. Its present pastor is Rev. J. Kester. Present number of communicants, 40.

Mount Olivet Methodist Episcopal Church (colored).—This society has an edifice on the corner of VanBuren and Fourteenth streets, which is used by the Methodist and Presbyterian denominations (colored), under the respective pastorates of Rev. J. Barton and Rev. S. Rutter.

Protestant Episcopal Church (North Topeka).—The "Church of the Good Shepherd" was organized March 6, 1881, Rev. Alfred Brown, rector, with eighteen members. The destruction of the rolling mills by fire in 1881 checked somewhat the growth of the church, as quite a membership, present and prospective, came from this. The church now numbers forty-five and its Sunday-school is about fifty. Their present place of worship is the hall of the A. O. U. W., but they own three lots on the northeast corner of Quincy and Laurent streets. They have the plans made and accepted for a chapel, which is to be a wooden structure costing about $2,500, which will probably be erected during the year 1883. The site for their church edifice is an excellent one; on the corner north stands the spacious Quincy school building and on the other side of the street is the Presbyterian Church edifice.

Faith Chapel; Faith Cure.—On the southwest corner of Van Buren and Park streets is located the buildings above mentioned; erected in 1881. The chapel is a one story frame, 20x30 feet; the Cure is a two-story stone building, 24x40, with a wing on the south, 18x20. Services are held at the chapel twice each Sunday; prayer-meetings are held each Friday evening, and there are special faith services held at the Cure each Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock. Rev. C. A. Sexton, one of the pioneers in the First Congregational Church, is the owner of the property, and he is the pastor, and humanly speaking, the healer. He publishes at the Cure Good Tidings, a weekly paper devoted to the system. Its issue is now about 1,400; its regular subscription list in the city is about 100, and it goes into nearly every State and Territory in the Union. It is gratuitously distributed to charitable institutions, including prisons and poor houses. The value of the whole property is about $4,500; it is a quiet resort, having pure air and a supply of good water. Mr. Sexton regards his work as under the organic control of the Holy Ghost, and his institution for the cure of physical maladies, and the obliteration of traditional false teachings, the accomplishment of these objects being through the power of the Holy Ghost, by the laying on of hands and the anointing of oil. It aims to bring the conformity of prayer to the direct coming of the kingdom of heaven on the earth, the fellowship of the Holy Ghost constituting membership, the subject to be tested by the fruits of the life. There are no numerical statistics kept of the worshipers, or of those who have had bodily or spiritual healing.

Lincoln Chapel Mission (colored, A. M. A).—The American Missionary Association is one of the co-operative Congregational societies, organized in 1846, to civilize, educate and Christianize, the Indians, Freedmen, and Chinamen in America. The association has missions in Africa, and colleges, normal and common schools in the States, to forward the work of its missions in this country. In October, 1881, Rev. R. F. Markham, who has labored over seventeen years for the American Missionary Association, having had charge of the mission work for the last five years in the vicinity of Savannah, Ga., was sent to this State by the parent association of New York, to see what could be done for the Freedmen of Kansas. He visited Nicodemus, Graham County, and other parts of the State. After a careful examination, however, he resolved to begin work at Topeka, finding over 5,000 colored people here and nearly 50,000 in Kansas. In 1881 the chapel of the mission was completed, corner of King and Lincoln streets. Over $3,200 has been expended in the purchase of land, and the erection and furnishing of the building. Of this amount, the American Missionary Association have given over $800, while the Smith American Organ Company, of Boston, donated the organ. The chapel is 52x30 feet. Since April, 1881, when the Sunday-school was organized, the work has greatly prospered. Sessions at first were held in the old Congregational Church, Mr. Markham being assisted by Miss Lizzie Officer. The attendance was then one hundred and eleven. Since then Miss Officer has been obliged to resign, on account of ill health, and Miss A. D. Gerrish was appointed in her stead. The attendance has increased to over three hundred, and many who did not know their letters have been taught to read. Adults, who could not attend the public schools, have joined the mission night schools, and are making good progress. Musical instruction is also joined to religious and intellectual exercises. It is expected that the work here will be permanent. Rev. Mr. Markham is the general agent of the association in this State, and is greatly encouraged at the results of his labors in Topeka.

First Cumberland Presbyterian Church (colored, North Topeka), was organized in June, 1880, by Rev. P. Price. A frame church edifice was completed in October, 1882. Present number of members, fifty-five. Rev. P. Price, pastor.

Second Baptist Church (colored).—This society has an edifice on the southwest corner of Second and Jefferson streets. Its pastors have been Rev. Thomas W. Henderson and Rev. J. F. Thomas. Was organized prior to 1868. First church edifice, a frame structure, 20x40 feet, was built in 1868, and used until 1876 when the present frame building, 40x60 feet, was completed. Rev. J. F. Thomas, present pastor. Present number of communicants, five hundred.

Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church (colored, North Topeka).—This organization succeeded the congregation who now worship in the Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, and its first pastor was Rev. W. O. Lynch, who came from the Gulf Region in 1879. The membership was about thirty, and its Sunday-school about fifty. Rev. Burr Williams, of the Holston Conference, Tennessee, was here a few weeks, and the church is now without a pastor, the small-pox taking off the Rev. F. Landor, whose pastoral labors were short.

The Redmanville Methodist Episcopal Church (colored, North Topeka).—Rev. W. W. Williams is pastor of this church. Its membership is about fifty, and its edifice is a small building situated south of the water works, on the Union Pacific R. R.

Second Baptist (colored, North Topeka).—This church was organized in the spring of 1880, by Rev. John F. Thomas, now pastor of the Second Baptist in the Second Ward, situated on the corner of Second and Jefferson streets. Its membership was then about thirty, and now, under the pastorate of Rev. Sanford Griffin, it has grown to 105 members, and its Sunday school numbers 120. Henry Galloway is its present superintendent. The building joins the Ogee property on the north side of the railroad, northwest of the tank. It is a frame, 20x40; value, $1,500.

Mount Zion (colored, North Topeka).—This organization was formed in 1881. Its pastor is Rev. I. S. Watkins, and its site for an edifice is between Laurent and Clay streets. Its present membership is about fifty.

Thomas Shaw owns a small church edifice in Redmanville (western suburbs of North Topeka), which makes a place for worship of some of the sometimes called Ironside element in the Baptist Church (colored). Rev. Claiborne White is an occasional preacher for this congregation. The church members number about fifteen.

There is also in process of erection another Baptist (colored) church, on Madison street, in Fairchild's Addition, and the society, numbering about thirty, employ Rev. E. Bradley as their pastor. He has also another small charge at Redmanville.

The Israelites.—This band of worshipers have not become sufficiently numerous to have a synagogue. Services on special holidays have been held in halls, and L. Diment, a clothing-house dealer at 162 Kansas avenue, has performed the duties of Rabbi. Sunday-schools have been held over the store of Rodgers Bros., 130 Kansas avenue.

LITERARY, MUSICAL, SECRET SOCIETIES, ETC.

The Topeka Library Association.—The germ of the present Library Association was planted by a few ladies of Topeka, at a meeting held November 12, 1870, when an organization was formed, known as the Ladies' Library Association, its object being the establishment of a circulating library. The following ladies were the first officers elected: Mrs. N. C. McFarland, president; Mrs. J. M. Spencer, vice-president; Emma J. Steele, secretary; Mrs. H. King, treasurer. During the succeeding winter the ladies accumulated about 150 volumes, and the library was opened March 11, 1871, in the carpet-room of Messrs. Keith & Meyers, under the Opera House, the free use of the room being tendered the association by the proprietors. The membership, at this time, had increased to fifty, and the library was open for the delivery of books three hours each Saturday afternoon.

The growth and prosperity of the ladies' association during the remainder of 1871, was such as to warrant an enlargement of the original design, and at a meeting, January 17, 1872, at the residence of the vice-president, Mrs. J. M. Spencer, the Ladies' Library Association, by vote of the members, was merged in the Topeka Library Association. Articles of incorporation were adopted, which were filed in the office of the Secretary of State, January 20, 1872, and on the same day a permanent organization was effected by the election of the following officers: President, Mrs. William Tweeddale; Vice-President, Mrs. J. M. Spencer; Secretary, Edward Wilder; Treasurer, Mrs. H. Clarkson (resigned at first meeting of directors, and F. W. Giles elected in her place). Directors—Mrs. McFarland, Mrs. Spencer, Mrs. Dr. Baker, Mrs. William Tweeddale, Mrs. M. E. Leighter, Mrs. S. D. McDonald, Mrs. O. T. Welch, Mrs. Dr. S. E. Sheldon, Mrs. T. L. King, Miss Anna Ekin (resigned in favor of Mrs. M. E. Whitton), Mrs. A. J. Huntoon, Mrs. H. Clarkson, Mrs. Captain Higgins. Advisory Committee—Rev. Dr. McCabe, F. W. Giles, Prof. Worral, A. J. Huntoon, E. Wilder.

A life membership subscription list was opened—memberships $50 each—which, in a few days, contained twenty-four names. This fund was applied to the purchase of books, and the furnishing of room 213 Kansas avenue. On April 3, 1872, the library was publicly opened, with appropriate ceremonies—addresses, music, etc. The library, at this time, had increased to 639 volumes. In 1873 the membership was 214. In the fall of 1874, a more commodious room being needed for the rapidly increasing library, a hall in the building of Mr. Quick, on the corner of Seventh street and Kansas avenue, was procured, and the library moved to that location. In the spring of 1878, the library was made free to the citizens, and the city appropriated for its use $1,200 for one year. The sum appropriated by the city being reduced in amount after the first year, proved inadequate to the necessities of the association, and the deficiency was raised by public subscription, after the rooms had been closed for a brief period. The library now contains about 5,200 volumes of well selected books and a convenient reading-room, liberally supplied with files of newspapers and periodicals.

During the fall of 1880, the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad Company, and the Union Pacific Railroad Company, donated to the library $25,000, on condition that the city erect a building, in size and elegance commensurate with the worth and importance of the association, on the State House grounds. The proposition was submitted to the Legislature, and adopted at the last session. The building, which is near the northeast corner of the State House Park, facing Eighth avenue and Jackson street, is now approaching completion. It is constructed of native limestone, trimmed with Colorado sandstone and brick, and is roofed with red terra-cotta tiles. Its dimensions are 116x55 feet. Upon the first floor will be located the reading and lecture rooms, and those of the officers. The second story is designed for an art gallery, but will be fitted with all the appurtenances of a theater, including a stage and scenery. This room is thirty feet in height, and is lighted from the roof, for the double purpose of giving hanging space and proper direction of light. The expense of construction will be $35,000. When completed, the library will be no discredit to its intimate association with the stately capitol, nor to the judgment of those who located it.

The Topeka Musical Union was organized January 16, 1869, with the following officers: President, Dr. S. E. Martin; Secretary, James M. Barringer; Musical Director, Dr. M. F. Price; Pianist, Mrs. Gov. Crawford. This society which was organized for the study and practice of standard musical compositions, has achieved marked success. The result of the conscientious study of its members is apparent in the higher standard of musical excellence developed from year to year. Under the instruction and guidance of skillful directors the Union is now able to interpret many of the compositions of the old masters, with credit to themselves and pleasure to their listeners. Musical Union Hall, 199 Kansas avenue, is leased by the society, which holds regular meetings for rehearsal every Wednesday evening. The Union own a musical library, a piano, double bass viol, etc. The present officers (1882) are Dr. S. E. Martin, president; S. R. Remington, vice-president; James F. Griffin, secretary and treasurer; R. N. Vincent, musical director; Miss Kate L. Thomas, pianist; R. Adams, librarian; Dr. S. E. Martin, Frank Drummond and O. W. Fox, executive committee.

The Topeka Choral Society was organized in June, 1880. It has now a membership of about thirty-six. Officers: H. V. Hinckley, president; Mrs. J. Brown, vice-president; C. G. Leeper, secretary and treasurer; Henry Worrall, pianist; Carl Von Weller, musical director.

Modoc Club.—A male amateur club under the musical direction of Major T. J. Anderson. The club render the popular music of the day in a most enthusiastic and stirring style.

The Avon Club was organized in 1870, and is the oldest club now existing in the city. It meets twice a month from October to April, celebrating the birth of Shakespeare by a banquet on the 23d of April.

The Kansas Academy of Science holds regular annual meetings in the State House, and publishes annually a volume of proceedings. Officers: J. F. Lovewell, president, Topeka; J. H. Carruth, first vice-president, Topeka; Joseph Savage, second vice-president, Lawrence; E. A. Popenoe, secretary, Manhattan; J. B. Brown, treasurer, Leavenworth.

The Topeka Scientific and Literary Club was organized in December, 1871. Re-organized April, 1878. The meetings of the society are held in Board of Education rooms, City Hall, the exercises consisting of discussions, reading of essays, correspondence, etc. The present officers are J. T. Loveland, president; L. A. Thomas, vice-president; Geo. S. Chase, secretary; Miss E. A. Lyman, treasurer.

The Swedish Library Association was organized in October, 1879, for the purpose of starting a circulating library. The membership is rapidly increasing and the association are adding many new books to the library. Officers: President, Alex Rudolph; Treasurer, Andrew Johnson; Librarian, John Watts.

The Woman's Christian Association was organized March 27, 1882. Its aims are to afford relief to the destitute and assistance to those who are struggling to support themselves. The society has achieved a noble success, distributing its benefactions by an orderly and intelligent system, which helps the deserving without encouraging the idle. The present officers of the society are Mrs. J. P. St. John, president; Mrs. S. E. Sheldon, vice-president; Mrs. A. L. Griffith, recording secretary; Mrs. E. W. Bowman, treasurer; Miss O. P. Bury, corresponding secretary; Mrs. S. A. Thurston, auditor.

Young Men's Christian Association.—This association was organized December 31, 1879, in the English Lutheran church, near the corner of Sixth and Topeka avenues. L. P. Firey was temporary chairman; William W. Padrick temporary secretary. The number of members at its organization were fifteen active, two associate and six honorary. Its first officers were: President, C. E. Wheeler; Vice-President, James Easler; Secretary, William W. Padrick; Treasurer, E. E. Collins. In June, 1880, the place of meeting was in the hall, No. 220 Kansas avenue, and in January, 1881, they removed to 223 Kansas avenue with a membership of eighty-five, which is (1882) 125. Its officers and board of directors are: R. B. Gemmell, president; T. B. Sweet, vice-president; J. F. Griffin, treasurer; W. W. Bollard, recording secretary; Wm. N. Fisher, general secretary; E. M. Shelden, Methodist Episcopal; H. R. Hilton, First Presbyterian; J. H. Lyman, Congregational; S. K. Cross, Christian; L. P. Firey, English Lutheran; E. E. Collins, Adventist; A. Prescott, Baptist; E. Bloomer, Baptist, North Topeka; James Fulcher, Third Presbyterian; C. R. Hudson, Episcopal.

The reading room is kept open from 7 to 9 o'clock each evening, except Sundays, and is well supplied with the leading daily, weekly and the different religious newspapers; it has also scientific journals and monthly magazines.

The Kansas Orphan Asylum.—This asylum, incorporated under the laws of Kansas in the year 1866, is located at Leavenworth and has many auxiliary societies perfected and in working order throughout the State, two of which are in Topeka. The object of the asylum is to provide a home for and educate all orphans of legitimate parentage under fifteen years of age. It seeks to protect the helpless, to shield innocent childhood from temptation and consequent crime, when shorn of natural protection; to provide these waifs, out upon a world's waste with the blessings of a pleasant and healthful home. It has an auxiliary society in Topeka.

Topeka Cemetery Association.—On the 5th day of December, 1854, a few gentlemen assembled on the banks of the river Kansas, with the beautiful rolling prairie before them, and they then and there formed the Topeka Association; resolving to use their most strenuous efforts to build up a city, which should be the capital of Kansas, provided the assent of the people could be obtained.

In the spring of 1855 Mr. Joshua Abbott, from Andover, Mass., who was living in his tent on or near lot 74 Kansas avenue, died of cholera, after a very short illness, and it was then that the question of establishing a cemetery was first brought before the association. No lands in Shawnee County had been pre-empted or even surveyed for pre-emption and it was impracticable, then, to establish one. So it was concluded to bury temporarily on the town site, but so far away from residences that it should not be objectionable. The city was at this time surveyed no further south than Sixth avenue and the interment was made as far away as the crossing of Tenth and Kansas avenues, as determined by the subsequent plat and survey. This locality, south of Tenth and east of Kansas avenues, became quite a grave yard in appearance before the Topeka Cemetery was established, there being then not far from 100 interments made, all of which were removed to the Topeka Cemetery after it was established, in 1859, the city and township purchasing a section in said cemetery for that purpose, viz: Section thirty-one of the grounds. The Topeka Cemetery contains forty-five acres, it being a part of Section five, in Township twelve, Range sixteen east—a handsome roll of high prairie from the top of which the view is unsurpassed in the neighborhood of the city.

On the 2d of February, 1859, an act was approved by the Governor of the Territory of Kansas incorporating the Topeka Cemetery Association, the corporators being Loring Farnsworth, F. L. Crane, C. C. Kellam, A. F. Whiting, M. C. Dickey, John Ritchie, H. W. Farnsworth, Wilson L. Gordon and James T. Holliday. Notices of time and place of meeting were sent at three separate times by the second corporator to the others, at the third of which a majority assembled, and upon due consideration of the importance of the matter resolved, That as F. L. Crane possessed the most suitable land in the immediate vicinity of Topeka, that he be requested to plat, survey and fence grounds for a cemetery; that he do so upon his own responsibility, and that he get his pay from those using the grounds; and further resolved that they, with the absent corporators, would make over the charter to him, the said F. L. Crane. To make a plat of a cemetery without much information on the subject and without the help of other plans from which to copy gave full swing to the faculty of origination. A plan was, however, immediately commenced, and when completed Mr. Crane and Mr. Loring Farnsworth proceeded to the ground and surveyed and staked some eight or ten acres of sections and lots, leaving avenues twenty feet in width and paths ten feet, with alleys four and five feet wide. The grounds were fenced, trees and shrubbery planted and other improvements made. A considerable number of large and handsome, with many smaller monuments, now ornament the cemetery, and it is expected that water may be introduced next year by connecting pipes with the city water works. Blue grass has largely taken the place of the grass which originally grew upon the prairie. The records now show that there have been 3,157 interments in the Topeka Cemetery.

Moulton, cashier; Wm. Wellhouse, Wm. Sims, T. J. Anderson, W. A. Johnson, J. D. Burr, George W. Wood, W. W. Manspeaker, and T. L. Stringham.

Gavitt & Scott, bankers and brokers, established their house in 1869. They loan money on improved farms and city property, on first mortgages only. They also deal in first-class municipal and school bonds. During twelve years they placed over $3,500,000 for Eastern capitalists, and have never lost a dollar for any of their investors.

Guilford Dudley, private banker, commenced business in 1869, and is therefore one of the oldest who has engaged in this line in Topeka.

John D. Knox & Co.—This banking establishment was organized in December, 1873, the head of the house being one of Topeka's old and respected citizens. He has had a long experience in the banking business, having been formerly president of the Capital Bank. The firm do a general banking business, negotiate mortgage loans on city and county property, and buy and sell county, city and school bonds.

For sketches of other private banks and brokerage establishments, the reader is referred to the biographical department.

MANUFACTURING INTERESTS.

A., T. & S. F. Shops.—The main shops of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway Company are situated in the northeast part of that portion of the city which lies south of the Kansas River, where the bridge of the A., T. & S. F. R. R. Company crosses the same. They occupy the site of what was formerly designated and described as the "King Wrought Iron Bridge Manufactory and Iron Works," of Topeka.

To aid said corporate association the city council passed an ordinance July 17, 1872, providing for a city election to be held August 16, 1872, for the purpose of voting on a proposition to grant and issue Topeka city bonds to the amount of $100,000, for the "King Wrought Iron Bridge Manufactory and Iron Works," of Topeka, Kansas, to aid in permanently establishing, erecting and furnishing, with all the necessary machinery, and continuing thereat for the term of twenty years to operate bridge shops, at the said city of Topeka. The bonds were voted, buildings were erected, on a plan four times as expensive as were the shops at Iola, Allen County, where the association commenced their works in Kansas, and where bonds had been previously voted. And inasmuch as suits had been instituted to recover matured interest on the said Iola bonds, and it had been judicially determined that the payment on the same could be avoided, the precedent was thereby established by which the Topeka bonds, voted for said purpose, could be made voidable, consequent upon which the work thereafter languished. Theodore Terry obtained a tax-interest in this property, and John R. Mulvane, having obtained the interest of this defunct company, Mr. Mulvane and Mr. Terry disposed of their interest to the railway company.

Thus, the buildings and property of the "King Wrought Iron Bridge Manufactory and Iron Works" became the nucleus of the railway shops of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad Company.

The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad Company commenced their work in these shops, August 12, 1878, and they have so gone on step by step increasing their business, as to now have the shop divided into twelve distinct departments, each one being made distinct, and under the management of a separate foreman; their detailed classifications being as follows: Carpenter shop, G. M. Peabody, foreman; machine shop, J. M. Luckey, foreman; blacksmith shop, William Hazen, foreman; paint shop, James Rastall, foreman; boiler shop, H. S. Benton, foreman; brass moulding shop, James Swan, foreman; coppersmith shop, Lewis Dutcher, foreman; erecting shop, Richard Witty, foreman; general repair shop, F. R. Felton, foreman; upholstering department, J. W. Trembly, foreman; car shop, Henry Hull, master car-builder; draughting room, John Phillips, chief draughtsman.

The carpenter shop employs upward of two hundred men; nearly one-fourth of the whole number employed in and about the shops; and the machine shop ranks next in force, the number being about one hundred and fifty; the number in the blacksmith shop being about one hundred.

Throughout the entire establishment, system, like perfect clock-work, reigns supreme, the several foremen in charge being complete masters of the situation, and the laborers under them take high rank as skilled workmen, every man knowing his place, and being actuated by an ambition to fill it well; while every machine, running to its fullest capacity, is exceedingly well adapted to the skillful performance of the work for which it is designed.

From near the junction of Crane with Adams street the office is entered near the southwest corner of the building, and here, over this large band of skilled artisans—many of the finest mechanics to be found in this or any country, who are operating some of the most perfect pieces of machinery existing anywhere in the world—sitting as manager, with his master mind and directing intellect, is that prince of mechanics, Mr. George Hackney, superintendent of the locomotive and car department, assisted by his son, Mr. Clement Hackney, assistant superintendent, who are surrounded by a most complete corps of office assistants and clerks. This trained and experienced body of workers, upon whom is placed a large degree of special responsibility, are classified as follows: J. C. Pusey, chief clerk; H. A. Dunn, telegraph operator; J. G. H. Graveley, engineer's time-keeper; H. L. Fowler, firemen's time-keeper; H. A. Ammen, block time-keeper; E. W. Knight, distribution time-keeper; W. J. Byrth, mileage clerk; W. T. Clark, requisition clerk; H. F. Hartley, statement clerk.

Through the office occupied by this managing element, all the employes of the several mechanical departments, are each day of labor, required to pass.

The Block "Time" system, perhaps the most perfect that has ever been devised for this kind of establishments, is an invention of Mr. Hackney, the superintendent, and its working is as follows: Each man, as he enters upon his labor, in passing through the office is handed by the block clerk, a small block containing his number, which is in size about an inch and a half long, an inch wide and half an inch thick. On going out of the office, at the close of the day's labor, this block is returned through a hopper at the front of the counter. A register of the time the employe receives the block and when it is returned is kept by the clerk and thus a complete computation of time and wages is made and recorded for each man; ten hours being considered "block time;" all over time is paid for, and all lost time deducted.

In 1881, the railway company expended for buildings within the State, outside of Topeka, as engine houses, round houses, machine and other shops, coal chutes, tenement houses and other buildings, the sum of $426,840; for iron bridges, steel rails and stone ballast, $1,682,604. Independent of this is a couple of millions of dollars it has paid out during the time for labor and salaries, most of which has at once gone into circulation within the various towns and cities of the State where it has been disbursed. The monthly pay roll of the hundreds of mechanics, laborers and employes of all grades in this city, is estimated at an average of $120,000 per month, and the nine buildings rented in the city for office use aggregate a rental of nearly $15,000.

Under construction is a two hundred foot extension, eighty feet in width, of the boiler shop on the river bank; a large fire-proof pattern house, 50x100 feet; a forty-four bin coal chute; a two story paint shop of eighteen car capacity; a large car shop on the east of the main track between the main or Atchison line and the Kansas City branch, and on the south of the main building, a colossal round house, all of which expenditures will aggregate nearly half a million dollars.

In 1880, there were 144 locomotives made; in 1881, there were 126 old and new engines, and there are now upwards of 300 engines in use on the road.

Western Foundry and Machine Shop.—This business, carried on at the corner of Second and Jefferson streets, was commenced by Cox, Stribling & Co., of Madison, Ind., in 1867. The firm consisted of John Cobb, Thomas R. Cobb, U. B. Stribling, Ira H. Smith and C. A. Bliss, the two latter named persons being of this city. September 4, 1868, the management was under Messrs. Smith and Bliss. The structure is built of stone and brick, the walls having a thickness of two feet, stone being the inner, brick the outer material. The original building was burned in 1875, and the buildings now standing were erected in 1878-80. R. L. Cofran, the present proprietor, made the purchase from the original proprietors in July, 1876. Mr. Cofran came from Wheelock, Vt.

The main building is two stories high, 50x125 feet; the boiler shop is 24x40; the blacksmith shop, 24x35; the brass foundry, 30x80.

The value of the whole property is about $25,000. Its local work is mainly general repairing; its specialty is mill machinery, and orders are coming in from all parts of the State, from Colorado and New Mexico. Its machinery is in excellent order and of the latest styles.

At the outset about half a dozen men were employed; now it numbers thirty among its employes; their average wages are $3 per day.

Capital Iron Works.—These works were established in October, 1878, and articles of incorporation were filed May 31, 1879. Akers, Russell and Martin were the proprietors. The foundry has a two story front, standing and facing on Seventh street 60 feet; it extends on Holliday street 350 feet. The blacksmith shop is 30x80 feet. It has ten forges. The machine shop faces on Seventh street and is 60x60. The office and pattern buildings are west of the railroad track, opposite the foundry, 25x80 feet.

The present proprietors are as follows: President, William Fidler; Secretary and Treasurer, C. H. Rodemer; Superintendent, H. G. Williams.

Their office and works are situated one block south of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe passenger depot. Much of their work is for the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe R. R. Company. They manufacture engines, pulleys, shafting, columns, pilasters, arches, lintels, prismatic light and diamond sidewalk plates, lamp and hitching posts, cast iron piles, pile drivers and derricks, street and coal mine railway supplies, ornamental fencing and mill machinery.

They manufactured the iron roof of the west wing of the State House, and the iron work of the government building, corner of Fifth and Kansas avenue. The wrought iron work and stairway of the Windsor was manufactured by them, and their iron store and house fronts may be seen in Denver, Col., in Trinidad, New Mexico, and in the principal towns of Kansas.

They manufacture stone crushers and ore reducers. Mr. John Hervey, one of the workmen, has invented an ore crusher, for which he received a patent June 9, 1882, which reduces the ore to a fine powder, and obviates the necessity of a stamp mill. He has also a mechanical movement adapted to several kinds of machinery, which is a power for valve motion. There are sixty-five men employed in these works. Their prices are from $2.50 to $3 per day. The work turned out during the year amounts to about $125,000.

City Foundry.—This is situated near the northeast corner of Kansas avenue and Third street, Charles Lindenschmidt, proprietor. Mr. Lindenschmidt manufactures iron fences, stairways and railing, and wheelbarrows. His first place of business was on the east side of Kansas avenue, between Fourth and Fifth streets. He at first did considerable moulding and a general work, but his line of labor now is mainly confined to the above specialties.

Barbed Wire Works.—The manufacture of barbed wire was commenced on Railroad street, North Topeka, by Hulburt & Gould, in March, 1879. In 1880, their interests were disposed of to J. S. Beverly. He sold August 1, 1880, his interests to O. Huckstadt, and Charles R. Paine then commenced the business, renting of Mr. Huckstadt. The works are now located at No. 110 Kansas avenue, North Topeka, where there is a shop 24 feet wide; the front room is forty feet in length, the rear room is sixty feet. Since March 1, 1882, six persons have been engaged in the shops. There are 1,000 pounds of barbed wire manufactured daily, five barbing machines being in use. There is a large local retail demand. The wholesale trade is at various points on the Union Pacific and Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroads. Mr. Paine has invented a barb-cutter which works to a charm, making all the barbs alike perfect. It saves both labor and material.

The Central Flouring Mills (North Topeka).—This establishment, No. 68, Kansas avenue, L. P. J. Laurent, proprietor, fronts fifty feet on the avenue and 175 feet on Curtis street. The front, stone part, is 51 feet in length; the wood part, in the rear, is 74 feet, and there are corn cribs attached. It has three run of stones, with a separator, smutter and brushing machine, and a steam corn-sheller which can shell 200 bushels in an hour.

It has a cupola erected to elevate wheat and distribute it over the mill, and a switch from the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad runs along the north side of the mill on Curtis street. A substantial brick smoke stack was erected in 1881, at a cost of $350. It has a purifier costing about $400, which is used in manufacturing patent flour. It has a capacity to manufacture 5,000 pounds of flour a day, and its corn buhr can turn out from 300 to 400 bushels of meal or corn chop per day. The flour is manufactured mostly for home consumption.

The value of the mill property is $10,000. Mr. Laurent originally put up the mill on the Kaw half-breed lands, No. 5, as a saw mill, and he moved it to North Topeka in 1869, and put it up as a flouring mill, where it had extensive patronage in the then new town of Eugene.

Shawnee Mills.—The present owners of this mill are J. P. Griswold and J. L. Shellabarger, of this city, and D. S. Shellabarger, of Decatur, Ill., who obtained this property in the spring of 1871. It had then three run of stones, and employed five men. It now employs ten men and has seven run of stones. The site is the southwest corner of Kansas avenue and Third street. The main building is an attractive structure 40x50 feet. The store house for flour has a 45 feet front. The structure is three stories in height, and there is an elevator whose capacity is 35,000 bushels. The mill can grind 1,000 bushels of wheat a day.

The mill was rebuilt in the latter part of the year 1879, and it was refurnished with new machinery, and commenced under the improved regime January 1, 1880. Its cost was $15,000. It has a fine ninety horse power engine, and it is heated by steam throughout. It is a model mill from basement to roof, and its interior is finished in as tasty a manner as the better class of business houses. This firm deals largely in grain. Their shipments of corn have reached 50,000 bushels a year, and the average sale of their mill products reaches $200,000 a year. East, they ship flour to Chicago; north, to Iowa; west, to the Rocky Mountains; south, to the Gulf of Mexico.

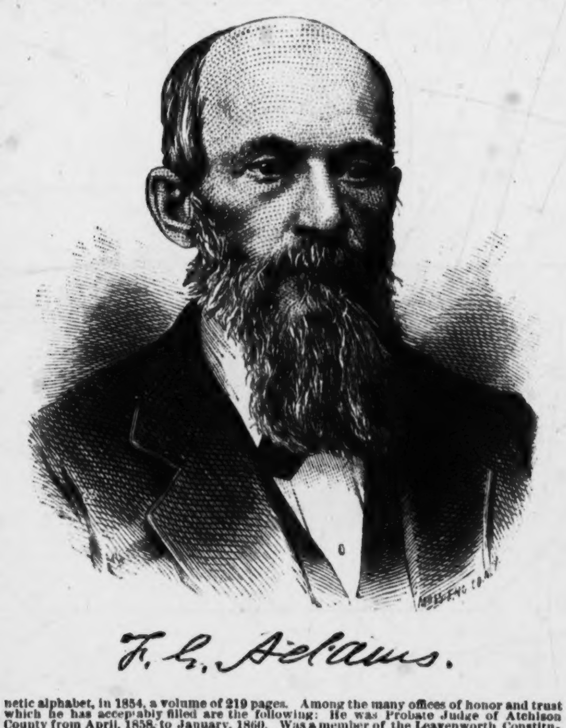
The Inter Ocean Flouring Mills, were commenced by Mr. Gordon, of Wyandotte. When the building was finished, in November, 1878, Thomas Page and Willis Norton purchased the property, put in the machinery, and started the mill, in July, 1879. Originally its capacity was 150 barrels, at present it is 200 barrels. It is a merchant mill exclusively. They use the Hungarian patent process, Wegman's patent porcelain rollers, and W. D. Gray's patent noiseless roller mill. They give employment to twelve men, and manufacture winter wheat flour altogether. Their shipments are largely local, and to Iowa, Illinois and Texas.

Topeka Mill and Elevator Company was organized in 1882, with a cash capital of $100,000. When completed, which will be in the fall of 1882, the buildings controlled by the company will comprise a flour mill, capacity 225 barrels per day; a fine press linseed oil mill, capacity 750 bushels of seed daily, and an elevator with a capacity of 60,000 bushels. Officers: P. G. Noel, president; J. D. Burr, secretary and treasurer. Stockholders: L. Z. Leiter, Chicago; George Hackney, J. D. Burr, and P. G. Noel, Topeka.

The Topeka Sugar Refining Company was organized in December, 1881, articles of incorporation being filed about the 18th of February. Capital $50,000. C. K. Holliday, president; George S. Brown, vice-president; Willis Norton, treasurer, and J. G. Slonecker, secretary. The works will be ready for operation by October 1, 1882. The company will start with a capacity of 200 bushels of corn per day. Will employ about twelve hands.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

FRANKLIN G. ADAMS was born in Rodman, Jefferson Co., N. Y., May 13, 1824. He was bred on a farm and had the advantages only of a common school education and the use of school district and town libraries. At the age of nineteen, having removed to Cincinnati he had the advantage of the private instruction of an older brother; of lectures in medical and law schools, etc. He taught school for a number of years in the Cincinnati public schools, and, in 1852, graduated from the Law Department of Cincinnati College. He came to Kansas in March, 1855, and settled with the Ashland Colony in Riley County. The following spring he removed to Leavenworth, and the spring after to Atchison. In 1861 he removed to Lecompton, and, subsequently, in the same year to Topeka, where he resided until the spring of 1864, when he returned to Atchison. In the spring of 1865 he went to the Kickapoo Agency at Kennekuk, and in 1868 to Muscotah, residing there until August, 1869, when he returned to Atchison. In 1870 he removed to Waterville, Marshall County, and in the spring of 1875 to Topeka. He has been identified with the literary and journalistic history of the Territory and State as follows: He became part owner of, and editorial writer, for the Squatter Sovereign at Atchison in the spring of 1857; in August, 1862, became part owner and editor of the Topeka State Record; in 1863, being Secretary of the State Agricultural Society, had editorial charge of the Kansas Farmer at Topeka; in the spring of 1864 established the Atchison Daily and Weekly Free Press and was editor and principal proprietor for most of the time until its consolidation with the Champion in August, 1868. He was editor and proprietor of the Waterville Telegraph in 1871-72. In 1873 he compiled and published the "Homestead Guide," a volume of 312 pages, giving the history and resources of northwestern Kansas. In 1876 as Chairman of the Educational Committee of the Kansas State Grange, he prepared a report on industrial education, which was published in pamphlet and widely circulated. Has since made several other such reports. Before coming to Kansas he compiled a "Key to the Pronunciation of Geographical Names," pronunciation given in the phonetic alphabet, which was published by Truman & Spofford, Cincinnati, in 1850. In 1852 as Chairman of a Committee of the Ohio State Teachers' Association, he prepared a report on the spelling reform, which was published in a pamphlet of sixteen pages. He compiled "The Lives of the Presidents," a volume which was published, with portraits, by Longley Bros., Cincinnati, in the phonetic alphabet, in 1854, a volume of 219 pages. Among the many offices of honor and trust which he has acceptably filled are the following: He was Probate Judge of Atchison County from April, 1858, to January, 1860. Was a member of the Leavenworth Constitutional Convention from Atchison County in 1858. In March, 1861, was appointed by President Lincoln Register of the United States land-office at Lecompton—and went to reside there. Moved the office to Topeka in September of that year, and held the office of Register till January, 1864. Was Clerk of the United States District Court of Kansas from October, 1863, to April 1864. In March, 1865, was appointed United States Indian Agent for the Kickapoos, and held the office until August, 1869. In February, 1876, became Secretary of the State Historical Society, of which position he is the present incumbent (1883). He married Miss Harriet E. Clark, of Cincinnati, daughter of John H. and Margaret Clark, at Cincinnati, Ohio, September 29, 1855. They have had ten children, of whom seven survive—Zu., born at Atchison, January 13, 1859; Henry J., born at Lecompton, August 21, 1861; Harriet, born at the Kickapoo Agency, Kennekuk, February 20, 1867; George, born near Atchison, October 10, 1869; Margaret L., born near Waterville, April 13, 1873; Samuel, born at Topeka, December 3, 1877; Paul, born at Topeka, February 20, 1881. Mr. Adams was all through the early and troublous times a staunch Free-state man, as appears in the histories of the various counties in which he resided. So far as his life is embodied in the history of the State and its institutions, the honorable record appears in the history itself. As may be inferred from this meager sketch, he is and always has been politically a Republican of the strictest school.



F. G. Adams.

FRANK A. ALLEN, farmer and horse-trainer, Section 28, P. O. Topeka, owns seven acres, with frame dwelling, stable and hennery. He was born in Ohio, Greene County, January 14, 1851, and came to Kansas with his parents in 1855, locating on present place, which is a part of the claim his father pre-empted. Was married May 27, 1876, to Miss Jennie Rodgers. Mr. A. makes a specialty of training horses for trotting, running, and roadsters. He has three fine blooded horses which he is training for exhibition at State fairs; he also trains wild and vicious horses by the Rarey method. He has quite a large hennery, about 400 hens of the best breeds, among them the brown and white Leghorns, the light Brahmas and white Cochins. Mr. A. was in the service of Col. Jennison during the war, carrying dispatches and giving information, and being but a boy passed at all times through the lines without exciting suspicion, doing a great deal of service which it would have been impossible for a man to perform

ALBERT ALLEAUME, cigars, tobacco and notions, came to Kansas in 1874 from Paris, France. He was born April, 1843, in Alencon, province of Orne. He went to Paris in 1861, and was engaged as a commercial traveler for a dry-goods firm for several years. He was in Paris during the siege of that city during the Franco-Prussian war and witnessed the terrible revolution of the Communists during those memorable and awful days from March 18 to May 28, 1871, when the city was riot and human life was of no value to the mob. Mr. A. has some reminiscences of those days in the shape of pieces of shell and ball picked up in front of his doorway in Paris on the morning of May 28, 1871. In 1874 he came to Topeka. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. Shawnee Lodge, No. 1.

LUTHER M. ANDERSON, school teacher, North Topeka, was born in Lawrence County, Ill. He was educated at the Alton high school, and taught his first public school in that city in 1866; since then he taught at Oxford, Miss., Greenville, Miss., Columbia, Ark., at Goodlettsville near Nashville, Tenn., and also near Evansville, Ind. He was a member of the School Board of Greenville, Ind. in 1875; he moved from Evansville to Topeka, Kan., in August, 1878, and was there employed as teacher in the Douglas school on Kansas avenue; he is now teaching in the Lane school on Topeka avenue; he has followed his profession uninterruptedly since he began teaching, and has always given satisfaction to his patrons. His father, the Rev. D. W. Anderson, was Pastor of the largest church in the district, and was well and favorably known in that city; he died in 1874. Mr. Luther Anderson was twice married; his first wife, Miss Sarah P. Johnson, of Alton, Ill., died in March, 1864; she was the daughter of Rev. Mr. Johnson, of Wood Rock, near the same city; they had two children; his present wife was Miss Josephine Fisher, of Columbia, Chicot Co., Ark. They were married in 1875, and have four children—one son, Thomas J. Anderson, is porter on a Pullman sleeping car on the A., T. & S. F. R. R., from Kansas City to Denver.

HON. THOMAS J. ANDERSON was born in Atwater, Portage County, Ohio, May 29, 1839, and received a thorough English education at the Marlboro Union School conducted by that able educator, Prof. Holbrook, who subsequently founded the State Normal School at Lebanon, Ohio. Though denied the advantages of the so-called higher education, at the age of seventeen he had laid a foundation broad and deep for the future on which, by constant reading and keen observation he had built a superstructure which is seldom surpassed by college graduates. His father, Martin Anderson, was of Scotch-Irish extraction, and his mother, nee Ellen Houck, was of German lineage. He combines the best qualities of both races, as is abundantly shown by his past life, wherein sagacity, activity, patience and courage have been required at every step. Whether as subordinate or chief, he has ever been a vigorous disciplinarian, and never failed to maintain order in every department over which he had control, without the petty acts which characterize the martinet. A man of broad views and generous heart, he has always had hosts of warm friends upon whose devotion he could depend in the most trying circumstances of a varied life. Although a hard worker he also believes that certain hours should be devoted to refreshment, and when they arrive he is ever ready to enjoy them with rare zest. In 1856 he went to Iowa from his native State. After a year's residence there he joined his parents, and with them removed to Kansas, locating at Grasshopper Falls, now Valley Falls. His father was a Free-soiler, and on settling in this State gave his heart and his hand to promote the cause of freedom. Identifying himself with the Free-state party, and being a speaker of more than ordinary ability he rose rapidly from the ranks, and in 1864 was elected State Treasurer. His son following the good example set by his sire, became an active member of the same party, and with him organized the Republican party in Jackson County, 1858. At the election following this he was elected County Surveyor. But anon was heard the noise of civil war, and our young surveyor was not slow in responding to the summons for volunteers. Enlisting in the Fifth Kansas Regiment United States Volunteers in June, 1861, upon its organization, he was appointed Sergeant Major, a position which he held until the fall of 1861, when he was discharged from the ranks and commissioned Lieutenant of Engineers on Gen. Lane's staff, and served with that officer until his ill-starred expedition to Texas failed, when he was mustered out. In February, 1863, President Lincoln appointed him Assistant Adjutant General, with rank of Captain, and he was assigned to duty as one of the staff of Maj. Gen. J. G. Blunt, and organized the Fourteenth Kansas Cavalry and the Second Kansas Colored Infantry. In March, 1864, he was appointed to a majorship, yet served as Assistant Adjutant General under Gens. Thayer, Blunt, and McNeil, of the Army of the Frontier, and while the latter was doing service in Arkansas, was his Chief of Staff. For meritorious services he was breveted Lieutenant Colonel, and two days later breveted Colonel. At the earnest solicitation of Gov. Crawford he resigned in April, 1865, to accept the appointment of Adjutant General of Kansas, and having reorganized his department he completed the military records in a style which has saved a world of trouble to the agents employed to settle the claims of the State against the Federal Government. This position he resigned to accept the agency of the Kansas Pacific R. R., which he held for over six years and then resigned to take the double office of General Freight and Ticket Agent of the K. M. R. R. When that was purchased by the Atchison, Topeka & Sante Fe Company he was appointed General Passenger Agent for the latter, and continued in that department for nearly three years and then was appointed General Agent of the company, in charge of its freight and passenger interests in Kansas, Colorado, and New Mexico, with headquarters at Pueblo from March, 1878, until fall of the same year; headquarters from March, 1879, to September, 1879, at Denver, Col.; then at Kansas City until he was appointed Postmaster at Topeka in 1881. During the years of 1875 and 1876 he was Mayor of Topeka, displaying superior ability in discharging the duties as Executive of city government. In 1879 he was elected a representative in the Legislature of Kansas, where he exerted a powerful influence in shaping legislation to promote the best interests of the commonwealth. He was re-elected to the house in 1881, receiving every vote cast in the district; was a delegate to the Chicago Convention in 1880, and voted for Gen. Grant thirty-six times and carries the old guard medal. Was appointed Postmaster at Topeka in March, 1881, by President Garfield. Appointed Brigadier General Kansas State Militia in July, 1882, and Major General in August, 1882, by Gov. St. John, Chairman of Committee of Thirty-eight, in charge of the great soldiers' reunion held in Topeka in September, 1882. Elected Department Commander, Grand Army of the Republic, Department of Kansas, January 25, 1883. As a member of the A., F. & A. M., the free-will offerings of his brethren in the way of official positions have been numerous. He was Worshipful Master of Topeka Lodge, No. 17, during 1872; High Priest of Topeka Chapter in 1867 and 1868, and in 1870-71, and Eminent Commander of Topeka Commandery from its organization until 1873. In 1867 he was elected Grand King of the Grand Chapter. In 1874-75 Deputy High Priest, and in 1876 Grand High Priest. In 1870 he was elected Grand Captain General of the Grand Commandery; in 1871, Grand Generalissimo; in 1873, Deputy Grand Commander; and in 1874, Grand Commander.

W. M. ANDERSON, of the firm of H. I. Cook & Co., hardware merchants, is a native of Mansfield, Richland Co., Ohio, resided there until 1866, when he removed to Iowa City, Iowa, where he became connected with the First National Bank of that city, being cashier of that institution for five years of the time just prior to coming to Topeka to embark in his present business. He was married in Topeka, February 21, 1883, to Carrie B. Shively. Mr. A. is a member of the A., F. & A. M., and was a charter member of the K. of P. Lodge at Iowa City.

THOMAS ARCHER, attorney at law and notary public, was born in Jefferson County, Ky., near Louisville, July 13, 1833. The next year his parents moved to Missouri, where he lived until he was seventeen years of age. He then went to Pittsfield, Ills., and after remaining there three years returned to Missouri, which was his home until he came to Kansas in 1857. Topeka was his first location after going to Kansas, and with the exception of three years spent in the army, has been his home ever since. He was engaged in brick-making one year subsequent to his arrival, and in lime-burning during the succeeding eighteen months. From the beginning he ran an "underground railroad" with John Brown and was with that patriot at the battle of the Spurs, fought near Holton, Jackson Co., Kan., and in his last trip through Missouri. He enlisted August 8, 1861, in Company A, Fifth Kansas Volunteer Cavalry and served until August 11, 1864. He was shot through the shoulder at the battle of Pine Bluff, October 25, 1863, and lost the use of his right arm. Upon leaving the service he returned to Topeka and was for eighteen months engaged in the grocery business. September 1, 1864, he was appointed Deputy Sheriff and held that position twelve years, being Constable at the same time. He was admitted to the bar March 13, 1872, and has been in active practice most of the time since. At one session of the House of Representatives he was Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms, and at the next Sergeant-at-Arms. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. and has held all the offices in that order, having filled every chair in the subordinate lodge and encampment, and is P. M. of Grand Encampment. He is a member of the G. A. R., past post surgeon and a member of the Ancient Order of Templars, a temperance organization of which he is treasurer; also member and past chaplain of the Foresters. He was married in Topeka, September 26, 1867, to Ruth C. Hard, a native of Grand Rapids, Mich. They have two children—Lulu and Minnie.

N. H. ARNOLD, 413 Kansas avenue, North Topeka, born in Columbus, Ind., September, 1840. He left there when quite young and went to Bloomington, in the same State, and was educated at the State University in that city, graduating in 1862. He studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1866. He practiced his profession at Bloomington until January, 1870, when he removed to North Topeka, Kan. Mr. Arnold was the first attorney who resided and practiced in North Topeka. He was married to Mrs. Fisk, of North Vernon, Ind., in 1876. Mr. Arnold was Justice of the Peace in the city of Topeka for several years. His brother, a graduate of the same university, is a leading druggist in North Topeka.

EDWIN A. AUSTIN, now attorney and U. S. Commissioner, was born March 22, 1856, in Lafayette, Ind., where he lived until his removal to Topeka in March, 1879. He was educated in the public schools of Lafayette, read law in the same place; attended the law school of Michigan University at Ann Arbor, and was admitted to the Indiana bar in the winter of 1877. While in Lafayette he served for a time as Deputy Clerk of the Circuit Court. He has been engaged in the practice of law since his location in Topeka, and has served as Commissioner since November, 1880.

S. BACHER, manufacturer of furniture, was born in Burlington, Iowa, October 22, 1856. He has worked at the business which he is now engaged in since he was fourteen years of age, having been employed several years in Chicago, Galesburg, Ill., and Ottumwa, Iowa. He came to Topeka in July, 1881, and has been engaged in furniture business here since that time. He keeps an elegant stock of upholstered furniture, and if his patrons are unable to make satisfactory selections therefrom he will manufacture to order, on short notice, such goods as they may desire. He has ample facilities, and keeps from six to seven men constantly employed in the manufacturing department of his business. Mr. Bacher is a member of the I. O. O. F., A. O. U. W., and the Turners' Society.

FRANK BAILEY, M. D., is a native of Galesburg, Ill. His principal literary education was acquired at Blackburn University, in Illinois, and at Wabash College, Indiana. For two years he attended the St. Louis Medical College, at St. Louis, and afterward entered Starling Medical College, at Columbus, Ohio, and graduated from the latter institution. He came to Topeka in November, 1882. Since February, 1883, he has been associated as a partner with Dr. D. C. Jones, one of the most skillful physicians of this city. Dr. Bailey is a son of Rev. J. W. Bailey, D.D., of Columbus, Ohio, now one of the trustees of the Western Theological Seminary, of Allegheny City, Pa. Also for twelve years President of Blackburn University, at Carlinville, Ill., and prior to that time was for eight years one of the professors of Knox College, Galesburg, Ill.

THOMAS H. BAIN, attorney and real estate agent, was born at Marysville, Union Co., Ohio, December 27, 1852, and was educated in the public schools of his native county and at the National Normal School, at Lebanon, Ohio. He graduated August 18, 1876, and then read law at Marysville until May 1, 1880, when he came to Kansas. His first location was at Great Bend, where he remained until January 1, 1881, at that date removing to Topeka, where he had established a business in October, 1880. He was admitted to the bar of Kansas, December 5, 1881, and has since been engaged in practice at Topeka in connection with his real estate business. Mr. Bain was married at Norwalk, Ohio, September 25, 1879, to Mary E. Martin, a native of Collins, Huron Co., Ohio. They have one child—May. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. and Good Templars, being recording secretary of Shawnee Lodge No. 1, I. O. O. F.

R. J. BAIRD, carpenter and builder, residence 90 Clay street, between Third and Fourth. Came to Atchison, Kan., first in 1867, on a visit; returned to Washington, D. C., remaining there until the 21st of May, 1870, then started for Kansas. Located at Burlington, Coffey County, where he remained a short time and then came to Topeka, where he has since resided. Does a fair business and is successful as a carpenter and builder. Was a carpenter in the United States Navy; went from Washington, D. C., in 1861, on the transport Daniel Webster, and sailed along the Virginia coast. Was transferred to Sackett's Harbor, New York, and remained there about eight months, and then went to Harper's Ferry, being transferred to land service, following his trade. Went home at the close of the war from Harper's Ferry. He was born in Washington, D. C., August 27, 1839, and remained there, with the exception of his war service, until coming West, working at his trade. He was married in 1873, in Topeka, to Miss Clara V. Fiery, formerly of Washington County, near Hagerstown, Md. They have two children—Bessie V. and Joseph R.

ANDREW BAKER, blacksmith, Railroad street, North Topeka. Came to Topeka in June, 1881, from Yankton, D. T. Was born February 3, 1839, at Fayette, Fayette Co., Ohio. Moved with his father to Coles County, Ill., and worked in Government service as blacksmith during the war at Mattoon. Remained there twenty-five years and removed to Yankton in 1864. Was married in 1861 in Coles County, Ill., to Miss Martha Simpson. Have four children—Mary A., Seth, Lydia and Ida.

HON. FLOYD P. BAKER is a native of Fort Ann, Washington Co., N. Y., where he was born November 16, 1820. His grandfather, Reuben Baker, was a native of Massachusetts; born in the town of Rehoboth, May 30, 1758; served in the Revolutionary War, and at its close removed to Ira, Vermont, and subsequently emigrated to Fort Ann, N. Y., settling upon a farm which has ever since been owned by him and his descendents, the present owner being Hon. Isaac V. Baker, Jr., his great grandson, well known as a man of affairs in the State, having represented his District in the State Legislature for ten consecutive years, and now being State Superintendent of Prisons in the State of New York. Reuben Baker was married in 1783, to Lydia Mason, of Swansea, Mass. They had seventeen children. The eldest, Nathan, was killed at Sackett's Harbor, in the military service of his country, during the war of 1812. Reuben, the second son, the father of Floyd P., was born in Ira, Vt., November 9, 1784; died in Burlington, Iowa, December 2, 1865. He married, August 30, 1810, Miss Lois C. Baxter, daughter of Moses Baxter, who served in the Revolutionary War, and suffered imprisonment in Canada, for some months during the struggle. Mrs. Baker was of Scotch descent, her maternal grandfather—Chaffee, being a Scotchman. He was a soldier during the French and Indian War, prior to the Revolutionary War, and was killed in one of the numerous bloody encounters with the Indians, near Sandy Hill, Washington Co., N. Y. The subject of this sketch was the fourth son of Reuben and Lois (Baxter) Baker. His father was a school teacher, and found difficulty only surmounted by strict abstemiousness and pinching economy, in supporting the fast coming and numerous family with which Providence blessed him. In those days both poverty and honesty were more common than now, and the shifts to raise a large family, involved sacrifice, and developed characters not common to the surroundings of ease and luxury that prevail in these latter times. At the age of eight years young Floyd went to live with Mathias Whitney, a farmer of Fort Ann. He remained there until eighteen years of age, laboring on the farm, and acquiring what education could be gained in the three months term of the winter district schools. He was diligent and apt as a scholar, and made such use of these meagre advantages as to fit himself as a teacher, and at the age of eighteen he took charge of the school at Hamburg, Erie Co., N. Y., where he remained six months. In the spring of 1839, he first visited what was then the "far West." At Hillsdale, Mich., he set up a blacksmith shop, which he ran with indifferent success for a year. In 1840 he returned to his native State, and became agent for a line of packet boats upon the Champlain Canal, then controlled by his brother. He was also agent for the winter stage line between Albany and Whitehall, then a part of the route between New York and Montreal. He remained in charge of these lines for nearly seven years during which time his residence was principally in Troy. In 1847, he gave up his agencies and took a contract to build a section of two miles on the Hudson River Railroad. The contract proved disastrously unprofitable, swallowing up the savings of many years, and leaving him embarrassed with unpaid debts. He determined again to try the West, and accordingly, having made as good a settlement of his wrecked affairs as possible, removed with his wife and child to Racine, Wis., settling on a farm which he carried on in connection with an insurance business for about three years. In 1850, his wife died, and, in 1851, having re-married, he determined to try his fortunes in some distant or foreign land. With his wife and son he traveled with his own conveyance to St. Louis, thence by boat down the Mississippi to New Orleans. There his only son sickened and died. The heavy hearted couple pursued their weary journey, by way of Panama, to San Francisco; thence, after a few months sojourn, they sailed for the Sandwich Islands, arriving, after a tedious passage, in June, 1853. Within three weeks after landing he was appointed crown attorney and clerk of the district court of Hawaiian Islands, and removed to Hilo, which was to be his permanent residence. Before getting settled he was obliged, on account of the prevalence of small-pox in Honolulu, from whence he had sailed, to endure a season of quarantine confinement outside the limits of the town. The quarantine hospital was in the crater of an extinct volcano. While there his second son was born, who can certainly boast of as novel a birthplace as any man living. Mr. Baker performed the duties of his office for nearly eighteen months, when, tiring of his semi-barbarous surroundings, he gave up his position and turned his face again towards his native land. In February, 1855, he sailed for San Francisco. From thence, via the Nicaragua route, he returned to "the States," and settled in Andrew County, Mo., where he remained until 1860, engaged in farming and land speculation. He came to Kansas in 1860, first settling in Centralia, Nemaha County. There he carried on farming, practiced law, and served at different times as County Attorney, and Superintendent of Schools. He remained in Nemaha County for three years, serving as a member of the State Legislature in 1861-62, from the district composed of Nemaha, Marshall and Washington counties. In 1863, having purchased an interest in the Kansas State Record, he removed his family to Topeka. For nearly eight years he remained connected with the paper, until its consolidation with the Commonwealth, in 1871, at which time he retired. In 1872 Mr. Baker went to Denison, Texas, where he established the Denison Journal, which he conducted with ability and success until 1874. During his sojourn there, from April, 1873, to the 1st of June, 1875, he held the office of Postmaster. March 7, 1875, he purchased the office of the Commonwealth, with which he has retained his connection as chief proprietor and editor in chief to the present time. During the long period of his residence in Kansas, nearly a quarter of a century, his life has been interwoven with the political history of the State. He has, as a journalist, shown that peculiar ability, which, if lacking ephemeral brilliancy, ends in lasting success. He has during the time been at the head of the most influential journals of the Republican party in Kansas, and has done much in molding the destinies and directing the management of its affairs. It is perhaps unnecessary to add that he has been from the beginning a staunch and unswerving Republican, and with Nestor-like solicitude, has stood in defense of the doctrines and organization of his party from first to last, being lured by none of the numerous side issues which have presented themselves, to sacrifice or jeopardize its unity on the great national questions which alone insure it prolonged life and power. His rank among Kansas journalists is at the head, he being now the President of the Kansas Editorial Association. To him in a great measure is the State indebted for the present historical State collection, he being one of the early organizers of the Kansas State Historical Society, its first Secretary, and an active and efficient member of its executive board ever since its organization. Mr. Baker has been twice married. February 14, 1844, at Amsterdam, N. Y., he married Eliza F., daughter of John Wilson. She died at Racine, Wis., in 1850. They had one son, Floyd P., born in Troy, N. Y., July 10, 1847, died in New Orleans January 5, 1853. March 7, 1851, he married Orinda, daughter of John C. Searle, of Racine, Wis., formerly from Fort Plain, N. Y. They have had five children, four of whom survive—Nestor R., born near Hilo, Hawaiian Island, August 13, 1853; Clifford C., born at Moundville, Wis., May 31, 1855; Isaac N., born at Rochester, Mo., August 1, 1857, and Minnie L., born in Topeka, May 21, 1863. Mr. Baker is a member of the Masonic Order, being made a Mason in 1845. He also became an Odd Fellow in 1844, and has been at the head of the order in Kansas, being Grand Master in 1862, and represented the order in Kansas in the Grand Lodge of the United States, in 1867. He visited Europe in 1878, as Assistant Commissioner to the World's Fair, in Paris, making the tour of Italy, the Netherlands, Belgium, England, Ireland and Scotland, while abroad. He was assigned the subject of Forestry, and made a report on the subject, which was published with the other reports. Few men following the peaceful avocations of life have had a more varied experience, and few carry the weight of hardships, discouragements and coming years, more sturdily or cheerfully in the quiet evening of success fairly won. On the 24th of July, 1882, he was appointed one of the Commissioners of the Foresters' Bureau of the Agricultural Department of the United States Government at Washington, and assigned to duty in the Mississippi Valley, and west to the Rocky Mountains.

AUGUSTUS H. BARNARD was born in Manchester, Vt., April 9, 1832; lived there until he was seven years of age, then his parents removed with their family to Palmyra, Mich., where he lived until he came to Kansas in April, 1855. After stopping a few days at Lawrence he took a claim on Deer Creek, one mile and a half from Topeka. In the spring of 1856 he became one of the organizers of the Kansopolis Town Company and remained a member of that company until the spring of 1868; also engaged in farming and freighting. In 1868 he removed to Leavenworth, where he continued in the freighting business until the spring of 1869. He then removed to Fairmount, Leavenworth County, where he was merchant, station agent, and Postmaster until the spring of 1871, when he removed to Belle Plaine, Sumner County, his family being the first at that place. While there he was engaged in farming, freighting, and hotel keeping. He kept the first hotel there and did the first freighting to that place, going as far as Florence for supplies. He remained at Belle Plaine about eighteen months, then removed to Wellington, in the same county, where he was engaged in hotel keeping until his removal from there. In 1875 he built the Hotel de Barnard, which he recently leased, and removed to Topeka in September, 1882. While at Wellington he served one term as a member of the Common Council. In the early struggles between the Free-state and Pro-slavery parties, he was always found among the foremost Free-state men. He was a warm personal friend of John Brown, being frequently with him. Mr. Barnard was married at Delaware, Delware Co., Ohio, May 26, 1860, to Catherine Smith, a native of Galena, Ohio. They have two children—Nellie E. and Edwina, two charming and accomplished young ladies.

GEORGE BATES located in Topeka in 1868, and was engaged in the dry-goods business in the city until January, 1881. Since March 15, 1882, he has been associated with Henry Taylor in the loan business. Mr. Bates is a native of Hampshire County, Southampton, Mass., and spent the early years of his life in Trumbull, Ohio.

W. L. BATES, of the firm of Bates & Clements, dry-goods merchants, was born at Alliance, Ohio, April 8, 1859, living there until he came to Topeka in 1868. He was educated at Oberlin College. He has been connected with the mercantile business since 1874, as a member of the firm of G. P. Bates & Son, one year prior to the organization of the present firm in January, 1881, Mr. D. A. Clements being now associated with him as a partner.

CARROLL N. BEAL, real estate loan broker. Came to Kansas and located at Leavenworth, September 20, 1868. He resided in that city about seven years, and then went to Louisville, Kansas, where he remained until the fall of 1875, engaged in mercantile, abstract, banking and real estate business, when he removed to Topeka. He was with the Kansas Loan and Trust Co., as examiner of securities about four years, and then with the National Loan and Trust Co., as secretary until May 6, 1882, when he established the firm of C. N. Beal & Co., brokers and dealers in Kansas real estate securities, etc. He is also a member of the firm of Beal Bros., bankers, at Louisville, Pottawatomie County, Kansas, he and his brother having established that business there some ten years ago. He was born in Vevay, Switzerland Co., Ind., his residence prior to his removal to Leavenworth being Indianapolis. He was married at Louisville, Kansas, July 3, 1872, to Cordelia C. Huggins, a native of Michigan. They have four children, Eldon M., Don H., Ray C., and an infant son.

F. A. BECKSTROM, house and sign painter, paper hanger, etc. Was born in Sweden, February 5, 1841. He there learned his trade, beginning in 1855 and serving an apprenticeship of six years. Was married in Sweden in 1865 to Miss Ingaree Nelson. They are members of the Swedish Lutheran Church. He emigrated to America in 1868, locating at Chicago, where he worked at his trade two years. He then came to Topeka where he has since resided. He has painted many of the principal residences and business houses in the city. He has now an extensive business and employs eight to fifteen men.

B. S. BENNETT, carpenter, was born in Illinois in 1840; his father, Mr. B. C. Bennett, having removed there from Pennsylvania in 1838, but returning again in 1846 settled in Bucks County, where the subject of this sketch acquired the trade of a carpenter, making a cruise of three years in that capacity to European waters on board the United States sloop of war "Jamestown." Immediately upon his return to his native land in 1861, he enlisted for three months in the Twenty-second Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteers. On the expiration of his term he immediately re-enlisted, this time as Corporal in Company K One Hundred and Fourth Pennsylvania Infantry. Was mustered out in 1864, but again enlisted for the third time and remained in the One Hundred and Fourth till close of the war when he held the rank of Sergeant. Mr. Bennett was in eleven pitched battles to say nothing of skirmishes; was wounded severely in the right side and left shoulder at the battle of Fair-oaks, but such was his indomitable pluck that he refused to go into hospital, and was shortly afterwards again bearing arms and assisted, while yet suffering from his wounds, in repelling Longstreet's attack upon Casey's Division, on which occasion he was detailed as sharpshooter; had six balls through his clothing, and saw his company reduced from fifty-nine to twenty-four men, nearly all of the latter being wounded. At the close of the war he returned to Pennsylvania and resumed his trade; and in 1878 took up 160 acres of land in Kansas, finally locating in Topeka in 1881. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. and also of Lincoln Post, G. A. R.

E. BENNETT & SON, dealers in and breeders of Percheron Norman horses, corners of Eighth avenue and Lincoln and Buchanan streets; have been in business in Topeka since fall of 1880; were in the same business in Minnesota for three years prior to that time; they have heretofore obtained their stock from prominent breeders and importers of thoroughbred Percheron Norman horses in Illinois and Ohio. Are now making arrangements to commence importing directly from France. During the year 1881 they handled over 50 head Percheron Norman stallions, doing a business not much less than $100,000. They are now buying land in and near Topeka on which to erect buildings for the accommodation of their business, which will be second to none in the United States when completed. Also they are anticipating building a sale stable in Topeka next year that will be an ornament to the city as well as of service to their large and increasing trade. They are also negotiating for a number of sections of land not far west from Topeka for summer pasture and for mowing purposes. Erasmus Bennett was born in Albany County, N. Y., March 29, 1834; being raised a farmer, following that occupation in the county of his birth for thirty-five years. In 1868 he moved to Allegany County, N. Y., where he remained until 1877 engaged in dairying. He then moved to Marshall, Minn., and commenced the introduction of the Percheron Norman horses into Minnesota and Dakota, and followed the business there until November, 1880 when he moved to Topeka. He was married in Albany County, N. Y., February 14, 1856, to Miss Mary Meed, who died March 8, 1869, leaving two children, Emily and Edwin R. He married again March 8, 1870, Miss Clara E. Brigham, of Bradford County, Penn., by whom he has three boys, Frank E., Erasmus, Jr. and Lester E. Mr. Bennett is a member of the Masonic order.

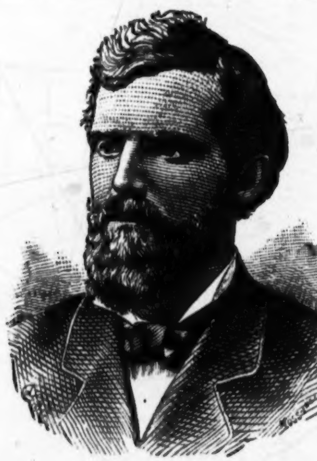
He has also held many offices, being Township Treasurer about three years, Township Clerk one year, member of the State Legislature in 1871 and elected Sheriff in 1881. He was born in Onondago County, N. Y., August 25, 1881. His youth was spent in Jefferson County, N. Y., where he remained until he enlisted in Battery D, First New York Light Artillery. He was in nearly all the engagements under Gen. George B. McClellan from Yorktown to Harrison's Landing, and was discharged from service July 27, 1862, on account of disability caused by disease contracted in the army. He then returned to Jefferson County, where he remained until he came to Kansas. In the fall of 1863 he became connected with the Kansas Militia and was placed in command of Company G, Second Kansas State Militia. This brigade was in active service during the Price raid, in October, 1864. Mr. Bush was captured and shot in the battle of the Big Blue, October 22, and re-captured by the Federal troops at noon on the 23d. He received three shots through the left side of the head, one through his left arm below the shoulder and another which penetrated his clothing and struck his right side, the bullet being removed from his clothes considerably flattened. He returned to Topeka about December 25, on the first passenger train which passed through on the Union Pacific as far as Lawrence. Mr. Bush was married at Gananoque, Canada West, February 20, 1855, to Ellen Gorman, who was born at that place, but afterward a resident of New York State. They have lost three children—Edward H., born January 4, 1856, died December 27, 1881; Harriet E., aged about nine years, and Francina M., aged seven years. Their living children are Charles W., born February 15, 1858, and Edith E., born September 30, 1869. November 28, 1882, while attempting to arrest the notorious Cook Brothers, corner of Tenth and Taylor streets, Topeka, Mr. Bush received a severe gun-shot wound through the instep of the right foot.

W. H. BUTTERFIELD was born in Farmington, Me., January 26, 1813. He was educated in his native State, principally at the academy at Farmington, of which town he remained a resident until 1843. He then moved West as far as Ohio, located in the city of Dayton, and was for sixteen years principal of one of the largest schools in that place, and afterwards for several years in book and stationery business there. From Dayton he came to Topeka in April, 1866, and immediately built a residence and became a citizen in the true sense of the word, devoting himself to the advancement of the educational interests of his adopted city from the first. He organized, graded and classified the public schools, having charge of them for two years, part of which time he taught personally. After an interim of two years he again took charge of the schools, in the capacity of superintendent, which position he occupied for nine consecutive years, his term of service ending August, 1881. The High School is indebted to the efforts and suggestions of Messrs. Butterfield and Bonebrake for its organization, Mr. B. being a member of the Board of Education at the time. He has served for one year as County Superintendent of Public Instruction, and six years on the Board of Examiners for the County. Mr. Butterfield was married in Farmington, Me., to Hannah Elizabeth Norris, a native of Hallowell, Me. They have three children—William C., now of Des Moines, Iowa; Augusta Norris, and Harry Norris, a farmer in Butler County, Kan. Mr. B. is a member of the Presbyterian Church and the various temperance societies.

CHANNING J. BROWN was born in Oakfield, Genesee Co., N. Y., October 31, 1847. He pursued his preparatory college studies at the Genesee Wesleyan Seminary, at Lima, and graduated from the classical department of Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y., in the class of 1869, studying law at that institution and also at Batavia, N. Y. In 1869 he helped organize the Genesee Colony, which founded the town of Blue Rapids, Marshall Co., Kan. Was secretary of the Blue Rapids Town Company for two years, and attorney at law and real estate agent in the new town. The Genesee Colony was composed of 100 members, about seventy-five of whom located in the town and vicinity in the early part of 1870. This was one of the most successful colony organizations in the State, the originators of the movement being men of judgment and liberal means and the location combining the advantages of cheap and good lands with a railroad already in operation. In the fall of 1874 Mr. Brown was elected a member of the Kansas House of Representatives, and in the fall of 1876 to the State Senate for the four years term July 1, 1879, he was appointed Clerk of the Supreme Court. Mr. Brown was married in Topeka, Kan., September 10, 1881, to Julia E. Greer, of Yellow Springs, Greene Co Ohio. He is a member of K. of P.



C. J. Brown

D. J. CALEB, contractor and builder, came to Kansas in 1870 from New Jersey, locating in Topeka in 1871. He was born in Merthyr Tydvil, South Wales, the most eminent place for iron works and mines in the world, September 30, 1834; remained in his native county until he was thirty years of age, and was apprenticed as a carpenter when ten years of age serving for seven years, and when seventeen years of age was a competent contractor. Came to America in July, 1866, locating in Jersey City until 1870. He was married in December, 1868, in Merthyr Tydvil, to Miss Mary A. Nichols, a native of Cardiff. They have four children Ivor, Alice, Samuel and Lizzie.

ANDREW M. CALLAHAM, dentist, came to Topeka in October, 1866, and has been engaged in the practice of dentistry since that time. For the last three years he has also been engaged in stock-raising, and has a stock farm in the southwest corner of Maple Hill Township, Wabaunsee County. He has been a member of the School Board since the spring of 1881. He was born in Cass County, Ind., February 5, 1840, and lived there until August, 1861, when he enlisted in the Twenty-ninth Indiana Volunteer Infantry. In August, 1862, he assisted in raising Company H, Seventy-third Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and was elected Second Lieutenant of the Company After serving eight months he was taken prisoner near Rome, Ga., and remained in rebel prisons nineteen months and ten days, being released on parole in December, 1864. He was married at Lewisburg, O., April 4, 1865, to Carrie A. Alderman, a native of that place. They have three children—Nellie I., Arthur G. and Myrtle Grace, and lost one son in infancy. Dr. Callaham is now Most Illustrious Grand Master of the Grand Council of Kansas, and in 1881 was Grand Commander of Grand Commandery of Knights Templar.

J. W. CAMPBELL, attorney, located at Osage City in the fall of 1872, and was there principal of the public schools during 1873-74. He then entered the junior class of the State University of Illinois, from which he graduated in 1876. He then read law at Champaign and Topeka until 1879, when he was admitted to the bar, and has since been engaged in active practice at Topeka. He was born in Adams Township, Coshocton Co., Ohio, March 24, 1851, and is a son of Patrick Steel Campbell, a prominent man in that part of Ohio. In 1872 he graduated from the Normal School at Lebanon, Ohio, having taught school two years previous to his graduation. Mr. Campbell was married at Chicago, during the summer of 1879, to Eugenie Daniels, a native of Michigan. They have two children—Winifred, born April 5, 1880, and Howard, born May 9, 1882. Mr. Campbell is a member of the Baptist Church, and secretary and treasurer of the Kansas and Missouri Sunday-school Assembly.

M. T. CAMPBELL, lawyer, was born near Bloomington, Monroe Co., Ind., May 2, 1847. He was educated at the Indiana University, graduating from both the literary and law departments of that institution. In 1869 he came to Atchison, Kansas, where, after continuing his studies in a law office for nearly two years, he was admitted to the bar, and soon after went to Waterville, Kansas, where he commenced the active practice of his profession. He was married in Waterville on the 3rd day of September, 1871, to Louise Adams, youngest daughter of the late Henry J. Adams, and a native of Ohio. They have three children—Anna, Arthur Lee and Florence Powers. Mr. Campbell removed from Waterville to Topeka in December, 1872, and in the spring of 1876 was elected member of the Board of Education of the city of Topeka, and in the fall of the same year he was elected to represent his district in the Legislature for the term of two years.

GEORGE W. CAREY came to Topeka in March, 1872, and engaged in newspaper business, being one of the proprietors of the North Topeka Times for two years, and engaged in the practice of law at the same time. In the fall of 1876 he was elected Probate Judge, and re-elected in 1878. Mr. Carey was born near Owensboro, Hancock Co., Ky., May 16, 1836. His parents removed to Indiana when he was one and a half years of age, and his home was in Warrick County, in that State, until he was sixteen, when he removed to bury Rockport, Spencer Co., Ind., and remained there until 1858. In 1859 he entered As- University at Greencastle, Ind., and from that place came back to Rockport, and enlisted and assisted in raising Company D, Sixty-fifth Indiana Volunteer Infantry, having previously assisted in raising the First Indiana Cavalry. He was mustered in August, 1862, at Evansville, Ind., elected Second Lieutenant of Company D, immediately promoted to First Lieutenant, and about a year later promoted to the Captaincy of the same Company. He was wounded and taken prisoner at the siege of Knoxville, Tenn., December 16, 1863, remaining in Libby Prison, Richmond, Va., until May, 1864, from whence he was taken to Danville and thence to Macon, Ga., being kept at the latter place until the fall of 1864. He was then a short time at Augusta, Ga., and then at Charleston, S. C., where, on the night of the 27th of October, the yellow fever broke out among the prisoners and seventy-two died. He was then imprisoned successively at Savannah, Ga., Wilmington, N. C., Columbus, S. C., Savannah, Ga., and finally taken to Annapolis, Md., where he was released in April, 1865. He returned to Rockport, Ind., was admitted to the bar in 1867, and in 1868 was elected County Treasurer and served two years. He was married at Dale, Spencer Co., Ind., June 2, 1867, to Mary A. McKinley, formerly of Cannelton, Ind. They have four children—William F., Maud, George Edgar and Mary E. an infant daughter. Judge Carey was a member of G. A. R. while in Indiana. He is now a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church and I. O. O. F., and a lawyer by profession.

ADERIAL H. CASE, attorney at law, has been engaged in the practice of law in Topeka since July 15, 1859, the date of his location in the city, having been also engaged, to some extent, in farming. In 1861 he was elected District Attorney of the Third Judicial District, which embraced thirteen counties, and held the office two years. He held the office of Internal Revenue Assessor for his district, fifteen months. He was Assistant United States District Attorney about five years, under United States Attorneys Emory and Samuel A. Riggs. He is a native of Bradford County, Pa., and has been engaged in practice ever since he came to Kansas. His practice has been almost entirely criminal for the past fifteen years, Charles Curtis being now associated with him in business. The number of men accused of murder, whom he has defended, amounted in 1881, to 120, and he has assisted in the prosecution of forty accused of the same crime, probably as large a number of criminal cases of that degree as any one lawyer in the country has undertaken. Mr. Case has one son, Daniel H., a native of Leavenworth.

HENRY N. CASTLE, attorney at law, president of the Western Investment Company of Topeka, Kan., and secretary of the Southwestern Mining Company, owning mines in the Black Range, New Mexico came to Kansas, March 1, 1871, and located at Newbury, Wabaunsee County, on eighty acres of land, farming and teaching school for many years in that neighborhood. He then went to Cleveland, O., and commenced the study of law with Grannis & Burton, in February 1878, remaining with them until September of the same year. He then returned to Kansas, and completed his law studies with Ross Burns, of Topeka, May 15, 1880, when he was admitted to the bar and has since that time been practicing law in the city. He is a native of Olmstead Falls Cuyahoga Co., Ohio, where he was born, February 23, 1853. He received his collegiate education at Oberlin College, graduating in 1876. He was married in Geneva, Ill., May 26, 1880, to Marie E. Lane, a native of Ohio. They have one child, William Larmon, born February 23, 1882.

PHILANDER CHASE CHAMBERLAIN, second son of J. S. and Mary C. Chamberlain, was born in Peoria, Ill., September 28, 1850. Was educated at Hobart College, Geneva, N. Y.; afterwards practiced law at Cambridge, Ill., from which place he moved to Topeka, Kan., in March, 1879 and has since that time been engaged on the editorial staff of the Topeka Daily Capital as traveling correspondent. Mr Chamberlain was married at Cambridge, Ill., to Mary A. Call, now deceased. He has one child, Mary Chase.

CHARLES BROS., dealers in groceries, confectionery, etc., have been in business in Topeka the past four years. They carry a stock of $500, and do a very good business. Charles Charles was born in Greene County, Ala., in 1855. His parents moved to Scott County, Miss., where he remained until he came to Topeka, in 1878. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. Order. George W. Charles, Jr., was born in Greene County, Ala., in 1858, removing to Scott County, Miss., with his parents, when only a few years old. He remained there until he came to Topeka, in 1878. He was appointed a State Guard at Jackson, Miss., in 1874, and held that position until he removed from the State. He is a member of the Order of I. O. O. F. George Charles was born in Franklin County, Ala., May 31 1832. In 1851 he married, in Perry County, Ala., Julia Hendon. They have two children, Charles and George W. He removed to Scott County, Miss., where he resided during the war. He there learned the shoemaker's trade, which he has since followed. He represented his district in the Mississippi State Legislature in 1869-'70 and was Inspector of State Prison nearly three years. He organized the Emigration Society in Mississippi, in 1876, and was one of the prime movers in the Exoduster movement. He was also Lieutenant-Colonel of First Lincoln County Regiment, of the State of Mississippi, from 1873 to 1877.

GEORGE S. CHASE, was born in Charlestown, Mass., in October, 1850; came to Topeka in 1855; his father, Enoch Chase, now a resident of this city, having located here in December, 1854. George attended the public schools of Topeka until 1867, he then entered Washburn College, remaining there until 1870, when he went to Harvard College Law School, from which he graduated in 1873 and immediately returned to Topeka, being admitted to the bar the same year and engaged in practice, which he has since continued, from 1875 until November, 1882, having charge of the law business of the Land Department of the Atchison, Topeka & Sante Fe R. R. Co. He is a member of the Topeka Board of Education, having been elected in 1882. He is Secretary of the Topeka Scientific Club, a member of the Kansas Academy of Science, and Treasurer of the Sante Fe Mining Co.

ENOCH CHASE, son of Nathaniel and Harriet Ann (Doyle) Chase, was born in Newburyport, Mass., August 29, 1824. He was educated at the common schools of his native town, and was afterwards employed in the shipyard with his father until the age of seventeen. In the spring of 1841, he went to Boston and learned the trade of upholsterer, in which he became expert, and followed as his business. He was married while a resident of Boston, to Miss Mary Jane Dunlap, a daughter of Martin and Mary F. (Freddick) Dunlap of Brunswick, Maine, and it was while living in that city that their two children were born—Isabelle M., born February, 9, 1848, now the wife of ex-Governor S. J. Crawford of Kansas, and George Sidney born October 27, 1850, now a resident attorney of Topeka. In November, 1854, Mr. Chase determined to learn for himself the truth of the current reports in regard to Kansas, and came to the Territory with one of the Massachusetts Emigrant Aid companies, arriving November 30, 1854; with eight companions, and a wagon load of provisions, he started for Lawrence, and arrived in that city of "great expectations," after four days travel. Finding the accommodations of the Lawrence "Hotels" not in consonance with their Yankee ideas of cleanliness and comfort, the party built a sod house of their own, which they occupied a week, at the end of which time, four of the company decided to try their fortune further west, "up the Kaw." Accordingly, Enoch Chase, M. C. Dickey, George Davis and Jacob Chase, bought the whole stock of provisions belonging to the party, and started in the proposed direction to locate a town for themselves. On arriving at the present site of Topeka, they selected Section 31, on which that city is now located, and each selecting a quarter section, they drove their stakes and built a log house, where now is the northwest corner of Kansas avenue and First street. While the house was being built, Mr Dickey went back to Lawrence, and on his return a day or two later, there came with him a larger party, also desiring to locate a town, among whom were D. H. Horne, Col. C. K. Holliday, F. W. Giles, and others. Mr. Chase and his companions surrendered Section 31, for a town site, and took claims adjoining, and on December 5, 1854, the Topeka Town Company was organized, of which Col. Holliday was President and the united party members. The claim which Mr. Chase took was near the present site of Washburn College, and there he built a house, which boasted the first wooden floor in Topeka, and to which he took his wife and children, when they arrived, in March, 1855. The following October he moved into town and remained during the convention of October 23, 1855, bringing provisions from Lawrence to supply the wants of the hungry delegates. After returning to his claim, and remaining a short time, Mr. Chase and wife located permanently in the city, and opened a boarding house, which soon became famous as the favorite resort of the most noted Kansas celebrities. Mr. Chase built a large frame house on Sixth street, near Kansas avenue, which was used as a hotel, and in 1857 he opened the Chase House, now remodeled into the Capitol House. He also built and resided for years in the stone house on the corner of Sixth and Jackson, now used as offices by the A., T. & S. F. R. R. Co. Mr. and Mrs. Chase still reside in Topeka, and are among the most honored and respected citizens of the city, to the improvement of which they have contributed so largely.

CALEB CHIVERS, steam dyer, scourer, and merchant tailor, was born in Buckinghamshire, Eng., October 6, 1846, and there learned the trade of tailor, with his father, James Chivers, following that business there until 1871, when he emigrated to America. He was there married, in March, 1866, to Miss Mary Ann Meakes. They have two children living, Herbert C. and Gertrude E. In 1874 he entered the sewing machine and musical instrument business at Leavenworth, carrying that on in connection with his business of steam dyeing and tailoring, until 1882, when he took charge of the steam dyeing and merchant tailor business previously conducted by his father at Topeka, for several years. His establishment is supplied with the latest improved machinery, and the business, which is rapidly increasing, now gives employment to seven men. He carries, also, a large stock of sewing machines in connection with his other business. He is a member of Leavenworth Lodge, No. 2, I. O. O. F. His father, James Chivers, deceased, was born in Reading, Berkshire, England, in 1816, and there learned the trade of tailor. He afterwards went to Eton, Buckinghamshire, where he remained until 1853, following his business of tailor and doing a large business, employing twenty-five men most of the time. While there he was tailor to "His Royal Highness," Prince Albert. He there married Mary Hoar, of Poughbourne, Oxfordshire. They had seven children—Ephraim, Mary, Thomas, Isaac, Caleb, Noah, Lot. In 1853 he emigrated to America, locating at Baltimore, where he remained a few years. He went to Pike's Peak, remaining a short time, and soon afterwards located a claim near Junction City, where he remained a short time. He then opened a merchant tailor and dyeing business at Leavenworth, which he carried on until 1874, when he moved to Topeka and established the steam dyeing and tailor business, which he carried on until his death, in December, 1881. He was a staunch Republican, taking an active part in the early affairs of the State. He was a member of Leavenworth Lodge, No. 1, I. O. O. F., of which he was past grand; also of Knights of Honor Lodge at Topeka, of which he was dictator.

He was wounded and taken prisoner at Poison Springs, Ark., April 18, 1864, and was in prison in Texas until paroled in March, 1865. He was discharged May 14, 1865. He then located at Boone, Boone Co., Iowa, but entered Bryant & Stratton's Mercantile College at Chicago in January, 1866. After completing his course he was engaged in lumber business in Iowa for two years, and then emigrated to Kansas. He was married in Jefferson, Green County, Iowa, November 27, 1867, to Mary L. Stiles, of Bethlehem, Ohio. Mr. Coldren is a member of G. A. R.

JOHN P. COLE, wholesale and retail grocer, was born in Portland, Me., March 31, 1834, but reared and educated in Newburyport, Mass., which was his home from the age of two years until he came to Kansas in July, 1868. He served in the United States Navy from June, 1861, to July, 1868, being in active service all the time excepting sixty days furlough. He served as sailor the first year and was then master's mate eighteen months and acting ensign after August, 1864 having passed a satisfactory examination for that position. After locating in Topeka he was in the laundry business about a year and then went into the retail grocery business, to which he added a wholesale department in 1874, and now carries on both branches. He gives employment to ten men. His sales are principally in Kansas and now amount to about $200,000 per annum.

J. S. COLLINS, real estate and loan agent, located in Kansas in November, 1856. He first lived for three years at Wyandotte, then moved to Pottawatomie County, and lived near Westmoreland until 1869, when he came to Topeka. He was born in Watertown, Jefferson County, N. Y., August 9, 1848. Judge John Collins, father of James S., was one of the earliest settlers of Kansas. He was born in Ireland April 15, 1810. Came to America when eleven years of age, and located in Nova Scotia where he remained two years. He then went to Little Falls, N. Y., and ran a woolen mill several years; and for three years prior to coming to Kansas, he was at Watertown, N. Y., also superintending the construction and running of woolen mills. He came to Wyandotte, Kansas, in November, 1856, bringing with him a steam saw mill which he had made to order in New York, and which he kept in operation in Wyandotte about three and a half years, it being one of the first steam saw mills in Kansas. He then removed to Pottawatomie County, taking with him a steam saw and grist mill, which he owned for about six years, and operated in connection with his extensive farm. Mr. Collins was prominently connected with early Territorial interests. He was one of the first judges of elections, and he instituted the first I. O. O. F. lodge in the Territory—Shawnee Lodge, No. 1—first known as Tecumseh Lodge, from the place where it was organized. He was Territorial grand master of the I. O. O. F. and held the office of Justice of the Peace for seventeen years prior to his death, which occurred July 8, 1882. His family consisted of Joseph H., now post surgeon at Fort Union, N. M.; Mary J., now Mrs. Wm. Gillespie, and a resident of Garrison, Kansas; John, Jr., now on the homestead; and James S., now in real estate and loan business at Topeka.

H. I. COOK & CO., hardware merchants, established business in 1879. The firm is composed of H. I. Cook, Christian States and W. M. Anderson. Mr. Cook is a native of Mansfield, Ohio, where he resided until he came to Topeka, in 1872. He was employed as a clerk until the present firm was organized. He is a member of the K. of P. SEPTIMUS M. COURSEY, plain and ornamental plasterer. Came to Kansas March 22, 1879, and located in Norton County, Kansas, where he homesteaded 160 acres on Section 23, Town 5, Range 22 west, where he farmed and worked at his trade until coming to Topeka. Came to Kansas from Grundy County, Iowa. Was born in Frederick County, Md., March 5, 1849. Resided in his native county a short time, and lived in Pennsylvania and Virginia. His father, Rev. Wm. R. Coursey, was a prominent United Brethren minister, a member of the first English church of that name, and for several years presiding elder. Rev. Mr. Coursey died July 1, 1881, in Washington County, Md. Young Coursey enlisted February 8, 1864, in Mountville, Lancaster Co., Pa., in Battery G., Second Pennsylvania Veterans, Heavy Artillery, as a gunner. First three months, lay in Forts Lincoln and Ethan Allen at Washington. Then joined the Army of the Potomac under Gen. Grant at Cold Harbor, Va. Went to the front of Petersburgh, and participated in the bombardment. Remained there until August, and were ordered to Bermuda Hundred, and then went north of the James. Participated in the capture of Chapman's farm, September 29, 1864. The same day were repulsed at Fort Gregg. Laid there until January 1st, and returned to Bermuda Hundred, and remained until the surrender of Petersburg, and entered the city the second day after the surrender, and then garrisoned the city and adjacent counties until Lee's surrender. Was mustered out at City Point, Va., January 29, 1866. Resided a year at Foreston, Noble Co., Ill. Removed from there to New Hartford, Butler Co., Iowa, where he remained two years, working at his trade, and removed to Eldora, Hardin County, and remained five months. Then lived in Grundy County until May 9, 1870, when he was married to Miss Sarah E. Weatherly, a native of Owen County, Ind.; and then removed to Marshall County, where he resided five years; and in 1875 moved back to Grundy County where he remained until coming to Kansas. Have five children: David F., Fred W., Harvey M., Harry P., and Muriel. Is a member of Liscom Lodge, No. 242, I. O. O. F., Liscom, Marshall Co., Iowa. Mr. Coursey has had large experience in his line, and does plain plastering, whitewashing, calsomining, cementing, and ornamental work, such as centers and cornice work.

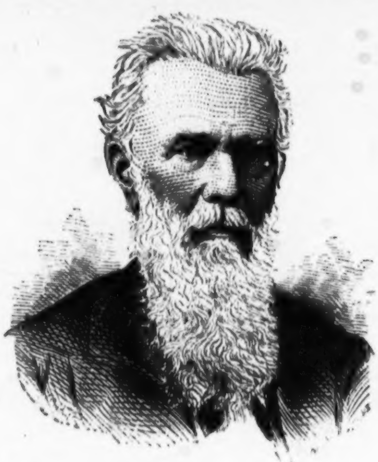
JESSE COX, market gardener, Section 28, P. O. Topeka. Owns five acres one-half a mile east of the city limits. Came to Kansas in February, 1865, locating on his present place. Has followed nothing but gardening; has made a good living for his family, erected a good house and made other improvements costing over $2,000, all off these five acres. Was born in England in February, 1812. Came to the United States March 4, 1845, locating in Greenbush, N. Y. In 1850 removed to Cleveland, Ohio; from Cleveland to Topeka, Kan., in 1865. He was married in 1832 to Miss Mary Hobley, from the city of Coventry. They have nine children—Jane, Caroline, John, Daniel, David, George, William H., Charles E. and Arthur F. He is a member of the Episcopal Church.

DR. FRANKLIN L. CRANE, one of the oldest citizens of Topeka, was born January 10, 1808, at East Windsor, Hartford Co., Conn. When a youth of sixteen he went to Hartford, Conn., and for four years was employed as a clerk, afterwards studying and practicing dental surgery in the office of Dr. John W. Crane, in the same city. When the details of his profession were thoroughly mastered, he removed to Easton, Pa., residing in that city engaged in the practice of dentistry from 1832 until he immigrated to Kansas in 1854. In the latter part of 1854, Dr. Crane visited the present site of Topeka, returned to Pennsylvania for the winter, and in the early part of 1855 took up his permanent residence in the then embryo town. He was a prominent and most generous member of the Town Association, often sacrificing his personal interests for the advantage of his adopted home. In 1859 the Topeka Cemetery was platted by him, and surveyed by himself and Loring Farnsworth upon what was then his own ground, and afterwards beautified and made a pleasant and attractive spot through the efforts of Dr. Crane. During the same year he was acting Mayor of the city, and his influence was exerted wisely and judiciously to make Topeka the seat of Government. To all the early public enterprises looking to the welfare of the city he freely gave his influence, his time and his money. He was a zealous adherent of the Free-state party and a candidate for Senator in the first Free-state Legislature, being defeated by three votes. At the breaking out of the Rebellion he enlisted in Company E, Eleventh Kansas Infantry, serving three years in the Army of the Frontier—a part of the time acting as hospital Steward, and having charge of the small-pox hospital at Hildebrand Mills, Indian Territory. After his return from the army he was chosen President of the Board of Education, and, aside from public duties, gave his attention to the management of his real estate interests. At that time Dr. Crane owned one quarter section within the present city limits, and at different times has donated generously of his domain to further public enterprises in the city—the five acres on which the depot of the A., T. & S. F. R. R. is built and the five acres of the first foundry and iron works of the — being his gift. Dr. Crane was married in October, 1833, to Miss Mary Elizabeth Howell. Four sons were born to them—Jesse H., Franklin L., David O. and George W. Franklin L. died at Fort Larned during the war. The Doctor is a member of the Masonic Order and the I. O. O. F. of Topeka. His name is honorably identified with the early struggles of the A., T. & S. F. R. R. Co., with the journalism of the city and with nearly every enterprise calculated to promote the interests or insure the prosperity of the city he has helped to build.



F. L. Crane

GEORGE W. CRANE, was born in Easton, Northampton Co., Pa., August 25, 1843. His early education was such as the schools of Easton afforded. In 1853 he went to Hamilton, Canada; where he remained ten years, during the time he completed his education at the Central School, of that city, and served three years apprenticeship in the nursery and florist business. At the age of nineteen he went to Windsor, Canada. He served as a clerk for some eighteen months and for a few months after ran a ferry between Windsor and Detroit. In March, 1865, he came to Topeka, where his father, Dr. Crane, had made his home for some ten years previous. After a short visit he went to Fort Larned and remained as a clerk in the sutler's store, owned by his brother, for a year, then returned to Topeka, where he engaged in market gardening for two years on the ground where the A., T. & S. F. R. R. depot now stands. November 1, 1868, he first engaged in the manufacture of blank books and legal and commercial forms, etc., in partnership with J. Y. Byron, under the firm name of Crane & Byron. The business was continued until 1872. During this time, although the business increased, the firm was subjected to a fire which seriously crippled their business. The firm dissolved in 1872, since which time Mr. Crane has conducted the business alone, with the exception of two years, 1879-1881, when E. Kimber had a seventh interest in the business. The business is now on a firm basis and the house ranks among the first of the kind in the West. The large building in which the manufactory is located is owned by Mr. Crane. The variety of work done embraces the manufacture of blank books, printing, binding, stereotyping, seal engraving, publishing law books, records and blanks of all forms, etc., etc. The business annually done exceeds $100,000, giving employment to some thirty-five operators. In July, 1869, he purchased a third interest in the Topeka Commonwealth, including the State printing, the firm being Prouty, Davis & Crane. He disposed of his interest in the firm to his father, Dr. F. L. Crane, in 1871, since which time he has confined himself exclusively to his manufacturing interest. Mr. Crane is a member of the A. F. & A. M., the A. O. U. W. and K. of H. He is as well known and as favorably identified with the business interests of the city as any old resident of the city. Mr. Crane married June 15, 1870, Ella Rain, a native of Elkhart, Ind., and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Silas Rain. This amiable, beautiful and gifted woman died April 13, 1881, leaving two children—Frank S. and Edna. November 7, 1882, Mr. Crane married Miss Fannie Kiblinger, of Elkhart, Ind., a cousin of his first wife, their mothers being sisters.

L. M. CRAWFORD, proprietor of the new Topeka Opera House and Crawford's Hotel, was born at Mount Pleasant, Vinton Co., Ohio, July 24, 1845. Prior to coming to Topeka, Kan., November 16, 1858, he resided for two years in each of the following towns in Ohio: Chillicothe, Columbus and Zeleska, coming from the latter place to Topeka. He learned the printers' trade here, and had charge of the circulation of the Commonwealth for some time; being in the newspaper business he was brought intimately in contact with the managers of various amusement organizations, and he frequently played them here on shares. In April, 1880, he bought Costa's Opera House, and after remodelling it he conducted it until it was destroyed by fire, Dec. 2, 1880. He immediately constructed an entirely new house on the site of that which was burned, and in September, 1881, he opened it to the public; later he finished it to its present complete shape, it being one of the handsomest and most convenient opera houses in the West. It has a seating capacity of about 1,000, contains two galleries and four private boxes. His hotel which is connected with the Opera House, has accommodations for fifty guests. Mr. Crawford has recently secured the site of a magnificent Opera House at Atchison, southeast corner of Fourth street and Kansas avenue. The plans for construction are now being perfected by the architects. It is the intention of Mr. Crawford to erect a ground floor theater, fifty-three feet frontage, 131 feet in depth, stage to be 35x53, a hall basement which shall be adapted to banqueting, dancing, skating and other purposes where a smooth floor may be required. Mr. Crawford is one of the most enterprising manager to be found in the West. He was married at Topeka, January 15, 1869, to Mary E. Wright, a native of Ohio. They have five children—Orlin Thurston, Chester Park, Bertha Eleanor, Albert Roy and an infant daughter, Edith.

CROSBY BROTHERS, dry goods merchants, established August, 1880, at 177 Kansas avenue, where they are still located. During the busy seasons they give employment to ten clerks. Their business is almost exclusively retail. The firm is composed of Wm. T. Crosby and E. H. Crosby, Jr. Wm. T., was born in Mansfield, La., December 20, 1852, spent two years and a half at the High School of Hartford, Conn., and when he was about seventeen years of age he went to New Orleans, where he thoroughly learned the dry goods business, being connected with the wholesale establishment of Yale & Bowling for ten years, leaving their employ and coming to Topeka in 1880. E. H. Crosby was born in Mansfield, La., November 8, 1856; lived in his native place until he was thirteen years of age; he then went to Hartford, Conn., where he attended the High School for three years, then located in St.

Louis, where he was in the employ of Crow, Hargadine & Co., wholesale merchants, for a period of eight years, coming from that house to Topeka in August 1880. He was married at St. Louis, November 11, 1880, to Helen Dieckriede, a native of that city. They have one child, Charles Bernard. Mr. Crosby is a member of the American Legion of Honor.

BISHOP CRUMRINE, attorney at law, was born in Washington County, Pa., February 9, 1841. He entered Jefferson College, Pennsylvania, in 1859, and remained there until the fall of 1861, when he enlisted in the Eighty-fifth Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteers for three years. That regiment having the maximum number, he was not mustered in it, and in August, 1862, he enlisted again in Company G, Fourth Regiment Pennsylvania Artillery and was mustered out July 25, 1865, having been during his term of service on detached service a great part of the time. On his return from the army he read law with his brother Boyd Crumrine of Washington, Pa., and was admitted to practice there in 1867. In October, 1868, he removed to Topeka, Kan., where he was engaged in surveying for about one year. He was then appointed as a Justice of the Peace to fill a vacancy for one year, and was then elected Justice of the Peace for one year. Since then he has been engaged in the practice of the law in that city. He was married in August, 1872, to Helen L. Adams, a native of Wellington, Ohio, their children being two daughters and one son—Ada E., Mabel O. and Harold B.

BENJAMIN M. CURTIS came to Kansas, with his parents Harvey W., and Sarah Curtis, in the fall of 1855. They located in Topeka Township two miles east of the present city, and there remained until about 1861, when they returned to Illinois. In 1870 they came again to Topeka, and now reside in Section 12, Topeka Township, one and one-half miles southwest of the city. Mr. H. W. Curtis was a member of the first Kansas Legislature. Benjamin M. Curtis spent his winters in Illinois, after his parents returned to Kansas, attending school during the winter months, until 1874. In that year he graduated from McKendree College, and during the three succeeding winters was principal of a public school at Summerfield, Ill. In 1874 he commenced reading law, continuing his legal studies until he was admitted to the bar in the spring of 1878. He was then engaged in the practice of his profession until November, 1880, when he was elected Clerk of the District Court. Mr. Curtis was born at Paris, Edgar Co., Ill., September 3, 1851. On the 27th of August, 1874, he was married at Summerville, Saint Clair Co., Ill., to Adelia L. Peeples, a native of Summerville. They have buried two children, and have now living Nellie and Grace, twins. Mr. Curtis is a member of A. F. & A. M., K. of P., and A. O. U. W.

CHARLES CURTIS, attorney, was born in North Topeka, January 20, 1860, and was educated in the public schools of Topeka and the Quaker College at Council Grove, Morris County. He read law with A. H. Case, and at the age of eighteen had rights of majority conferred upon him by the District Court of Shawnee County to enable him to transact his own business. He was admitted to the bar June 9, 1881, certificate dated August 2, 1881, and has been in partnership with A. H. Case since August 9, 1881. He was admitted to practice in the United States Circuit and District Courts December 6, 1881, and to the Supreme Court of Kansas May 4, 1882. Mr. Curtis is largely interested in North Topeka property, both improved and unimproved. He was connected in 1878 as a reporter and associate editor with the North Topeka Times, and was one of the proprietors of the Free Discussion, his brother-in-law, J. E. Layton, being the other member of the company which issued the two numbers of that paper.

O. A. CURTIS was born in Vermillion County, Ind., June 1, 1829, and lived at Eugene until twenty-three years of age. He was married in Indiana in 1848, and by this marriage had two children, Harvey and John. In 1851 he moved to Platte County, Ill., remained there three years and returned to Indiana, his occupation being farming, hotel keeping and running flat boats. From Indiana he came direct to Kansas City, Kan., arriving April 1, 1856. He left that city the same month, to walk to the Quaker Mission, but night arrived before he reached his destination, and on account of his Free-state sentiments he was not able to procure shelter for the night in a house. The night came on very dark, but by a flash of lightning he was able to find his way into the branches of a tree, where he remained through the night. In the morning he reached the Mission where he staid for rest and to dry his clothes, and then proceeded, still on foot, towards Lawrence, wading the swollen creeks, and stopping at night in the house of a friendly Indian. He reached Lawrence the next day, staid one night at the Cincinnati Hotel, and the following day went to work for Jenkins on the land claimed by Jim Lane, and in consequence of which he afterward killed Jenkins. After working for Mr. Jenkins two weeks, he left Lawrence and went to Leavenworth City, remained there one day and went to Fort Leavenworth with the intention of enlisting in the regular army, but being disgusted with the way the soldiers were treated, he returned to Leavenworth City, and the following day hired to a man at Kickapoo to break prairie. After working a month he returned to Kickapoo on Sunday, the day that Pardee Butler was sent down the Missouri River on a raft of logs, and other outrages were committed. Remarking that "it was a shame," he was heard by some of the Kickapoo Rangers, who threatened violence, and at the suggestion of a friend he hastily left town on foot, crossed the Missouri River on the Burns Brothers' ferry boat, and took the road from Weston to Saint Joe, meeting Pro-slavery men on the way, who threatened to hang him if he helped the Kansas people. He worked for a short time on a farm, and afterward with business firms, traveling in Missouri and Iowa, and finally returning to Kansas with P. B. Plumb, now Senator from Kansas. The party obtained arms at Nebraska City, arrived at Topeka September 25, 1856, when the company disbanded. He then went to work running a ferry boat for Lewis Pappan, and after six weeks at that, hauled saw logs for Covee till April, 1857. He then took a claim in Rochester, sold it out to Mr. Hiller, started a grocery on Soldiers' Creek, ran that two months, sold it out and went to running ferry again for Pappan. February, 1858, he returned to his old home on a visit, came back in May of the same year, started a saloon and did a good business until the pontoon bridge was washed away. He then sold his saloon, re-established a ferry in company with Lewis Pappan, and in February, 1859, married Ellen Pappan, who died April, 1863. Their children are Charles and Elizabeth Curtis. In 1859, Mr. Curtis obtained a charter for his ferry boat, in which he retained an interest until 1865. In August, 1863, he raised a company of militia, of which he was in command a short time. He also raised Company F, of the Fifteenth Kansas Cavalry, of which he was mustered in at Leavenworth as Captain, in October, 1863. He was assigned to provost guard duty at Leavenworth, being in command of that Department. Afterward ordered West, and later to Topeka to protect the Legislature, where he remained until April, 1864. He was then ordered to report to George H. Hoyt, at Olathe, where he remained three weeks. In July, 1864, he was employed five days in scouting in Snye Hill. After the bushwhackers were routed he returned to Olathe. He was then ordered to Cold Water Grove to protect the border, on the line of Kansas and Missouri, with orders to report to Col. Jennison at Mound City. From there he was ordered to Bainesville on the border, and thence into Missouri in search of Price. The forces of Gen. Blunt were at Hickman's Mills in Missouri. Capt. Curtis was ordered with his men southeast to reconnoiter. He went to the southeast of Lexington, and came back to within thee miles of the city. While here, and being field officer of the day, Gen. Shelby's Division advanced toward Lexington, 8,000 strong. Capt. Curtis reported to Col. Jennison, his commanding officer, who ordered him to take two mountain howitzers and hold the enemy as long as he could. He had but 150 men, but opened fire in a lane, and was soon driven back. Gens. Lane and Blunt coming up, ordered him to take his company and go to a grove one mile to the left, and hold it till he was re-inforced or ordered back. He held it till he was surrounded, and had to cut out the best way he could. He was neither re-inforced nor ordered back. He forced his way out through the rebels and every obstacle, and reached the command of Col. Moonlight, and remained with the Eleventh until after he was forced back from the crossing of the Little Snye. After the battles of the Big Blue and Westport, Captain Curtis, who was then at Kansas City, was ordered to take charge of a wagon supply train and follow the army down the border as far as Fort Scott. On arriving at Fort Scott he reported to Col. Blair, and was ordered by him to take two companies and follow the army, which was then in Missouri, with a supply train of 200 wagons. He had a skirmish with bushwhackers at Newtonia, and the next day reported to Gen. Curtis, turned the train over to the Quartermaster, and was ordered to report with his company to Col. Jennison. Capt. Curtis was with the pursuing army to the Arkansas. On his return to Fort Scott he obtained leave of absence for thirty days, and came to Topeka on business. On Christmas, the 25th of December, 1864, he was married, at Olathe, Kansas, to Miss Lucy Jays. He returned to Fort Scott and took command of his company, was then ordered to Bainville, Kansas, and in about two months to Fort Leavenworth as a witness in the court martial of Major Lang. He then returned to his company, and was finally discharged in April, 1865. After his return to Topeka he ran a ferry one year, and in 1866 started a dry goods and grocery store, which he ran about a year, and sold to John Smith. He then commenced shipping cattle to St. Louis, in which business he remained about a year. In November, 1868, he went into the Nineteenth Kansas Cavalry as Quartermaster Sergeant, and was mustered out in April, 1869. In 1871 he went onto a farm in Jackson County, Kansas, where he remained a year, and then re-commenced cattle shipping, in which he continued eight years, visiting all the large Eastern cities, but doing most of his business in St. Louis. In 1879 he went to Arkansas and contracted for wood, remaining until May 8, when he returned to North Topeka. August 6, 1881, he went from North Topeka to Nebraska to work on the Missouri Pacific R. R., returning in October. The following month he went to Jefferson County to work on the L. T. & S. W. R. R., retnrning in February. March, 1882, he left Topeka for Florida via New Orleans, to look after a 5,000 acre land interest in that State, which did not prove a success. In May, 1882, he once more returned to Topeka, where he is now effectively engaged working in the interest of prohibition. Mr. Curtis has traveled through twenty-nine different States and nine Territories, is now fifty-three years of age, and has never been confined to his bed a day with sickness since his remembrance, a fact which speaks well for the climate of Kansas, and for the constitution of this pioneer of North Topeka. Wm. Curtis, the founder of Eugene, or North Topeka, in the year 1865, was born in the State of New York in the year 1800, and died at North Topeka, Kansas, March 3, 1873. He was essentially a frontiersman of education and taste. He had always a desire to be in a new country, and so commenced his westward journey when quite a boy. Came to Kansas in 1860, and settled in North Topeka when it was nothing but a wilderness. He was liberal in his views, honorable in his transactions, generous, hospitable and kind, and through his earnestness North Topeka was greatly benefited. Being the owner of most all of the land in the city, he gave freely to the first churches and schoolhouses. We can safely say no man has done so much for that city as he. Mrs. Ellen Curtis, daughter of Louis and Julia Pappan, was a quarter Indian, half French and a quarter American. Born in Shawnee County, Kan., in 1840, was married to Capt. O. A. Curtis in February, 1859. Died April, 1863, at North Topeka.

DR. GEO. A. CUTLER. The subject of this sketch was the youngest son of Major Jervis Cutler, one of the early pioneers of Ohio, the grandson of Rev. Mannassah Cutler, D. D., LL. D., whose history is so closely interwoven with that of the State of Massachusetts, and of the northwest territory, and a nephew of Hon. Ephraim Cutler, of Ohio, to whose efforts more than to any other man, is due the salvation of that great State from the grasp of the slave power in her territorial organization. Dr. Cutler was born in Nashville, Tenn., December 25, 1832. He graduated in medicine at the University Medical College, of New York City, in 1853, and shortly afterward moved to Gentry County, Mo., where he commenced the practice of his profession. Upon the passage of the Kansas-Nebraska bill, in May, 1854, he moved with the first settlers into the new Territory, and settled at Doniphan, which was then being laid out. This portion of the Territory was settled, in the main, by citizens of Missouri, many of whom, however, were Free-state men. Dr. C. entered actively upon the practice of his profession, and took no part in politics until after the invasion of the Territory from Missouri, at the first election for delegate to Congress, in November of that year. At this election one of his most intimate friends, whose only crime was that of being a Free-state man, was ruthlessly shot down. From that time he took a decided stand in favor of Free-state and free-speech. In the spring of 1855, he was selected by the Free-state party as a candidate for the first territorial legislature. Gen. J. H. Stringfellow, who afterward figured so conspicuously in the border troubles, was a candidate of the Pro-slavery party. Dr. Cutler canvassed the district, which was a very large one, and made speeches at every point. At Wolf River, and at Nemaha, large crowds of Missourians were collected, and he was told that any attempt to speak, would be to "sign his death warrant." He did speak, however, and perhaps the very effrontry in doing so did more to save him from the mob, than all else. At the election the great mass of votes were cast by Missourians. At Doniphan they came—a veritable "army with banners," stacked their arms in front of the voting place, and took possession of the ballot-box. Dr. Cutler received the entire Free-state vote, and Gov. Reeder sent him the certificate of election. Long before the meeting of the body it became apparent that it would be perfectly useless to take the long and expensive trip to Pawnee, and Dr. C. wisely stayed at home. Dr. Cutler was next elected a delegate to the Constitutional Convention, which met at Topeka, October 23, 1855. Being a member of the Topeka Town Company, he concluded at the close of the Constitutional Convention to make that place his home; he opened an office there, and was one of the earnest workers in making that town the future capital of the State. January 15, 1856, he was elected Auditor of State under that constitution, his opponent being Hon. W. R. Griffith, afterward elected Superintendent of Public Institution. Dr. C. was a delegate to the Free-state Convention, which met at Topeka, July 15th and 16th, and was again elected Auditor of State, August 3, 1857, his opponent this time being Hon. J. K. Goodin, of Minneola. In the spring of 1859, he, with a number of others started a new town at the junction of the Cottonwood and Neosho, in what was then Breckenridge County. December 6, 1859, he was elected a member of the first State Legislature, from the counties of Osage, Breckenridge and Coffey, his opponent being Hon. J. M. Winchell. He was an active member of the body. During the early part of Mr. Lincoln's administration, Dr. Cutler was appointed United States Indian Agent for the Creeks, one of the most important positions in the Indian service. Immediately after receiving his appointment, Dr. Cutler started for his agency, but found that the Indian troubles in the Nation had culminated in a pitched battle, in which the Union Indians had been defeated, nearly all their wagons and ponies had been captured, and they had made a forced march to Kansas, barefoot and illy clad, in the most severe winter weather. Hundreds were left dead by the wayside. The suffering they endured can scarcely find a parallel in history. When Dr. Cutler found them they were on the Verdigris River in a starving condition, living on their ponies, dogs, and such roots as they could find. Much credit is due to the promptness and energy of the Superintendent of the Southern Agency, Hon. Wm. G. Coffin, whose efforts to ameliorate their suffering were ably seconded by Dr. Cutler. After the wants of the Indians were relieved, they were removed to the neighborhood of Leroy, in Coffey County, where they went into camp. Dr. Cutler helped to organize the Indian regiments for the Union service, which were recruited mostly from the tribes under his charge. In the early part of the war he had nearly all of the Southern Indians to look after, and distributed, annually, provisions and clothing to the amount of hundreds of thousands of dollars. He was Indian Agent during Mr. Lincoln's entire administration, but being an "Anti-Johnson man," he resigned soon after the latter's inauguration. While agent he took many delegations of Indians to Washington, and did much to alleviate their wants and place them in comfortable circumstances again. After quitting the Indian service, Dr. Cutler moved to Texas, and settled at Sherman. He there founded the Sherman Patriot, and was appointed printer for that district by Gov. Davis, the Republican Governor. When the M., K. & T. R. R. approached Texas, Hon. R. S. Stevens, the General Manager of that road, induced him to take hold of a new town that they intended building up, on Red River. He did so, and issued his new paper from a tent in the woods, named the new town Red River City (now Denison), and his paper the Red River Journal. The first copy of his paper he printed with the head lines in red ink, and the "red headed" newspaper was commented upon by nearly all the papers of the country. In six months time the new town had 5,000 inhabitants, a growth unprecedented. Hon. F. P. Baker, now of the Topeka Commonwealth, afterward became his partner in this paper. Seeing what had been done at Denison, a committee from Dallas, Tex., waited on Dr. C., and offered him $2,500 to start a paper in that town. He did so, founded the Dallas Daily Commercial, which soon became one of the leading dailies of the State. During Mr. Cutler's residence in Texas, he came to be recognized as one of the leading journalists of the State. He was the originator and one of the organizers of the "Texas Press Association," comprising all the leading journals of the State, and was president of the association in 1873. In this hurried sketch much that might be said of one who, as one of that band of patriots, "took his life in his hands" daily, in the effort to reserve the future great State from the grasp of the slave power, has been necessarily omitted. Dr. Cutler was in every battle (perhaps with two or three exceptions), that was fought on Kansas soil. He was by the side of the gallant Shombre when he was mortally wounded at the charge on Fort Titus, and had a ball through his hat and a scalp wound at the same volley. He had a horse shot under him at Hickory Point. Was one of those who knelt around the grave of the noble Hoyt when his body was found, thrown in a hole like a dog, and took the oath of vengeance over his body. Was with Brown in his battles with Lane and Montgomery; in fact, wherever there was work to do. After the adjournment of the Free-state Convention, at Lawrence, Dr. Cutler was taken sick with typhoid fever, and lay at Gov. Robinson's house for some time. When he became able to travel, he hired Mr. George Warren to take him home to Doniphan. On the way up they avoided the town of Atchison, but on his return, Warren undertook to go through that place. He was arrested and searched; he attempted to swallow one of the "League" books, but it was "choked up." The ruffians next stripped him and made him tell where he had been. He told them he had been to take Dr. Cutler home. A wagon load of men and a number of horsemen were sent after the doctor. They arrived at Doniphan about 9 o'clock at night, and found the sick man alone, and in bed. He was immediately "hustled" into the wagon and started for Atchison. Upon arrival there, a courier was at once dispatched to Weston, with the information that they had captured one of the leaders of the Abolitionists, and, fearing a rescue, asked for reinforcements. About 3 o'clock in the night, the crowd from Weston came in, drunk and noisy. They swore they would hang the Abolitionist at once. Sheriff Whitehead, with more heart than the others, went in to where the sick man lay, and gave him a loaded pistol, telling him that they were determined to kill him, and that he must defend his life as best he could. The next morning he was tried for high treason before a "squire," and convicted. He was finally given his choice to "hang" or be taken to Lecompton, where the Pro-slavery army was gathering, preparatory to "taking Lawrence." The sick man chose hanging, as he hardly expected to recover from his sickness. After much argument and contention, it was finally decided to take him to Lecompton, and he was again hustled in the wagon and started under guard to the Pro-slavery headquarters. At Lecompton he was placed in a tent. It rained hard, he was thoroughly drenched and had a relapse. One night, in a delirium, he attempted to escape, crawled about one hundred yards and then fainted. He was found the next morning and taken back. Shortly after this he was exchanged and fell into the hands of good nurses at Lawrence, who brought him up as from the grave. In writing the history of one who took part in the daily events of a period so full of excitements and dangers as that of the early history of Kansas, much must necessarily be left out. Dr. C. took part in nearly every important movement of the Free-state party in Kansas. He helped to recruit and organize the "Ragged Regiment," which Gen. Lane, Col. Dickey, Judge Morris Hunt and he piloted through Iowa, and entered Kansas with about the 1st of August, 1856. Soon after entering the State, a dispute arose as to the propriety of Gen. Lane's accompanying the "emigrants" farther. Lane, Walker, John Brown, Dr. Cutler and others left the party, and made a forced march to Topeka, arrived there in time to hear of the Pro-slavery outrages on the Wakarusa, and started at once for the "seat of war," and consequently were in the various fights that followed in quick succession. Dr. Cutler married Miss Hattie A. Tuttle, at Topeka, in February, 1857, by whom he had four children, two of whom, Chas. K., and Mary A., are now living. His wife died at Centralia, Ill., during the spring of 1878. He afterward married Miss Fannie J. Dougherty, formerly of Evansville, by whom he has had three children, but one of whom is living—Nannie. Dr. C. is now living at Geuda Springs, Sumner Co., Kan., where he has a drug store, practices his profession, and is Postmaster.

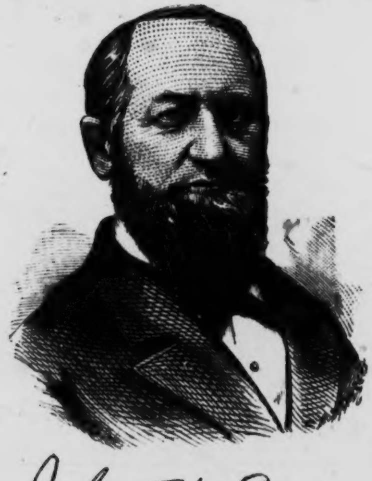
SAMUEL DALTON, attorney, came to Topeka May 20, 1881, and has been engaged in practice here since that time. He was born in Orangeville Township, Orange Co., Ind., March 30, 1848, and educated at the State University at Bloomington, Ind. He graduated from the law department of that college in 1871, and commenced practice at Paoli, Orange Co., Ind., but remained there only a month. He then located at Bowling Green, Clay Co., Ind., and remained there until April, 1876, when he removed to Terre Haute, making that his home for three years. His next location was at Albion, Boone Co., Neb., where he resided until he came to Topeka. Mr. D. enlisted as a private in Company K, Fifty-third Indiana Volunteer Infantry February 22, 1862, and served until August 17, 1865, remaining with his regiment throughout. He was at the battle of Shiloh, the siege of Corinth, with Grant in his march through Mississippi to Oxford, at the siege of Memphis, at Vicksburg for forty-four days during the siege and with McPherson during his raid to Grenada, Miss. After serving two years of first enlistment he re-enlisted as a veteran, and was with Sherman in his campaign before Atlanta, his march to the sea, and on to Washington. He was married in Chambersburg, Orange Co. Ind., December 17, 1872, to Elma Belle Boyd, a native of that county. They have two children—Estella, born June 7, 1874, and Nina, born July 17, 1881. Mr. Dalton is a member of the I. O. O. F. and the G. A. R.

BENJAMIN M. DAVIES, lumber merchant, came to Topeka in June, 1877. Prior to this time he had been in business with his brother, James M. Davies, and Mr. Manspeaker, until their mill burned in July. In September 1877, the firm engaged in lumber business, from which Mr. Manspeaker retired in March, 1878, Davies Brothers having carried on the business alone since that time. In 1877 they also started a lumber yard in North Topeka, and in 1880 established a receiving yard, containing about five acres of ground. The business in 1881 amounted to $150,000, with every prospect of a large increase in the future; they keep seven teams and employ thirty men the whole year. Mr. Davies was born in Granville, Ohio, November 13, 1840. In the spring of 1856 he moved to Cumberland County, Ills., where he remained until 1862, and then at Urbana, Ill., until he emigrated to Kansas. He was married in Greenup, Cumberland Co., Ill., August 11, 1861, to Elizabeth Cook, a native of Logan Hocking Co., Ohio. They have two children—Lillian and Charles. Mr. D. is a member of the A. F. & A. M., Blue Lodge and Chapter, Knights Templar.

JAMES M. DAVIES came to Topeka in 1872 and erected buildings, but did not permanently locate, and engaged in business until May, 1875. He then went into the grocery business with W. W. Manspeaker, and later engaged in the lumber business with the same gentleman. They subsequently sold out both grocery and lumber business, and built a flouring mill where the Inter Ocean Mills are now located. Their mills were destroyed by fire in July, 1877 and they again went into the lumber business in September of the same year.

BENJAMIN F. DAWSON, farmer, Section 27, P. O. Topeka. Owns 160 acres, 140 acres in cultivation; has fine brick dwelling and good outbuildings, good orchard, hedges well set, a first-class farm. Has occupied position as Director of School Board, and is now Clerk of District No. 36. Came to Kansas September, 1855; located on present farm; since that time has spent three and one-half years in the city of Topeka in business. He enlisted as private in the Second Kansas Militia, just before the Price Raid, and was with his command at the battle of Locust Grove, on the Big Blue, in Missouri, where he, with a number of his command, were captured by Shelby's Division, and after a forced march of six days, during which many of his comrades lost their lives from sunstroke, exhaustion, etc., was paroled and came home, but was never regularly discharged. Mr. Dawson was born in the State of Indiana, in June, 1830. Moved with his parents to Illinois in 1832, remaining there until he came to Kansas. He was married April 4, 1861, to Miss Susan M. Wade, and has six children—Carrie M., Emma, Mary E., William, Julia and Frank.

JOHN W. DAY, attorney, was born at Petersburg, Adams Co., Pa., April 12, 1833, and when about one year of age removed with his parents to Ohio. He is a son of Rev. Isaac D. Day, of the American Methodist Episcopal Church, formerly of the Cincinnati Conference, but at the time of his death, which occurred near Lancaster, Ohio, of the Ohio Conference. He was educated in the public schools of Ohio and at Waynesville Academy, in Warren County, of the same State. After leaving school he learned the printer's trade and worked at it for three years prior to coming to Kansas on May 14, 1856. His first location was at Leavenworth, but after staying for a few months he went to Jefferson County and took up land in Jefferson Township, his postoffice address being Grasshopper Falls. In 1857 he was elected County Clerk and Recorder of Jefferson County, and was ex-officio Clerk of the Court. He retained that office for four years, prosecuting the study of law at the same time, and was admitted to the bar at Oskaloosa in 1862, having practiced in the inferior courts prior to that time. In July, 1860, he became practically the manager of the Oskaloosa Independent, and retained the control and management of that paper until 1862, being associate editor until 1863. He was appointed Probate Judge to fill a vacancy in 1861, and in the fall of 1862 was elected to that office by the people but resigned in October, 1863, and accepted the position of Acting Assistant Paymaster in the Navy. He was first ordered to the Mississippi Squadron, but subsequently to the Gulf Squadron, where he remained until September, 1865, arriving at Oskaloosa September 30 of that month. He had determined to locate at Topeka when he left the navy, but his friends in Jefferson County had nominated him for Probate Judge without his knowledge and being elected he felt it to be his duty to fill the position. He was re-elected, and held that office for four years, subsequently confining himself to the practice of his profession at Oskaloosa, until 1875, when he removed to Topeka, where he has since been engaged in practice. In 1859-60 he was Docket Clerk of the Kansas Territorial Legislature. He was married at Oskaloosa, December 8, 1859, to Mary J. Fairholm, a native of Waynesville, Ohio. They have had two children, but both of them died in infancy. Mr. Day is an Odd Fellow, and a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Topeka.



John W. Day

THOMAS J. DEAN, farmer and stock-raiser, Section 33, P. O. Topeka, owns 320 acres, 160 under cultivation and 160 in meadow and pasture; has good dwelling, outhouses and orchard; has at present seven horses, fifty head of cattle and fifty head of hogs. Came to Kansas in the spring of 1857, first locating in Atchison County, and came to this farm in the spring of 1870. Has been Treasurer of the School Board. Enlisted as private in 1861, in Company D, Second Kansas Cavalry, and was with the regiment in all its campaigns; was in the engagements of old Fort Wayne, Parrott's Grove, etc.; was promoted to Corporal and Sergeant, and mustered out January, 1865. Was born in Huron County, Ohio, November 18, 1835; came from native place to Kansas. Was married in March, 1870, to Mrs. Harriet Reese; has two step-children—James O. and Mary J.; his own children are, George A., Frank I. and Minnie. Mrs. D. is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

HAMILTON J. DENNIS was born in Franklin, Lenawee Co., Mich., June 11, 1835. After completing his preparatory studies he entered Michigan University at Ann Arbor, graduating from the literary department of that institution in 1858, and from the law department in 1861. In the fall of the following year he emigrated to Kansas, first locating in Leavenworth, in which city he served two terms as City Clerk, and nine years as Clerk of the District Court. March 1, 1881, he was appointed State Librarian by the Governor, on the recommendation of the Judges of the Supreme Court. Mr. Dennis was married at Quincy, Ills., November 22, 1865, to Adelia M. Davis. They have three children—Zoe V., Mary H. and Alta A.

H. X. DEVENDORF, is a native of Canajoharie, Montgomery Co., N. Y., where he was born April 19, 1837, and resided until he came to Kansas in October, 1876. In the summer of 1864 he enlisted as a private in Company K, One Hundred and Forty-second New York Volunteer Infantry and was mustered out as Orderly Sergeant in May, 1865. After locating in Topeka in 1876, Mr. D. was employed as traveling correspondent and agent of the Topeka Commonwealth remaining in that position until January, 1879, and subsequently being Executive Clerk for Gov. St. John. He was married in Peru, Berkshire Co., Mass., September 28, 1860, to Sarah E. Cone, a native of that place. They have five children living—Mary E., Chas. L., Minnie B., Alice K. and Leila F. One daughter, Grace E., died December 13, 1881, aged thirteen years. Mr. D. is a member of G. A. R., and commander of Lincoln Post No. 1, which was organized June 29, 1881, with a membership of twenty-two, and now has three hundred and eight active members; also a member of A. O. U. W., and A., F. & A. M.

GEORGE DICK, M. D., homœopathic physician and surgeon, located in Topeka in October, 1869, and has been continuously engaged in practice in the city since that time. He was born near Hamilton, Butler Co., Ohio, December 28, 1828, that county remaining his home until he came to Kansas. He was educated at Miami University, in Ohio, and St. Louis Homœopathic Medical College, graduating from the latter in the spring of 1861. Prior to graduating he had practiced medicine in Eaton, Preble Co., Ohio, and immediatly after graduating he commenced practice in Hamilton, Ohio. He was married at Cleaves, Ohio, February, 1849, to Deddy A. Ogden, a native of Ohio. They have seven children—George Edgar, Lou Ogden, Anna May, May Jean, Sarah Albertie, Nellie Grant and Charles H. Dr. Dick is a member of the Kansas State Homœopathic Medical Society, the Western Academy of Homœopathy, and the Topeka Medical Society.

WILLIAM G. DICKINSON, general agent Arkansas Valley Town Company, and auditor of the Land Department, Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad, was born in Malone, Franklin Co., N. Y., June 21, 1826. He was educated in the schools of his native county, and at Bakersfield Academy, Bakersfield, Vt. He commenced clerking at the age of sixteen years. After reaching his majority he commenced business on his own account. In 1866 removed to New York City, where he continued in mercantile business until the spring of 1872, when he removed to Duluth, Minn., to take the position of general agent of the Northern Pacific Railroad, retaining this position until February, 1875, when he was appointed to the position he now holds.

H. P. DILLON located in Topeka October, 1876, and has been engaged in the practice of law in the city since that time; since 1879 associated with A. L. Williams. Mr. Dillon, a son of Judge Dillon, of the United States Circuit Court, was born in Davenport, Iowa, and educated at Antioch College and at the Iowa Law School at Iowa City. For the last three years he has been Master in Chancery in United States Court. He is a director of the Central Bank of Kansas, of the Manhattan & Blue Valley R. R., and of the Salina & N. W. R. R.

ISAAC DOBBINS, market gardener and stone mason, Section 12, P. O. Topeka. Owns seven acres, well improved; gardens in summer and works at his trade in winter. Came to Kansas in March, 1876 and stopped in Topeka. Had but $12 on arrival, but went to work at his trade, and by economy saved enough to buy two out lots. Sold them and bought present place, locating here July 13, 1880. His place is worth $1,000. Born in slavery, in Maury County, Tennessee, December 21, 1828. Came from native place to Kansas. Has been twice married; first time to Catharine McFall, in 1850. Had three children by first marriage—Virginia, Melinda and Seward. Married second time to Amanda Moore, January 8, 1878. Member of the Benevolent Society, also Knights of Wise Men.

SAMUEL DOLMAN, clothier, grain dealer and railroad contractor, was born in Grant County, Ind., in 1834. Came to Kansas as a Free-state man in 1856, being then only a little past twenty-one years of age. He engaged in mercantile business at Tecumseh, where he was driven from his home by Buford's men, who were border ruffians of the deepest dye. Mr. Dolman then took the saddle and actively participated in the struggle between the two factions until September, 1856, when he was arrested by United States Deputy Marshal Cramer and forty men, after a desperate struggle, having his horse crippled in the discharge of his duty in carrying messages from the people to the Governor. He was incarcerated in the so-called Lecompton Prison with 110 other Free-state comrades, who had been taken from various parts of the Territory under the pretense of law, for the crime of treason, placed under guard of 300 men who were commanded by Col. Titus, who was a bitter enemy, the men under his command being most bitter Pro-slavery thugs from the border counties of Missouri. The prisoners remained in Lecompton Prison for eight weeks, being fed on condemned Government bacon, with corn and oats chopped for bread. They were crowded into one small frame building as a prison, with a double guard, and were not even allowed to clean their quarters without being liable to be shot. For retorting to the insults of their keepers they were subjected to the most severe punishment; such as being bucked and gagged or thumbs tied to the ceiling, guards placed over them for the purpose of shooting any man who might venture to relieve their comrades in distress. This was done under the Democratic rule, which was so conducted to sustain human slavery in the Territory of Kansas. Mr. D. was married May 14, 1857, to Marinda K. Jordon, she then living five miles east of Topeka. Her father had been a slaveholder in Kentucky, but removed to Illinois prior to coming to Kansas, where he came to do what he could to prevent the extension of slavery. In 1859 Mr. Dolman, with his wife and one child, went to Pike's Peak. After traveling over a considerable portion of Colorado, Wyoming, Idaho and Utah, during a period of seven years, he returned in 1866 to Kansas, where he has since been engaged in milling, grain dealing, railroad contracting, and now is carrying on mercantile business in North Topeka. He has two sons grown and married, C. S. and R. D., who are also in mercantile business. Four other sons from six to sixteen years of age, and one daughter, constitute the family of one of the early settlers of Kansas. As a matter of general historical interest, Mr. D. wants it stated that while imprisoned at Lecompton, Col. Biggerton, one of the prisoners, received a proposition from Col. Titus that the prisoners would be released if they would join him in his Nicaragua Expedition. The offer was rejected and spurned not only by Col. Biggerton, but by all his comrades.

REV. THOMAS F. DORNBLAZER, pastor of the English Lutheran Church at Topeka, was born in Clinton County, Pa., near Mackeyville, June 27, 1841, and was educated at Springfield, Ohio, at Wittenburg College, from which he graduated in 1871. He enlisted as Sergeant of Company E, Seventh Pennsylvania Cavalry October 23, 1861; re-enlisted as a veteran and served until August, 1865, participating in all the battles of his command. He was wounded at the time of Kilpatrick's raid at Jonesboro in 1864, and once prior to that time at Nashville, in 1862. In 1872 he commenced the study of theology at the Theological Seminary at Springfield, Ohio, and was ordained at Nevada, Ohio, in October, 1873. He commenced preaching at Lucas, Richland Co., Ohio, and remained at that place for two years. In the fall of 1874 he removed to Kansas City, Mo., and was for five years pastor of the First Lutheran Church of that city. He was then for two years State missionary for the Lutheran Church of Kansas, when he accepted a call to the First (English) Lutheran Church of Topeka, which he still serves. Mr. Dornblazer was at one time nominated to the Pennsylvania Legislature, but declined the nomination. He is a Good Templar and a member of the K. of P. and G. A. R. He has been twice a delegate to the General Synod, and for three years President of the State Synod. He was married at Center Hall, Center Co., Pa., September 15, 1872, to Annie M. Shannon, daughter of John Shannon, Esq., a native of that place. They have four children—Mabel E., John S., Josephine A. and Thomas Franklin, Jr. He is at present Chaplain of Lincoln Post, Topeka, Kan.

S. H. DOWNS was born in Utica, N. Y., November 14, 1838. From the age of seven months he was reared in Cleveland, Ohio; educated in Ohio and Pennsylvania. In 1852 he went to California, and spent six years in that region. From 1859 to 1860 he was a resident of Colorado; then, after spending a short time in Ohio he returned to Colorado and remained until 1862. He then went to Idaho, now Montana Territory, and remained there most of the time until he located in Mission Township, Shawnee Co., Kan., in December, 1869, having purchased his farm in 1868, coming here at that time in the interests of the National Land Company. After three years spent in improving his farm, he went to Topeka and engaged in the lumber business, which he carried on for one year. He organized the Patrons' Mutual Insurance of Kansas, and was secretary of the company for two years. Afterward engaged in agricultural implement business, besides being considerably interested in the shipment of corn from this point. For the last three years he has been engaged in the milling business, besides having one of the best seed warehouses in Kansas. He is now closing out his stock of farm machinery, with the intention of devoting his entire attention to milling and seed business.

GEORGE B. DUDLEY, ornamental painter and sign-writer, was born in Greenwich, Conn., May 4, 1854. In 1857 his parents moved to Minnesota, and afterwards to St. Louis, Mo., remaining several years. About the year 1867 they moved to the vicinity of Topeka, engaging in farming, which he followed several years. In 1876 he began painting and sign-writing, at which he is very skillful, having the reputation of being the best sign and ornamental painter in the city of Topeka. He understands perfectly all branches of the work. He does some portrait painting, but makes ornamental and caricature painting a specialty.

He was married at Topeka, November 25, 1877, to Miss Hattie Butler. They have one child—Effie.

GUILFORD DUDLEY immigrated to Kansas in the early spring of 1855, remained for about three months in Lawrence, and then removed to Topeka, where he engaged in hotel business for a few months, subsequently dealing in real estate. During the troubles of the latter part of 1856 he served under Gen. J. H. Lane, a portion of the time as one of his guards. In 1857 he again resumed his real estate and brokerage business, which he continued until 1862, when he was appointed Adjutant General of Kansas, and retained the position one year and a half. He then entered the employ of Carney & Stephens, wholesale grocers of Leavenworth, as collecting agent in Colorado, Nebraska, New Mexico and Kansas. He remained with the firm about three years, and again resumed his old business, which he has continued to the present time; his regular banking business being started in 1869. Mr. Dudley was Clerk of the Territorial Legislature in 1859, and City Clerk in 1861. He is a native of Bath, Steuben Co., N. Y., and was educated at Oberlin College, Ohio. He was married in Topeka, June 5, 1867, to Semantha V. Otis, a native of Rutland, Vt. They have two children—Margaret and Guilford, Jr.

CAPT. HORACE L. DUNLAP, attorney-at-law and Justice of the Peace, residence North Topeka, came to Kansas in the summer of 1856, from Buffalo, N. Y. Was born June 19, 1832, at Bozrah, Conn. Was aboard the United States frigate San Jacinto in her first voyage to the Mediterranean. Has visited nearly all foreign countries, and was promoted to the position of first mate. Capt. Dunlap took a very active part in the border war of 1856, and was an active Free-state man. Was captured by the Pro-slavery men, and held as a prisoner at Leavenworth, and gained his liberty by professing allegiance to their cause and joining them. By this means he made his escape, made his way to Lawrence, and joined John Wright's company, which was composed of Arkansas, Missouri and Eastern men. A younger brother of the captain was also in this command, which was under Col. Harvey. Capt. Dunlap piloted the command back over the same ground followed by him while escaping. In the spring of 1857 Capt Dunlap organized a company of militia, and was ordered to Easton for the protection of the ballot; at this time being the election of Delegate to Congress and a Territorial Legislature. He was elected a member of the Legislature under the Wyandotte Constitution. Participated in the fight on the second attack on Lawrence. Was well acquainted with John Brown, and knew all of the old man's plans. It was by the influence and valor of such men as Capt. Dunlap that the present liberal government of Kansas was made possible. Capt. Dunlap enlisted in the army in April, 1861, in the Twenty-first New York, Company C, as a private. Was transferred to the Fiftieth Illinois Infantry; promoted to Lieutenant and Regimental Drillmaster. Was commissioned by President Lincoln as Captain, First Regiment Missouri Volunteers (colored) Participated in the engagements at Fort Henry, Tenn., where he was wounded; at Fort Donelson, Shiloh, second battle of Corinth, where he was again wounded. W. C. EDWARDS, president of the Kansas Lumber Company, was born at Virgil, N. Y., August 28, 1846. He moved to Cortland, N. Y., while quite young, and resided in that place until he was twelve years old when he moved to Chicago and worked on the lumber docks one summer one and winter, as shipping clerk. The following year he went to Grand Haven, Mich., and for one year superintended the sawing and shipping from four saw-mills, at the same time running a large saw-mill for J. P. Hart & Co. In the summer of 1869 he started a lumber yard at New Windsor, Ill., and in the fall of the same year he sold it and went into the pineries, remaining through the winter. In the spring of 1870 he migrated to Kansas and located at Solomon City and engaged in the lumber business which he continued a year and a half; in the meantime, during 1871, starting the same business at Cottonwood Falls, at Cedar Grove and at Newton, and during 1872 at Hutchinson and at Sterling. In 1873, he, with others, organized Edwards County, and it was named in honor of him. At Kinsley, the county seat, Mr. Edwards erected several buildings, among others a large hotel and a large brick block. He started a lumber yard, and also established other branches of business there. In 1873 he admitted D. J. Fair as a partner in the Sterling yard, and the firm of Edwards & Fair was organized. In 1874, his brother, R. E. Edwards, came to Kansas, and the firm of Edwards Bros & Fair, was established at Sterling, and that of Edwards Bros. at Kinsley. Since the firm of Edwards Bros. & Fair was organized in 1874, five yards have been started by that firm, viz: at Nickerson, Reno County; Ellinwood, Barton County; Lyons, Rice County, and Little River, Rice County. Edwards Brothers also established lumber yards and hardware stores at Kinsley and Spearville. At Kinsley they have a bank and dry goods and grocery stores. They also own a large cattle ranch in Comanche County, at the head of Medicine Lodge Creek. In 1878 Mr. Edwards organized the Kansas Lumber Company, with a capital of $100,000, principal office at Topeka. He has been president and active manager of the company since its organization, and since then has established yards at Carbondale, Burlingame, Osage City, Burrton, McPherson Garden City and other places. Mr. E. is now the largest owner of twenty-two lumber yards, ten hardware store, a large saw-mill and lumber manufacturing company, employing over 250 men besides his various other interests, comprising large investments in real estate, cattle, etc. Mr. W. C. Edwards was married at Tully, N. Y., May 20, 1874, to Nettie E. Johnson, a native of New Haven, Conn. They buried one son of the age of eighteen months, and have two children living—William Rufus and Benjamin Jonathan.

G. W. FAUGHT, carpenter and foreman for Thomas V. Codington. Came to Kansas in 1878 and located in Morganville, Clay County, from Cincinnati, Ohio. Remained in Clay County one year and then came to Topeka, where he has since resided. Worked for the A. T. & S. F. railroad in the bridge and building department. Did business for himself in 1880-81, and since then has been in the employ of Mr. Codington. Since learning his trade has had the supervision of work and been foreman with the exception of about two years. Enlisted in the army in the fall of 1862 in Cox's Battery at Lexington, Ky Were on provost duty for about two months, when Smith and Morgan's forces made an attack on the city and his battery disbanded and the men dispersed, some going to Louisville and some to Cincinnati. Mr. Faught was among the latter, where he united with Col. Frank Woolford's (commonly known as "Little Frank") cavalry This command did good service and were always on the alert ready to strike the enemy when he least expected it. They met Morgan's forces at Cumberland Gap and repulsed them. At Knoxville they were ordered to Franklin and participated in the second fight. Went back to Cumberland Gap and at Green River repulsed Forrest and routed his forces. From there went to Winchester and on to Wild Cat, where they defeated the enemy, as also at Big Hill beyond Richmond. There met Smith's forces and were defeated. The force that Mr. Faught was with fell back to Covington and disbanded, Mr. Faught going to Cincinnati where he remained until coming to Kansas. At Wild Cat the rebel batteries were planted on the crest of a hill in the form of a crescent, with the Union forces in the ravine. Col Metcalf was ordered to silence the rebel batteries. He attempted it but failed. Col. Woolford was then asked if he could perform the perilous task. He replied that he didn't know, but would ask his men. The response to this call was a cheer and double quick march up the hill. Through smoke and dust, bushes, and over logs the dust-brown heroes drove everything before them until they reached the crest and planted the stars and stripes on the rebel works. But it was at an awful cost. Mr. Faught was in the thickest of this gallant and bloody charge, but his bosom friend, Dick Diamond, a gallant and brave man, was killed. The next day one of the rebel generals in command remarked: "There must have been a nest of wild cats in that Glen from the cries last night." Mr. Faught was born July 8 1835, at Harrisburg, Pa., and when three years of age removed to Woodford County where he remained until twenty-one years old, with his father, a contractor and builder. From there went to Lexington where he remained a short time, then went South, working at his trade in Mississippi, Louisiana and Alabama for about three years when he returned to Lexington and was married in 1861 to Miss Anna E. Kidd, a native of Scott County, Ky. They have four children living: George W., Jennie W., Anna L. and John Mead. Is a member of Morton Lodge No. 155, I. O. O. F., Liberty, Ind., Warren Lodge No. 15, A. F. & A. M. Connorsville, Ind., and Damon Lodge No. 72 A. O. U. W., Cincinnati, Ohio. Is a member of the Christian Church of Topeka. Mr. Faught was a Democrat prior to the war, but since then has been a Republican.

D. H. FORBES, dealer in hardware, stoves and tinware; was born at Westboro, Mass., January 3, 1851; lived in his native town until 1865, then went to Boston, Mass., and staid until 1868 when he removed to Kansas City, Mo., where he was employed in the hardware store of his brother until 1872, when he came to Topeka, where he has since been engaged in his present business. He was married in Topeka, March 4, 1873, to Celeste McAfee, daughter of Hon. J. B. McAfee; she is a native of Maryland, but was reared in Kansas from infancy. They have two children—Lee Clinton and Henry Trowbridge. Mr. Forbes is a member of the Congregational Church.

HON. CASSIUS G. FOSTER, Judge of the United States District Court, located at Atchison on his first arrival in Kansas in 1859 and remained a resident of that city, engaged in the practice of law until his appointment as Judge of the United States District Court in March, 1874. During the years of his residence in Atchison he was a member of the State senate of 1863-84; served as Mayor of Atchison in 1867. He removed to Topeka in March, 1879. Judge Foster was born in the town of Webster, Monroe Co., N. Y., January 22, 1837. He commenced his legal studies at Rochester, N. Y., and continued them at Le Roy, remaining at the latter place a year and a half. He was admitted to the bar at Batavia, N. Y., in 1859. He was married at Lawrence, Kansas, September, 1878, to Angie V. Ludington, a native of Massachusetts, her parents afterwards becoming residents of Lawrence. Judge and Mrs. Foster have buried one child and now have an infant daughter.

FREEMAN R. FOSTER, farmer, P. O. Topeka, was born in Crawford County, Penn., April 1, 1832; his father, Robert F. Foster, had been in the war of 1812, and, although advanced in years, served for three months in the Federal army during the rebellion. Mr. Foster located in Lawrence, Kas., in November, 1854, and joined the Topeka settlers the following month, locating on 150 acres of land situated on the headwaters of the Little Shunganunga five miles south of Topeka on the Burlingame road where he still resides. He has devoted his attention for many years to breeding and raising stock, and at present he has about seventy-five head of cattle (thoroughbred to Short-horn), twenty horses and colts (the latter from American mares by Norman horses), and 200 hogs. In 1862 he enlisted in Company B, One Hundred and Thirty-seventh Pennsylvania Volunteers, and was mustered out in 1863. He participated in the battles of South Mountain, Antietam and Chancellorsville, and afterwards in the Kansas militia in the "Big Blue." August 13, 1857, in Crawford County, Penn., he married Miss Martha E. Bowman, by whom he has three children living. Mr. Foster was Township Trustee from 1869 to 1873, and represented Shawnee County in the Legislature in 1874-'75. He is a charter member of Topeka Lodge, No. 17, A. F. & A. M., and by his untiring energy and well known integrity has contributed much towards the welfare of his adopted State.

J. H. FOUCHT, was born near Crossville Perry Co., Ohio, March 17, 1846. He acquired his education in the common schools of the county and at Hedelburg College at Tiffin, Ohio. In March, 1879 he moved to Topeka and for the succeeding five years was engaged in teaching in Shawnee and Jefferson counties. He then embarked in grain business, which he continued about three years, the firm being Keever & Foucht, and next started a hardware business in North Topeka, which he still continues; being also interested in mining and smelting in Colorado; the companies with which he is connected being the Sabbath Rest Mining Co., and Vulcan Smelting Co. He is director and treasurer of the mining, and stockholder in the smelting company. Mr. F. was a member of the last Kansas House of Representatives, and has been a member of the Topeka School Board three years. Also a member of the Congregational Church and Orders of A. F. & A. M., and K. of H. He was married in Topeka, February, 1877, to Julia E. Dutton, a native of New York, and daughter of M. R. Dutton, one of the early settlers of Kansas. They have one child living, Mabel, born October, 1877.

C. M. FOULKS, claim agent Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe R. R., was born in Mansfield, Richland Co. Ohio, August 29, 1844. He was educated in his native town in 1862; he enlisted in Company C One Hundred and Second Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and served until the close of the war the last year of his service being attached to the Adjutant General' office. In 1867 he moved to Kansas, locating in Emporia, where he engaged in clerking about two years; he then commenced business on his own account in Eldorado, Kan., where he remained five years, thence moving to Osage City, where he continued to engage in mercantile business about four years longer. After an interval spent in mining in Colorado, he became connected in January, 1881, with the A. T. & S. F. R. R., holding the position of right of way agent, with headquarters at Topeka; was appointed to present position in July, 1882. Mr. Foulks is a member of the A. F. & A. M.

JOHN FREEMAN, shoemaker, came to Kansas in 1870 from Canada; was born in 1807, in Prince Edwards County, Va.; lived there until he was about twenty years of age, and removed to Monroe, Walton Co., Ga., where he remained nine or ten years, and went to Indianapolis. He was for five years janitor of Henry Ward Beecher's church at Indianapolis Mr. Freeman has an eventful history. While he was living at Indianapolis, and in the year 1853, Pleasant Ellington, a citizen of Missouri, came there and claimed him as his slave, and instituted suit accordingly, stating that Freeman had escaped from him while he (Ellington) was a resident of Kentucky. He then caused the imprisonment of Freeman for sixty-eight days, during most of which time the United States Marshal required of the prisoner three dollars per day for guarding him, positively refusing to take bail, in any amount, though offered to the amount of half a million. An offer was made by Freeman's friends to buy him, but this was rejected by the claimant. Freeman was put to the expense of sending to Georgia for witnesses to prove that he was a free man. Notwithstanding this clear evidence of the prisoner's freedom, Ellington persisted in urging his claim, which made it necessary to call other witnesses from Alabama and Kentucky. At last Freeman was discharged, and gained his case, but found himself ruined in property; for he had not only been deprived of his property for a time, but had been obliged to meet the expense of calling the necessary witnesses from a great distance. By his industry and economy, Freeman had acquired a little property, but this was pledged for the security of his notes, given to pay the expenses of his trial—witnesses and attorney fees. His case was laid before a generous public, and by liberal contributions he was finally enabled to pay his debts and save his property. He was married in Indianapolis, Ind., to Letitia Draper, who at that time was living with Mr. Beecher's family. Is a member of the Fourth Baptist Church of Topeka, which he built and furnished out of his own private means. Have five children—Henry, John, Jr Elijah, Martha, and Harriet. Two of the boys are farming, and one is in the employ of the A., T. & S. F. R. R. Co. Miss Hattie E. Freeman, Mr. F.'s youngest daughter, is a graduate of the Topeka High School, and expects to make teaching her profession.

A. M. FULLER is a native of Oquawka, Henderson Co., Ill., where he was born, November 26, 1843, and lived until April, 1861. At that time he enlisted in Company F, Tenth Illinois Volunteer Infantry, a three-months regiment; and when the regiment was reorganized, re-enlisted in Company E of the same regiment. He participated in the various engagements in which his regiment had a part, and was mustered out July 12, 1865. In the following month he engaged in grain business at Lodi, Kane Co., Ill., where he remained until he migrated to Kansas. He located at Topeka in December, 1869, and after doing carpenter work six months, crossed the river and ran the implement establishment of Isaac Morris, at North Topeka, for a year. He was then with Crawford, Gorham & Stone one year, with W. W. Campbell & Bro. a year, and then for six years was in the employ of the Moline Plow Co., as traveling salesman in Kansas, southern Nebraska, and north Missouri. February 1, 1879, he engaged in agricultural implement business in Topeka, which he still continues. Mr. Fuller was City Treasurer from April, 1881, to April, 1882, resigning his position at that time. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., and G. A. R. He was married at Lodi, Kane Co., Ill., December 18, 1868, to Susie B. Gardner, a native of Illinois, by whom he has one child, Augusta L.

W. W. GAVITT was born in Delaware County, Ohio, February 9, 1840. He completed his school education at the Ohio Wesleyan University, in 1861. Traveled in the interest of the I. O. O. F. for five years. Located in Topeka, Kan., in 1869. He is classed among the successful business men of Topeka. He commenced the real estate and loan business in the spring of 1869, Mr. Edwin Scott becoming his partner in 1870. August 1, 1874, the real estate branch of their business was given up, and the business changed to that of banking. Their business is large and remunerative. They have just completed the finest business block in the city. One of the business rooms will be used by the firm as a banking house. Mr. Gavitt is connected, either as a director or stockholder, in several important enterprises.

ALBERT GANDY, merchant tailor, 206 Kansas avenue, was born in Newburg, W. Va., in 1851. His parents removed to Troy, Iowa, and he was educated in the schools of that State. He went to West Virginia in 1869, learned his trade and then returned to Danville, Ill., and worked as journeyman until 1871. From that time until 1873 he was in Bloomington, Ill., and then in Champaign until 1876 when he removed to Newton, Kansas, and established himself in the merchant tailoring business, continuing until 1881, when he came to Topeka, and engaged in the same business. Mr. Gandy's father is living in Cuba, Mo. His mother died in 1853. He has four brothers; two, Charles and Lafayette, are in Missouri; the others, William and Francis, are in Iowa. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., No. 40; of Topeka. Mr. Gandy has established a first-class reputation in the business which he follows, and is a successful and energetic young man. He is a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Topeka. He was married in 1881 to Miss Addie Morgan, of Danville, Ill. They have two children.

L. B. GARLINGHOUSE, Section 29, P. O. Topeka. Farmer, nurseryman and horticulturist and broom manufacturer, also raises fine stock; has at present forty head of cattle, eighty acres all improved on his place, and forty acres in Williamsport Township. Manufactures brooms largely and ships by the car-load. Has an orchard of forty acres of the finest kinds of fruit, 3,000 apple, 800 peach, 75 pear and 75 cherry trees. Also raises fine Norman horses. Came to Kansas in the spring of 1870, locating on this place. Has held the position as director on school board for two years. Born in Licking County, Ohio, April 26, 1844, and came from his native place to his present farm. He was married November 17, 1867, to Miss Matilda Hanawalt, whose father, George Hanawalt, was a celebrated Methodist preacher in central Ohio for fifty years. Her father and mother are deceased. They have six children—Elbannis C., Orestes L., Almina T., George L., Lewis F. and Nellie A. Both Mr. and Mrs. G are teachers of music and are fine musicians, both vocal and instrumental, and both are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

GEORGE GEIGER was born in Harrisburg, Pa., January 11, 1811, and remained a resident of his native State and city until 1832. He then removed to Circleville, Ohio, and lived in Pickaway and Franklin counties, in that State, until he migrated to Kansas in April, 1866. Soon after his removal to Kansas, Mr. Geiger located with his family at the new town of Ellsworth, being a member of the original Town Company. While there Mr. G. engaged extensively in building and dealing in town lots, erecting seven buildings during his two years residence in the town, although at that time building lumber was worth $100 per 1,000 feet, and not easily procured at that. He was also, during these years, engaged in mercantile business and serving as the first Postmaster of Ellsworth, the business of the office increasing during his incumbency from $1 per month to $100 per month. He was twice appointed Probate Judge of Ellsworth County, but never qualified for that office. March 4, 1868, he removed to Topeka and was engaged in mercantile business in that city until 1874, nearly all the years of his life from the age of twelve until 1874 having been devoted to that branch of business. Mr. Geiger was married at Martin's Ferry, Belmont Co., Ohio, June 17, 1852, to Mrs. Rebecca C. (Wallace) McGrath, a native of Harrisburg, Pa. They have buried two sons—John, aged two years and eight months, and George, aged four years. Their surviving children are Mary, now Mrs. Charles S. Lee, of Kansas City, Mo.; Fannie, now Mrs. Dr. A. H. Thompson, of Topeka, and Malvina E., now Mrs. A. T. Rodgers, of Topeka.

T. B. GEORGE, real estate dealer, was born in Charleston, S. C., February 21, 1826, and subsequently lived in Louisiana and Ohio, emigrating from Stark County, in the latter State, to Kansas in December, 1878. He entered the army in April, 1861, and served in the Thirteenth Ohio Volunteer Infantry until October 24, 1864, being the adjutant of the regiment from April 6, 1862, with rank of Captain. He started as Orderly Sergeant and was promoted to Second Lieutenant of Company K, October 25, 1861; to First Lieutenant May 13, 1862, and to Captain September 30, 1864, being never absent from his command a day during his term of service. After the close of the war he lived four years in New Orleans. He was married at Massillon, Ohio, March 21, 1863, to Anna J Jarvis, a native of Lewis County, N. Y. She died August 1, 1875, at Columbus, O. He married Nancy A. Stone, at Cleveland, Ohio, in April, 1879. Mr. George is a member of A. F. & A. M. and of G. A. R.

W. B. GIBSON, M. D., was born at Piqua, Miami Co., Ohio, February 14, 1838, that place remaining his home until the spring of 1860. He graduated from the Ohio Medical College in the class of 1860 and located at Morrison's Bluff, near Clarkville, Ark., where he remained from April, 1860, to April, 1861. He then returned to his native town and entered the army as contract surgeon about a month later. During the summer of 1862 he was post surgeon at Camp Piqua, and subsequently served as assistant surgeon of the Ninety-Fourth Ohio Volunteer Infantry, being on detached service in the hospitals of the Army of the Cumberland until July, 1863, when he rejoined his regiment, of which he was commissioned surgeon in September, 1863. In August, 1864, he was commissioned surgeon of the First Brigade, First Division, Fourteenth Army Corps. Made the march to the sea with Sherman's army and was finally discharged in June, 1865. In October of the same year he emigrated to Kansas and remained at Leavenworth until the spring of 1866, when he located at Springdale, Leavenworth County, and resided there until May, 1873, at which time he removed to Topeka, his present home. Dr. Gibson has been coroner of Shawnee County since January, 1876; also member of the Board of Education since 1877, chairman of the committee on teachers; also served as chairman of the building committee since 1879; and secretary of the Board of Pension Examiners since 1878. He was married in October, 1865, to Ada M. Barlow, a native of Dayton, Ohio, and a resident of Piqua from the age of ten years. They have two children—Bessie S., born June 23, 1871, and Fred D., born November 21, 1874. Dr. Gibson is a member of the State and Eastern District Medical Society; also of the A. F. & A. M., and is surgeon in the G. A. R.

JAMES I. GILBERT was born and passed his early childhood in Hardin County, Ky. When he was three years of age, his parents moved to Prairie du Chien, Wis., and that place remained his home until he was twenty-one. He then went to the headwaters of Red River, at Red Lake, and traded with the Indians two years, and afterwards, for five years, with the Indians and lumbermen at Lake Pippin. He raised the Twenty-seventh Iowa Volunteer Infantry in 1861, which was mustered into the service in October of that year, and was in command of the regiment, until he was promoted to Brigadier General at the Battle of Nashville, being placed in command of the Second Brigade, Second Division, Sixteenth Army Corps. At Mobile he was brevetted Major General, but remained in command of his brigade until he was mustered out after the close of the war. The first army service in which Gen. Gilbert was engaged was at Mill Lax, Minn., a short Indian campaign of eighteen days. He was then ordered to Cairo, Ill., and soon after reported to Gen. Sherman, at Memphis, and took part in the Mississippi campaign, being among the first to enter Holly Springs with his troops. He participated in the battles of Fort Drusa, La., Alexandria, Pleasant Hill, in which he was wounded, and lost 515 men; Marksville Plains, Old Oaks, Atachafalaya Bayou, after which he was ordered back to Memphis, and subsequently with the command of Gen. A. A. Smith, fought and whipped Forrest, at Tupelo; then the battle of Nashville, after which he was promoted to Brigadier General; and finally at Mobile, where he took a prominent part in the gallant and daring charge which resulted in the capture of Fort Blakely, and where he was brevetted Major General. After the close of the war, he returned to Iowa, and located at Burlington, where he was engaged in the lumber business until 1876, when he went to Colorado and embarked in mining operations. He removed to Topeka in January, 1882, and is now a resident of that city, having started a wholesale and retail grocery house, February 9, 1882. Gen. Gilbert was married at Stillwater, Minn., November 6, 1848, to Susan A. Samson, a native of New Hampshire. Their only child, John W., is in business with his father. The General is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and of the G. A. R.

GEORGE T. GILMORE was born in Yellow Springs, Greene Co., Ohio, March 5, 1851, and resided in his native town until he removed to Topeka, Kan., in June, 1871. He was educated at Antioch College, and after leaving that institution, was connected with his father for two years in the mercantile business. In 1871, he accepted a situation as clerk in the office of the Secretary of State, of Kansas. He served for six years as Secretary of the Shawnee County Republican Central Committee, and was a member of the City Council, representing the Third Ward of the city of Topeka in that body. In 1879, he was promoted to the office of Assistant Secretary of State, and held that position until January 9, 1882, when he assumed the duties of the office of County Clerk of Shawnee County, to which position he had been elected November 7, 1881. Mr. Gilmore was married at Yellow Springs, Ohio, June 15, 1876, to Mary Ellen Anderson. Phelps A. and Mary A. are their two children.

J. C. GORDON immigrated to Kansas in November, 1854, and remained at Lawrence until March 1855, when he removed to Topeka, and commenced mercantile business there the following May. He was associated with Asaph Allen, under the firm name of Allen & Gordon, until 1856, when Mr. Allen sold his interest to G. F. Gordon, and the firm became Gordon Bros. In 1859, J. C. Gordon sold out to his brother, and engaged in agricultural pursuits until 1863, at which time he rented the old Topeka House, on the present site of the Government building, corner of Kansas avenue and Fifth street, and kept it one year. In 1864, he remodeled and changed his little store on Kansas avenue, just below Fourth street, into a hotel of fifteen rooms, which he enlarged, in 1880, to a fine hotel of ninety-five rooms, and sold in June, 1881, for $52,000. In 1881-82, he erected a fine residence in this city, which he afterwards sold, and in June, 1882, commenced the construction of his new hotel on the corner of Ninth and Kansas avenue. Mr. Gordon was born May 13, 1831, at Rushford, Allegany Co., N. Y., where he lived until he moved to Kansas. He was married in Topeka, August 4, 1857, to Mary F. Fellows, a resident of Topeka since 1855, and a native of New York State. They have two children—Maria, now Mrs. James A. Troutman, and Anna. Mr. Gordon is a charter member of Topeka Lodge, No. 17, A., F. & A. M.

WILLIAM C. GARVEY, local freight and ticket agent, Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe R. R., was born in Cleveland, Ohio, in June, 1848. He moved to Kansas in August, 1855, with his mother, his father, C. C. Garvey, having preceded them some months. The family settled in Topeka, where he engaged in mercantile and real estate business many years. Was a prominent Free-state man in the early days. The subject of our sketch was educated in the district and high schools. Became connected with the A., T. & S. F. R.R. in 1874, holding a position in the general offices. Was appointed agent at Topeka in 1876, three years later being transferred to Denver, Col.; from there was sent to Winfield, Kan., and in October, 1881, was again appointed agent at Topeka. He was married in Winfield, Kan., April 14, 1880, to Miss Maggie, daughter of J. N. Dever, Esq., one of the first settlers in that section. They have one child—Edward B. Mr. G. is a member of the Presbyterian Church. Is also a member of the A., F. & A. M. and A. O. U. W. of Topeka.

R. B. GEMMELL, superintendent of telegraphs, Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad, was born in Greensburg, Westmoreland Co., Pa., April 27, 1839, and received his education in the district schools. In 1854 he became connected with the Pennsylvania Railway Company, at first being engaged in the telegraphing department. After holding various positions in the service of this company, was finally appointed train master of the middle division, having headquarters at Harrisburg and Altoona. He resigned in 1866, and removed to Kansas to take the position of chief clerk and superintendent of telegraphs on the K. P. R. R., three years later being appointed general freight and ticket agent of the same road, with headquarters at Lawrence, retaining this position until 1872. The next two years he devoted to stock raising and other occupations. In 1874 he was appointed superintendent of the Lawrence & Southwestern R. R., now known as the Carbondale branch of the K. P. R. R. Became connected with the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe R. R., June 1, 1875, as chief clerk of the general freight department. Was appointed to present position July 1, 1878. Mr. Gemmell is a member of the Presbyterian Church, and a very prominent member of the Y. M. C. A., being at the present time president of the Y. M. C. A. of Topeka, and chairman of the State Executive Committee.

FRANK B. GIFFORD, son of Charles M. and Elizabeth (Buckley) Gifford, was born in Irving, Marshall Co., Kan., August 12, 1860. Only lived in his native place until he was a year or two old, then his parents located at Manhattan, living there five or six years, afterwards locating where they now reside, on what is known as "Elmwood Stock Farm" in Madison Township, Davis County, one of the finest places in the county. Frank left home when he was eighteen years of age, and engaged in lumber business, with which he has since been connected, at present with the Kansas Lumber Co., at Topeka.

FRY W. GILES, one of the first proprietors and founders of Topeka, traces his ancestry in unbroken line to John Giles, who came from England and settled in Massachusetts as early as 1634. He was the son of John and Lydia Giles and was born in Littleton, Grafton Co., N. H., May 30, 1819. He was bred on a farm, enjoying the educational advantages of the schools in the vicinity of his home. At the age of fifteen years he left home, went to Webster, Merrimac Co., N. H., and entered the store of Wyatt Boyden, a merchant of that place, to whom he was indentured until the age of twenty-one years. Mr. Boyden was an intelligent merchant, but a strict, not to say hard, master, and under his tuition young Giles acquired the exact and methodical business habits which have characterized his subsequent successful business career. His apprenticeship being ended at the age of twenty-one, he made what at that time would be deemed a quite extensive tour of observation through New England and New York, prior to deciding on a permanent location. He finally, at the age of twenty-two, first embarked in business for himself at Littleton, N. H., where he opened a general store and dealt considerably in real estate. He was fairly successful and continued there in business until June 1, 1854, at which time he first came West, spending the summer of that year in Chicago. The exciting reports of the border ruffian efforts to capture Kansas for slavery, and the plots of Stringfellow and his co-adjutors to overwhelm the anti-slavery settlers at the ballot-box, instead of intimidating Mr. Giles, impelled him to go to Kansas with the determination to cast his lot with the then oppressed and outraged minority of Free-state settlers, and with them to fight the unequal battle for freedom. He accordingly came to Kansas, arriving at Kansas City on the steamboat "Genoa," the last boat up the Missouri, on one of the last days of November, 1854. Daniel H. Horne, T. G. Thornton, Timothy McIntire, Jonas E. Greenwood, George F. Crow, William C. Linaker, L. G. Cleaveland, and S. A. Clark, started with Mr. Giles, on foot, for Lawrence, which point they reached December 2. Here a party was formed of which Mr. Giles was one to go further up the river to examine the merits of the locality where Topeka now stands, as to its advantages as the site of a future town. Here the party arrived on Monday evening, December 4, 1854, and being pleased with the locality, on the following morning, organized a town company, and decided there to "build a city," which has since grown to be the capital and leading city of Kansas. The details of the early settlement of the town are given in their proper historical connection. Mr. Giles was one of the original founders of Topeka, where he has ever since resided, being intimately identified with every stage and phase of its growth, from its earliest infancy to the present time. He was the first postmaster, appointed in 1855. He early saw the necessity, in the disorder that prevailed, of preserving some accurate record of the various claims and transfers of land titles until some recognised authority might be established He accordingly took upon himself, gratuitously, the thankless task of keeping a private record of all land conveyances made in Topeka, which record was afterwardlegalized by act of the Legislature, and adopted as a part of the records of the county. No higher endorsement of the business foresight and acknowledged mercantile honesty and accuracy of Mr. Giles could be evinced than that shown in the above. He was elected by the Free-state party, in 1857, to the office of County Recorder and County Clerk, which office he filled until 1860. At that time he turned his energies more strictly to business pursuits. He was a Notary Public, was extensively engaged in the important trust of settling or administering on estates, was the leading conveyancer of the city, an express agent, dealt largely in real estate, and during the closing years of the war attended to the prosecution, or obtaining, of soldiers' claims. During this time no man in Topeka was so nearly acknowledged as the fiduciary agent of the whole community as he. June 1, 1864, Mr. Giles commenced the business of banking, thus becoming the first banker in Topeka. In 1866 he entered into a co-partnership with C. W. Jewell, and continued the banking business under the firm name of F. W. Giles & Co., until April 1, 1872, at which time he, with associates, organized the Topeka National Bank, he becoming the president of the bank which succeeded to the business of his firm. He continued its president until it was succeeded by the Topeka State Bank, which traces its lineage to the modest but sound little banking house established in 1864, and its parentage to Mr. Giles, the first banker of Topeka, who founded it. Nearly the whole business life of Mr. Giles has been spent in Topeka, and he is closely and honorably identified with nearly every enterprise that has been an important element in its moral or material progress and prosperity. In the multiplicity of his business cares he has ever found time and seized opportunities to identify himself with all public movements for the establishment of a high grade of schools, the fostering of religious organizations, and the encouragement of benevolent institutions in the community in which he still lives, enjoying the respect and esteem which his unostentatious work justly merits. Mr. Giles was married to Miss Caroline A. Fellows, daughter of Capt. Moses Fellows and Mehitable (Eastman) Fellows, July 10, 1844.

J. F. GODDARD, traffic manager Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe R. R. Was born in Plymouth County, Mass., January 10, 1843. He was educated in the district and high schools of his native State. In 1857 commenced clerking in mercantile establishments in Boston, Mass., in which occupation he continued until the breaking out of the late war. In the spring of 1862 he enlisted in Company D, Forty-fifth Regiment Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry. After a few months service was detailed to service in the Quartermaster's Department of North Carolina, remaining in this department until 1867, the last two years as civil clerk. After a short interval spent in Colorado he settled in Chicago, Ill. In 1868 he received a clerkship in the general offices of the C.B.& Q.R.R. Was appointed assistant freight agent January 1, 1872. During the years 1874 and 1875 held the position of general freight agent of the Hannibal & St. Joe R. R., in the latter year returning to the C. B. & Q. R. R., when after acting a few months as claim agent he was reappointed to his old position. First became connected with the A. T. & S. F. R. R. July 1, 1878, as general freight agent, being appointed to present position December 1, 1882.

A. GOLDSTANDT & BRO., dealers in clothing and gents' furnishings, carry the most elegant stock of clothing to be found in the West. Although having been located at Topeka but a little over a year they have made for themselves an enviable reputation for square dealing. Representations made by this firm can be relied on implicitly. There are few merchant tailors who are capable of getting up as fine suits as can be obtained at this establishment. Their line of furnishing goods, hats, caps, etc., has been selected with the same attention to the requirements of the people. This firm also carries on a large dry goods and clothing store at Wamego, where they have been doing a lucrative business for several years.

I. E. GORHAM was born near Avon, Fulton Co., Ill., December 14, 1839. He lived in his native town until 1865, when he went to Odell, Ill., and there resided until he came to Kansas, and located in Topeka, December, 1870. He engaged in fire insurance business, in which he still continues January, 1871; also, in the sale of agricultural implements, which business he has continued until the present time. R. J. Hulett is now associated with him, under the firm name of Gorham & Hulett. Mr. Gorham is a strong Republican, having been identified with the party ever since he was of age. For several years he has been Chairman of the Sixty-fourth District Republican Committee. He is a member of I. O. O. F. Mr. Gorham was married near Avon, January 9, 1861, to Eliza A. Patterson, of Union County, Pa. Their three sons died in infancy, their only living child being Jennie.

GEORGE C. GRAVES, attorney at law, was born in the province of Saxony, Prussia, September 2, 1830, and came to America with his parents in 1848, locating in Rochester, N. Y. He acquired his education in Germany and America, and finished his law studies in Rochester. In 1853 he settled in Des Moines, Iowa, where he practiced law until August 29, 1861, when he raised Company D, Second Iowa Cavalry, and entered the service as Captain of that company. He re-enlisted as a veteran, and was made Lieutenant-Colonel of his regiment, being commissioned Colonel just before leaving the army, November, 1865. He participated in all the engagements of the Second Iowa Cavalry, at New Madrid, Corinth, Iuka, etc., and was at one time in command of the entire brigade to which he was attached. After leaving the army he engaged in practice at Memphis, Shelby Co., Tenn., where he remained until 1573, then removed to Omaha, Neb., thence to Topeka, Kan., February 13, 1882, where he now resides engaged in the practice of his profession. Mr. Graves was married in Rochester, N. Y., October, 1853, to Sarah A. Myrick, a native of New York State, who died in 1866, leaving one son, Charles W. At Omaha, January, 1878, he was married to Miss Julia M. Werklein.

HON. JOHN P GREER, attorney at law, came to Kansas, September 22, 1856, and after remaining a few days at Leavenworth, came to Topeka, and bought a claim one and one-half miles west of Tecumseh, and engaged in farming. In 1857 he went to Tecumseh and opened a law office there, which he removed to Topeka in 1861, but still resided at his farm, which he afterwards rented, and built a house in the city for the residence of his family. Judge Greer published the Topeka Tribune, the first daily paper issued in the city, in 1861, being editor at that time. It passed into other hands, and in 1865 he purchased the office and again published the paper about two years, being editor-in-chief, with A. L. Williams as associate editor a portion of the time. In 1869 he was appointed American Consul to Matamoras, Mexico, where he remained a little over a year, and was then obliged to resign his position on account of ill health, occasioned by the climate. Judge Greer was a member of the Wyandotte Constitutional Convention, and of the last Territorial Legislature. He was twice elected to the office of Probate Judge, and held district court between the terms of Gilchrist and Morton, being appointed by the governor to fill the position. He was a member of Gov Robinson's staff, with rank of Colonel, and has held the office of Justice of the Peace, and many minor local offices. He was born in Dayton, Ohio, October 21, 1824, and educated in the schools of his native town. In 1849 he graduated from the law department of the University of Indiana, but commenced practice at Troy, Miami County, before he entered that institution. He was admitted to the bar of the Tenth Judicial District of Indiana in 1846, and after leaving the law school was admitted to practice in the Supreme Court of United States Court. In 1846 he removed to Bluffton, Wells Co., Ind., and remained there until he came to Kansas. He was married in Milton, Miami Co., Ohio, June 22, 1845 to Elizabeth Patty, a native of Miami County. Judge Greer served in the Second Kansas Militia (Col. Veale's regiment), during the Price Raid, and was badly wounded at the battle of the Blue. Judge and Mrs. Greer have two grandchildren—the children of his son, Elbridge Greer, who was Assistant Secretary of State at the time of his death, which occurred in 1874. Elbridge Greer was Captain of Company I, Eleventh Kansas Volunteer Infantry, serving a little more than three years.

JOHN GREIF, cigar manufacturer, came to Kansas in September, 1864, and located at Leavenworth, remaining in that city until 1879. He then moved to Topeka, and commenced the manufacture of cigars, in which he is still engaged, employing ten men in his factory now, and only four in 1879. He is a native of Germany, born November 29, 1845. He came to America in 1863, and lived in Michigan prior to his removal to Kansas. He was married in Chicago October 16, 1870, to Miss Minnie A. Rode, a native of Germany. They have three children—Frank J., Emma M. and Leo M. Mr. Greif is a member of the A. F. & A. M. Topeka Lodge, No. 17.

W. H. GRIFFITH came to Topeka in May, 1869. Has been principally engaged in contracting and building until March 1, 1882, since which time he has been engaged in the lumber trade. He has also considerable real estate in the city. He was born July 29, 1843, near Saltillo, Perry Co., Ohio, and lived in Perry and Muskingum counties until 1862, when he enlisted in the Sixth Independent Company First Ohio Sharpshooters, and continued in the service until June, 1865, never receiving a wound or being captured, but returned safely home, where he remained until February 18, 1868, when he was married near New Lexington, Perry County, to Sarah M. DeLong, of the same place. They have buried one son, who died May 9, 1878, aged nine years, and have two children living—Lottie and Birdie, ages, ten and five respectively. Mr. G. is a member of Orient Lodge, No. 51, A. F. & A. M., of Kansas.

JOHN W. GRIFFITH located at Topeka in April, 1868, and was for four years employed as a carpenter, and then until November, 1878, in contracting. He then engaged in lumber business, which he continued alone, except during a few months, until October 15, 1882, when he was made General Manager of the Kansas Lumber Company, at Topeka. Mr. G. has been a member of the Topeka School Board two years, Alderman of the Third ward since April, 1881, and President of the Common Council since May, 1882. He was born near Saltillo, Perry Co., Ohio, June 28, 1841. In 1857 he moved to Hopewell, Muskingum Co., Ohio, and resided there until he enlisted in Company G, Thirty-second Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and was mustered into the service July 28, 1861. He was wounded in the attack on Atlanta, July 20, 1864, and mustered out July 29, at Columbus, Ohio. He returned to Hopewell after leaving the army and was married in Madison Township, Perry Co., Ohio, November 16, 1865, to Sarah Dilts, a native of Madison Township. They have one child—Mabel D. Mr. G. is a member of G. A. R. and I. O. O. F.

WILLIAM RILEY GRIFFITH was born May 8, 1820, in Tippecanoe County, Ind. His father, James Griffith, was a minister of the United Brethren Church. He received the rudiments of an education at the district school near his father's farm, about six miles from Lafayette. In 1843 he entered Asbury University, and graduated in 1847. On the 24th day of December, of that year, he was married to Margaret Landes, and was soon after called to Otterbein, Ohio, to take charge of the university of that name which had been recently founded there, and of which he became first President. In September, 1850, the ravages of cholera having spread terror throughout the neighborhood, the faculty of Otterbein University determined to temporarily close its doors, and Mr. Griffith having received a call to take charge of a similar institution at Mount Pleasant, Pa., he removed there with his family. Here he remained diligently prosecuting his labors until 1854, when he, too, became infected with the wild and weird contagion for the sunny slopes of Kansas which he suffered in common with countless thousands of restless spirits in the older States. He arrived in Kansas in the spring of 1855, and settled upon a farm in Bourbon County, five miles from Fort Scott, on the Marmaton River. Before he was fairly settled in his new home he was summoned to take a hand in the stirring events that were now transpiring on every hand, and whatever the hazard or the cost, the summons was never made in vain. Bourbon County is one of the eastern tier of counties, bordering on Missouri, and was, consequently, during the whole of the Kansas troubles, overrun by desperate and marauding bands of "border ruffians," and it was said at the time of Mr. Griffith's arrival, that the county did not contain in all a dozen Free-state men. Though danger to life and property was constantly imminent, he never faltered in the avowal of his principles, nor lost an opportunity of exerting his influence in the cause of freedom. Early in the fall he was sent to Topeka as a delegate to the Constitutional Convention, which convened October 23, and he signed the celebrated constitution there framed. On March 10, 1857, he was a member of the Free-state Convention which met at Topeka, and was a member of the committee to draft an address to the American people. In July of the same year he was a member of a Free-state Convention which met at Topeka, and was appointed a member of the Republican State Central Committee. He was a delegate to the Minneola Constitutional Convention, which met March 23, 1858. He was elected a member of the Free-state Convention at Topeka, to nominate State officers under the Leavenworth constitution, and was reappointed a member of the Central Committee. On December 1, 1858, the Free-state men of Bourbon and adjoining counties held a mass meeting for the purpose of taking into consideration the state of affairs on the border, and of devising ways and means to restore peace and quiet. Mr. Griffith was made President, and the convention, after discussing various measures for the suppression of the troubles in the southwest, passed resolutions repudiating violence and lawlessness, and pledging themselves to speedily bring the guilty to punishment, adjourned. On June 4, he was elected a member of the Wyandotte Constitutional Convention, which met in July, and was chairman of the Committee on Education. October 12, 1859, he was a member of the Republican State Convention which met at Lawrence to nominate State officers, and on the first ballot received the nomination for Superintendent of Public Instruction, receiving forty-nine votes to sixteen for Elder Davis, of Baldwin University. The election occurred December 6, and he received 7,598, to 5,287 for J. D. McGill. He immediately removed his family to Topeka, and assumed the duties of the office. On the evening of February 9, 1862, on returning to his home he complained of a severe headache. In a few hours he became unconscious. His malady baffled the skill of physicians, and he breathed his last February 12, after an illness of only five days. He left a widow and six children. During his residence in Bourbon County his life was several times sought on account of his well known Free-state principles. On one occasion his house was surrounded and searched, but he happening to be away from home, escaped. On several occasions he found it necessary to take his family in a wagon and travel by night into some adjoining county, and remain concealed for days or weeks at a time. The universality of the Pro-slavery sentiment, which was dominant in the minds of all ages and both sexes, is forcibly illustrated by a circumstance that occurred shortly after the shooting of Roads by Weaver, which caused intense excitement at the time. The fatal rencounter occurred near Mr. Griffith's house, and being fully convinced that Weaver had acted wholly in self-defense, he concealed his old neighbor and friend at the imminent risk of his own life and property. His house was surrounded and search made for both Griffith and Weaver, but they were concealed in the orchard and escaped detection. Mr. Griffith's family still reside at Topeka, with the exception of William R., who is in the hardware business at Emporia.

J. P. GRISWOLD, was born in New Haven, Conn., but was reared in Le Roy, Genesee Co., N. Y. Began learning the milling business at Batavia, in the same county, twenty-four years ago, remaining there until 1862, when he removed to Michigan. In 1863 he went to Peoria, Ill. Remained there until 1871, when he came to Topeka and engaged in the milling business here with his partner, J. L. Shellabarger. Mr. Griswold has been constantly following the business which he commenced at Batavia when a boy. He is one of the directors of the Topeka city railroad company, and is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was married at Batavia, N. Y., October 11, 1877, to Leila M. Garrett, a native of Pembrook, Genesee Co., N. Y.

L. Y. GRUBB, M. D., was born in Washington, Fayette Co., Ohio, December 27, 1841. He received his literary education at the schools of his native place, and graduated from the Ohio Medical College at Cincinnati, Ohio. Came to Dover, Shawnee Co., Kan., in March, 1869, where he remained in practice (except during a period of a few months of absence in the mountains on account of ill health) until he came to Topeka in September, 1882. He was married at Terre Haute, Ind., February 19, 1873, to Jennie Wiley, a native of Washington, Ohio. They have two children—Clyde and Loehr. The doctor is a member of the Topeka Academy of Medicine and Surgery and of A. F. & A. M., Blue Lodge No. 17, of Topeka, and Fayette Chapter 103, at Washington, Ohio; Topeka Commandery, K. T., No. 5, and G. A. R., Topeka. He served three years in the United States army.

HON. EUGENE N. GUNN, attorney, North Topeka, was born near Waterville, Lucas Co., Ohio, May 8, 1844. Less than a year after his birth his parents moved to Fulton County, Ohio, and he resided near Delta until he was about eighteen years of age. He was educated at Waterville high school and at Seneca County academy, located at Republic, Ohio, and at the age of eighteen years he removed to Oregon, Holt Co., Mo., where he began the study of law with Senator T. H. Parrish of that place. Was admitted to the bar in the spring of 1865. He came to Rush Centre, Rush Co., Kansas, in June, 1874. At the first election in that county he was elected County Surveyor, served one year and was then elected County Attorney. Afterward served another term as County Surveyor. For a short time he was editor of The Progress and later published The Blade in partnership with his law partner, Hon. F. S. Stumbaugh. In 1875 he platted Rush Centre. In 1877 more ground was added to the town site and the name was changed to Walnut City. Mr Gunn remained in practice there until 1882, in the spring of which year he was appointed County Attorney by Hon. J. C. Strang to fill the unexpired term of Judge S. W. Taylor. He resigned this office in July, when he removed to North Topeka, where he now resides. He was married near Delta, Ohio, in February, 1867, to Laura C. Tappan, a native of Fulton County, Ohio. They have five children: Edgar S., Louisa May, Emma A., Laura E. and Lida L. Mr. Gunn is a Royal Arch Mason, and was the first W. M. of Walnut City Lodge, in Rush County.

HON. JOHN GUTHRIE, son of William and Margaret (Japp) Guthrie, was born in Switzerland County, Ind., July 2, 1829. His parents were both natives of Scotland. His father was born in Perth, and received a collegiate education at the University of Edinburg. His mother was born in Ayrshire, and came to America with her parents, who settled in Indiana, while yet a child. He was reared to habits of industry on a farm, and received the early educational advantages of the common schools. He studiously continued his educational course for years after his school-boy days were over. He taught school for several years in Indiana, and during that period commenced the study of law. In 1854, he gave up teaching and entered the law office of Hon. Lewis Chamberlain, of Logansport Ind., where he completed his professional studies. Being admitted to the bar, he commenced practice in the counties of Cass and Miami, and was, in October, 1857, elected District Attorney for those counties. He held the office for some eighteen months, then resigned, on account of the inadequate compensation afforded by the emoluments of the office. He continued the practice of his profession with increasing success until the breaking out of the Rebellion. In the fall of 1861 he recruited a company for the Forty-sixth Indiana Infantry—Col. Graham N. Fitch—and entered the service as Captain. He continued in the service during the following year. He was with his regiment at Camp Wickliffe, Ky., Benton, New Madrid, Riddle's Point and Island No. 10, Mo.; Fort Pillow and Memphis, Tenn., bearing himself throughout as a true soldier should. At the close of 1862 his health became so seriously impaired as to compel him to resign. He returned to Logansport and resumed the practice of law. In 1863, when Morgan made his raid into Indiana, Captain Guthrie, in response to a dispatch from Gov. Morton, calling for aid, raised in Logansport and vicinity a battalion of 196 men and had them enrolled, mustered and en route for Indianapolis in thirteen hours after receipt of Governor Morton's dispatch. In 1864 he received the unanimous nomination of his party (Republican) for member of the Indiana House of Representatives. He was defeated by a small majority on purely party grounds. He came to Kansas soon after the close of the war and settled in Topeka, which has been his home since May 10, 1865. His ability as a legal practitioner, and his merits as a politician, and his many virtues as a private citizen have been fully appreciated and acknowledged by his fellow citizens since his settlement in the State. He served as a member of the State House of Representatives from Topeka three successive terms, 1868, 1869 and 1870, being elected Speaker pro tem during the latter session. He was one of the Republican Presidential electors chosen in 1872, and was selected to deliver the vote to the Vice-President in person, at Washington. He served as chairman of the State Republican Committee in 1872 and 1574, and successfully conducted the political campaigns of those years. In 1875 he was appointed by the Secretary of the Treasury one of the commissioners to locate the site for the federal buildings at Topeka. He has been a leading candidate for the office of Governor in the State nominating conventions of the Republican party, lacking in 1876 but eight votes of receiving the nomination. Mr. Guthrie, as appears in the railroad history of the State, has been largely identified with the development of its railway system. He was one of the early projectors and friends of the A., T. & S. F. road, in the days when it needed friends most. He became an A. F. & A. M. in 1862; in 1875 and 1876 was Deputy Grand Master, and served as Grand Master of the State in 1877. He was married in Logansport, Ind., to Miss Mary C. H. Updegraff, a native of Ohio.

CLEMENT HACKNEY, assistant superintendent of the Locomotive and Car Department, Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe R. R., a son of Mr. George Hackney, was born in Warrington, Lancashire Co., Eng., May 16, 1848. He was educated in Milwaukee, Wis., (where his father had settled in 1855) in the district schools and Lincoln Commercial College in that city. He commenced his railroad life in 1860, serving an apprenticeship of over three years in the shops of the Prairie du Chien R. R., at Milwaukee. In August, 1864, began firing on a locomotive and in August, 1865, was placed in charge of an engine, which he continued to operate until 1871, when he resigned, to take the position of master of transportation in the Milwaukee Iron Works, being also attached to the mechanical department. Removed to Kansas in June, 1878, to take present position.

GEORGE HACKNEY, superintendent of the Locomotive and Car Department, Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe R. R., was born in the town of Conyleton, Cheshire Co., Eng., May 26, 1826. He was educated in his native county and commenced the machinist's trade as a boy. About 1846 was employed in locomotive shops in Newton, England, and afterwards in the shops of the London, Brighton & Lancashire R. R. at Brighton. In 1852 he came to the United States, locating in New York City, where he was connected with the Hoe Printing Press Works until 1855, when he moved to Wisconsin and was appointed master mechanic of the Milwaukee & Mississippi R. R., having his headquarters at Milwaukee. He retained this position about seven years then resigned, to engage in the manufacturing of stationary and marine engines. About two years later accepted a position on the Chicago & Northwestern R. R., at Chicago. Shortly afterward was appointed chief engineer of the Milwaukee Iron Works and in this position superintended the construction of the extensive blast furnaces and rolling mills of that company at Milwaukee. He was connected with this company from 1865 until the spring of 1876, when the Works were absorbed by the North Chicago Rolling Mill Company. In 1876 Mr. Hackney was appointed master mechanic of the C., B. & Q. R. R., at Galesburg, Ill., where he remained until June, 1878, when he received the appointment to the position he now holds.

HERMAN M'CLURE HADLEY, architect, came to Topeka December 25, 1877, and engaged in teaching the first winter. In the spring he purchased a farm in Jackson County, and upon which he resided for two years, from March, 1878, to March, 1880. He then came to Topeka and has been engaged in the profession of an architect since that time. He designed and superintended the construction of the Catholic Church, Mrs. Mallow's residence, corner of Eighth and Harrison streets; J. S. Earnest's residence, M. A. Pond's Business College, T. S. Lyon's residence, the A., T. & S. F. hotel and depot at Newton, recently erected at a cost of $60,000, the Presbyterian Church at Garnett, the residence of A. A. Hurd, attorney of the A., T. & S. F. R. R., James Brewer's residence, James B. Haydon's residence, the Episcopal Church at North Topeka, schoolhouse at Meriden, Kan., and the residences of William Brooks, C. M. Foulks, claim agent A., T. & S. F. R. R., block of store buildings for G. F. King, at Holton, G. W. Carey's residence and many others, and rendered valuable assistance in the design and detailing of the State House. He was born near Hamilton, Canada, April 13, 1850, and at the age of fifteen months removed to New York City, which was his home until six years of age. He then lived on a farm at Brewsters, about fifty miles north of New York City, until 1869. Then taught school and prepared for college, and having earned $100 he entered Cornell University, at Ithaca, N. Y., and with that and what money he earned while in college, spent five years there and graduated first in his class, June 15, 1876, taking the regular course in architecture and receiving the degree of Bachelor of Architecture at the time of his graduation. During two years of his college course he made drawings for the New York Condensed Milk Company, and after graduating was employed by that company in the capacity of architect and superintendent of buildings and machinery until the spring of 1877. He was married at Topeka, January 10, 1878, to Etta J. Warden, a native of Elgin, Kane Co., Ill. They have one child —Gertrude Ethelwynne, and lost one aged thirteen months.

EUGENE HAGAN, attorney, is a native of Monroe City, Monroe Co., Mo.; was educated at the Jesuit College at St. Mary's, Kansas, and at University of Louisville, Ky., attending the former institution from 1870 until 1873, when he entered the University before mentioned, graduating from the law department thereof in 1878. In November, 1878, he located in Topeka with the well-known law firm of Peck, Ryan & Johnson until the dissolution of the partnership of that firm in the spring of 1882, since which time Mr. Hagan has been associated in practice with Hon. J. B. Johnson.

CLEMENT H. HALLOWELL, M. D., was born in Bangor, Maine, August 13, 1854. He acquired a literary and scientific education at Colby University, Waterville, Maine, from which he graduated in 1876 with the degree of A. B., and his medical education at Boston University, from which he graduated in 1879. He commenced practice at Lawrence, Mass., in which place he remained a year; was then at Exeter, N. H., for a year and a half and came to Kansas February 1, 1881. Dr. Hallowell is secretary of the Kansas State Homœopathic Medical Society, and a member of the Essex County Medical Society in Massachusetts.

HON. JAMES R. HALLOWELL, now United States District Attorney, came to Kansas and located at Columbus, May 17, 1869, since which time he has been continuously engaged in the practice of law. Since his residence in the State he has served two terms in the House of Representatives, and four years as State Senator. He was also, for three years, member of the Board of Regents of the Agricultural College at Manhattan, being appointed United States District Attorney in June, 1879. Mr. Hallowell was born in Montgomery County, Pa., December 27, 1842. When a youth of six or seven years, his father moved to Indiana, in which State James R. received his general and legal education, attending Asbury University, at Greencastle, and reading law with P. M. Rice, of Rockville. April 11, 1861, he enlisted in Lew Wallace's Zouave Regiment, Eleventh Indiana Volunteer Infantry, being mustered in on the 17th of the same month, for three months service. At the expiration of his term he re-enlisted in Company I, Thirty-first Indiana Volunteer Infantry. Was promoted immediately to First Lieutenant, June, 1864, to Major; the following day to Lieutenant Colonel, having previously served as Adjutant of the brigade, and October, 1864, to Colonel of the regiment. He was mustered out January 16, 1866 and returned to Indiana, where he remained until his removal to Kansas. He was married in Montgomery County, Ind., November 28, 1871, to Samantha H. Montgomery, of that county. They have one son, named Montgomery. Col. Hallowell is still a resident of Columbus, a member of G. A. R. and A. F. & A. M.

T. J. HANKLA came to Kansas in 1869, and first located at Leavenworth, where he remained about two years. In 1871 he moved to Emporia and engaged in hotel business, which he carried on in that place until October, 1877, when he came to Topeka and leased the Fifth Avenue Hotel, of which he was proprietor until June, 1882. He opened the Windsor, February 1, 1882, one of the finest and best conducted hotels in Kansas, and of which he is now proprietor. Mr. Hankla is a native of Boyle County, Ky., which was his home until 1869. His brother Joseph has been associated with him since 1876; firm of T. J. Hankla & Bro.

HARRIS & McARTHUR proprietors Fifth Avenue Hotel, built in 1872 and opened by Mr. Bruno. The house contains forty-five rooms, and has a capacity for 150 guests. June 19, 1882, the present proprietors, Messrs. Harris & McArthur, of Columbus, Ohio, assumed control of the house, since which time they have greatly improved the house, and increased patronage shows how well they perform the duties of hotel managers. Edward Harris, senior member of the firm, is a native of Belmont County, Ohio, where he was born June 1, 1835. Resided there until he was twenty-three years of age, and in 1858 moved to Pickerington, Fairfield County, where he continued to reside until moving to Kansas. For several years was engaged in raising and breeding fine stock horses and cattle, the horses being of Hambletonian, Histoga and Morgans; the cattle were Short-horns. Was married in February, 1858, near Barnesville, Belmont Co., Ohio, to Miss Susan B. Atwell, a native of that county, and has two children living—Maitland and Mary B.

HUBERT H. HARRIS, a resident of Topeka since April, 1881, was born near Warrenton, Warren Co., N. C., June 6, 1836. In 1844 he moved with his parents to Bedford, Tenn., remaining in that place until 1861, when he again moved to Harrisburg, Saline Co., Ill., where he remained until he came to Topeka. He entered the United States service in 1862, enlisting in Company C, One Hundred and Twenty-eighth Illinois Volunteer Infantry, a company which he was instrumental in raising. He resigned, January, 1863, being then First Lieutenant of his company, on account of disability caused by sickness. He was admitted to the bar of Illinois in 1868, and practiced in Harrisburg until his removal to Topeka. Mr. Harris was married in Bedford County, Tenn., August, 1857, to Tabitha A. Wells, of the same county. Their seven children are—Thomas D., William W., Flora, now Mrs. Pankey, of Illinois, Anna and Edward, twins, and Minnie and Lulu.

J. W. HARTZELL located in Topeka in 1876, and for three years succeeding he was proprietor of the Tefft House. In 1879 he bought out the Topeka Omnibus Company, and in 1880 purchased the business of Bolmar's Freight City Line, and incorporated the combination under the title of Topeka Transportation and Omnibus Company; capital $25,000; J. W. Hartzell, president and general manager, and H. F. Hartzell, Sec'y and Treas. When Mr. H. bought the omnibus line, there were sixteen horses and four omnibuses employed, now there are seventy horses, seven omnibuses and twenty freight wagons. They also run a large freight warehouse, having consigned to them all the uncalled-for freight of the U. P. and A. T. & S. F. R. R., which accumulates in ten days after receipt. Mr. Hartzell projected and built the Topeka City Street Ry., and ran the road for four months, when he sold to the present company. He also established Hartzell's Park, situated on Soldier Creek, on Kansas avenue extension, which contains forty acres fitted up pleasantly for pleasure parties, with refreshment halls, boats for rowing and sailing on the creek, swings, etc. The street railway was extended to the park during the summer of 1882, and large camp meetings and Sunday-school conventions were held there. Mr. H. was one of the charter members of the Water Works Company, and is a member of the first board of directors.

DAVID A. HARVEY, Probate Judge, is a native of Nova Scotia, but spent his youth and was educated in Ohio, his residence being Moscow, Clermont County. In 1869 he came to Topeka, and was for a time employed as civil engineer and surveyor, being connected with the construction of the A., T. & S. F. R'y. and County Surveyor. In 1874 he commenced the practice of law, and was elected County Judge in November, 1880.

NATHAN HARVEY, proprietor of the Harvey House, No. 225 Van Buren street, came to Kansas in 1864, from Richmond, Ind. Farmed three years, and was Assistant Internal Revenue Collector for five years. Mr. Harvey was engaged in farming and milling during most of his life, ten miles west of Richmond, Ind. Was engaged in many works of internal improvements in Indiana, among which were Whitewater Valley Canal, Indiana Central R. R., and the National Road, cutting timber and marking the course through the then trackless forest. Was born November 21, 1813, at Richmond, Ind. In his boyhood days went to school in the log schoolhouse in winter and worked at clearing land in summer. Was engaged one year in propagating silk. Ex-Gov. James M. Harvey, of Kansas, was a distant relative of his. Mr. Harvey was born and bred in the Society of Friends, and is still of that faith. Mr. H. came to Kansas before there were any railroads, but was always anxious to promote those important enterprises by all means in his power. Was married in 1838, in Bartholomew County, Ind., to Miss Mildred Newsome, a member of the Society of Friends. Have four children—James M., a contractor on the State House and Government Court House and Postoffice; Sarah J., now Mrs. Gilpatrick; Mary E., now Mrs. Worall, whose husband, Prof. Worall, is superintendent of the agricultural exhibit of the A. T. & S. F. R. R.; and Lydia E., who died in 1872.

JOHN G. HASKELL is a native of Milton, Chittenden Co., Vt., where he was born February 5, 1832. He is a son of Franklin Haskell, who was born in Weathersfield, Vt. His grandfather was Gideon Haskell, born in Tolland, Conn. The family originally came to America from Edinburgh, Scotland, settling about 1630 in the vicinity of Gloucester or Beverly, Mass. Roger Haskell left Beverly, and purchased a large tract of land near Norwich, Conn., as early as 1708. Elijah, one of Roger's sons, removed to Tolland, Conn. He served during the revolutionary war as a soldier, and died soon after from disease contracted by exposure in the service of his country. His widow, Sarah (Read) Haskell, removed with her sons (among whom was Gideon, grandfather of the subject of this sketch) to Weathersfield, Vt., in 1780. John was bred on a farm, and received the advantages of the district schools. He left home at the early age of eleven years, and for three years thereafter earned his living on a neighboring farm. He early showed a peculiar taste for architecture and the sciences pertaining to structural work. At the age of seventeen he was apprenticed to Mr. Edmund Jones, of Wilbraham, Mass., to learn the carpenter's trade. At the age of twenty-one he had learned thoroughly his trade, and by strict economy accumulated a small sum of money. Determined to fit himself for his chosen profession—an architect—he entered the Wesleyan Seminary, Wilbraham, where fitted for a collegiate course, which he completed at Brown University, Providence, R. I. During these years he wrought at his trade during his vacations, and practiced the strictest economy. In 1855 he went to Boston, and there first began the work of his chosen profession. He was employed by a leading architect of the city for nine months, at the expiration of which time he entered into a copartnership with his employer, which continued for the succeeding eighteen months. In 1857, on the death of his father, who had become a resident of Kansas, Mr. Haskell removed to that State to look after the interests of the family. He came at the dying request of his father; and by so doing, put behind him the most encouraging and flattering prospects of his then well established and lucrative business. He was one of the earliest architects to make Kansas their home, and his ability and skill in his profession soon found full appreciation in this new and untried field. His business increased rapidly until the paralysis occasioned by the terrible drouth of 1860, when building, as well as all other enterprises involving the expenditure of money, ceased. For the succeeding six years he did no building. In 1860 he was engaged in the distribution of relief supplies to the Kansas sufferers. In 1861 he was made deputy Quartermaster General, and was active in the outfitting of the first three Kansas regiments. He was mustered in as Quartermaster of the Third Kansas Infantry, July 24, 1861. In June, 1862, he was appointed by President Lincoln as army Quartermaster on the general staff of the army, with rank of Captain, and assigned to duty in the military division of Gen. James G. Blunt. He served as Chief Quartermaster of the Army of the Frontier until January, 1864. March, 1864, he was assigned to duty as Chief Quartermaster of the depot of supplies for the Fifteenth Army Corps and the Department of Arkansas, at Little Rock, where he continued until the close of the war. He was honorably mustered out of the service in November, 1865. For meritorious services at Little Rock he was commissioned Major and Quartermaster by the President of the United States. In 1866 he was commissioned Colonel and Quartermaster General of the State of Kansas by Gov. Crawford, which office he held three years. During his incumbency he had charge of the fitting out of the troops for the Indian campaigns of 1867-68. Since the close of the war he has, with the exception above noted, applied himself closely to the duties of his profession. He deservedly ranks with the most skillful architects of the West. In nearly every considerable village in Kansas are found monuments of his taste and skill. In 1872 he associated in business with Lewis M. H. Wood, the firm being Haskell & Wood, which still continues. The following impartial list of buildings planned or built by Mr. Haskell and the firm of which he is a member, attests equally to their industry, skill and taste: Built or planned by Mr. Haskell—State Capitol, State University, Washburn College, Bethany College, Chase County Court House, Greenwood County Court House. Built or designed by Haskell & Wood—Osawatomie Insane Asylum, Topeka Insane Asylum, State Reform School, Lawrence Opera House, Barton County Court House, Topeka Opera House, First National Bank, Emporia, Hutchinson Opera House, Lyons Schoolhouse, Halstead Schoolhouse, Arkansas City Opera House, Olathe Deaf and Dumb Asylum; also many of the finest residences and business blocks in Topeka and other Kansas cities. In 1878 Mr. Haskell was appointed superintendent of construction for the new United States Courthouse and Postoffice at Topeka, which position he now (1883) holds, and the exterior of the building is complete. Mr. Haskell was married to Miss Mary Elizabeth Bliss, daughter of Luther B. Bliss, Wilbraham, Mass., December 22, 1859. They have had three children. Two daughters still survive. Mr. Haskell first made his home near Lawrence, upon the place first located by his father in September, 1854, where he continues to reside.

He read law in Versailles, Ind., and commenced practice there, remaining in that place until he came to Topeka in the fall of 1878; engaged in practice here until he was appointed Justice of the Peace, in April, 1880. In April, 1881, he was elected to the same position, and re-elected April 3, 1883. He was married at Sunmans, Ind., in October, 1878, to Emma M. Alden, a native of New Hampshire. They have one child, Effie Pearl. The Judge is a member of Lodge No. 17, A. F. & A. M.

PROF. EDWIN E. HEATH, teacher, was born in Corinth, Vt., November 7, 1846. His parents removed to California in 1855. Prof. Heath received his education in the schools of that State, graduating from the Stockton Seminary in 1862. He then returned to his native State, and in 1866 graduated in civil engineering from the Bradford Academy. He was then engaged for a year upon the survey of the Central Pacific R. R. in California, after which he entered the regular army and served his country upon the frontier for five years, holding all the grades of rank from a private to quartermaster, sergeant, and hospital steward. After leaving the army he was engaged for nearly two years in prospecting in the silver mines of New Mexico. Prof. Heath came to Kansas in 1873, locating at Junction City, where he held the position of teacher of the Grammar School until August, 1877, when he removed to Solomon City, and for one year held the position of principal of the school there. In November, 1878, he removed to Topeka, and has since been identified with the educational interests of that city, where for four years he has been principal of the Harrison School. Prof. H. is a prominent member of the K. of P., is also a member of Frontier Lodge No. 25, I. O. O. F. at Junction City; was representative to the Grand Lodge in 1878, and Chief Patriarch of the encampment two terms; married Miss Janet Miller at Junction City, July 25, 1876, and they have two children, Jeanie Ruth, born April 28, 1877, and Arthur Harvey, born June 20, 1879.

HEWITT, blacksmith and machine repairer, North Topeka, came to Lulu, Mitchell Co., Kan., in September, 1877, and engaged in blacksmithing and farming; came to Topeka in March, 1882, and opened a shop on his present location; was born December 16, 1835, at Carroll, Chautauqua Co., N. Y.; was married June 22, 1858, at Randolph, Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., to Betsy A. Spalding, of the same place. They have five children, viz., Louie May, now Mrs. Geo. W. Ammons, of Kansas City; Grace L., Agnes L., William L., Daniel S. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., Beloit Lodge No. 130, Beloit, Kan.; is also member of Encampment; was an active member of I. O. G. T., in New York, and is still an exponent of the principles of that Order.

J. B. HIBBEN, M. D., was born in Laurel, Ind., May 8, 1855. His father, Rev. Henry B. Hibben, is a chaplain in the U. S. Navy, now stationed at Philadelphia, and formerly professor of mathematics in Newport and Annapolis. Dr. Hibben was educated at Middletown Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., and of New York University, graduating from the medical department of the latter in the class of 1877. He commenced practice in the insane asylum at Flatbush, N. Y. and remained in that institution a year and a half, when he went to Dighton, Mass., where he remained until he returned to Brooklyn and made arrangements to come to Kansas. He located in Topeka, May, 1879, and has been associated with Dr. S. E. Sheldon as partner since September of the same year. He is assistant secretary of the State Medical Society and a member of the Kansas Eastern District Society, City Physician, and Member of the Board of Health.

MYRON HOLCOMB, contractor and builder, came to Kansas in 1869, locating at Topeka. Has been contracting about five years. Has had some large contracts, and business has averaged $6,000 per year. Keeps an average of six men employed. Enlisted in Decatur, Ill., in 1862, Company E, One Hundred and Sixteenth Illinois Infantry, as private. Was with his command at Chickasaw Bayou. Was all through the siege of Vicksburg and at the surrender. Was at Arkansas Post, Jackson, Atlanta, Chattanooga. Was with Sherman in his famous march to the sea and at the fall of Atlanta, and at Goldboro and Raleigh. Was promoted to Sergeant Major, and to Adjutant of the regiment in March, 1865. Was mustered out at Springfield, Ill., in July, 1865. Was born in Greene County, Ill., April 29, 1829. Resided in native county eighteen months, and then moved to Sangamon County where he resided until twenty-three years old, and learned his trade. Then moved to Macon County. After the war moved to McLean County, and from there to Kansas. Was married in Sangamon County, Ill., in 1852, to Miss Dorcas C. Winchell, a native of Franklin County, N. Y.; they have four children: Omar Alonzo, Carrie G., Lizzie B., and Minnie E. Is a member of Topeka Lodge No. 11, A. O. U. W. Family attend Presbyterian Church.

OMAR A. HOLCOMB, teacher, was born near Springfield, Ill., March, 1855. Fawkes, of Manhattan, February 28, 1879, and they have one child—Bernice, born February 12, 1880.

M. C. HOLMAN, furniture dealer, 485 Kansas avenue, North Topeka, was born in Bristol, N. H., March 5, 1852. He is a son of Rev. C. Holman, a Methodist Episcopal clergyman, now stationed at Corning, Kas., and being at present Secretary of the Kansas Conference. The subject of this sketch, M. C. Holman, only lived one year in his native town, then his parents removed to Great Falls, in the same State, and afterward to Dover, N. H.; also lived at Lawrence, Mass. He was educated in the New Hampshire Conference College, at Tilton, and came to Kansas with his parents in the spring of 1869, on account of his father's ill health. Engaged in the grocery business at Ottawa until the spring of 1873; then was book-keeper at Junction City until 1875, and later was engaged in the furniture business at Blue Rapids until the autumn of 1882 when he engaged in the same business in North Topeka, which he still continues. He was married at Blue Rapids in the spring of 1878, to Miss M. Emma Wright, of that place.

D. HOLMES, druggist, 247 Kansas avenue, is a native of Mount Morris, N. Y., born September 19, 1836. In June, 1856, he removed to Rockford, Ill., where he clerked in a drug store till the breaking out of the war, when he responded to the first call, enlisting in Company D, Eleventh Illinois Volunteer Infantry, serving three months, the term of enlistment in that regiment. In October, 1861, he enlisted again, this time in Battery E, First Illinois Light Artillery; was appointed First Sergeant, and served with that command until November, 1862, when he was discharged on account of disability resulting from sickness. After leaving the service and regaining his health, he returned to Rockford, joined with Samuel Norton in purchasing the store of his former employer, and continued in the drug business under the firm name of Holmes & Norton till the spring of 1866, when he sold out to his partner and removed to Lapeer, Mich., where he was in the drug trade till the spring of 1869, when, on account of failing health, he disposed of his business and took a vacation of a year and a half. Having in view a healthful climate, he removed, in 1870, to southern Kansas and opened a drug store in Thayer, Neosho County, where he carried on the business till 1877, when he closed out his interest there and made, as he hopes, a permanent settlement in Topeka, where he since has been doing a lucrative business, having one of the most complete drug establishments in the city. Mr. Holmes was married in Chetopa Township, Wilson County, in June, 1872, to Mary E. Waggoner, a native of Moline, Ill. Mr. H. is a member of the Presbyterian Church and the orders of the A. F. & A. M. and the G. A. R.

C. B. HOPKINS, architect, came to Topeka in June, 1868, and engaged in building operations until the spring of 1881, when he became a partner of E. T. Carr, architect. Among the buildings at Topeka which he has planned may be mentioned the dwellings of Edwin Scott, W. W. Manspeaker and Judge McFarland. Also the City Building, the Union Block, J. D. Knox, Manspeaker's Block, McLaughlin's store building, Grange and Masonic building at Manhattan, etc. He has also made the plans for schoolhouses at Abilene, Manhattan and Sabetha; a bank at Minneapolis Kan., a church at Rossville, and other public buildings. Mr. Hopkins was born at Lima, Livingston Co., N. Y., March 5, 1830. When an infant his parents moved to Huron County, Ohio, which place remained his home for ten years. He then lived five years in Erie County, Ohio, six years in DeKalb County, Ind., and about a year in Florida, Henry Co., Ohio. Thence he migrated to Erie County and stayed a summer, then to Huron County, thence to Cleveland and finally to Upper Sandusky, Wyandotte Co., Ohio, where he remained twelve years prior to his removal to Kansas. He was married in Norwalk, Huron Co., Ohio, July 4, 1856, to Rosannah M. Washburn, a native of the State of New York. They have four children—George W., Eugene L., Francis M., and Ella May.

COL. DANIEL H. HORNE was born in Dover, N. H., February 26, 1828. Lived there until he was fifteen years of age; then went to Haverhill, Mass., where he learned the trade of tanner and currier. After serving two years' apprenticeship he embarked in the business for himself at Salem; afterwards at Woburn, Charlestown, and Boston until he was twenty-six years of age. He was married at Woburn, Mass., April 22, 1849, to Maria L. Hovey, a native of Cambridge, Mass. In November, 1854, Mr. Horne started for Kansas alone, arriving at Kansas City November 30. December 1 he first reached Kansas soil, and on the 3d of that month he was selected, at Lawrence, as chairman of a committee to proceed west from there and select a town site for thirteen members of the meeting of men who desired to locate together. The result of the investigations and judgment of the committee of which he was chairman was the location of the Topeka town site. At the Lawrence meeting, Dr. Charles Robinson, C. K. Holliday and M. C. Dickey (neither of whom was of the original thirteen before mentioned) came in and stated that there was a good location twenty-five miles west of Lawrence, on the Kansas River, Mr. Dickey stating that the land had been secured by himself and three associates, Enoch Chase, Jacob Chase and George Davis, who were then on the ground. Upon the representations made, the committee, composed of Daniel H. Horne, F. W. Giles, L. G. Cleaveland and S. A. Clark, accompanied by Dickey, Holliday and Robinson, proceeded to the point designated, where they found the Chases and George Davis. These gentlemen and Mr. Dickey were given the choice of 160-acre claims outside of the town-site limits if they would relinquish their rights to the claim where it was proposed to locate the town, they, however, to also have equal rights as members of the town company. Col. C. K. Holliday also became a member of the town company. The committee adopted a resolution providing that no distribution of lots or claims should be made (except the selection of claims by Enoch Chase, Jacob Chase, M. C. Dickey and George Davis), until the men they had left at Lawrence should arrive, so that they might have an equal chance with the members of the committee in securing claims and lots. After their arrival a distribution was made by lottery, Jonas C. Greenwood securing the first choice. He selected a claim where the A., T. & S. F. shops are now located, which he immediately disposed of to T. J. Thornton for a consideration of $15. Daniel H. Horne secured the second choice, and selected a claim west of town site, where he now resides. The Colonel has been engaged in farming more or less since his location here, also dealing extensively in real estate. He was chosen Marshal of the Free-state squatters, and Captain of the Topeka Guards, a Free-state organization. In the fall of 1855 he was captain of another military company which was organized to proceed to the relief of Lawrence, which had been surrounded by the border ruffians. Prior to the commencement of the War of the Rebellion he was commissioned, by Governor Robinson, Colonel of the Fourth Kansas Regiment, Southern Division. He had previously been elected Colonel by the members of the regiment, composed of men from Osage, Wabaunsee and Shawnee counties. This regiment was kept up until after the war broke out; then the men went into the First, Second and Fifth Kansas Volunteers. In August, 1862, the Colonel enlisted as a private in Company E, Eleventh Kansas Volunteer Infantry. He was made First Sergeant-Major upon the organization of the regiment. While with that command he participated in the battles of Fort Wayne, Kane Hill, Prairie Grove, the taking of Van Buren, and minor engagements. In February, 1863, he was commissioned by President Lincoln Captain in the Fourth Indian Brigade; served in that brigade until it was mustered out of the service in the fall of the same year. He was chosen, in the fall of 1864, Captain of Company A, Second Regiment, commanded by Col. George W. Veale, participating in a campaign of two weeks in pursuit of Price. For his faithful and courageous conduct while engaged in this service he received several manifestations of approval from the commander of the forces, the post of honor being assigned to him of guarding the crossing where it was expected the rebels would attempt to cross the Blue. During this time he was a candidate against Col. Veale for State Senator, and was elected. He was a member of the City Council and President of the Board of Aldermen in 1871; being acting Mayor at the time of the Chicago fire of that year, all money from this point was sent by him to the sufferers, $5,400 being sent at one time. He organized the Topeka Manufacturing Company, completing the organization of that company March 16, 1883. He is a member of the Congregational Church and of the A., F. & A. M. He was one of the early constables of Topeka, having been commissioned by Governor Reeder. The wife of his early manhood still lives to cheer him in the declining years of his life. Their union has been blessed by a large family of children, four of whom survive—Georgia W., Daniel H., Jr., Mary and James B. Those deceased are as follows: Millard F., who died at the age of three years; Lizzie, who died a few months after birth; Kittie and Lillie, twins, died at six months; Samuel survived until he was nine years of age; a charming daughter, Rilla, died in 1883, aged twenty-three years.

JOHN HORTON, market gardener, Section 28; P. O. Topeka. Owns twenty acres. Came to Kansas in 1870. First stopped in Lawrence for four years, and then came to Topeka. Bought this place and located on it in the fall of 1879. He was born in Lincolnshire, England, July 2, 1827. Came to the United States in 1856, first locating in Rockford, Ill., and came from there to Kansas. He was married to Mrs Cecelia Weckman in 1879, Mrs. H. having two children by a former marriage—Hilma and Daniel, and two children by the present marriage—John and Charles. Mr. Horton is a member of the Baptist Church.

J. K. HUDSON is a native of Carrollton, Carroll Co., Ohio, where he was born May 4, 1840. He was the eldest of six sons of John and Rebecca (Rothacker) Hudson. His father was of English parentage, and was engaged in active business life at various points in Eastern Ohio for nearly forty years, being a practical printer from early boyhood, and during his residence in Ohio, the publisher of various journals. He was a man of strong moral and religious convictions which was evinced in a peculiarly upright life and exemplary character. He was an active member of the Methodist Church, a radical temperance reformer, and a staunch Republican so long as he lived. He did honorable service in the Northern army during the late war, despite his years. He died in Kansas City, Mo., while visiting his sons, in June, 1877. His mother was of German parentage. She was one of the million silent heroines who watched and suffered and waited during the war, and suffering made no sign. With her husband and four sons in the service, her heart with them, she went to her rest, in July, 1865—one short month before their safe return. The subject of this sketch received his primary education in the public schools of Salem, Ohio, which was supplemented by a most thorough course of private study after leaving school. He learned the art of printing in his father's printing office, in Salem, Ohio, where the Anti-Slavery Bugle, one of the most radical abolition journals of the time, was published for several years. He left Salem, Ohio, in July 1861, in company with Barclay Coppick and several other companions, and came to Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, where they immediately enlisted in the Third Regiment Kansas Volunteers (Lane's Brigade), and commenced active service at once, being first marched to Fort Scott, thence to Kansas City, with the intent of relieving Mulligan at Lexington, Mo. He followed the fortunes and labors of his regiment, doing the full duty of an American soldier, to Springfield, Mo., and late in the fall to Mound City, Kansas, where the command went into winter quarters. He was at this time promoted from Orderly-Sergeant to Second Lieutenant of his company. In the spring of 1862 the Army of the Frontier was organized at Fort Scott, and the Third and Fourth Kansas Regiments, forming a part of the new organization, were consolidated, being thereafter known as the Tenth Regiment of Kansas Infantry. Mr. Hudson was appointed as First Lieutenant of Company C, in the new regiment, which was assigned to the Third (Weir's) Brigade. In the campaign of 1862, he was acting as Assistant Adjutant General of the Brigade. He bore himself with bravery in the battles of Newtonia, Fort Wayne, Cane Hill, Prairie Grove, Van Buren, and the various skirmishes in which his command was engaged, being especially commended in the official reports for personal bravery and merit displayed at the battle of Prairie Grove. In 1863 he served on the staff of General Davies, at Rolla, Mo., and subsequently as Aid-de-Camp to General Scofield, being stationed at St. Louis, Mo. In December of that year he was promoted as Major of the First Missouri Colored Infantry, afterwards known as the Sixty-second Regiment United States Colored Infantry. He served during the campaign of 1864, with his regiment, on the lower Mississippi, and the mouth of the Rio Grande in Texas. He subsequently served on the staff of Gen. E. B. Brown, at Brownsville, Texas, and was mustered out at the close of the war, in July, 1865, having been in the service four years. In September, 1865, he became a permanent resident of Kansas. He bought a farm in Wyandotte County, on which lived for eight years, being employed largely in stock raising and in the growing of general farm crops. During this period he became closely identified with the agricultural interests of the State, being one of the Regents of State Agricultural College, by the appointment of Gov. Osborn. During his term of service, largely through his efforts, the management of the institution was so changed as to make it practically subserve the objects for which it was established, instead of the more theoretical and sectarian interests that would have brought it ultimately into disrepute. In 1871 he was a member of the Kansas House of Representatives from the Thirty-seventh Assembly District, and, in the Senatorial session of that election, voted for Hon. Samuel J. Crawford, as opposed to Hon. Alexander Caldwell, the successful candidate. The confidence of his fellow citizens has been often evinced—in January, 1874, by twenty-four votes in the Kansas Legislature for United States Senator; and in the fall of that year by the nomination by the Reform party as Congressional Representative from the Third District, running in the ensuing canvass ahead of his ticket in every county in the district. His journalistic career commenced 1873, at which time he purchased the Kansas Farmer. Since that time he has been constantly identified with the press of Kansas, as appears in the sketches of the various publications with which he has been identified, all of which have been successful in such degree as to place him in the first rank as to editorial and business ability. He was with his business partner, Mr. E. E. Ewing, the founder of the Capital, and its first editor. He is the business manager of the publishing company now owning it. Mr. Hudson has ever been a Republican in politics, and on the temperance and other moral questions takes advanced and radical ground. He has, since the question has become a factor in State politics, been a staunch advocate of the principle of prohibition, as now embodied in the State Constitution, and in the Statutes based thereon. Mr. Hudson married Mary W. Smith, daughter of Edmund K. and Sarah T. Smith, in Wyandotte, August 5, 1863. They have had four children, three of whom survive: Mary E., Anna Josephine, and Paul. Their second daughter, Ada, died in infancy.

RICHARD G. HUGHES, grocer, was born near Brookville, Jefferson Co., Pa., October 22, 1835. Lived in his native county until he was about twenty-five years of age, when he removed to Oil City, Pa., where he was engaged in putting down oil wells, until he came to Topeka in April, 1868 (after having "struck oil"). He engaged in grocery business soon after coming here, on the corner of Sixth street and Topeka avenue, and continued in business there until May, 1882, when he sold out, and built his present elegant store, No. 235 Kansas Avenue, and began business in it about the middle of September, 1882. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church and of the I. O. O. F. During the early part of the war, he enlisted in Company I, One Hundred and Fifth Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, but was rejected by the medical examiner. Mr. Hughes was married in Curllsville, Clarion Co., Pa., May 28, 1858, to Catherine Benn, a native of that place. They have three children: Speed Fry, Huber Earl, and Leverte Winno.

S. B. ISENHART, attorney, was born at Tiffin, Ohio, September 13, 1852. Lived only two years in his native place, then his parents moved with their family to Bryan, Williams Co., Ohio. He was educated at Bryan Normal School and at Oberlin College. He graduated from the law department of the University of Michigan in March, 1879. In August, 1879, he came to Topeka, where he has since been engaged in the practice of his profession—about one year and a half in the office of Hon. J. M. Spencer, then alone in practice, until March, 1882, when Z. T. Hazen, his present partner, became associated with him. Mr. Isenhart is a member of Eden Lodge and Bryan Chapter, A. F. & A. M., in Bryan, Ohio.

JOHN D. JAMES, carpenter, has been a resident of Cloud County, Kansas, owning a farm of 640 acres in that county, but has disposed of a portion of his land. Was elected president of the National Farmers' Alliance of the United States at the regular annual meeting in Chicago in October, 1881. Has been connected with that organization for ten years, and has visited every State in the Union, to organize subordinate State Alliances and strengthen the cause. Has delivered addresses to nearly every State organization, explaining the objects and aims, and the benefits to be derived therefrom. Has organized 225 subordinate alliances, and was for several years president of Cloud County Alliance. Is chairman of the finance committee of the Kansas State Alliance, and vice-president of alliances in the First Congressional District of Kansas. Was nominated as County Clerk in Cloud County in 1881, but declined for the reason that he preferred to devote his time to alliance work. Was editor and founder of the Enterprise-Register of Dickinson County, and brought that paper up to a degree of prosperity that it never before enjoyed. Was born in Ogle County, Ill., July 3, 1848. Remained in his native county until he was thirty years of age—engaged in farming. Learned his trade there. Came to Kansas in 1879, first locating at Concordia, Cloud County, where he engaged in farming and stock-raising. Came to Topeka May 27, 1882. Was married July 6, 1871, at Ashton, Lee Co., Ill., to Miss Maggie A. Putnam, a native of Montgomery County, N. Y., and a distant relative of General Putnam of Revolutionary fame. Have two children—Henry L. and Kitty Louisa. Is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

HON. THOMAS M. JAMES, North Topeka, inspector of United States surveys, was born at Sandusky, Erie Co., Ohio, October 10, 1840. Remained in his native place until he was sixteen years of age, then entered Oberlin College, leaving that institution while a sophomore. He left college, in 1861, and assisted in raising an infantry company for the One Hundred and Seventeenth Ohio Volunteers, which was consolidated in June, 1862, with the First Ohio Artillery, and Mr. James was made Second Lieutenant of Company B.; promoted in November, 1863, to First Lieutenant of Company D. He continued in service until several months after the close of the war. Returning to Ohio he began the study of law, but soon thereafter was obliged to abandon it on account of ill health and he then went to Illinois, where he remained until he came to Kansas, October 16, 1866 locating on the northeast quarter of Section 17 Town 11 Range 16 being in Soldier Township, Shawnee County, where he now resides. In December, 1868, he was appointed Assistant Internal Revenue Collector, and in 1869 he removed to Topeka, but returned to reside on the farm the following year, holding the office before mentioned, however, until July 1, 1872. In 1871 he was elected County Treasurer and assumed the duties of that office July 1, 1872. He held that position two terms. Afterwards for two years he served as Deputy Treasurer, retiring from that position in the fall of 1878. He had been elected a member of the Legislature in November of that year, and served as a member of the Kansas House of Representatives during the session of 1879; afterwards giving his attention to his farming interests, having extensive agricultural and stock interests. For a short time in 1882 he was interested in mercantile business in North Topeka. In November, 1882, he was again elected a member of the Legislature. He has held various township offices, being now treasurer of his township. He has always been prominently identified with the Republican party, having been a delegate to several State conventions, Congressional conventions, and a member of the Shawnee County Republican Central Committee. He was appointed inspector of United States surveys March 2, 1882. Mr. James was married at Kansas City in January, 1870, to Laura A. Wendell, a native of Arrow Rock, Mo. They have three children—David W., Louis A., and Thomas M., Jr.

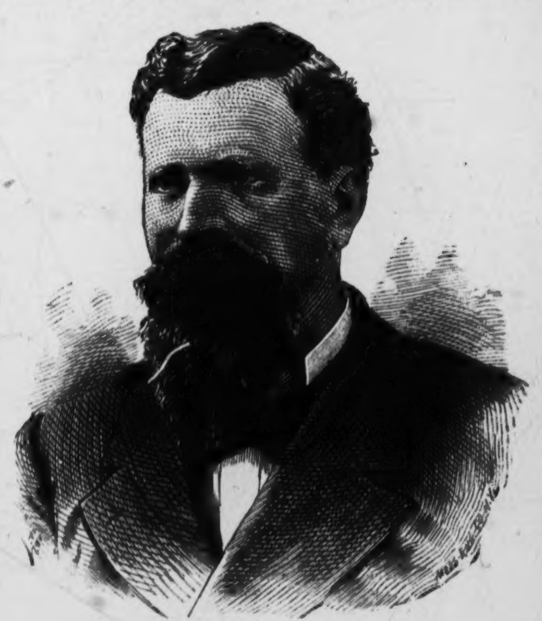
J. M. JAMESON, M. D., was born in Williamson County, Tenn., April 28, 1851. He received a good common school education. After attaining his majority he began the study of medicine, first under a preceptor, and afterward taking a full course at Meharry Medical College at Nashville, Tenn., graduating there in 1877, and locating in Nashville, where he practiced medicine until the summer of 1881, when he located at Topeka. He there enjoys a good practice. He is the first colored graduate of any medical college in the South. He is a member of the Masonic Order.

CHARLES JARRETT, market gardener and stone mason, Section 12, P. O. Topeka. Owns five acres. Rents and gardens thirty acres in addition thereto. Came to Kansas May 22 1876 landing in Topeka, where he worked at his trade for two years. In March, 1878, bought and located here, renting the adjoining thirty acres. Enlisted as private, March, 1864 in Company C, Forty-fourth Regiment, United States Colored Infantry. Was in the engagement at Dalton, Georgia, where he, with a large portion of his regiment, was captured, but he succeeded in making his escape six days afterwards, making his way to a block house, twenty miles from Nashville, Tenn., where he, with 360 men, were attacked by 500 cavalry of Hood's command, holding them all the afternoon, and making their escape in the night to Nashville. Was also in the Battle of Nashville. Was mustered out April 30, 1866. Born in slavery in 1837 in White County, Tenn. Went to Nashville in 1866; came from there to Kansas. Was married in 1857 to Harriet Cummings. Has five children—Lucy, John, William, Samuel, and Mary. Is a member of the Benevolent Society

WILLIAM HALL JENKINS, son of Samuel Jenkins, one of the earliest candidates for the presidency on the Abolition ticket, was born in Philadelphia, December 31, 1828, that city remaining his home until 1857. In his youth he learned the trade of sail-maker, and also of machinist, and in his early manhood served as Deputy Clerk of Circuit Court four years, and Master of Chancery six years. He afterwards removed to Princeton, Ill., and engaged in abstract business. Thence he came to Kansas, March 1, 1868, settling first in Lawrence, where he remained one year, and March 1, 1869, came to Topeka, since which time he has continuously resided in the city, engaged in abstract and money loan business. Mr. Jenkins was married in Philadelphia, October 15, 1850 to Annie W. Charlton, a native of Kidderminster, England. Two children have been born to them, but one of whom, Wm. Henry, is living. Mr. Jenkins is a member of A. F. & A. M. of I. O. O. F. and K. of P.

CHARLES W. JEWELL was born at Marlboro, Middlesex Co., Mass., January 6 1827. In 1846, at the age of nineteen, he removed to Harmon, Ohio, where he remained, engaged in mercantile pursuits, until 1857, when, with his brother, Lewis R., he engaged in steamboating between Cincinnati and St. Louis, his brother building and being captain of the steamer, "Martha Putnam," of which Charles W. was clerk. February 14, 1860, he came to Kansas, and first located about fifteen miles south of Fort Scott, on what was then known as the Cherokee Neutral Lands. He engaged in stock-dealing at this point, and was so employed until August, 1862, when he enlisted in the Sixth Kansas Cavalry, being commissioned Lieutenant of Company F. He remained in the army until he located in Topeka, in 1865, his family having moved to the place in July of the preceding year. Lewis R. Jewell, his brother, raised Company K, of the Sixth Kansas Cavalry, in the summer of 1861, and at the organization of the regiment, in the ensuing fall, was elected Lieutenant Colonel, retaining that position until he received his death wound at the battle of Cane Hill, Ark., November 28, 1862. His death occurred November 30, two days afterward. He was a native of Marlboro, Mass. After removing to Topeka, Mr. Jewell went into banking business with F. W. Giles, the firm being organized in February, 1866, as F. W. Giles & Co., and was continued until the Topeka National Bank was organized, April 1, 1872, Messrs. Giles and Jewell being the controlling stockholders, and Mr. Jewell being vice-president of the institution from its organization until August, 1878. The Topeka National was succeeded by the Topeka State Bank, of which Mr. Jewell is now president. He was married at Watertown, Ohio, to Susan A. Hendrie, a native of Stamford, Conn., but reared and educated in Watertown, Ohio. Their children, of whom there are seven, are: Charles Eugene, James Fred, Mary E., Kittie L., Fannie H., William B., and Susan.

A. B. JETMORE, attorney, was born at Muncie City, Delaware Co., Ind., May 25, 1837, and received his education at Muncie Seminary. In 1858 he was admitted to the bar in his native town, and subsequently to the bar of the Federal Courts, as also those of the States of Missouri and Kansas, where he stands at the head of his profession. A short time after his admission to the bar he removed to Hartford City, Ind., where he was engaged in practice until 1871. He came to Missouri in July of that year, and located at Warrensburg, remaining there until April 1, 1878, when he came to Topeka. He has been engaged in practice here; S. M. Gardenhire having been associated with him since April 2, 1882. Mr. Jetmore assisted in the formulation of the Prohibition Law, and himself framed the Sixteenth Section, in regard to the prohibition of club rooms, and was the attorney for the Kansas Legal Temperance Association, a society organized to assist in the enforcement of the Prohibitory Law. He was married near Muncie, Ind., April 26, 1860, to Maria P. Peterson, a native of Henry County, Ind. They have six children—Mary, now Mrs. S. M. Gardenhire of Topeka, Aaron P., Datie Nevada, Abraham H., Myrtle M., and DeForest. Mr. Jetmore is a member of the A. F. & A. M., and both he and his wife are members of the Methodist Church. Though not a politician, yet Mr. Jetmore is always found in the front of the political fray in vindicating the principles of the Republican party, of which he has been a member since the breaking out of the rebellion.



A. B. Jetmore

COL. A. S. JOHNSON, the oldest living son of the Rev. Thomas and Mrs. Sarah T. (Davis) Johnson, was born at the Shawnee Mission, in what is now Johnson County, Kan., on July 11, 1832, and to the welfare of that State he has given the best years of a thoughtful and laborious life. His early education was received at the mission school, founded by his father, and subsequently at what is now Central College in Fayette, Howard Co., Mo. From the age of seventeen to nineteen, his educational course was continued in the academic department of the Shawnee Mission school, under the direction of his old Fayette teacher, the Rev. Nathan Scarrett. Having completed his studies in 1850-'51, he immediately entered upon a business life first as a clerk in J. G. Hamilton's Indian store, in Westport, Mo., and afterwards as clerk and then as partner with A. T. Ward & Co., and their successors, J. Siddelsburger & Co., in Kansas City. This house was the leading forwarding and commission house in that part of the West, nearly the whole of the immense New Mexican overland traffic passing through it until as late as 1854. When Kansas became a Territory, Col., then Mr., Johnson, turned his attention to surveying, for which work he had been thoroughly fitted in his academic course of study. In the capacity of Deputy United States Surveyor, he subdivided the Government lands in Johnson County, and surveyed the lands for the Shawnee Indians, prior to their location by members of the tribe in severalty, under the terms of the treaty. The period of his government work covered four or five years. He had charge of the Shawnee Mission school after 1858, at which time his father left it, until it was finally closed in 1862. In March, 1855, not yet twenty-three years of age, he had been elected a member of the first Territorial Legislature, being the youngest member of that body. He was elected to the State Legislature from Johnson County, in 1866, and took a prominent part in the railroad legislation of the session. Col. Johnson was born and educated a Southerner. But he believed, as did his father, in the institutions of his country and his kindred. When the Government became endangered by civil outbreak, like his father he braved the extreme dangers surrounding him, and openly avowed his allegiance to the Union. This was in time for him to vote for Abraham Lincoln, in 1860. He then made his first record as a Republican, at the risk of his life, and his loyalty to party and country has never been tarnished. During the war of the Rebellion, he lived on the Missouri frontier, and was as thoroughly hated by the Missouri bushwhackers as any man in Kansas. He organized a military company, which was subsequently made a part of the Thirteenth Kansas Militia, of which he was appointed Lieutenant-Colonel by Gov. Carney. He and his regiment were under arms, or doing military service on the frontier, for nearly four years. The Kansas Militia service was perhaps the most arduous and dangerous of any which fell to the lot of the American soldier of those times. The record of their work appears in the general State history. Col. Johnson did the duty of a soldier faithfully and well. In 1866, the year of his second election to the Legislature, he was appointed Land Commissioner of the Kansas City, Fort Scott & Gulf Railroad, which position he held until the spring of 1870, when he became connected with the A., T. & S. F. R. R. He acted as appraiser of railroad lands until 1873, as tax commissioner during 1873, and was appointed land commissioner of the road in 1874. He has since held the latter position, and in that capacity become identified, not only with the road, but with the development and growth of the whole region of Southwestern Kansas, through which the road passes, and in which lies the immense land grant now rapidly being settled by a hardy and industrious population. The area under his control is sufficient to make an ordinary Eastern State, and the population settled upon it since his administration exceeds 100,000, or one-tenth of the entire population of the State. He still owns the site of the old Mission where he was born, the school where he was educated, and the land surrounding the scene of his father's missionary labors. This he claims as his home. His residence has been in Topeka since his connection with the A., T. & S. F. R. R., in 1870. Col. Johnson married Miss Prudence C. Funk, of St. Joseph, Mo., in October, 1852. She died in September, 1874. On June 18, 1877, he married Miss Zippie A. Scott, of Manchester, N. H. His surviving children are: Nellie, now Mrs. Edwin Scott; Fannie, now Mrs. E. H. Davis; and Robert P., all residents of Topeka.

GEORGE Y. JOHNSON was born November 22, 1844, in Parke County, Ind. Was educated at Bloomingdale Academy, in the same county, and graduated both in the commercial department of that institution and in the Indianapolis Business College. Resided in Vermillion County, Ill., from November, 1849, until October, 1866. In 1866 he emigrated to Kansas, and located in Wakarusa Township, Douglas County, where he now resides, his attention being devoted to fruit culture and Short-horn cattle. He has thirty acres of his large farm devoted to fruit, and is thoroughly posted in everything pertaining to its best development and cultivation. He was secretary of the Kansas Valley Fair Association three years. He is prominently connected with the State Horticultural Society, having been vice-president, treasurer and trustee at different times. He has also been secretary of the Kansas State Fair Association, since January, 1881. Mr. Johnson is a member of the Society of Friends, and an active Republican. He was married at Rockville, Ind., March 20, 1866, to Matilda Hadley, also a member of the Society of Friends, and educated at the Friends' School, at Providence, R. I. They have four children—Henry Herbert, Martha Elizie, Charles Hadley and Bertha.

CAPT. J. B. JOHNSON came to Kansas in September, 1865. Located at Oskaloosa, Jefferson County, and engaged in the practice of law. In January, 1877, he removed to Topeka and formed a law partnership with George R. Peck and Thomas Ryan, which continued until 1881, since which time he has been engaged in practice alone. Capt. Johnson was a member of the Kansas House of Representatives in 1868 and 1869, and was one of the Presidential Electors in 1876. He is now a member and the Speaker of Kansas House of Representatives, and chairman of the Republican State Central Committee. Capt. Johnson was born near Canton, Fulton Co., Ill., January 21, 1844, and educated at Prairie City Academy, McDonough Co., Ill. He enlisted in the Fifty-fifth Illinois Volunteer Infantry, Company A, in August, 1861, serving as a private until the battle of Shiloh, April 6 and 7, 1862, when he was promoted to Second Lieutenant. In the fall of the same year he was compelled to resign on account of disability caused by wounds. In the spring of 1864 he re-enlisted in the One Hundred and Thirty-seventh Illinois Volunteer Infantry, was elected Captain of Company D, and served until the close of the war, when he returned to Fulton County, Ill., and thence came to Kansas. He was married in Oskaloosa, Kan., November 11, 1866, to Anna M. Carson, of Weston, Mo. Capt. and Mrs. Johnson have five children—Maud E., Madge C., Mabel C., Benjamin C. and Bradford N. The Captain is a member of G. A. R., A. F. & A. M., Blue Lodge and Chapter, and I. O. O. F.

J. C. JOHNSON, traveling agent for Caleb Chivers, came to Kansas in 1855, from Platte County, Mo., and located in Leavenworth County; went from there to Atchison, and from thence to Topeka, in December, 1881. Was in the Kansas State Militia in 1864, called to Leavenworth to oppose Price's raid into Kansas. Was born September 25, 1846, in Platte County, Mo., and remained in his native place until coming to Kansas, in 1855. Was married October 1, 1865, in Atchison County, Kan., to Mary E. Brown, a native of Knox County, Tenn. Has four children—Wyatt R., Sophia S., Jane E. and Pearl. Is a member of Christian Church, Topeka.

N. JOHNSON, farmer, Section 35, Township 12, Range 15 west, P. O. Pauline, came to Kansas in 1878, from Rockford, Ill., and located three miles north of Topeka, where he remained two years, and then removed to his present location. Was born December 23, 1826, in Charlestown, Sweden. Lived in Denmark two years, and worked at stone cutting. Came to America in 1854, and settled at Rockford, where he worked for twenty-four years at iron moulding, for N. C. Thompson, the celebrated manufacturer of agricultural implements. Was married in May, 1858, at Rockford to Caroline Larson, a native of Sweden; they have four children—Regina C., Olive B., Isadora and Vina. Is a member of the Swedish Lutheran Church, of Topeka.

HON. WILLIAM A. JOHNSTON, now Attorney-General of the State, came to Kansas in April, 1872. Settled at Minneapolis, and engaged in the practice of law, being continuously engaged in his profession until he was elected in 1880, Attorney-General. In 1876 Mr. Johnston was a member of the House of Representatives, and State Senator from 1877 to 1880, serving also in 1878-79, as Assistant United States Attorney. He was born in Greenville County, Ont., July 24, 1849, and moved to Illinois in 1864, where he lived, with the exception of a brief period in Missouri, until he came to Kansas in 1872. He was married in Camden, Ohio, November, 1875, to Miss Lu B. Brown, of Camden. Mr. Johnston belongs to the Masonic fraternity, Blue Lodge and Chapter. He still resides at Minneapolis, although a member of the firm of Rossington, Johnston & Smith, of Topeka.

DANIEL C. JONES, M. D., physician and surgeon, came to Kansas in August, 1868. He first settled at Junction City, where he resided until 1875. In January of that year he removed to Topeka, where he has since been engaged in the practice of his profession. He was born at Athens, Ohio, on the 5th of January, 1838, and at the age of twelve removed to Paris, Ill. He is a graduate of the Ohio Medical College, of Cincinnati, and of Rush Medical College. From August 10, 1861, until the spring of 1866, he served as Surgeon of the Second Illinois Cavalry. In 1866 Dr. Jones married Jennie E. Austin, a native of Schenectady, N. Y. They have two children—Mattie and Adelia. He is a member of the State Medical Society, of which he was at one time the president. He is also a member of the Topeka Academy of Medicine and Surgery, president of the Eastern District Medical Society, and a member of the A. F. & A. M.

GEORGE M. KELLAM, farmer, Section 21, P. O. Topeka, owns 200 acres here; 160 acres under cultivation; has another farm of 400 acres twelve miles southeast, for grazing. Makes corn growing and stock-raising a specialty. Has fine stock: Galway Black Scotch; just bought a bull for $680; has 140 head of cattle, and 29 horses; good dwelling and good barn. Came to Kansas March 28, 1857, and located on this farm, pre-empting 160 acres. Was born in Irasburgh, Orleans Co., Vt., May 13, 1828. Came from there to Kansas. Was in the Special Militia during the Price Raid, and was at the battle of the Big Blue, in Missouri; was from home about three weeks. Was married June 15, 1857, to Miss Julia S. Emerson. Has three children—Sabin E., Emma J. and Mary A. Is a Master Mason. The first brick ever made in Shawnee County was made on his farm.

DANIEL F. KELLER, plumber and gas-fitter, came to Kansas first January 5, 1880, and located at Emporia; where he followed his trade and remained about six months. Then moved to Kansas City, remained a short time, and came to Topeka, and, with the exception of about five months, has been here since. Was born in Banden, County Cork, Ireland, August 15, 1839. Parents came to this country when he was about eight months old. First located in London, Canada West. Remained there until about fourteen years old attending school, and moved to Louisville, Ky., in 1857. Remained there until 1874; learned his trade; worked at Cincinnati and Terre Haute, Ind.; also in Chicago. Was married in Cincinnati, Ohio, October 9, 1869, to Miss Kate McCarty, a native of Wexford, County New Ross, Ireland. Has three children—Daniel F. Jr., Lawrence and Joseph. Is a member of the Catholic Church and a Democrat.

Enlisted as a seaman in the Mississippi squadron under Commodore Fitch in July, 1864, when a boy only seventeen years of age. Was discharged in August, 1865, at Mound City, Ill. He was born in Dearborn County, Ind., July 1, 1847. Moved to Decatur in 1874, and came from there to Kansas. He was married twice, the first time April 30, 1866. Married again January 31, 1874, to Miss Martha Connell. They have four children by the first marriage—Grant, Allen, Melvin, ————; and by the second marriage two—Mercy P. and Jesse M. Mr. Kelsey is a Master Mason.

CHARLES F. KENDALL, was born in Kalamazoo, Mich., April 15, 1844. His first business location was at Grand Rapids, Mich., where he remained two years prior to entering the United States service in the fall of 1861. At that time he enlisted in the Fourth Michigan Cavalry. Served about eighteen months in that regiment as Commissary Sergeant of the company and subsequently of the regiment. He was afterward Commissary of the Eleventh Michigan Volunteer Cavalry, later of a brigade, and still later of a division and finally Post Commissary at Crab Orchard and other points in Kentucky, Tennessee and Alabama. He was mustered out at Jackson, Mich., in 1865, and February 1866 again commenced mercantile business at Grand Rapids, where he remained until he emigrated to Kansas in the fall of 1868, and after remaining a few months at Leavenworth, located finally in Topeka, in February, 1869. Since becoming a resident of this city he has been continuously engaged in the mercantile business, wholesale and retail dry goods. His business is extensive and has rapidly increased since he commenced, now amounting to about $100,000 per annum.

H. R. KIRK, came to Kansas in the spring of 1879, located in Wabaunsee County and engaged in dealing in stock until he removed to Topeka in July, 1882. He is now a member of the firm of J. S. Collins & Co, real estate and loan agents.

HENRY KING was born in Salem, Ohio, in May, 1841. He was of French and of German ancestry. The family came to Hancock County, Ill., when Henry was quite young. His father combined farming with the practice of law, and was a friend of Abraham Lincoln, of Owen Lovejoy and of Richard Yates. His mother was a woman of rare virtues and accomplishments. Henry worked at corn raising on the black, flat prairie of Western Illinois in the summer and attended the country school in the winter. Having a great taste for reading and a general literary bent, his path naturally led out of the corn-field into the county printing office, animated with the thought of doing some day good service for the Republican party, of which he was an ardent youthful member. He passed through all the various journalistic gradations of advancement from the position of "devil" to that of editor. During his editorial career he read law and was admitted to the bar. In 1858 he went into the office of the Quincy (Ill.) Whig, succeeding as editor Hon. John T. Morton, late Judge of the Third Judicial District of Kansas. November 25, 1861, he enlisted as a private in the Fiftieth Illinois Infantry, being credited to the quota of the town of La Harpe. He served as Quartermaster's Sergeant, and was promoted to Quartermaster August 28, 1863. His term expired October 28, 1864. He was at Fort Henry, Fort Donelson and at Shiloh, bearing his part with martial skill and fidelity in the struggle that there ensued. In the siege of Atlanta he was detailed for important special duty by Secretary Stanton, and in connection with General Thomas' operations in Tennessee, he was tendered the Colonelcy of his old regiment, but he declined the proffered honor, deeming it unjust to stand in the way of the promotion of other commissioned officers in the line. He was content with the position and rank of Captain. He received the highest testimonials as to his character as a soldier. Governor Carpenter of Iowa, spoke of him as follows: "I never knew a man who combined so much of practical business sense and administrative ability with so much literary taste and culture. He is a man who does more than he says, and is never found wanting." Governor Oglesby offered Captain King, on the expiration of his term, the position of State Military Agent, but he chose to again put his shoulder to the journalistic wheel. In the spring of 1869 Capt. King came to Kansas and on May 19, he assumed the position of political and managing editor of the Topeka Daily Record. He said in his salutatory: "Too much has not and cannot be said in commendation of Topeka and of Kansas. The Record will be independently radical. All vital questions affecting the welfare of the people will be discussed candidly and generously, yet firmly and with plainness of speech." Afterwards Mr. King became secretary of the Commonwealth Printing Company, and on July 16, 1872, he was announced as secretary and editor. He retired from the Commonwealth March 6, 1875. He had been one of the editors of the far-famed Kansas Magazine, a state monthly, which had had a comparatively brief but brilliant career, and which was warmly cherished by the savants of Kansas. He has been a frequent contributor to Scribner and the St. Louis Globe-Democrat; was president of the Editors' and Publishers' Association of Kansas in 1878 and 1879; in 1871 and 1877 he gave the annual address before this Association. He was secretary of the Kansas State Relief Society in the drouth-grasshopper period of 1874-75, and performed the exacting duties of that position with noticeable fidelity. In May, 1880, he delivered the annual address before the Missouri Editorial Association, at Sedalia. In early life he married Miss Maria Louisa Lane, of the Lane family, distinguished in the history of Indiana and Kansas. She is a near relative of ex-Governor Albinus Nance, of Nebraska. Their son Henry has the literary tastes and studious tendencies of his father, and their adopted daughter lends a charm to their happy home circle. Mr. King was appointed Postmaster of Topeka in 1873, and held the position for eight years. He retired from the position in May, 1881. In his address before the Editorial Association at Leavenworth, June 13, 1877, referring to his past history, he said: "After seven years of carousal in politics and office-holding, I come back a jaded and repentant prodigal, tired of the mockery and emptiness of the thing, its husks and its swine, to say that the happiest years of my life have been spent in a Kansas printing office. There is too much politics in the State already, and a great deal too much in our newspapers. The politicians are not the men to lean upon, and with a newspaper, their schemes and ambitions are not the topic that should find prominence in its columns. Politics is not of half the importance that politicians would have us think. Newspapers are not dependent upon politics for their life and strength and opportunities for usefulness. That incessant nuisance, the office-seeker, is a creature with whom the press should have no commerce. There is no patronage and no luxury worth as much as the manhood of a journalist. The Press made the State here in Kansas, and can safely be trusted to guide and uplift in the future as it has done in the past. There is nothing here but the soil and the sunshine, which the Press has not made or brought in. The destiny of Kansas is in the keeping of the Press. Never before have there been such chances for the newspaper to serve the State. The Press has but to be true to itself—to the theory of its origin, the spirit of its growth, and it cannot be false to the State. When everything has been done that is possible to do, when the last stone shall have been put in the temple, as it were, and the perfect splendor of it all shall gleam like a shaft of light across the land, the Press can place its hand upon its jubilant heart, and, borrowing a line from the Iliad, say to the State in truth and sincerity, and with an honest and conscious pride 'All illustrious as thou art, I made thee such.'" November 1, 1881, Mr. King became the editor of the Capital and in that issue said: "It is now over eight years since the incoming editor of the Capital threw down the traditional shears and pencil-stub and went out into the cold, wicked world to seek his fortune. He returns this morning with the delightful feeling of one, who wakes from an unhappy dream. Our guiding purpose is to produce a first-class newspaper. This is the basis, and the only one upon which we seek patronage. We desire nothing but prosperity and happiness for our competitors, with simply the right reserved on our part as we think we have the facilities and the opportunity, to make the name of the Capital, like that of rare old Abou Ben Adhem 'lead all the rest.'" In the Daily Capital of Tuesday morning, March 27, 1883, appears the following: "Personal.—My connection with the Capital has ceased, for business reasons, and through an amicable understanding on the part of all concerned. Henry King." J. K. Hudson, the original proprietor of the Capital had the following card in the same issue: "The undersigned, until further notice, assumes editorial and business management of the Daily and Weekly Capital. J. K. Hudson. Monday, March 26, 1883."

KITCHELL & MARBURG, hardware merchants, of the firm of William W. Kitchell and A. Marburg, organized in November, 1882, being successors to Henry F. Gee, who succeeded George D. Hale, the latter having succeeded to the business of Hale & Smith. It will be seen that the present firm succeeded to the business of one of the oldest hardware houses in Topeka. Mr. Kitchell is a native of Olney, Ill. Mr. Marburg is a native of Frankfort-on-the-Main; first came to America in 1875, returning to Europe in 1880, remaining there until August, 1882, when he returned to the United States and located at Topeka.

H. F. KLEMP, M. D., was born in Prussia, August 6, 1835. He commenced his medical studies in Europe and continued them two years, and also received instruction in the art of mining from a professor at one of the Gymnasiums. In 1862 he emigrated to America, and after remaining a few weeks a Bellville, Ontario Co., Canada, located at Berlin, in the same county, and commenced the practice of medicine. He removed to Chicago in 1863, and the following year entered Hahneman's Medical College in that city, from which he graduated in 1867. In the fall of the same year he again commenced practice at Dwight, Ill., afterwards residing at Barton County, Mo., and Sedalia, Mo., until he came to Kansas, and located at Topeka, February, 1869, in which city he is still engaged in practice. Dr. Klemp is a scientific mining engineer and a proficient geologist, taking much pride and pleasure in both studies. He is a member, and was formerly Priest, of the Turner's Society; is a member of the State Homeopathic Medical Society, president of the State Examining Board of Physicians, and member of Western Academy of Homeopathy. He was married in Prussia in September, 1859, to Elslein Kathrina Trebbie, a native of Prussia. Their three living children are William, Paulina and Carl.

G. H. KLUSSMAN, shoemaker, North Topeka. Came to Kansas in 1858, from Indianapolis, Ind. First located at Leavenworth and worked at his trade. Was for a time foreman of State prison work at Leavenworth. Was born at Lunburg, Hanover, Germany, May 12, 1825, and came to America when eighteen years old, arriving at Cincinnati, Ohio, January 9, 1844. Went to Indianapolis in 1851 and remained until coming to Leavenworth. Mr. K. was an earnest and active anti-slavery advocate and voted with the Free-state party. Was in the Kansas State militia in 1864, in pursuit of Price. Was married in 1846 to Louisa Gans, at Cincinnati, Ohio; they have six children—Edward, George, Mary, Emma, Louisa and Julia. Edward is a farmer near Leavenworth and George is a machinist in the A., T. & S. F. shops in Topeka.

REV. JOHN D. KNOX, was born October 28, 1828, on Brook's Run, Belmont Co., Ohio, received his collegiate education in Jefferson College, New Athens, Harrison Co., Ohio, and graduated at Duff's Commercial College, Pittsburgh, Pa., in 1857. While at school he was licensed as an exhorter, February 23, 1850. Soon after leaving school was licensed as a local preacher in the Methodist Episcopal Church. In June, 1850, was admitted on trial in the Pittsburgh Conference, held at Canton, Ohio, and was appointed junior preacher on the Washington and Cambridge circuit, in Guernsey County, Ohio. In 1851, with two colleagues, he traveled the Deersville circuit, in 1852 the Cadiz circuit, and in 1853 the Butler circuit, in Pennsylvania, securing in the latter the erection of a small brick church, which the people named Knox Chapel. The little town at this point is still called Knoxville. In 1854 his field of labor was at Pittsburgh, where in common with many of his flock he was stricken with cholera. Through the years of 1855, 1856 and 1857 he was successively on the Bridgeport circuit, Ohio; at Lawrenceville station, Pittsburgh, agent for the Beaver Female Seminary, and in 1858 and 1859 in charge of the Mount Pleasant and West Newton circuits. In 1860 and 1861 he was on the Mechanicsburg circuit, in Indiana County, Pa., and in 1862 and 1863 was pastor of the Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, at Pittsburgh, Pa. In 1864 he was at Bridgewater, and in the spring of 1865 was transferred to the Kansas Conference and stationed at Topeka. He had charge of the Topeka church for three years, the society and church enjoying a high degree of prosperity under his pastorate. He also had charge of the Kansas Business College, and was elected County Superintendent of Public Instruction. In 1869 and 1870 he was appointed Presiding Elder of Fort Scott District, but resigned in consequence of ill health during the latter year. In 1871 he was elected President of the Capital Bank, in Topeka, and in 1873, made a trip to Europe in the interests of the institution. January 1, 1874, the banking house of John D. Knox & Co. was established at Topeka. They do a general banking business and purchase and sell Kansas securities, loan money and invest money for Eastern parties. They have also a savings department connected with the bank. Mr. Knox is connected actively with many societies, both secret and benevolent. He has taken eleven degrees in the Masonic Society, is past grand in the I. O. O. F. and has been chaplain in the G. A. R. He has been one of the editors of the Kansas Methodist since its start, and is now editor-in-chief. He was married April 15, 1858, in Johnstown, Cambria Co., Pa., to Mary Dibert, of Somerset County, Pa. They have eight children—David D., William C., Martha P., Mary R., Sarah E., John D., Olive B. and Florence L.

OSCAR KRAUSS, manufacturer of saddles and harness, also dealer in leather, hides, saddler's hardware and shoe-findings, North Topeka, came to Topeka in the spring of 1869, from Hamilton, Ohio. Mr. Krauss is one of the progressive men of North Topeka, and from a very humble beginning has built up a fine business. He moved into his present commodious quarters in 1871. He was born, August 10, 1847, at Rodach, southern Germany; completed a course of study at Ernestinum of Coburg, and when seventeen years of age came to America and located at Hamilton, Ohio. He was married in 1873 to Augusta Fensky, of Leavenworth. They have four children living—Leopold, George, Tony and John P. He is a member of the German-Lutheran St. John's Church, and was one of the founders and supporters of that church, and also of the promising young college of that name and denomination.

WILLIAM J. LEA, of Topeka, western manager for the Ætna Life Insurance Co. of Hartford, is of Scotch-Irish descent. He is the son of Albert Gallatin Lea and Jane (Rhea) Lea, and was born in Wilson County, Tenn. August 17, 1844. He received a partial academic course at Cherry Grove Seminary in Illinois. His father died when he was thirteen years of age, and by his death he was early thrown upon his own resources. He assisted in the support of his widowed mother and obtained a good education besides. One year after his father's death, not having a taste for farming pursuits to which he had hitherto been brought up, he bound himself as an apprentice to learn the printer's trade in the office of the Macomb, Illinois Eagle, where he remained for four years. During the last two years of his apprenticeship he became foreman of the printing office, and did much of the local editorial work on the paper. In 1860-61 he removed to Missouri, where he spent a year and then returned to Illinois. The war having broken out, August 11, 1862, he enlisted as a private in Company A Eighty-fourth Illinois Infantry. He served thirteen months as a Corporal, when he was discharged for disability April 21, 1863. Having regained his health he enlisted May 2, 1864, in Company C, One Hundred and Thirty-seventh Illinois Infantry, serving until the regiment was mustered out September 24, 1864. During his service he participated in the bloody battle of Perryville, and also the defense of Memphis during Forrest's raid. On leaving the service he resumed the printing business in Galesburg, Ill., being foreman in a printing office in that city for a year. In 1865 he removed to Kansas City, and there worked at his trade until 1868. He then went to St. Louis, where for eight months he took charge of a large job printing office. He again returned to Kansas City, where he engaged for a time as the city editor of the Kansas City Daily Advertiser. In 1870 he removed to Columbus, Kansas, and with his brother, A. T. Lea, established the Columbus Independent, the firm being A. T. & W. J. Lea. Two years later, in June, he moved to Oswego, Kansas, where he associated with F. B. McGill, and started the Oswego Independent. Six months later he sold out his interest in the paper, and entered into mercantile business with Richard Taylor. This continued for six months, when he went to Joplin, Mo., and started the Mining Journal. After six months he moved to Baxter Springs, Kansas, where he became connected with the Baxter Springs Republican. He continued in this connection until 1876, when owing to ill-health he was forced to abandon the newspaper business, and accepted a position as local agent of the land department of the Missouri River, Fort Scott & Gulf Railroad. In 1876 he became interested in the Bonanza Lead Mines, just then discovered. In 1877 he became one of the original stockholders in the Southside Town and Mining Company at Galena, being elected one of the directors and secretary of the company. He disposed of his mining interests in 1878, and afterward engaged in stock business until he became chief clerk in the office of the State Superintendent of Insurance in 1879. He held that position until the fall of 1882, when he became actively identified with the anti-St. John movement, which resulted in the organization of the anti-St. John Club of Topeka, which was one of the principal motors leading to the election of Gov. Glick. The club was organized on the motion of Mr. Lea, and he was one of the first to advance money to further the interests of the movement. Mr. Lea was educated a Democrat, but since the war and ever since he attained his majority he has been a vigorous and consistent Republican. He holds to the religious faith of the Cumberland Presbyterians. He is also an Odd Fellow and member of the G. A. R. He was married July 7, 1873, in Troy, Ohio, to Miss Mary I. Harris. They have two children—Rhea Harris and Edna Portia.

JOHN A. LEE, grocer, is a native of Hunterdon, Hunterdon Co., N. J.; resided in Knoxville, Iowa, for two years before coming to Topeka in 1859, having resided over five years in New York City prior to removal to Iowa. He enlisted in Company A, Second Kansas Volunteer Infantry in April, 1861. After five months' service the regiment was reorganized as the Second Kansas Cavalry, and he served in that regiment until the close of the war, being mustered out as Captain of Company D. He participated in all battles in which his command was engaged. He is a member of I. O. O. F., Subordinate Lodge and Encampment. Mr. Lee was married at LaSalle, Ill., to Beulah Holmes, a native of Illinois. They have three children—Beulah, Lizzie and Alexine.

MARTIN I. LEE, farmer, four and a half miles southwest of Topeka, came to Kansas in the spring of 1879, from Alton, Ill., and for two years before coming to Kansas was a jobber and importer of books and stationery at 407 Fourth street, St. Louis, Mo. Was born June 28, 1826, in Berkshire County, Mass. Remained in his native county until he was twenty-one years of age, attending school. Went to New Jersey and remained about four years, and was engaged in teaching school at Dover. On leaving New Jersey, came to Alton, Ill., and was engaged in selling books and stationery for twenty-five years. Was also secretary of the School Board, and deputy County School Commissioner for a number of years. Was married October 25, 1853, at Great Barrington, Berkshire Co., Mass., to Miss Lottie J. Crane, of that place. Is a member of the Presbyterian Church, and was elder of that church for a number of years at Alton.

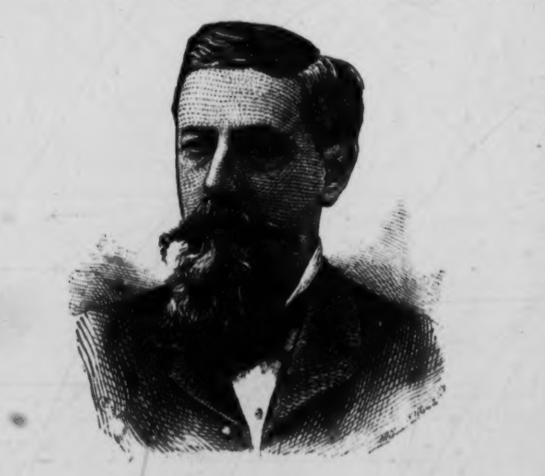
E. R. LENDBERG, restaurant, confectionery, grocery, cigars and tobacco, came to Kansas in the fall of 1867, and located at Lawrence, and worked at cabinet-making. Went to Burlington, Kansas, in 1870, and came to Topeka in 1882, and commenced business where he now is. Was born August 28, 1840, near Atvidaberg, a mining town of Sweden. Came from there to Chicago June 24, 1867. Was married in 1870 at Emporia, Kansas, to Nellie Anderson, of that place. Is a member of the Swedish Lutheran Church.

CAPT. E. S. LENFESTEY, real estate and investment agent, was born in Marion, Ind., December 25, 1841. He was educated as a lawyer, and represented his district in the Legislature of Indiana. In July, 1882, he came to Topeka, having spent about ten years in the Rocky Mountain regions, most of the time in Colorado, where he still has large interests. Mr. L. raised Company C, Twelfth Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and was commissioned Captain of the company in April, 1861, serving until June 8, 1865, two years of the time as Senior Aid-de-Camp, on the staff of Gen. Wm. B. Wood. He was in all the engagements of his command, and was slightly wounded but not disabled. He is a member of the G. A. R., I. O. O. F., and is a Royal Arch Mason. He was married at Marion, Ind., November 9, 1867, to Laura Brownlee, a native of that place. They have five children—Mary B., Emma H., John W., Wm. E. and Fred.

T. H. LESCHER, contractor and builder, shop 311 Madison street, residence 310 Monroe street, does a general contracting business. Has been in the business in Kansas twenty-six years. In 1881 business run about $40,000, and some years has run to $150,000. Had the contract for most of the work on the State University, and contracted for most of the wood-work on the west wing of the state House. Did work on Washburn College, and also on Bethany School. Has an average of twenty-five men in his employ, and at one time had seventy-five working. He came to Kansas in the spring of 1856, and located six miles southwest of where Topeka now stands. At that time the Lecompton government was in control. Was an active and earnest Free-state man, and did duty in the service in the Free-state party from Topeka to the border. Was a member of the State Militia, and the fight with Price at Westport. Lived at Lawrence sixteen years, and was on the Board of Education, and President of the School Board for five years. Was on the City Council for three years. Helped build the city after it was burned by Quantrell, and superintended two-thirds of the work. He was born at Easton, Pa., March 18, 1827. When about fifteen years of age went with his sister to New York City, remaining there until coming to Kansas. He was married in 1858, on his farm near Topeka, to Miss Augusta Wood, who was born in Kentucky, and has six children—all natives of Kansas—viz: Jessie A., now in Chicago, studying music; George M., studying surveying and civil engineering; Herman G., connected with the Capitol; Jane E., Susan C. and Theodore A.

GEORGE E. LILLIE and WILLIAM MILLIGAN, proprietors Topeka Lithographing Co., established business in this city in November, 1882. They have facilities for doing all kinds of lithographic work and have already built up a large business with the bankers and county officers of Kansas. It is certainly creditable to the capital city to have an establishment of this kind, where work of a superior character can be obtained. Mr. Lillie is a native of Edinburgh, Scotland, where he began learning the lithographing business twenty-three years ago, when only twelve years of age. He came to the United States in 1864, worked at the same business in Cleveland, Ohio, over a year, served three years in the regular army, worked a short time in Chicago, afterward in the lithographic department of Mills & Co.'s large establishment at Des Moines for a period of twelve years, then with the Western Lithographing Co. of the same city until he came to Topeka in 1882. Mr. Milligan is a native of Marysville, Union Co., Ohio. He learned the lithographing business with the firm of Mills & Co., of Des Moines, Iowa, and was with that firm several years prior to coming to Topeka in 1882.

J. P. LEWIS, M. D., was born near New Lexington, Perry Co., Ohio, December 20, 1848, and educated in the public schools and academies of that place and McConnellsville. He graduated from Ohio Medical College, Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1873, and was awarded the Dawson prize on surgery in competition with 213 students. Declining an offered position in the Cincinnati Hospital, he commenced practice in his native town, and remained there two years, removing thence to Fairfield County, Ohio, where he remained about eight years, and was then appointed assistant physician in the State Insane Asylum at Columbus, Ohio, leaving that position to remove to Topeka, in March, 1881. He was married near New Lexington, Ohio, September, 1872, to Sarah A. Brown, who died at New Lexington, in February, 1879, leaving two children—Florence Luella and Olive St. Clair. In October, 1880, he was married at Circleville, Ohio, to Mattie A. Shoemaker, of that place. They have one son—Charles William. Dr. Lewis is a member of Kansas State Medical Society, Kansas Eastern District Society and I. O. O. F., and formerly was member of Academy of Medicine of Zanesville, Ohio, the Muskingum County Medical Society, Ohio, the Perry County Medical Society, Ohio, and the Hocking Valley Medical Association.



J. P. Lewis M. D.

W. S. LINDSAY, M. D., assistant superintendent of Kansas Insane Hospital, has been connected with this institution since the opening, in June, 1879. His duties consist of immediate medical attendance on patients and general oversight of wards. Is a native of Ohio, and removed to Kansas in 1865, locating at Garnett. Practiced medicine five years before entering the institution. He is a member of the Kansas State Medical Society.

ISAAC T. LOCKARD, real estate, loan and insurance agent, has been a resident of Topeka since 1868, and during that time has been continuously engaged in real estate business, with the exception of three summers spent in the mining regions of Colorado, and one summer in New Mexico. He was born in Urbana, Champaign Co., Ohio, January 20, 1833, and lived in his native town until he moved to Kansas in 1868. He was married at Dayton, Ohio, October 6, 1857, to Nancy A. Miller, of Dayton. Mr. Lockard is a member of A. F. & A. M., Blue Lodge, Chapter, Commandery and Council; K. of H., and A. O. U. W.

J. T. LONG, dealer in meat, Kansas avenue, North Topeka, was born in Troy, Miami Co., Ohio, August 10, 1877. He lived at that place on a farm until May, 1867, when he removed to Topeka where he engaged in the livery business. He has lived in Topeka the whole time since, with the exception of two years residence at Minneapolis, Ottawa County. He was appointed on the police force and served in 1874 and 1875 in the city of Topeka. He was married to Miss Lida McKenzie, June 6, 1876. Mr. Long's father died in Ohio, October, 1854. His mother is still living on the old homestead in Ohio. Mr. Long has one brother and nine sisters living.

PROF. J. T. LOVEWELL, M. A. Ph. D., was born at Corinth, Orange Co., Vt., May 1, 1833, residing there until 1853, when he entered Yale College, where he graduated in 1857, afterwards taking Ph. D. degree from the same college. Was Instructor of Physics in Sheffield Scientific School a number of years, and was afterwards connected with the Pennsylvania State College, and State Normal School at Whitewater, Wis., which position he resigned to accept the position of Professor of Chemistry and Physics at Washburn College, which he has since held. During the past four years Prof. L. has been president of the Kansas Academy of Sciences. He was married at Hartford, Wis., in 1863, to Miss Margaret Bissell. They have two children.

LOWENTHAL BROTHERS, manufacturers and dealers in jewelry, etc., established at Topeka in March, 1880. Firm is composed of A. F. & L. M. Lowenthal, both natives of Syracuse, N. Y. where they learned the jeweler's trade, having worked at it from their youth, their father having been in the business for years. They carry a stock of about $20,000, much the largest stock in the city of Topeka. It would be difficult to find a better selected stock of watches, fine jewelry, silver and plated ware anywhere in the country. These gentlemen have a deserved reputation for fair dealing, and their patrons can depend implicitly on their representations. A. F. Lowenthal is a member of the A. F. & A. M. He has been engaged in his present business for over twelve years. Mr. L. M. Lowenthal is connected with the A. O. U. W.

C. W. LUKENS, No. 125 Lawrence street, North Topeka, was born in Kosciusko County, Ind., March, 1851, at which place he remained until the spring of 1881, when he came to Topeka and associated with his brother, J. A. Lukens, and Mr. P. Smith in the proprietorship of the Topeka roller skating rink, which is the largest west of St. Louis, being 75x150 feet. He was married in 1879 to Miss Laura A. Luce, of Wabash County, Ind.

J. A. LUKENS, of Lukens, Smith & Co., owners of skating rink on Van Buren and Seventh streets and proprietor of Lukens' Opera House, North Topeka. He was born in Wabash County, Ind., in 1847. In 1869 he came from that place to Topeka. He was educated in the schools of his native State, and there followed the profession of teaching for about seven years. At the time of his coming to Kansas, he first engaged in the hardware business, afterward became a grain dealer and then erected the opera house bearing his name. His parents both died many years ago in Indiana. One brother, C. W. Lukens, is associated with him in the ownership of the skating rink on Seventh street. They intend to change the rink during the summer into a swimming school. The Lukens Brothers are among the most enterprising and successful men of the city of Topeka.

THOMAS S. LYON, real estate and loan agent, came to Kansas in 1880, and has been in business for the past year in Topeka. He was born, March 15, 1833, at Huntingdon Furnace, Huntingdon Co., Pa. While he was an infant his parents removed to Alleghany City, Pa., where the family resided until he was eight years old, when they moved to Huntingdon Furnace, Huntingdon Co., Pa. He lived in that region until 1876, and then moved to Illinois and located in Jacksonville; remained there eighteen months, and then lived in Washington County, Ill., until he came to Kansas in May, 1880. He was married September 14, 1865, at Rensselaer, Jasper Co. Ind. to Nannie J. Wright, a native of that place. They have buried one and have two children living—Miriam H. and William M.

HON. E. P. McCABE, Auditor of State, the subject of this sketch, was born of humble parents in Troy, N. Y., October 10, 1850. His parents soon after moved to Fall River, Mass., remaining there a short time They settled in Newport, R. I., where he attended the public schools. Leaving the grammar school there, he was sent to Bangor, Me., where he continued his studies until the death of his father compelled him to assist his widowed mother in the support of a brother and sister. Drifting to New York he was employed by Messrs. Shreve & Kendrick, 35 Wall street. As in the case with all colored boys he had to make various shifts, from clerk to porter. Finding all avenues in the East closed to ambitious colored young men, he decided to follow Horace Greeley's advice to go West. Getting a clerkship with Potter Palmer, the hotel king of Chicago, in 1872 he was promoted to another in the Cook County Treasury, where he remained eighteen months. Tiring of metropolitan life he floated to Kansas May 20, 1878, locating in Graham County, one of the most sparsely settled in the northwestern tier, where in company with Abram T. Hall, Jr., of Chicago—now editor of the Conservator—he engaged in the land business with some success. As a reward for valuable services rendered in organizing the county, he was appointed first County Clerk, and afterward elected to the position, from which he was translated to Auditor of State of Kansas—one of the most significant political successes in the upward career of the race—Kansas being one of the most prosperous of the Western States. In 1880 Mr. McCabe married Miss Sarah Bryant, of Clinton, Iowa. Mr. McCabe's career is illustrative of the possibilities of self-made men, who make their impressions upon our times by sheer force of character. Mr. McCabe is still a very young man, and the successes which are possible in his life appear to us to be vast and honorable to himself and to his race. We can only hope to conquer by those qualities of head and heart by which all other men conquer.

MARGARET McCAFFERTY, proprietress of the Madison House. This house was built in 1871. The present proprietor took charge of it in 1874. It has a capacity of forty boarders, both transient and regular. Mrs. McCafferty was born in Catskill, N. Y., in 1830. Her parents, James and Eliza Gilligan, came West when she was a child, finally locating in St. Louis. She was there married, May 15, 1833, to John McCafferty, who was for a time engaged in steamboating; afterward engaged in mining and farming; living at Galena, Ill., and Fayette County, Iowa, several years; afterward moved to Clayton County, Iowa, where her husband died in November, 1870. Nine children were born to them, eight of whom are living—Rosa, James, Anton, Eliza, Maggie, Ella, Willie, and Charlie. They are all members of the Catholic Church.

L. B. McCLINTOCK, insurance, real estate and loan agent, has resided in Kansas since 1870. He was one of the first settlers of Sedgwick County, his first location being seven miles above Wichita, where he stated a little town called Park City, and remained there till 1872; then located at Hutchinson, Reno County, among the first settlers, and remained there until the spring of 1873, when he emigrated to Jackson County, and engaged in stock raising until 1875. In 1876 he went into the real estate and insurance business with Thomas L. Ross, which connection was dissolved in 1880; and he went into the above business alone in 1881. He was born at McClintockville, Pa., July 14, 1848, and lived at that place until 1865. He then moved to Newcastle, Pa., and resided there until he came to Kansas. He was married at Topeka, June 6, 1871, to Mary Emma Thompson, of Juniata County, Pa. They have three children—Nellie, Edna Irene, and Arthur Thompson.

J. W. McCLURE was born March 24, 1838, in the city of Rochester, N. Y. In the spring of 1856 he removed to Iowa, remained there a year, in Cedar Falls, and then moved to Waterloo, in the same State, where he resided about twenty years, and until he came to Topeka, in June, 1877. While in Iowa he was Deputy Treasurer and Recorder, and subsequently First Recorder. Since his residence in Topeka he has been engaged in the abstract business. Mr. McClure belongs to the orders of A. F. & A. M. and K. of P.

SAMUEL S. McFADDEN has lived in Kansas since 1857. His father pre-empted a quarter section in Franklin County, and was living there at the time of the Marais des Cygnes Massacre, not far away. The father went to Missouri at the time of the drouth, in 1860, leaving Samuel behind to take care of some cattle. The young man went to such a country school as Kansas had then and worked to pay his board. But the father was a pronounced Free-state man, and was soon compelled to leave Missouri. He left there in the night, with the smaller children and household effects in a wagon. In May, 1861, and among the first, Samuel McFadden enlisted in the Second Kansas, and served through the Missouri campaign under Lyon and Sigel, being at Wilson Creek when Lyon was killed. He was mustered out at Fort Leavenworth in October, and, in November, re-enlisted in the same regiment, which was soon changed from infantry to cavalry. Thus he served as a private soldier from the beginning of the war until April, 1865, and has two honorable discharges. McFadden was in the battles of Wilson Creek, Dug Springs, Shelbina, Old Fort Wayne, Cane Hill, Prairie Grove, Van Buren, and others of less note. He belonged to the two-gun battery of howitzers which played such an important part at Old Fort Wayne at the time the four-gun Texas Battery (afterwards Hopkin's) was captured. He received no serious wounds during four years' service as a private, and has never applied for a pension. In 1866 he was brevetted Captain "for meritorious services during the war." Capt. McFadden has been a clerk in the Adjutant-General's office, and chief clerk for the State Treasurer and State Auditor. No Judge of the Supreme Court, and no lawyer in the State, is so familiar with every law relating to our State finances as Mr. McFadden and his skill and accuracy as an accountant are unsurpassed.

N. C. McFARLAND was born seven miles south of Washington, Washington Co., Pa. April 23, 1822. He was educated at Washington College. He was an enthusiastic supporter of Henry Clay in the Presidential campaign of 1844, he stumping his native county in behalf of his candidacy. He commenced the study of law at Bucyrus, Ohio, under the instruction of Judge Josiah Scott, and became his partner at the conclusion of his studies. They removed together to Hamilton, Ohio, and the association continued until Judge Scott was elected to the Supreme bench. He was selected by Gov. Todd to act as chairman of the Butler County War Committee, in which capacity he labored faithfully to promote the cause of the Union. In 1865 he was elected by the Republican party to represent the counties of Butler and Warren in the State Senate, and was made chairman of the Judiciary Committee of that body. He was chairman of the Ohio delegation to the National Republican Convention held in Chicago in 1868. He removed to Topeka in February, 1870, and entered into the practice of the law. He was elected in 1872 to the State Senate, and became chairman of the Judiciary Committee. In 1879 he was appointed by President Hayes a member of the Ute Indian Commission, to ratify a treaty with that tribe, and in May, 1881, he was appointed by President Garfield Commissioner of the General Land Office at Washington, which position he is now holding. James M. McFarland, the only surviving child of N. C., resides in Topeka, and is Assistant Secretary of the State Board of Agriculture. He was born in Hamilton, Butler Co., Ohio, April 10, 1851. He graduated from the Miami University in the class of 1870, and moved to Topeka in June of the same year when he read law in his father's office two years. In the summer of 1874 he became Chief Clerk of the State Board of Agriculture, and was appointed Assistant Secretary in January, 1882. In August, 1882, he was appointed State Statistical Agent of the Department of Agriculture at Washington, and he performs the duties of that position in addition to those of the State Department. He was married in 1876, to Nellie M. Morris.

DR. J. McINTOSH, optician, was born July 26, 1809, in Huntingdon County, Pa., where he resided until twelve years old. His father having been killed in the war of 1812, his mother removed with her children to Owensville, Bath Co., Ky., where he resided until about twenty-three years old, working at shoemaking. He went to Terre Haute, Ind., working at his trade; was there married, in November, 1837, to Miss Margaret Bond, who was born in Sullivan County, Ind. They have six children living. In 1852 he moved to Bloomington, Ill., working at his trade until 1868. He then began the study of medicine, making a specialty of the diseases of the eye, taking a course of two years. In 1879 he moved to Kansas, locating first at Humboldt, afterwards residing in Emporia, Independence, and Parsons; engaged in the practice of his profession until 1881, when he removed to Topeka, where he has since resided. At the breaking out of the civil war he enlisted as a private in Company F, Thirty-ninth Illinois Infantry, serving in the Army of the Potomac, and taking part in the battles of Winchester, and Fair Oaks. He was detailed as Regimental Ward Master, and afterwards transferred to the General Hospital at Woodstock, Shenandoah Valley, remaining in that position until his discharge, in 1862, on account of disability brought about by exposure during the winter. He and his family are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

MAJ. F. R. McKINLAY, dealer in groceries, was born in Charleston, S. C., December 20, 1845, residing there until 1879. Was there married, May 7, 1873, to Miss Anna Eliza Levy. He held the office of School Commissioner of Orangeburg County, S. C., one term of two years, being commissioned December 14, 1872. Two years later he was commissioned Major and Engineer on the staff of First Brigade, Third Division, National Guard of the State of South Carolina, holding that position until his removal to Kansas in 1879. He began merchandising soon after his arrival at Topeka. Has since continued in business, dealing in groceries, provisions, etc , his receipts being $1,000 per month. He takes an active interest in politics. Has represented his ward in County Convention, and as an alternate to the State Convention of 1882.

JOHN A. McLAUGHLIN, gunsmith, Kansas avenue, was born in Indianapolis, Ind., September 27, 1826, and claimed that place as his residence until he moved to Kansas, in 1868. Served in the Mexican War as Orderly Sergeant, Company D, in the Fourth Indiana Infantry, under Col. W. A. Gorman, who was afterward a member of Congress from Minnesota, and Governor of that State. At the breaking out of the Rebellion Mr. McLaughlin entered the service as First Lieutenant of Company K, Eleventh Regiment of Indiana Volunteers, in which he served three months in Maryland and Virginia. He then raised a company which constituted a part of the Forty-seventh Regiment Indiana Volunteers. Was in the battle of New Madrid and other battles, under Gen. Pope. Capt. M. has in his possession the garrison flag captured by his company, which was the first to enter Fort Thompson at its capture. His command made part of the Thirteenth Army Corps, upon its organization, being in Gen. Hover's (First) Division. He took part in the siege of Vicksburg, the Yazoo expedition, the capture of Jackson and other battles under Gen. Grant, and was soon after transferred to Gen. Banks' command in Louisiana, forming part of the Nineteenth Army Corps, and took part in the various actions of that command on the Tesche and Red rivers under Franklin and Banks. Mr. McLaughlin was promoted to the rank of Major of the Forty-Seventh Regiment in the early part of 1862, and in the following winter was promoted to Lieutenant Colonel of the regiment, which he commanded most of the time until the winter of 1863-64, when the regiment re-enlisted and went home to Indiana on veteran furlough. He was then commissioned a Colonel, and went back in command of that regiment to take part in the actions resulting in the surrender of Mobile and Shreveport. Mr. McLaughlin came to Kansas in March, 1868, locating at Topeka, where he has since resided, carrying on the business of gunsmith and dealer in firearms, sporting goods, etc. He married Miss Louisa Morehouse, at Indianapolis, Ind., in 1851, and they have had seven children.

REV. PETER McVICAR, M. A., D. D., President of Washburn College, was born near Eastport, Maine, in the province of New Brunswick. He graduated from Beloit College, at Beloit, Wis., in 1856, and was employed as instructor in the same college. In 1860, he graduated from Andover Theological Seminary, and soon after moved to Kansas. The next year he was installed as Pastor of the First Congregational Church, at Topeka, occupying that position for six years. He was elected State Superintendent of Public Instruction of Kansas, in 1866, serving two terms. In 1871 he was called to the Presidency of Washburn College, a position which he still occupies.

ALBERT MAGOR, stone mason, contractor and builder, came to Kansas in 1876, and located in Topeka, from Montreal, Canada. Was born June 11, 1852, at Newton Abbot, Devonshire, England. Remained in his native town until eighteen years of age, attending school; completed English branches and business course, and went to Montreal, Canada, in 1869. Spent four years in Pennsylvania and New York, engaged in his trade, which he learned in Montreal. Last year completed a very fine residence for Capt. Winthrow, corner Tenth and Harrison. Keeps seven men employed. Was married in June, 1879, at Topeka, Kan., to Mrs. Runkel, a native of Worthington, Greene Co., Ind.; they have one child, Effie F. Is a member of First Methodist Episcopal Church, Topeka. Is a Republican.

WESLEY W. MANSPEAKER, was born in Bedford, Bedford Co., Pa., June 3, 1850, that place remaining his home until he was thirteen years of age. He then removed to Champaign, Ill., and there learning the tinner's trade, was engaged in that business until he removed to Topeka, March 1, 1874. He commenced the retail grocery business in the city immediately, and, in 1878, added the wholesale department. The business has doubled since its start, now amounting to about $150,000 per annum, and giving employment to nine men. Mr. Manspeaker was married in Sarcoxie, Jasper Co., Mo., May 1, 1870, to Teresa Brown, a native of that place. They have one child—Lulu Maud. Mr. M. is a director of the First National Bank, and a member of the A. F. & A. M., K. T., and I. O. O. F.

J. B. MARSHALL, contractor and builder, came to Kansas in 1871, from Canada West, and located in Topeka, where he has since resided. Was elected Councilman from the First ward in the spring of 1882. Was Band Master of the First Regiment Band, Kansas State Militia, which was organized in the city of Topeka in 1876, by Mr. Marshall, as a cornet band, and became attached to the First Regiment by an order of the governor, under the State Militia law, in 1879. This band took the first prize at a band tournament of the Bismark fair, in September, 1880. It was in constant demand, and furnished music for all public demonstrations in all parts of the State. They met President Hayes at Neosho Falls, at the time he visited the State in the fall of 1880, and escorted the presidential party to Leavenworth. Mr. Marshall was born February 2, 1850, in Cornwall, England. Remained in his native country until he was about sixteen years of age, attending school and working at his trade, and came with an elder brother to Belleville, Hastings Co., Canada West. Remained there working at his trade. While in Canada Mr. M. occupied part of his time with band music, being a member and cornet player of the Fifteenth Battalion Band. Was married in 1874, at Topeka, Kan., to Miss Hilda Faulk, a native of Kent, England, and has two children—Albert and Johnnie. Is a member of Kaw Valley Lodge, No. 20, A. O. U. W., Topeka, and is recorder of that lodge. Mr. M. is a heavy contractor, and employs from six to ten men.

H. T. MARTIN came to Kansas August 18, 1868. His first location was at Lanesfield, near Edgerton, in Johnson County. After remaining in that place about five years employed in farming, Mr. Martin came to Topeka in 1873, and engaged in photography, which has been his business since that time. He was born in Camden, Carroll Co., Ind., March 31, 1841. In the fall of 1861 he enlisted in Company B, Forty-sixth Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and served until September, 1865. Participated in all the general engagements of his command. At the close of his term of service he returned to Indiana, where he remained until his removal to Kansas. Mr. Martin was married in Camden, Ind., October 1866, to Mattie E. Leonard, a native of the town. They have one child—Maud M.

HON. JOHN MARTIN, one of the prominent characters of the State of Kansas, comes from a long and illustrious line of ancestors—lawyers, statesmen, public officials, soldiers. The Revolutionary War, the Mexican War, the War of the Rebellion, carried in their ranks heroic men (and women) who bore his name. One evening during the siege of Augusta and Cambridge, in the Revolutionary War, intelligence came to Grace and Rachel Martin, the wives of John Martin's great uncles, that a courier, with important messages, was to pass that night, guarded by two British officers. At the risk of their lives they waylaid the party in a dark part of the forest, through which the road passed, and so suddenly attacked them as to give them no time for thought or action. The whole party were taken prisoners, paroled and allowed to go, after giving up their dispatches, which were quickly sent by a trusty messenger to Gen. Greene. John Martin's grandfather took an active part in the Revolutionary War. Was Brigadier-General of the South Carolina State Militia, and for many years a member of the Legislature. His father was a native of South Carolina, industrious, and a man in every sense of the word. While yet a young man he moved to Tennessee, where John Martin was born, November 12, 1833, being a native of Wilson County. The boy received a good English education in the common schools near home, working at intervals on the farm. But all his aims and tastes were for political life, and he is soon found divorced from mercantile pursuits, having been appointed chief clerk in the post-office at Lebanon, Tenn. He had already commenced the study of law, under the instructions of Judge Caruthers, Professor of Law in the University. In the winter of 1854, in company with Maj. B. J. Newsom, who had materially assisted him in his law studies, the young man concluded to go to Texas, but learning from Hon. Rush Elmore, who had just been appointed one of the United States District Judges for the new Territory, that he (Judge Elmore,) intended to reside permanently in Kansas, the two concluded to make that their home. In March, 1855, they came on from Nashville with Judge Elmore. On the evening of March 31, they arrived at Kansas City and next day went to the old Methodist Shawnee Mission, taking up their quarters with Rev. Thomas Johnson, then in charge of the Indian school. Here they met Gov. Reeder, Judge Saunders, W. Johnston, Marcus J. Parrott, M. F. Conway, Silas Woodson, (then Secretary of the Territory,) and other prominent gentlemen. H. D. McMeeken was there, having just been elected a member of the Kansas Territorial Legislature. The mission was then (1855) the territorial seat of government, and the new comers met almost every public man of the Territory. On April 7, Judge Elmore and Mr. Martin went to Tecumseh, where the latter determined to locate. Mr. Martin was elected assistant clerk of the Territorial Legislature, which convened in Pawnee, July 4, 1855; commissioned County Clerk and Register of Deeds of Shawnee County in October, 1855; admitted to the bar at Tecumseh, December 3, 1856; appointed by the Board of County Commissioners, County Clerk and ex officio Register of Deeds for Shawnee County, which office he held until January 1858; appointed County Attorney in August, 1858; Postmaster at Tecumseh for 1858 and 1859; also Assistant United States District Attorney during these years; March 6, 1860, Reporter of the Supreme Court of the Territory. In 1868 and 1872 Mr. Martin was an unsuccessful candidate for State Senator and member of the House of Representatives, respectively. He was elected to a seat in the latter body in 1873 and 1874, and succeeded in founding the State Insane Asylum at Topeka. From 1861 to 1872 Mr. Martin was Chairman of the Shawnee County Democratic Executive Committee, and during the latter year was appointed Chairman of the State Executive Committee. During the same year he served as a delegate to the Democratic National Convention, and was a member of its Committee on Platform. In September, 1876, he was unanimously nominated for Governor of Kansas by the Democratic State Convention, and, although defeated, the campaign was a grand triumph for his party. In January of the same year he had received the full party vote for United States Senator. During the campaign of 1882 Mr. Martin was nominated by his party as Governor of the State, but declined to run upon the platform adopted. In conclusion it is but justice to say of Mr. Martin's political character that he consistently and firmly opposed all the ultra measures of the Pro-slavery leaders, which ultimately brought that party into such disrepute. During the Price raid he served as Orderly Sergeant of Company A, Second Regiment Kansas Militia. Mr. Martin is an Odd Fellow and a friend of education—an able lawyer; a true man. He was married November 12, 1860, to Miss Caroline Clements. They have three children—John Elmore, born October 2, 1862; Charles Clements, born October 1, 1864, and Caroline, born May 29, 1871.

W. C. MARTIN, dealer in groceries, was born in Troy, Oakland Co., Mich., March 28, 1832, living there about twenty-eight years. Was there married, October 10, 1851, to Miss Elizabeth Toms. They have five children living—Morris Eugene, Clara Minnie, Cora May, Alfred Brooks, Nettie Grace. In the early part of 1860 he moved to Kansas, locating in Osawatomie, Miami County engaging in farming, which he followed until 1877, when he entered the hotel business at Osawatomie. During the war he was in the State Militia, and helped to capture Quantrell, in one of his raids. He enlisted in Company A, Regiment Kansas Infantry, serving three years as First Lieutenant. After the war, he returned to his farm in Miami County, there holding the office of Justice of the Peace several years. He moved to Topeka in the early part of 1882, engaging in mercantile business, carrying a stock of groceries amounting to $800, and doing a business of $30 per day.

SAMUEL E. MARTIN, M. D., physician and surgeon, is one of the pioneers of Topeka, and probably the oldest resident physician in the State. On the 27th of November, 1854, he located at Lawrence, where he remained until December 25th of the same year, when he came to Topeka, and took a claim adjoining the present town site, on the west, Section 36, Township 11, Range 15, and has resided continuously since that time in the place. Dr. Martin was present, as attending physician, at the birth of Topeka Zimmerman, June, 1855, the first child born within the limits of the city; also, January 1855, at the birth of Dick Ward, son of Anthony Ward, who then lived in the little log cabin which is still standing on the farm of his widow. Dr. Martin was born at Greenville, Mercer Co., Pa., June 18, 1826. He lived in Pennsylvania until August, 1852, received his education in the schools and academies of his native State and Ohio, and graduated from the Ohio Eclectic Medical College, at Cincinnati, June 7, 1852. He commenced practice at Cussawago, Pa., where he remained three months, and then removed to Kelloggsville, Ashtabula Co., Ohio, remaining at that place until November 1, 1854, the date of his removal to Kansas. He was married at Cincinnati, Ohio, April 17 1856, to Maria M. Merrel, of that city, and daughter of William S. Merrel, one of its early pioneers. Dr. and Mrs. Martin have buried one son, William Wallace, who died at the age of two and a half years. Their living children are Mary Estelle, John Milo, and Mabel Ray. Dr. Martin was first president, and is now treasurer of the State Medical Society. He is also a member of the Eclectic Medical Association of Kansas, and of the National Eclectic Association of the United States. Besides these associations connected with the medical profession, he is a member of A. F. & A. M. Blue Lodge, Chapter, Commandery, and Scottish Rite, having filled the highest offices in the organizations. He is also a member of K. of H.

LESLIE MAXWELL, real estate, loan and insurance attorney, came to Topeka in October, 1866, and resided in the city until 1874, being engaged in real estate business during that time. He then returned to Pennsylvania, and remained there until he again came to Topeka, in September, 1880, since which time he has been engaged in real estate business, in connection with Isaac T. Lockard since August, 1881. He was born in Butler County, Pa., June 23, 1846, that place remaining his home until he came to Kansas. After his return from Pennsylvania, he was in practice at Beatrice, Neb., for two years. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church and K. of H. He was married in Austin, Ill., May 4, 1882, to Julia E. Wallace.

MAJOR GEORGE MERRILL, farmer, Section 16, P. O. Topeka; owns 120 acres, fifty-five acres cultivated, and sixty-five acres in meadow and pasture; came to Kansas in the fall of 1868, and settled near Topeka, and located on his present place in 1879. Was Receiver in the United States Land Office in Topeka, from April, 1871, until April, 1875, and has been a member of the School Board continuously since coming to Kansas. Entered the army in September, 1862, as First Lieutenant of Company G, Second Missouri Cavalry, better known as Merrill's Horse, commanded by his brother, Lewis Merrill, an officer in the Regular Army. He was on detached service continuously, acting as a Provost Marshal and Judge Advocate of the Northeast District of Missouri, with brevet rank of Major. After eighteen months' service he resigned, and went to his home in Pennsylvania. He was born in Pennsylvania, August 10, 1829; moved to Iowa in 1867, and from thence to Kansas. He was married January 23, 1856, to Miss Sarah S. Hilbish. They have five children living—James, Calvin, Katherine, Paul, and Emily; and four dead—Mary, Edward, Lillie, and George. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church.

HON. D. C. METSKER was born in Baughman Township, Wayne Co., Ohio, May 25, 1831. When he was nine years old, his parents moved to Cass County, Ind., and settled on a farm four miles from Logansport. He lived on the farm, attending the schools in the vicinity and the academy at Logansport, until the spring of 1853, when he removed to Kokomo, Ind., and was employed as a clerk in a mercantile house one year. He then commenced the study of law with Lindsey & Harrison, and was admitted to the bar in Indiana in 1856. He commenced practice in Kokomo, and continued until 1858, when he was elected County Recorder, and while holding that position was also County School Examiner two years. In 1861 he was appointed Deputy United States Revenue Collector, but in 1862, being elected Clerk of the Circuit Court, resigned the former position. He was Clerk of the Court until 1866, and from that time until he came to Kansas, in 1868, was actively engaged in practice. He located in Topeka in November, 1868, being that year contingent Elector of the Presidential ticket in Indiana. In 1872 he was elected Probate Judge, and re-elected in 1874. In 1876 he was elected State Senator, and re-elected in 1880, having been engaged more or less in the practice of his profession, from the time of his locating in Topeka until 1878. Judge Metsker was married near Logansport, Ind., in October, 1852, to Mary McDowell, a native of Ohio. Mrs. Metsker died June 23, 1882, leaving one child, Mary Edith, sixteen years of age. Another daughter, Ada B. (Mrs. F. H. Adams) died May 30, 1881. Mr. Metsker is now engaged in real estate and mining operations, the latter being principally in Colorado. He has laid off three additions to the city of Topeka, known as Metsker's First, Second and Third Additions, all being east of the original city. He has also erected many buildings in the city, and been prominent and generous in forwarding its public interests. He is a member of the A., F. & A. M., and I. O. O. F., having been through the subordinate offices of the latter, and filled all the chairs of the encampment, and grand encampment of the State.

BRADFORD MILLER, was born in Alliance, Stark Co., Ohio, August 26, 1840. He is the son of Rev. John B. Miller. He was educated at Mount Union College, Stark County, Ohio, and taught school more or less during his early years of manhood. He enlisted in May, 1862, in Company G, Eighty-sixth Ohio Volunteer Infantry, returning in October of the same year. He subsequently served until the close of the war, as Deputy Marshal of the Seventeenth Congressional District of Ohio. He was afterwards, while in Ohio, connected with the freight department of the Cleveland & Pittsburgh R. R. He first came to Kansas in July, 1868, and removed his family the following October, making Topeka his home. He engaged in the real estate business until October, 1880. He was County Commissioner four years, from January 12, 1874, to January, 1878. In March, 1878, he was appointed City Assessor of Topeka, and made the assessment of that spring. He was elected County Treasurer in November, 1879, and is the present incumbent of that office. Mr. Miller has held a long and honorable affiliation with the Masonic Order. He was, before coming to Kansas, W. M. of Alliance Lodge, No. 271, C. H. of Alliance Chapter, No. 83, and C. of G. of Alliance Council R. & S. M. He is a consistent member of the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Miller was married in Columbiana County, Ohio, March 10, 1864, to Miss Harriet M. Summers, a native of that county. They have five children—Minnie S., Henry O., Martha, Mary, and an infant son.

JOHN A. MILLER, dealer in boots and shoes, came to Kansas in March, 1871; worked as check clerk for the Kansas Pacific Railroad Company for five years, in North Topeka. M., No. 90; Eugene Lodge, I. O. O. F., No. 79, and Kansas Lodge, K. of H., No. 788. Is also a member of the Presbyterian Church of North Topeka.

REV. J. G. MILLER was born near the Rhine, in 1834, at a place called Munzinger, Prussia. His father, a shepherd, led a party of colonists to Perry County, Ind., where he purchased a large tract of land. Rev. Mr. Miller was graduated at Georgetown College, Kentucky, and then went to the University of Berlin, Prussia, where he finished his education. His father was a Roman Catholic, and disinherited his son when he became a Baptist. Mr. Miller was pastor of the Baptist Church, at Louisville, Ky., three years. He afterward moved to Missouri for the benefit of his health, and finally in 1856 he settled in Kansas, near Topeka, where he bought a tract of land known as the "Miller Farm." In May, 1859, he married Miss Nancy Jane Jackson, daughter of Rev. John Jackson, a missionary of the Baptist Southern Board, then located at Marion, Ala. At the breaking out of the war, this Mission property, through the influence of Mr. Miller and his father-in-law, was transferred to the Northern Board, and is now known as the "Bob Lee" farm. Mr. Miller is now extensively engaged in stock-raising. Soon after he came to Kansas he organized a membership and built a very neat stone church at Silver Lake. His nearest neighbors for many years were the Pottawatomie Indians, with whom he always maintained very friendly relations. When the country became settled, he was the first School Trustee, and Mrs. Miller was the first School Treasurer of this town. He became the prime mover in the organization of the Township of Dover; also the Mission Township of Dover, Shawnee County. Mr. Miller has had two children, both of whom died some years since. They now have an adopted orphan child.

M. R. MITCHELL, M. D., physician and surgeon, was born in Rush Creek Township, Logan Co., Ohio, November 10, 1835. He was educated in the public schools of his native county, and in Jefferson College, at Cannonsburg, Pa., graduating from the latter institution in 1862. In September of the same year, he enlisted in Company B, Eighty-eighth Ohio Volunteer Infantry, in which he served eighteen months, being subsequently commissioned First Lieutenant of the Twenty-seventh United States Colored Troops. After serving in that capacity about eight months, he was promoted Captain, and three months before the close of the war, raised to the rank of Major. He received a wound in the face before Petersburg, Va., shortly after the Burnside mine explosion, and was taken to the Officers' Hospital in New York. He was then in Ohio a short time, before returning to his regiment, being absent, in all, about two months. In October, 1865, he returned to Ohio, and commenced the study of medicine at Bellefontaine, and in March, 1868, graduated from the Ohio Medical College at Cincinnati. Dr. Mitchell was married at Bellefontaine, March 10, 1868, to Mary M. Fulton, of Rushsylvania, Logan Co., Ohio. They have two children, Porter M. and Clara. Immediately after his marriage, he came to Kansas and located at Leavenworth, where he remained ten months. He then removed to Fairmount, in the same county, and there remained until 1875. In January of that year he went to Topeka as a member of the State Legislature, and in June of the same year permanently settled there. He is a member of the State Medical Society, of the Eastern District Society, and of the Academy of Medicine and Surgery, being one of the charter members of the latter society. Dr. Mitchell is a member of the G. A. R., and also an exemplary member of the Presbyterian Church.

J. W. MOHLER, with the firm of Mohler & Rector, artists and photographers, was born in Indiana, July 24, 1850. When he was quite young his parents moved to Missouri. He has since resided at various places in Missouri and Illinois, following his profession of artist and photographer; came to Topeka in the early part of 1880, since which time he has been in business in the city. He enjoys a large patronage, doing a large portion of the first-class work of the city. In 1865, he enlisted at Peoria, Ill., in Company H, Third Illinois Infantry as fifer, doing garrison duty at Detroit, Mich., nearly two years. He was married in 1871 at Lamar, Barton Co., Mo., to Miss Belle Niard. They have three children living—Woodruff, Russell and Newton. He is a member of K. of P. Lodge at Nevada, Mo.

HON. RICHARD B. MORRIS, was born in Springfield, Mass., August 3, 1833; educated in the schools of his native State, employed in civil engineering as early as 1849, afterwards completing a thorough course in that profession, at one of the leading schools of that important science, becoming thoroughly skilled in the details of that branch of knowledge, afterwards following the profession of civil engineer, being connected with the construction of some of the leading railroads in New York, Connecticut, Ohio, Mississippi, Illinois, Missouri and Kansas. In the summer of 1866, he located at Atchison. During the construction of the Central Branch of the Union Pacific R. R., he acted as its general agent; for four years he was general agent of the Missouri Pacific R. R. Co., at Atchison; then for two years he was connected with the K. C., St. J. & C. B. R. R. He has an interest in a wholesale and retail hardware establishment at Atchison, at the present time. In January, 1883, he was appointed by Governor Glick, and confirmed by the Senate, for the position of Superintendent of Insurance, assuming the duties of that important office, July 1, 1883. He was a delegate to the Democratic National Conventions which convened at Baltimore and Cincinnati, and was a member of the committee, selected by the convention, to formally convey to General Hancock, notice of his nomination to the presidency. He was an alternate delegate to the St. Louis Convention which nominated Samuel J. Tilden for president. Mr Morris has been one of the most active and efficient members of the Democratic State Committee of Kansas continuously since 1870. Mr. Morris is a member of the A. F. & A. M. Blue Lodge, Chapter and Commandery; he is also connected with the K. of P., K. of H., and A. O. U. W. He was formerly a director of the Atchison Savings Bank. Mr. M. was married at Adrian, Mich., June 2d, 1859, to Mary E. Ripley, a native of New Hampshire, but reared in Springfield, Mass. They have four children—Richard H., Edward R., John B. and Mary L.

G. M. MORROW, M. D., was born in Mifflin County, Pa., December 14, 1817. He was educated at Academia, Juniata Co., Pa. He studied law one year; then began the study of medicine. In 1848 he removed to Indiana, where he resumed his studies and finished his medical education; commenced practice as a physician and surgeon in Carroll County, Ind.; remained in that State until 1869, when he removed to Shawnee County, Kansas, where he has since resided, practicing his profession. He was appointed physician of the county poorhouse, which position he held about five years. He was married May 22, 1856, to Caroline P. Mahurin. They have six children, five daughters and one son. The oldest daughter is married to Mr. L. T. Gage, Ex-Superintendent of Shawnee County schools. The other children reside with their parents. Dr. Morrow was for one year a teacher in the Institute from which he graduated.

W. A. MORTON, dealer in agricultural implements, came to Topeka in October, 1879, and until October 1, 1881, was employed in the storehouse offices of the A. T. & S. F. R. R. Co. He then purchased the business of J. E. O'Brien, and engaged in his present business, doing some jobbing but principally a retail business, handling the farm machinery made by N. C. Thompson of Rockford, Ill., and the celebrated O'Brien wagons and carriages, manufactured by O'Brien Bros. Mfg. Co. in Tiffin, Ohio. Mr. M. is a native of Paris, Ohio, but, for many years prior to his removal to Topeka, was a resident of Geneseo, Ill., having moved to that city in 1860. He was married in Geneseo, Ill., December 20, 1877, to Flora Smith.

J. H. MOSS, attorney-at-law, was born in Clermont County, Ohio, and educated in the schools and academies of that county, where he also read law, and was admitted to the bar in 1869. He enlisted in Company G, Fiftieth Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and in December, 1862, received his discharge, and entered the United States Navy in the spring of 1863. He served one year on the "Benton" as seaman, and was then made master's mate, and went on the gunboat "Ouichita" for several months. He was then promoted mate, and assigned to duty on the gunboat "Abeona," on which he served until after the close of the war, December, 1865. From that time until he came to Topeka, March, 1869, he remained at his home in Ohio, engaged in farming, attending school, and the study of law. Since his residence in Topeka he has devoted himself to the practice of law, and to literature. J. H. Moss was married at Belmont farm, originally the Lee farm, owned by the father of Gen. Robert E. Lee, Loudon County, Va., June 23, 1872, to Laura, daughter of F. P. Stanton, formerly Secretary and Acting-Governor of Kansas Territory. Mrs. Moss was born at Memphis, Tenn., her father being member of Congress from the Memphis Congressional District several terms. The three children of Mr. and Mrs. Moss are, Mabel, Ada Bessie and Stanton Cooper, all being born in Topeka.

O. B. MOSS, A. B., M. D., homeopathic physician and surgeon, was born in Niagara County, N. Y. He took the degree of Bachelor of Arts in Allegheny College, Meadville, Pa.

O. B. Moss, A.B., M.D.

His medical education was acquired at the University of Michigan—allopathic—and Cleveland Homœopathic Hospital College, graduating from the latter institution in the spring of 1870. He began practice at Ashtabula, Ohio, where he remained two years, and then moved to Zanesville, Ohio, where he was engaged in practice until 1880 when he was appointed Professor of Physiology and Microscopic Anatomy in the Cleveland Homœopathic Hospital College, which chair he filled until he resigned, November 20, 1882, for the purpose of moving to Topeka, Kan. After his resignation, the faculty adopted the following resolutions: "Resolved, That inasmuch as Dr. O. B. Moss has removed to Topeka and, owing to this change of residence, has tendered his resignation as Professor of Physiology and Microscopic Anatomy in the Homœopathic Hospital College. Therefore, we, the faculty, desire hereby to express our regret at his removal and resignation, sundering, as they do, pleasant personal and professional relations. Resolved, That we fully endorse Dr. Moss as an able teacher and a skillful and honorable physician, and cordially recommend him to the confidence of the citizens of Topeka and the fellowship of the profession. N. Schneider M. D., Dean; W. A. Phillips, M. D., Registrar."

D. A. MOULTON, cashier of the First National Bank, is a native of Ironton, Ohio, and spent his early years in that place. He was for a time engaged in fire insurance business in Cincinnati, Ohio, as adjuster, and was afterward connected with the First National Bank at Ironton, Ohio, for about seven years, severing his connection with the bank for the period of one year, to act as secretary and treasurer of the Crescent Rolling Mill Co., at Pomeroy, Ohio. In July, 1881, Mr. Moulton came to Topeka with a view of organizing a national bank. Becoming satisfied of the advantages which Topeka possessed as a business center he reported to Eastern capitalists, and after a visit to the East, returned to Topeka in December, 1881, and in connection with others, made arrangements which resulted in the organization of the First National Bank, which was opened for business, March, 1882. Mr. Moulton was married at Ironton, Ohio, March 9, 1875, to Alice H., daughter of George Willard, a banker of Ironton.

JOAB MULVANE, was born in New Comerstown, Ohio, and lived in his native town until he was about eighteen years of age, when he moved to Princeton, Ill., and engaged in farming and in mercantile pursuits—first in dry goods and later in hardware business. In 1873-74 he was a member of the Illinois State Legislature. In May, 1875, he located at Topeka, having been for some three years a stockholder in the Topeka Bank. Soon after his arrival, he was made one of the bank directors, which position he still retains. He has always been largely interested in farming and stock-raising, and owns much land in Shawnee County. Mr. Mulvane is president and general manager of the Kansas

Co., treasurer of the Topeka Telephone Exchange, treasurer and director of the State Fair Association, a director of the Elk & Chautauqua R'y Co., a director of the Burlingame Coal and Mining Co., and a member of the board of directors of the Osage County Bank. He was married near Princeton, in Bureau Co., Ill., to Sarah A. Ross, of Tuscarawas County, Ohio. Mr. and Mrs. Mulvane have five living children, a little daughter, Hattie F., dying at the age of four years. Their remaining children are—Xenia Adelia, David W. (now a student at Yale College), William J., Maggie and John J. Mr. Mulvane is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and was one of the building committee that had superintendence of the erection of the new church structure.

JOSEPH A. MUNK, M. D., physician and surgeon, is a native of Columbiana County Ohio. He was born near Georgetown, November 19, 1847, and was a resident of Alliance, Ohio, from his early youth. He acquired his literary education at Mount Union College, Ohio, and graduated from the Eclectic Medical Institute of Cincinnati, Ohio, February, 1869. He commenced the practice of medicine at Lindsey, Ohio, and after a residence of two years at that place removed to Chillicothe, Mo., where he remained ten years, and from there came to Topeka in April, 1881. During that time he was elected president of the Missouri Eclectic Medical Association and vice-president of the National Eclectic Medical Association. In 1864 he enlisted in Company I, One Hundred and Seventy-eighth Ohio Volunteer Infantry, being the first recruit in his company, and was mustered out in July, 1865. In January, 1873, Dr. Munk was married near Webster, Westmoreland County, Pa., to Emma S. Beazelle, of Webster. Their only child, a daughter, died in infancy. The doctor has been a contributor to the Eclectic Medical Journal of Ohio, and the American Medical Journal of Missouri for the last ten years, and also contributes articles on hygienic and sanitary topics to the home papers.

L. H. MUNN, M. D., is a native of Springfield, Mass., son of Curtis E. Munn, Captain and Surgeon U. S. A., now stationed in New Mexico. L. H. Munn was educated at Notre Dame College in Indiana, and at the Institute of Technology of Boston, Mass., three and a half years at the former institution and about two years at the latter. While in Boston he made special study of Chemistry, Botany, Physics, and Civil Engineering. He is a graduate from the Medical Department of the Iowa State University and also from the Bellevue Hospital Medical College of New York. He was Acting Assistant Surgeon in the U. S. A. for over a year and a half. In June, 1882, he came to Topeka. After being alone in practice about three months, he formed a partnership with Dr. J. C. McClintock, with whom he is now associated. Dr. Munn is a member of the Eastern Kansas District Medical Society and of the Topeka Academy of Medicine and Surgery.

JOHN R. MULVANE, was born in New Comerstown, Tuscarawas County, Ohio, July 6, 1845. He is the eldest son of David and Mary Ross Mulvane. His paternal grandfather, John Mulvane, a Scotch-Irish farmer, emigrated from North Carolina to Ohio, and located near Newcomerstown, while the Delaware Indians were still there. He was a soldier of the Republic in the war of 1812. Mary McCune Mulvane, his grandmother, was a daughter of Ensign James McCune, a Scotchman, who also was a soldier of the war of 1812. He received from the government a patent for 112 acres of land, the reward of military service. This farm has remained in the family for three generations, and is now owned by the youngest sister of J. R. Mulvane, who also has the old parchment patent. The maternal grandfather was Rev. William Ross (a native of Cork, Ireland), who was sent from Philadelphia to the wilds of eastern Ohio as a Methodist missionary to the Indians. He lived here over forty years, when he emigrated to Ohio, Bureau Co., Ill. He died at the ripe age of ninety-seven years, having fought the good fight of an earnest disciple of our Lord Jesus. The maternal grandmother, Jane Whitaker Ross, daughter of James Whitaker, of Westchester County, Pa., is a sister of the Whitakers, of Philadelphia; James Whitaker, of the old Arkwright Cotton Mills, of the firm of Seifurt, McManus & Co.; Joseph, of the Phœnixville Iron Works; and George P., of Principio furnaces, of Cecil County, Md. David Mulvane, his father, was a farmer boy. He worked on the Ohio Canal, handled a wheelbarrow and shovel, and drove an ox team. He was afterward a farmer, merchant and manufacturer, and died January, 8, 1877, in his native town, at the age of seventy-two, leaving five sons and two daughters. His mother, Mary Ross Mulvane, still lives, hale and hearty, in the little village of New Comerstown. John R. Mulvane, when a boy, learned the tanner's trade in his father's establishment, and in his seventeenth year entered his father's general merchandise store, and followed merchandising in the town of his nativity till 1865, when he located in Princeton, Bureau Co., Ill., and there engaged in merchandising. His health failing, in 1867 he sold out and spent parts of 1867 and 1868 with his wife, also in poor health, at Kenosha Water Cure, Kenosha, Wis. While here, he made the acquaintance of Col. G. W. Veale, of Topeka, Kan., and being pleased with the account he received of this country, came to Topeka, Kan., in the winter of 1868-69, where he still resides. He is president of the Topeka Bank, and connected with several minor enterprises, as the Missouri & Kansas Telephone Co., Topeka City Railway, etc. With his brothers, Hon. Joab Mulvane and D. A. Mulvane, he is engaged in farming and stock-raising. John R. Mulvane was married to Miss Hattie N. Freeman, a teacher in the schools of New Comerstown, daughter of Rev. E. W. Freeman, a Baptist minister, on July 16, 1857.

E. D. MYERS, of the firm of Myers Bros., confectioners and bakers, came to Kansas in 1870, from Washington, Davis Co., Ind., and has been in business in Topeka ever since. Harvey's Company of Free-state men of Lawrence, and was with them at the engagements at Hickory Point, September 14, 1856, where they captured a body of North Carolinians, using cannon to dislodge them from a log house and blacksmith shop; but his company was captured the same night by United States Cavalry under Col. George P. Cooke, who turned them over to the border ruffian authorities at Lecompton, and they were kept some time in jail at Tecumseh, but he being in charge of the wounded made his escape. Mr. Palmer was born in Washington County, Ohio, February 8, 1831; moved to Iowa in 1855 and from there to Kansas. Married December 23, 1858, to Miss Martha Ann Harris. They have two children, James B. and Jessie Fremont. February 9, 1873, his wife died; he was married again November 22, 1877, to Miss Arabelle J. Eaton. Mr. Palmer is a member of the I. O. O. F., and also of the Patrons of Husbandry.

GEORGE PALMER, undertaker, was born in the parish of Westonzoyland, Bridgewater, Somersetshire, England, March 1, 1847. He left home for America, February 18, 1868; resided one year in Waukegan, Lake Co., Ill., then removed to Chippewa Falls, Wis., where he remained until November, 1871, when he first came to Kansas, locating at Augusta, Butler County; after about one year's residence there he returned to Europe, spending about six months visiting friends and relations in England and Wales; May 15, 1873, he came to Topeka, and this has been his home since that time. He was married in this city, May 20, 1874, to Cordelia Frost, a native of England, born in Kent, near the city of London. They have one child, Paul. Mr. Palmer is a member of the A. F. & A. M., Blue Lodge, Chapter and Commandery; he is also connected with the Foresters and St. George Societies; he has been connected with the business of an undertaker ever since his youth; his ancestors for over 200 years having carried on the same business. He carries much the largest stock in Kansas, largely supplying the smaller dealers of the State; he is generally known in Kansas as George B. Palmer, he having adopted the middle letter "B." to avoid confusion which ensued on account of several gentlemen of the name George Palmer, living at Chippawa Falls, while he was a resident of that place. At the beginning of this sketch, we give the name as it is registered in the parish church of his native place.

LUTHER PALMER, farmer, Section 14, P. O. Topeka. Came to Kansas in the spring of 1857, and first located in Williamsport Township. Came to this place in 1877. Has been Constable and member of the school board. Was in the State militia during the Price raid and in the Locust Grove fight in Missouri, and captured, but made his escape three days after. He was born in Washington County, Ohio, April 27, 1829. Moved to Iowa in 1855, and came from there to Kansas. He was married March 29, 1855, to Miss Lydia L. Chapman. They have five children living—Maggie L., Horace G., Olive M., Charles S., Julia R. Two children dead—Mary J. and Laura A. Mr. Palmer is a member of the I. O. O. F. Is also a member of the Universalist Church.

CHARLES W. PARKS, retired, was born in Grafton, Vt., August 21, 1823; removed to Adrian, Mich., in the spring of 1844, where he resided for twelve years, and where, in April, 1851, he married Miss Mary Gilmar.; from here he removed to Bryan, Ohio, where he continued to reside until his removal to North Topeka in 1866. At the time of his arrival in Kansas, the Kansas Pacific Railway was in process of construction, and the men came into North Topeka every night from the end of the track; one train a day, consisting of one passenger and one baggage car, ran to this point from Kansas City. Mr. Parks built and occupied the first house completed in North Topeka; some of the lumber used in it costing him $105 per thousand feet; it had to be hauled by wagons from Leavenworth. Mr. Parks conducted a hotel or boarding house and restaurant, furnishing meals for the train, etc., and also worked for four years in the freight department of the railroad; continued in the boarding business until the fall of 1882; was a member of the school board for seven years, and a member of the Topeka City Council four years. To cast his first vote in Kansas he had to go to Indianola, as there was no voting place in North Topeka; the river was crossed by a pontoon bridge, which had to be taken up every time of high water. The first school in North Topeka had only eight pupils. Mr. Parks has been a witness of the whole growth of North Topeka, and of Topeka from a very small village to a very flourishing city of 25,000 inhabitants. He has one child, Adelbert W., born July 6, 1852, now married and residing at North Topeka, and engaged as train dispatcher for the A. T. & S. F. R. R.

G. F. PARMELEE, was born in Almond, Allegany Co., N. Y., May 2, 1842. He resided in Allegany and Chautauqua counties until the breaking out of the war, when he enlisted in the army and served as Commissary Sergeant of the One Hundredth and Twelfth New York Volunteer Infantry for a year, and for nearly the same time in the Paymaster's department of the Army of the Mississippi. In 1863 he went to St. Louis where he was employed in a bank until he came to Topeka in the spring of 1872 and engaged in banking and loan business. Mr. Parmelee became vice-president of the National Loan and Trust Co. in 1875, and at the death of Mr. Haywood in 1878, became president, and still holds that office; besides the care of his banking business, Mr. Parmelee gives much attention to the interests of his large farm property, and deals in real estate to some extent. He is a director of the Tom Moore Mining Company; a director and secretary of the Topeka Library Association, and secretary and director of the Topeka Land and Water Power Company.

During the war Mr. P. was in the employ of the Government in the Quartermaster's department, as Wagon Master, freighting in Missouri, Arkansas, Kansas and Colorado.

R. P. PAY, carriage and ornamental painter, was born in Dover, England, August 26, 1835; the following year came to America with his parents and settled in Watertown, N. Y., where he lived until 1849; he then came West and located in Madison, Wis., after two years came to Woodstock, Ill., and was married to Mrs. Ellen M. Dean, on the 20th of November, 1856, who had one daughter, Annette M. They have one son, Frank G. In August, 1862, Mr. R. P. Pay enlisted at Marengo, Ill., in Company A, Ninety-fifth Illinois Infantry serving three years and four months; during that time he was transferred to the Forty-seventh United States Colored Infantry, holding the position of Quartermaster Sergeant, at the close of the war he was discharged by general order; he then returned to his home in Marengo, Ill., where he resided until 1866; he then went into the employ of Garrett & Lewis, Chicago, as foreman of the painting department of their carriage manufactory, remaining two years; he then moved to Topeka, doing business for himself two years, and then going into the employ of the Atchison Topeka & Santa Fe R. R.; he is a member of the Topeka Lodge No. 11, A. O. U. W.; and of Lincoln Post No. 1, G. A. R., at Topeka.

W. W. PHILLIPS, came to Kansas April 23, 1855, and located at Brownsville (now Auburn); he was engaged in farming until June, 1861 when he became Deputy Postmaster, and was also employed as clerk in the store of Dr. C. C. Moore, at Auburn; he was elected County Assessor in the fall of 1862 which office he held during 1863 and 1864, at the same time attending to outside business; in the fall and winter of 1864 he was clerking in Topeka, and in 1865-66 was partner with his brother-in-law, Mr. Brown of Auburn, in a general merchandise store. He afterward returned to Topeka and in the spring of 1868 engaged in the hardware business; the firm being T. H. Whitmer & Co. He was a member of this firm until 1873, with his brother D. W. Phillips. He carried on a farm during the summer of 1874, and in the fall commenced the grocery business under the firm name of Phillips Bros., which continued five years; since the spring of 1880 he has been associated with T. L. Stringham in real estate business. Mr. Phillips is a native of Guernsey County, Ohio; his youth was spent in Seneca Township in that county.

GEORGE R. PECK, son of Joel Munger and Amanda (Purdy) Peck, and a descendent of Wm. Peck, one of the founders of New Haven, Connecticut, was born in Cameron, Steuben Co., N. Y., May 15, 1843. He is the youngest of a family of ten children, seven of whom are living: Oscar D., Charles B., Eveline H., Adelaide C., Mary E., and Helen A. When he was about six years of age, his parents removed to Wisconsin, and settled on a farm in Palmyra, on which George spent the remainder of his boyhood, attending the common schools of the town during the fall and winter until he was sixteen. He then commenced teaching, studying in the meantime, and a year later was prepared to enter college. He remained a student in Milton College, Wisconsin, three terms, teaching during his vacations. He relinquished the idea of entering an Eastern college, to enlist, under the call for 300,000 additional volunteers in the First Wisconsin Heavy Artillery, in which he served three months. He was then promoted to First Lieutenant of Company K, Thirty-first Wisconsin Volunteers Infantry, and to Captain of same Company in June 1864, remaining in that position until he was mustered out in July, 1865. At the close of the war he returned to Wisconsin, and commenced the study of law in the office of Hon. Charles G. Williams, of Janesville, Wisconsin. He was elected clerk of the Circuit Court in the fall of 1866, and served two years, completing his law studies during that time. After practicing in Janesville about three years, he moved to Independence, Montgomery Co., Kan., in the fall of 1871, and was appointed United States District Attorney, by President Grant, January 14, 1874, being re-appointed by President Hayes, after serving four years. Soon after his appointment as United States District Attorney, Mr. Peck moved to Topeka, and formed a partnership with Thomas Ryan, afterward member of Congress from the Third District of Kansas. Mr. J. B. Johnson was subsequently admitted to the firm, which then became Peck, Ryan & Johnson. Mr. Peck was married in 1866 to Miss Belle Burdick, of Janesville, and daughter of R. S. Burdick of that place. They have three children—Mary E. (adopted), Isabel and Charles B.

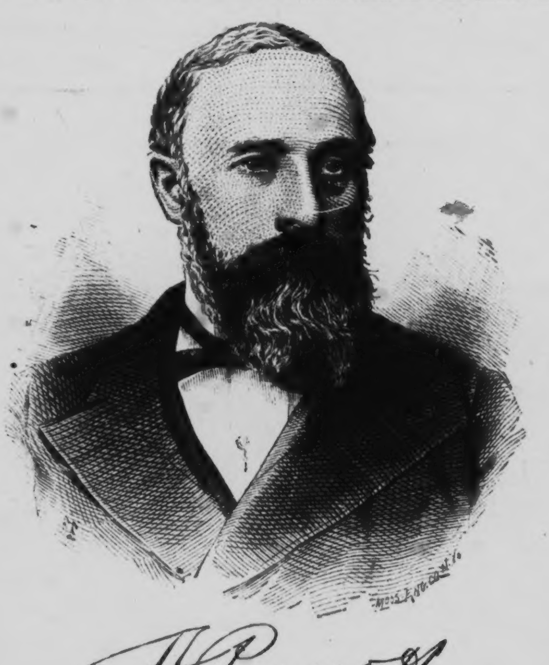
G. H. PICARD, M. D., was born in Cleveland, Ohio, August 3, 1850; resided there until he came to Topeka in July, 1869. He graduated from the Ohio Medical College, of Cincinnati, in February, 1866. He served three years as County Physician of Shawnee County, and during the same period he was City Physician of Topeka. He is a member of the American Medical Association, Kansas State, Eastern District, and of the Shawnee County Medical Societies.

AUSTIN H. PIETY, general agent of the Hartford Life and Annuity Co., Safety Fund Department, came to Topeka, February 3, 1882, and has been engaged in his present position since his arrival. He was born at Terre Haute, Ind., August 9, 1839, and lived there until April, 1861, when he enlisted in Company E, Thirty-first Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and at the battle of Shiloh, April 6, 1862, was wounded and for a time incapacitated for active service. In the spring of 1863, he was transferred to the Seventh Indiana Cavalry, and after serving as a private three months was promoted to Sergeant Major of the regiment, and eleven months later was made Second Lieutenant of Company G. He was then detailed as Aid de Camp on the staff of Gen. Grierson; after serving in that capacity three months, he was promoted Captain of his company, and he retained that rank until he resigned, August 19, 1865. Towards the close of his service he was promoted Major, but owing to the fact that his regiment had been depleted below the minimum number required by Government, he never served as such. He returned to Indiana on leaving the army, and was engaged for eleven years in selling agricultural implements to dealers. He then became connected with the Adams & French Harvesting Machine Co., and had charge of their business in Kansas, Missouri and Texas, until 1879. He subsequently served two years as Deputy U. S. Marshal in Indianapolis, Ind., and Louisville, Ky., and then engaged in the employ of the Life Insurance Co. which he now represents, being located at Sedalia, Mo., and engaged in special werk until he came to Kansas, where he now has control of the business of the company in Kansas and Nebraska. Mr. Piety is a member of the A. O. U. W. and the G. A. R. He was married to Almeda M. Howe, a native of Minneapolis, Minn., July 14, 1877. They have one child, Roscoe C. He is the father of six children by a former marriage: William H., Mollie M., Cora A., Ulysses S., Lulu and Robert.

J. W. PLUMMER, was born in Marion County, Ind., March 18, 1840. When he was three years old his parents moved to Eaton, Preble Co., Ohio, where he remained until 1868, except during a period of about sixteen months, while he was in the army. He enlisted in Company H, Third Indiana Cavalry, and served in that regiment twelve months, when he was discharged on account of sickness, and after recovery re-enlisted in Company D, One Hundred and Fifty-sixth Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and served until expiration of term of service. In September, 1868, he removed to Topeka, and engaged in carpenter and joiner work, which he continued about seven years, and from that time until November, 1881, was engaged in farming. In November, 1881, he formed a partnership with M. M. Eaton and Mr. Callahan, and has since that time been in grocery business. He was married near Eaton, Ohio, December 14, 1865, to Ann Bloomfield, a native of that place. Their son, Eddie, died at the age of two years, and they have one child living, Bessie Viola. Mr. Plummer is a member of the Presbyterian Church, of I. O. O. F., and G. A. R.

C. B. POWELL, of the firm of Watt & Powell, manufacturers of and dealers in boots and shoes, North Topeka, came to Kansas with his parents when one year old, in 1861, and his father located on a homestead, about six miles from Topeka. Mr. Powell commenced as a clerk in a store, and was in the employ of the A., T. & S. F. R. R. Co. for about two years; went into present business January 1, 1882; was born February 23, 1860, in Jackson County, Mo.

A. PRESCOTT, president of the Central Bank of Kansas, came to Kansas in February, 1872, locating in Topeka the following fall. September 1, 1874, the loan and brokers office of Prescott & Prescott was established, of which A. Prescott was senior partner. In January, 1876, F. M. Prescott retired from the firm, and in April of the same year Willis Norton became a partner. The name of the firm was then changed to A. Prescott & Co., and the banking business commenced August 1, 1876. Later, P. I. Bonebrake, George R. Pick, E. B. Prescott, and William B. Strong acquired an interest in the house. The Central Bank of Kansas, of which A. Prescott is president, was chartered January 4, 1882. Mr. Prescott was formerly a member of the grocery firm of F. M. Prescott & Co., of North Topeka; was one of the builders, and for a time was one of the directors, of the City R. R.



MOSS ENG. CO. N.Y.

A. Prescott

Co. He is also one of the Sherman Stone Crushing Co., and one of the proprietors of the Topeka Omnibus and Transportation Co. He is a native of Cheshire County, N. H.

F. M. PRESCOTT, treasurer of the Bank of A. Prescott & Co., incorporated, came to Topeka in July, 1874, and about a month later engaged in banking, being associated with Addison Prescott. He continued in that business until January, 1876 and then engaged in the grocery business at several points in Colorado and New Mexico, and, two years later, in North Topeka. He remained in this business until January, 1882, and the following July, became actively connected with the banking house of A. Prescott & Co., incorporated, as treasurer. Mr. Prescott is a native of East Jeffrey, Cheshire Co., N. H. He removed with his parents, in 1856, to Prairie City, Ill., and resided there until he came to Topeka, in 1874. He was married in Topeka, September 21, 1875, to Allie McClure, a native of Mt. Pleasant, Henry Co., Iowa. They have three children: Frances Pearl, Benjamin McClure and Mabel Rose.

SALMON S. PROUTY, son of Stephen and Sarah Almira (Willard) Prouty, was born in Van Buren, Onondaga Co., N. Y., July 31, 1835. He received a common school education, and at the age of sixteen years entered the office of the Phœnix Gazette, at Phœnix, Oswego Co., N. Y., as an apprentice to the printer's trade. Having thoroughly learned his trade, he removed to Illinois, and in February, 1856, became a partner of Simeon Whiteley in the publication of the Aurora Guardian, a Republican paper which had been established by his partner at Aurora, Ill., several years before. The partnership was of short duration. In June, 1856, young Prouty, under the inspiration of Gen. James H. Lane, who addressed an immense mass meeting on Kansas affairs in Chicago, joined a company of Kansas emigrants and set out for the then exciting field of strife. The party was the same that ascended the Missouri on the "Star of the West," and was turned back by the Missouri brigands, who had at that time established a blockade of the Missouri River to all Free-state emigrants. Mr. Prouty on the discomfiture of the party, went to St. Louis, where he worked at his trade for a few months, awaiting a more auspicious time to enter the promised land. In the fall of 1856 he joined another Kansas party, destined for the Territory by the more northern road through Iowa, afterwards known as Lane's Route. The company rendezvoused at Mount Pleasant, Iowa, from which point they started for Kansas September 25. On reaching the Kansas border, October 10, they were arrested by Col. Philip St. George Cooke, as a part of the expected army of Lane, and conducted to near where North Topeka now is, where, after an interview with Gov. Geary, they were released from arrest. Soon after Mr. Prouty's arrival he located upon a claim in Douglas County, three miles south of Prairie City, and during the winter of 1856 and '57, worked in the printing office of the Herald of Freedom, Lawrence, of which Hon. Preston B. Plumb, now a United States Senator from Kansas, was then the foreman. He soon became known as one of the most fearless and outspoken Free-state advocates of the time. June 25, 1857, he issued the first number of the Freemen's Champion, at Prairie City. Its publication was continued for about one year, during which time some forty numbers were issued. It was a radical and uncompromising Free-state paper, having for its motto, which it certainly lived and died by, "Liberty or death." He was the first Free-state Clerk and Register of Deeds of Douglas County, to which office he was elected in October, 1857. He held these offices until March, 1859, at which time he resigned, with the intention of establishing a paper in the then new mining region about Pike's Peak, at El Paso, now Colorado City. He issued the prospectus of the El Paso Miner, but promised assistance in the enterprise not being forthcoming, the paper never appeared. In September, 1859, he commenced the publication of the Neosho Valley Register, at Burlington, Coffey County. He ran the paper until June 21, 1862, at which time he entered the service, being commissioned by Secretary Stanton as Regimental Quartermaster of First Regiment of Indian Home Guards. His arduous and faithful services during the succeeding two years are detailed in the military history of the State and in the history of Coffey County. At the close of his army services he returned to Burlington and started the Kansas Patriot, which is still one of the leading papers of the State. His connection with this paper ceased in January, 1869, at which time he was chosen State Printer, being the first elected to that office, which had been recently created. He held the office for four years, being re-elected in 1871. On his removal to Topeka, where the duties of his office required him, he again became interested in journalism. May 1, 1869, in connection with Maj. J. B. Davis, he issued the first number of the Kansas Daily Commonwealth. This paper now, and ever since its establishment, is the leading Republican journal of Kansas. It remained under his editorial management until August, 1873. Since that date, and up to the present time, he has been engaged in literary and journalistic pursuits, being, from October 1, 1877, to November 1, 1881, the editor and publisher of the Junction City Union. During Mr. Prouty's long and honorable career in Kansas his fellow-citizens have testified to his worth by the bestowal of many offices of trust and honor. He was State Printer four years, 1869 to 1873; Director of the State Normal School, Emporia, four years, 1866 to 1870; and has held numerous other offices of trust. He was one of the Republican delegates to the Chicago National Convention which nominated Gen. Grant for President in 1868. He has also been identified with the development of the railroad system of the State, as appears in the general history. His acknowledged literary and journalistic ability has placed him among the foremost editors and writers in the State; and his long identification with the many enterprises looking to the development and progress of the State, marks him as one of Kansas's staunchest friends, and as one of the people's most disinterested benefactors. Mr. Prouty was married at Lawrence, Kas., May 31, 1858, to Miss Hannah Maria Whitehead, a native of New Jersey. They have had eight children—Anella, born February 19, 1859, graduated at the college of the Sisters of Bethany, Topeka, and married Capt. Isaac Seymour in June, 1879, now a resident of Brainerd, Minn.; Franklin Greeley, born May 29, 1861; Efa, born December 23, 1862, died July 7, 1864; Sarah Eva, born April 25, 1865, married November 1, 1882, to Fred A. Healy; Bertha, born February 14, 1867; Mina, born October 16, 1870; Edna, born June 5, 1873; Lena, born September 23, 1876.

A. B. QUINTON, was born in Lee County, Iowa, January 26, 1855, and received his collegiate education at the Michigan University, at Ann Arbor, Mich., taking a select course in the Literary department, and graduating from the Law department in March, 1876, locating for practice the same year at Topeka, where he was married January 25, 1882, to Georgie H. Hoffman, a native of Rochester, N. Y.

SILAS RAIN, was born in Holmesburg, now part of Philadelphia, Pa., March 5, 1826, and in 1836 removed to Ohio and located at Piqua, where his parents still reside. In 1848, he went to Elkhart, Ind., and engaged in tailoring for a time, and subsequently kept hotel at Goshen and Laporte, until he removed to Kansas in the spring of 1869. Mr. Rain pre-empted the last piece of government land left in Shawnee County, and engaged in farming for about six months, and in 1871 located at Topeka and opened a livery business on the north side of Sixth avenue, continuing his business in that location until October, 1876. He is now on the south side of the same avenue, and engaged in the same business, having built in 1882 a fine and complete brick stable, with all modern conveniences for the comfort and safety of the horses. Mr. Rain was married at Elkhart, Ind., June 22, 1850, to Minerva A. Snow, a native of Chautauqua County, N. Y. They have buried both their children, Frank and Ella. Frank died in 1861, aged two and a half years, and Ella R., wife of George W. Crane, died April 13, 1881, aged twenty-seven years and nearly three months.

B. F. RAWSON, of the firm of Rawson & Smith, grocers, North Topeka, was born in Kalamazoo, Mich., November 17, 1836, that being his home until 1868. During the period prior to this date, however, he served in the army and visited California. He served in the army with honor until the close of the war, contracting disease while in the service from which he has never recovered. From 1865 to 1868 he lived in Boston, Mass., most of the time, being there to recruit his health. He has traveled extensively through the States and Territories, visiting Pike's Peak, Col., and many other Rocky Mountain points in 1854, going to California the same year. He moved to North Topeka in the spring of 1868, having been married that spring to Miss C. E. Spaulding, of Hancock, N. H. Mr. R. was successfully engaged in farming until he sold out in May, 1882. At that time he engaged in his present business, which is proving very successful under his able management. He has been a member of the A. F. & A. M. since 1867. He is also a member of the G. A. R., and is a Good Templar and a Universalist.

J. W. REDDEN, M.D., was born at Bridgeville, Sussex Co., Delaware, August 30, 1834. He received his education at the academy at Georgetown, in his native county, and at Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa., and pursued his medical studies at Jefferson Medical College, from which he graduated in March, 1857. In August of the same year he removed to Wapella, De Witt Co., Ill., where he resided for three years. He then removed to Shawneetown, Gallatin Co., Ill., making that his home until 1879. During the war he had charge of the Post Hospital of the Fifty-sixth Illinois Infantry, and the Sixth Illinois Cavalry, before those regiments entered actual service, and was for several days on the field at Pittsburg Landing after the battle. Dr. Redden came to Topeka in May, 1879, and about three months after his arrival formed a partnership with Dr. D. C. Jones, which continues at the present time. He is a member of the Kansas State Medical Association, of the Eastern District Medical Society, and of the Topeka Academy of Medicine and Surgery. He also belongs to the I. O. O. F. and the A. O. U. W., being one of the select knights of the latter Order. Since coming to Topeka he has invested quite extensively in real estate. He is a director and vice president of the First National Band of Topeka, and also a director and vice president of the Topeka Land Company. He was married at Shawneetown, Ill., June 4, 1861, to Emma L. Jones, a native of that place, and daughter of John T. Jones, a banker. They have three children—Miriam, Ruth and Lee.

C. B. REED, dentist, located in Sterling, Rice Co. Kan., October, 1878, whence he removed to Topeka, in May, 1881. He was born in Fairmount, Marion Co., W. Va., May 17, 1857, and resided in his native town until the fall of 1870, when he removed to Peoria, Ill., and from that place to Sterling, Kan. Mr. Reed has been engaged in the study and practice of dentistry since 1872. He is a member of the Kansas State Dental Society, and A., F. & A. M.

GEO. W. REED was born in Portland, Me., December 12, 1844. He was educated in the public schools of his native city. At the age of seventeen he left school and enlisted as a soldier in the Fourteenth Regiment of Maine Infantry. He followed the fortunes and dangers of his regiment, as a brave young soldier should—with Gen. Butler to New Orleans, then under Sheridan through his brilliant and arduous campaigns in the Shenandoah Valley. His term of three years having expired, he was discharged in January, 1865. He afterward enlisted in Hancock's First Corps, and received his final discharge from army service, April 16 1866. Returning to civil life, he engaged in mercantile business in Portland until 1871, at which time he removed to Chicago, and engaged for a time in the real estate business. While a resident of that city, he first became interested in the publishing and journalistic business. He published two magazines, and, for a season was the publisher of the Chicago Weekly Globe. While a resident of the city he gained the confidence of the citizens and his party (Republican), and was elected a representative to the Illinois Legislature of 1876-77, from the Fourth Assembly District, within the limits of the city of Chicago. In the summer of 1877, he came to Topeka, where he has since made his home, having become successfully identified with the journalism of the State. He bought, February 28, 1878, the Topeka Blade, which, under its new name, The State Journal, through his able management has become one of the leading daily journals of the State. Mr. Reed married Miss Lillie W. Scagell, of Portland, Me., September 27, 1869. They have four living children—Geo. W. Jr. (born in Portland, Me., Feb. 9, 1871), Willie (born in Chicago, Ill., June 8, 1875), Grace Frances (born in Topeka, Kan. January 15 1879) Hazelle (born in Topeka Kan., July 11, 1881).

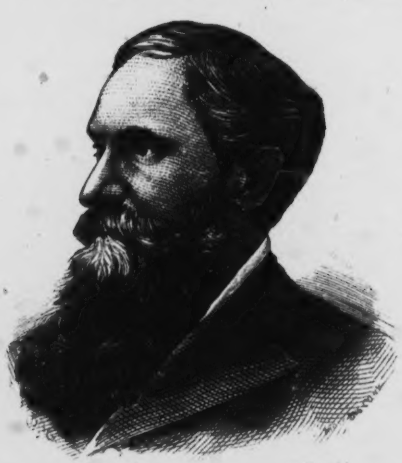
JOHN S. RHODES, dealer in groceries and provisions, residence 269 Tyler street, came to Kansas in April, 1880, from Wilmington, Delaware. Was born January 29, 1848, in Manchester, England, and his father came to America when he was eighteen months old, and settled in Rhode Island. His father was a dyer and manufacturer of woolen goods, at which young Rhodes worked until he was of age. Went to Worcester, Mass., and learned the carpenter trade. From there he went to Chester, Pa., and was in the employ of John B. Roach, the great American ship builder. In 1877, Mr. Rhodes went to South America, and superintended the launching of a vessel for the Panama Railroad Company. Remained there seven months, and while the trip proved successful financially, it came near costing him his life, as he was stricken down with Chagres fever, from the effects of which he has not yet entirely recovered. Visited his native place in England in 1874. Mr. Rhodes owns the property where he is doing business, and has erected a handsome dwelling at 269 Tyler street, at a cost of $2,000. Was married May 3, 1879, at Wilmington, Del., to Mrs. Anna M. Brown, of same place, who had two children—Robert and Willie.

COL. JOHN RITCHIE was born in Uniontown, Muskingum Co., Ohio, July 17, 1817. His parents removed to Westchester when he was a year and a half old, and he resided there and in Butler County until he was thirteen. He then lived in Columbus, Ind., and afterwards at Greensburg and Franklin, until the fall of 1854, when he visited Leavenworth, Lawrence and Kansas City. March 12, 1855, he started again for Kansas, and April 3 arrived at Topeka, and located on Section 6, Town 12, Range 16, which is still his residence. He pre-empted a quarter section, and engaged in farming, and in building the Ritchie Block, where the first State Legislature met, the first brick block in the city. Mr. Ritchie was a member of the Leavenworth Constitutional Convention, and of the Wyandotte Constitutional Convention. He was an active participant in the troubles of 1856, and was for a time a Free-state prisoner in Lecompton Prison. During the war he enlisted as a private in Company A, Fifth Kansas Cavalry (Lane's Guards), of which he was made Captain after its organization. He was commissioned by the General Government to raise an Indian regiment, and was Colonel of the regiment (Second Indian), and breveted Brigadier-General two weeks before the close of the war. Mr. R. donated the land upon which Washburn College is located, to that institution, during his early residence in Topeka. He was identified with the Free-state cause from the first, and was a friend and ardent admirer of John Brown, assisting him to escape from an attacking party when he was leaving Kansas after his last visit, and sharing his bed the last night he spent in the State. He was married in Franklin, Ind., January 16, 1838, to Mary J. Shelleday, who died October 18, 1880, leaving two children—Hale and John, Jr. Mr. R. was again married, at Franklin, Ind., October 27, 1881, to Mrs. Hannah Beall, of Cincinnati, Ohio. Mr. R. is a member of A. F. & A. M.

BYRON ROBERTS, cashier of the Topeka Bank, came to Topeka in June, 1870, and became connected with the Topeka Bank as assistant cashier, which position he held about five years, when he was elected cashier. He is a native of New Comerstown, Ohio. Has resided at Loami, Sangamon Co., Ill., some four years, and also at Columbus, Ohio, where he was Chief Clerk in the United States Pension Office. He attended Madison College. His father, Lewis Roberts, was a civil engineer, helping to locate the Ohio Canal. Mr. Roberts was married at New Comerstown, Ohio, December 23, 1858, to Gertrude Dent, of Birmingham, Ohio. They have five children—Louis D., Carrie A., George S., Gertrude M. and Mary B. Mr. Roberts is secretary of the Topeka Water Supply Company. He is a member of A. F. & A. M., Lodge No. 17.

A. A. ROBINSON, chief engineer Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe R. R., was born in Reading, Windsor Co., Vt., October 21, 1844; his parents moved to Wisconsin about 1855, settling in Edgerton, Rock County. His preparatory course of study was taken at Milton Academy, Rock County, Wis. In 1865 he entered the University of Michigan where he took a full course, making a special study of civil engineering and the sciences, graduating in 1869 with the degrees of C. E. and B. S., three years later receiving the degree of M. S., from his Alma Mater. While pursuing his studies at college, or during the summers of 1866-67 and '68, he was connected with the United States Lake Survey. In May, 1869, he accepted a position as civil engineer of the St. Joseph & Denver R. R. while holding that position making the survey between St. Joseph, Mo., and the junction with the Union Pacific R. R. First became connected with the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe R. R., in April, 1871, and was appointed to present position about 1873.

HENRY W. ROBY, M. D., is a native of Ohio. He was born in the town of Harmony, Morrow County, July 29, 1842. His father, with his family, removed to Wisconsin in 1846, and settled on a farm in Sugar Creek, Walworth County, where he lived until 1850. From there he removed to Monticello, Green County, and thence back to Ohio, where he remained two years. He subsequently returned to Green County, Wis., and took a permanent residence on a farm, where he remained for several years. Young Roby, following the fortunes and removals of his father's family, was bred on the farms he cultivated, and received his primary education in the common schools accessible. At the age of seventeen he "bought his time," as it was termed, and set out sturdily for himself. By dint of hard labor and strictest economy he managed to acquire a thorough academic education, during the succeeding three years, and to fit himself as a teacher, which calling he successfully followed for a time. At the age of twenty, in common with other patriotic young men of the time, he turned his back on all the peaceful aims of life and went out to do service for his country. He enlisted as a private in Company K, Twenty-second Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, August 2, 1862, and remained in the service, doing unflinchingly the faithful duty of an American soldier, until September 11, 1865, at which time he was honorably discharged, after a continuous service of over three years. He participated in nearly all the battles and marches of his regiment during that time, it being a part of "the Army of the Tennessee." He was in eleven battles, and many minor engagements and skirmishes. During the term of his service he was a prisoner of war for a month. He was captured with a part of his regiment at Thompson's Station, Tenn., March 5, 1863, and transferred to Libby Prison, from which he was liberated early in the following April. After a short furlough, granted to recuperate his broken health, he rejoined his regiment for continued service in the field. The close of his army service was in the Adjutant General's Department in Washington, after hostilities had ceased, where he remained, assisting in mustering the army out of service. Leaving the service he returned home and spent a few months in rest and study with his family, in Green County. During the years of his army service he had commenced and persistently studied to its mastery the art of phonetic short-hand writing, and commenced to put his knowledge to practical use in Bryant, Stratton & Co.'s Commercial College as a teacher of that art, soon after leaving the service. This was in the winter of 1865-66. In the spring of 1867 the office of Court Reporter in the various Courts of Wisconsin was provided for by act of the Legislature, and Mr. Roby, after competitive examinations and other tests of skill, not necessary here to detail, was appointed Official Phonographic Court Reporter for the counties of Milwaukee and Kenosha. From 1867 to 1876 he held the office, and, in connection with his associates, had the official reporting for sixteen different Courts, his being at that period, the leading phonographic firm in the West, and doing a more extended official reporting business than any firm in the country. In 1867, while conducting his business as Court reporter, he also commenced the study of law, and after the required examination, was admitted to practice at the Milwaukee bar, in 1869. But, both his skill and success as a phonographic reporter, and his promise of success as a lawyer, were to him, from first to last, subservient to a fixed purpose to the attainment of which all his efforts were bent. From early boyhood his ambition had been to become a physician, and, to this end he labored from the beginning. He began reading medical works as early as 1860; through his army service, in hospitals and in the field he gathered the invaluable medical knowledge which comes from no other experience; for six years thereafter he continued his medical studies under the direction and advice of Surgeon General E. B. Wolcott, then, and until his death, the most eminent surgeon in the West, who was not more his instructor and his teacher than his friend. His rudimentary course of reading in the school of homœopathic practice was pursued under the direction of James S. Douglass, M. D., Milwaukee, whose reputation as a lecturer and writer, as well as skillful practitioner, is co-extensive with the school of practice in which he was so bright an ornament, and of which he was a staunch advocate and able defender in its early days. He had been a learned and successful practitioner of the old school for twenty-five years prior to adopting Homœopathy, and was subsequently for several years a professor in the Cleveland Homœopathic College. Thus having, under such favorable circumstances, already laid the foundation of his medical education, he, in 1876, gave up his business, already established on a basis that assured him an ample income for all future time, and entered Rush Medical College for a term, then the Hahnemann Medical College, of Chicago, from which he was graduated with the highest honor, February 22, 1877, writing the prize clinical report on medical and surgical diseases of women. He remained in Chicago in the practice of his chosen profession until June 2, 1879, at which time he removed to Topeka, where he has since resided, having established a large practice, the extent of which has already outgrown the city, and is increasing from year to year under the only true test, viz: skill in his profession as evinced in successful results. Dr. Roby has been honored with many offices of trust and confidence, not only in connection with his profession, but in various other departments of science. He is a member of the following medical societies and associations: Wisconsin State Homœopathic Medical Society; Illinois State Homœopathic Medical Society; Kansas State Homœopathic Society—president in 1881; and the Chicago Academy of Homœopathic Physicians and Surgeons. He was for several years the general secretary and assistant surgeon of the Clinical Society of Hahnemann Hospital, Chicago. For two years he was provisional secretary, and is at present (1882) vice-president of the Western Academy of Homœopathy, and is a member of the American Institute of Homœopathy. He is also a member of the Wisconsin Academy of Arts, Science and Letters; the Chicago Philosophical Society; the Kansas Academy of Arts and Sciences; and various musical, dramatic, and literary societies. He has declined professorships offered from three different medical colleges. He has already attained high rank as a surgeon, and as a homœopathic physician ranks among the foremost in Kansas. In the prime of a useful life, an ardent lover of his art, and a close and tireless student, his way seems open to the highest possibilities in the profession.



Henry W. Roby, M.D.

GEORGE ROPES, architect, came to Kansas in October, 1877, located his family in Wyandotte, and opened an office for the practice of his profession in Kansas City. In 1879 he was employed to assist in the preparation of plans for the State House, and after the plans were prepared took the position of superintendent of construction, and also superintended the erection of the Topeka Library Building, located on Capitol Square. Mr. Ropes is a direct descendant of George Ropes, who came from England and settled in Salem, Mass., in 1637. His ancestors following George Ropes, were, second generation—John, born in Salem, 1646; third generation—Samuel, born in Salem, 1686, died October 12 1761; fourth generation—Benjamin, born 1721, died 1790; fifth generation—Hardy, born in Salem, 1763; sixth generation—George, born in Oxford, New Hampshire, 1800, died November, 1869. The subject of this sketch was born in Newbury, Vermont, March 12, 1831. He resided in various places in Vermont, until 1854, when he went to Boston, Mass., to study architecture, and remained there in the practice of his profession until he came to Kansas. In 1861, he married Sophia A. Toft, a native of Boston, and a lineal descendant of Edward Rawson, who came to Newbury, in the Colony of Massachusetts Bay, in 1637, the same year that the ancestors of Mr. Ropes arrived. He was a grantee of that town, the second Town Clerk, and was annually re-elected until he was chosen Secretary of the Colony, about 1651, and held the office until the usurpation of the government by Sir Edmond Andross, in 1686. Mr. Roper and his wife are both in the seventh generation, in their respective lines. They have three children—Ella Elson, Alice Hayward, and George Hardy. The present residence of the family is Lawrence, where the children are receiving their education in the State University.

WILLIAM H. ROSSINGTON was born at Galena, Ill., July 31, 1848. In 1850 his parents removed to California, where he received his early education, and remained until he entered Yale College, in 1864. After remaining a year and a half at this institution he went, in 1866, to Philadelphia, and commenced newspaper work as reporter for the Evening Telegraph, resided in that city, employed on the Telegraph, Morning Post, and Enquirer until 1868. He subsequently resided in Washington for a time as newspaper correspondent, and from there went to Davenport, Iowa, where he was connected with the Journal of that city, and afterwards with the Argus, at Rock Island. In the summer of 1870, he commenced the study of law at St. Louis, and in November, 1870, came to Topeka, where he soon became connected with the Kansas press. From 1871 to 1872, he had editorial charge of the Leavenworth Commercial, and on returning to Topeka served during one session as Legislative correspondent of the Commonwealth, and as editor-in-chief of the paper from February, 1873, to June, 1875. In the summer of the latter year he was admitted to the bar, and has been, since that time, engaged in the practice of his profession. Mr. Rossington [illegible] married in Topeka, June 9, 1874, to Mary Eleanor Holliday, a native of Wooster, [illegible]ey have two children—Thressa and Florence. Mr. Rossington is a member of the [illegible] of A. F. & A. M., and of K. of P.

A. S. ROWLES, farmer and live stock dealer, four and one-half miles southwest of Topeka, came to Kansas in 1880, first locating with his brother, near Auburn, Shawnee County, and engaged in farming. Located at his present place in May, 1881. Was born in Cadiz, Ohio, August 16, 1864, and remained in his native town until he was four years of age, and moved with his parents to Steubenville, and remained one year, and then moved to Bridgeport, Belmont Co., Ohio. Remained there about eleven years and came to Kansas.

A. J. RYAN, of the firm of Lockard, Maxwell & Co., real estate dealers, office under the Topeka Bank, residence 236 Buchanan street, came to Kansas first in 1868, from Columbus, Ohio. Born in Hardy County, Va., May 4, 1813; when four years of age, his father moved with his family to Clarke County, Ohio. Commenced the business of farming and stock-raising for himself in 1835, which he followed successfully in Clarke and Madison counties, and at intervals trading in Kentucky. He moved to Columbus in 1865, and engaged in real estate, and was superintendent of the Street Railway for one year. In 1869 organized a large excursion party and buffalo hunt from Columbus and Cincinnati to Kansas, having about 225 persons in the excursion, of whom there were about twenty-five ladies. A number of persons of note were on the excursion: Mrs. Despyre and her husband and son (Mrs. Despyre was formerly the wife of Mr. McDonald, the great horseman of Baltimore, Md., who was the owner of Flora Temple); Theodore Talmadge, son and daughter, of Columbus, Ohio; Mrs. Crisman, of London, Ohio; Mrs. Col. Stanley and daughter, of Columbus, Ohio, and many gentlemen of note from Ohio, Illinois and Kentucky. When the party reached Fort Hayes, Kan., the lamented Gen. Custer and Col. Cook, who were massacred at the Black Hills, through Gen. Sturgis, gave them an outfit of horses and ambulance wagons, etc., for a day's hunt on the Smoky Hill River. Killed about thirty buffalo in one day, had a big supper at a deserted Indian village, and a dance on the terra firma. Took the train in the night and reached the State fair at Lawrence, Kan., the next day. In the fall of 1870, had another excursion party, but did not kill so many buffalo. The following winter Mr. Ryan wrote a book, a lively representation of the State of Kansas, giving his experience in buffalo hunting, etc. Also gathered a great deal of useful information with regard to Kansas, her climate, soil, and her adaptation to farming and stock-raising, which book had a wide circulation, and was the means of bringing large numbers of emigrants to Kansas. Mr. Ryan has now in manuscript an historical romance of the late war, founded on fact, called "The Triumph of Loyal Ambition." The basis of the work is to illustrate true and noble manhood, and true and genuine womanhood—to contrast the loyal soldier with the coward and traitor. Mr. Ryan has been engaged in this work about two years, and has shown a true spirit of literary genius. He was married in Miami County, to Miss Mary Cecil. Has but two living children—Mrs. Walling and Mrs. Head, both of Topeka. Mr. Ryan is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and is a Republican.

HON. J. SAFFORD, attorney at law, located in Kansas in 1858, having resided since 1855 in Nebraska City, where he practiced law, and also served as member of the Territorial Legislature during two winters. On emigrating to Kansas he located first at Lawrence, but soon removed to Tecumseh, and remained there until Topeka was made the county-seat, when he again removed to that city. He was elected District Judge at the first election, under the Wyandotte Constitution, and served in that position four years, and afterward for six years on the bench of the Supreme Court. Since that time he has been engaged in the practice of law, and also somewhat in railroad affairs, having been for several years connected with the A. T. & S. F. Ry., and the Midland Ry., as director, and with the former as attorney. He is also director, secretary and attorney of the Leavenworth, Topeka & South-Western, and the Topeka, Salina & Western, and organized the construction company which has control of the building of the latter road. Judge Safford was born in Royalton, Winsor Co., Vt., August 17, 1827. He went with his father, Jacob J. Safford (who was one of the founders of Oberlin College) to Oberlin, Ohio, when he was five years of age, and resided there until he moved to Nebraska. He was educated at Oberlin, and married at that place. He read law at Norwalk, Ohio, was admitted to the bar in 1854, and commenced practice in Norwalk.

J. H. SAUNDERS, farmer and stock-raiser, Section 28, P. O. Topeka, owns 320 acres, 160 acres under cultivation, and 160 fenced and used as pasture and meadow. Good stone dwelling, good out-buildings, stone corrals, and all conveniences for handling stock. In addition to the above farms, 160 acres of bottom land in Monmouth Township. Makes fine stock a specialty. In cattle has nothing but Short-horn. Has a fine Clydesdale stallion. Has at present time fifty-nine head of horses; 160 head of cattle, and 400 hogs. Came to Kansas April 10, 1863, first locating in Leavenworth County. Stayed there three years; then went to Lawrence, and engaged in the mercantile business, remaining there three years, and from there to Soldier Township, in Shawnee County, locating on present farm in March, 1876. Was in the Kansas Militia during the Price Raid, and in the engagements at Independence and Westport, Mo. Mr. S. was born in Ohio, moving with his parents to Hendricks County, Ind., when a child only five years old, coming from there to Kansas. Was married November 21, 1852, to Mary A. Owen. Has six children—Walter W., William B. L., Grant E., Nellie M., Carrie L. and Alvin O. Is a Mason.

ARTHUR SAVOIR, employee of the livery, feed and sale stables, No. 118 Quincy street, was born in October, 1861, in Kankakee, Ill. He lived in that place until 1878, when he removed to Ellis, Kan., from there to Hugo County, and finally to Topeka, in September, 1881. Mr. Savoir was educated in the schools of his native town. His father was a business man for many years, and now lives in Kankakee. His parents were originally from Canada. He has four brothers and two sisters living in his native State.

SOLOMON SAWYER, confectioner, came to Kansas in December 1868. Commenced present business in June, 1879. Was born in Surrey County, N. C., July 1, 1840. Was pressed into the service of the Confederate army in 1861, and was compelled to work for the Southern cause in various ways for over three years, but finally made his escape to his native county, and remained concealed until the surrender of Gen. Lee. Came North in 1866, and went to Ohio, where he remained until 1868, when he came to Kansas. Was married in June, 1869, at Topeka, to Mrs. Jane Woods, who died about five years ago. Was married again June 13, 1882, to Miss Sarah Mitchell, of Topeka.

EDWIN SCOTT, came to Topeka in April, 1870, and commenced banking in the city with W. W. Gavitt, since which time he has given his entire time to that business. Mr. Scott was born in Lyme, Grafton Co., N. H., August 29, 1841, that place remaining his home until he was thirteen years of age, when he removed to St. Charles, Ill. In 1861 he enlisted in the Fifty-eighth Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and was appointed Hospital Steward of the regiment, which rank he held during the whole term of his service, although for a time he served on detached service as Chief Clerk in the purveyor's office of Grant's army, and later in that of Sherman. He was mustered out in 1864, and then carried on the drug business at Chattanooga, Tenn., for one year, when he went to St. Louis and remained in that city three years, engaged in the same business. Mr. Scott was married at Topeka, November 21, 1872, to Nellie Johnson, a native of Johnson County, Kan., and daughter of Col. A. S. Johnson, land commissioner of A., T. & S. F. Railroad.

M. S. SCOTT, Secretary of the Kansas Protective Union, was born in South Salem, Ross Co., Ohio, September 30, 1840. He has been engaged in the life insurance business for the last twelve years. In 1881 he came to Kansas, after spending a short time at Hutchinson; he located at Topeka, and is largely owing to his instrumentality the company of which he is secretary was organized. Mr. Scott was married at Chillicothe, Ohio, in March, 1861, to Marie Teresa Baird, a native of that place. They have three children—Lena T., Evan S. and Orville M.

JOSEPH M. SHEAFOR, attorney and president of the Continental Mining Company. Was born in Winchester, Preble Co., Ohio, September 24, 1842. When eleven years of age he went with his parents to Fairfield, Iowa, where he remained until he began the study of law with Hendershott & Burton, of Ottumwa, Iowa. He remained in their office until he was admitted to the bar in November, 1864. In March, 1865, he went to Western Iowa, remaining there until October, 1865, when he located at Burlington Coffey Co., Kan. There he was engaged in the practice of his profession (his brother, M. V. B. Sheafor, being associated with him) until the spring of 1873, when he removed to Topeka. While at Burlington he was elected the first city judge, and at the time of his removal to Topeka he was serving a third term in that office, but not desiring any office he resigned. The Judge has been eminently successful in the practice of law, but having made profitable investments in Colorado mining property he is now giving almost his entire attention to those interests. Besides being a large owner in the stock of the Continental Mining Company, which represents seven very valuable mines, he is the individual owner of mines in Gunnison County, Col. The Continental Mining Company was organized under the laws of Colorado, January 12, 1881. Its property is located in the Monarch, Chalk and Quartz Creek mining districts. He was married at Burlington, Kan., July 12, 1868, to Emma Dawson, a native of Logansport, Ind. The Judge is a member of the A. F. & A. M. His brother, John W. Sheafor, has been a partner in the law business since 1873, although residing in Concordia, Kan., since 1878, where he is now County Attorney.

SILAS E. SHELTON, M. D., came to Topeka May 14, 1866 soon after the close of his labors in the army as surgeon, and has been successfully engaged in the practice of his profession in this city since that time. Dr. Sheldon was born in Carlisle Loraine Co. Ohio June 5, 1837. He received his earlier education in the common schools of his native State afterwards completing a course of studies at Baldwin University, Berea, Ohio, and commencing his medical education under the tutelage of the distinguished physician, Dr. Alexander McBride, with whom he remained two years. In 1858 he was a medical student at the University of Michigan, and in 1859 at Cleveland Medical College, graduating from the latter in the spring of 1860. He commenced the practice of his profession in Cleveland, remaining in his first location until he entered the United States service early in 1862, being first assigned by special appointment of Gov. Todd, of Ohio, to hospital duty on the river boats. July 23, 1862, he was appointed Assistant Surgeon of the Thirty-second Ohio Volunteer Infantry, with the rank of Captain, commission dating from the 4th. May 9, 1863, he was assigned to the One Hundred and Fourth Ohio Infantry as assistant surgeon, and promoted to Surgeon with rank of Major, which position he retained until he was appointed Medical Inspector upon the staff of Gen. J. D. Cox, in 1864 serving in the latter capacity until the close of the war. Dr. Sheldon was married May 9, 1866, to Ann Eliza, daughter of Captain John Ball, of Cleveland, Ohio. He is prominently connected with the Masonic fraternity, having held the highest offices of the Order in the State. He is a member of Topeka Lodge No. 17, Topeka R. A. Chapter No. 5, Topeka Commandery No. 5, and Zabud Council No. 4, and has received fourteen degrees in the Scottish Rite. He was Grand Commander of the Knights Templar of the State of Kansas in 1876, and G. H. P. of G. Chapter of Kansas in 1880 and 1881. He was first Grand Master Workman and is Grand Medical Director of the A. O. U. W. in the State, having held the latter position since February 1882. In 1879 he was supreme representative of the Order, at the Supreme Lodge, which met at Nashville, Tenn. He is also a member of the Knights of Pythias, Knights of Honor and G. A. R., being representative from Kansas of the latter Order at their encampment in Baltimore in 1882. Dr. Sheldon is a member of the State Medical Society, the Eastern District Medical Society and is an honorary member of the Kansas Valley Medical Society and of the local medical organizations. He has been medical director of the Masonic Mutual Benefit Association of the State since its organization in 1873.

ALBERT P. SHREVE, book-keeper, was born in Richmond, Ind. He enlisted in the United States army April 14, 1861, at Cincinnati, Ohio, in Company B, Guthrie Grays (afterwards the Sixth Ohio Volunteer Infantry). Served three months and was honorably discharged from the service. Was appointed paymaster's clerk and reported to Major W. H.

Johnston, August 19, 1862, at Winchester, Va. Was appointed Paymaster of volunteers February, 1864, and ordered to Fort Leavenworth, Kan., and by the Chief Paymaster of that department ordered to Sioux City, Iowa, on the staff of Brig. Gen. Alfred Sully, as chief paymaster, and from that time until mustered out—September 30, 1866—he was engaged in paying the troops and fighting Indians in the upper country, consisting of Dakota, Montana, Idaho and Washington Territories. His wife was Annie Gray, of Leavenworth, Kan. They have three children—two boys and one girl.

MANDES SHULER, farmer, Section 28, P. O. Topeka. Owns 155 acres. Came to Kansas in March, 1879, and located on present farm. Was born in Lehigh County, Pa., June 21, 1828. Moved to Butler County, Ohio, in 1849. In June, 1850, went to California; in 1856 returned to Hamilton, Butler Co., Ohio, where he was chief of the fire department for a period of six years, and was presented with a fine gold headed cane for efficiency. Was married in December, 1856, to Miss Mary Dubbs. Has four children living—Buel, Henry, Frank and Maud, one (Charles) dead. Mr. S. has a good farm. Makes a specialty of wheat and corn. Wheat this year (1882) averaged thirty-three bushels to the acre and his corn bids fair for eighty bushels to the acre; fair buildings.

HOWARD SILVER, teacher. Born at Dayton, Ohio, December 2, 1850. Removed with his parents to Urbana, Ill., in October, 1854, and continued to reside there until 1877. Graduated from the Illinois State Industrial University, class of 1873. Went to Wisconsin in 1877 and taught two years in the schools of that State. He came to Kansas in June, 1879, locating at Sterling. Was principal of the schools at Raymond one year, his wife assisting him. Next taught at Walnut City one year. Was a member of county board of examiners of that county and taught in county institute of 1881. Taught in the county institute of Rice County three years in succession. Was engaged as chief clerk and book-keeper for the firm of T. A. Butler & Co., extensive contractors on the A., T. & S. F. R. R., part of the years 1880 and 1881, after which he was employed in the general offices of the A., T. & S. F. R. R. at Topeka. Removed to Topeka in February, 1882, and was enrolled in the educational forces of this city and assigned to the Clay School as principal. He conducted the Barton County Institute of 1880. Mr. Silver was married at Champaign, Ill., September 17, 1873, to Miss Edna E. Foster, who had previously taught in the schools of Minnesota and one year at Raymond, Kan. By this marriage he has four children—two sons and two daughters.

WILLIAM SIMS, Secretary of the Kansas State Board of Agriculture, is a resident of Mission Township, Shawnee County, his farm lying about seven miles southwest of the city of Topeka. He was born in Muskingum County, Ohio, May 22, 1831. He resided in his native county until the spring of 1868, when he removed with his family to De Witt County, Ill., being engaged in that locality in general agriculture for the four years prior to his coming to Kansas, which event occurred in the spring of 1873. Mr. Sims' farming operations consist principally in the growing and feeding of cattle and hogs, none of the productions of his land being sold on the general market. He was married in Hopewell Township, Muskingum Co., Ohio, October, 1858, to Hannah A. Richey, a native of that township. Their only surviving child is John B., who resides with his parents, having an interest in his father's busines. In March, 1862, Mr Sims enlisted as a private in Company G, Thirty-second Ohio Volunteer Infantry. In the fall of the same year he was transferred to the Ninth Ohio Cavalry, of which regiment he raised Company A. About one year later he was promoted to Major of the first battalion of the same regiment, having previously served as Captain, commanding the battalion during the Major's absence. Mr. Sims was a member of the Kansas State Senate in 1877 and 1878, and for several years was Treasurer of the State Board of Agriculture, being elected its Secretary in January, 1882. He has been for six years Master of the Kansas State Grange, P. of H. Mr. Sims takes a large interest in all matter pertaining to agriculture and is ardently devoted to its interests, especially as it relates to Kansas.

SKINNER BROS., removed from Barton, Vt., to Topeka, Kan., in 1869 and worked for S. E. Sweet, ice dealer, for one and one-half years, when they purchased the establishment, and at the same time purchased Fred Fensky's ice house, etc. They have been running the two places since January, 1877, and have been doing a business of from $7,000 to $10,000 per annum. O. C. was married January, 1877 to Lulu Peck, and has two children—Edward, aged three, and Henry, aged one year. Mr. O. C. was elected a member of the school board in April, 1882, for a term of three years. The two brothers, O. C. and O. B., were born October 6, 1849, being twins. The name of the firm should have been Twin Bros., as they have never separated and have been in business together for years and have gotten along pleasantly. O. B. was married November, 1881, to Aginus Patterson, of Topeka, Kan.

C. F. SLAYTON, farmer, three miles southwest of Topeka. Came to Kansas with his father in 1856, who pre-empted the farm now cultivated by Mr. S. Was born October 9, 1854, in Crawford County, Pa., where he resided until coming to Kansas. Mr S. was in Colorado in 1880 working at the carpenter trade. Was married in the spring of 1879 to Miss Lillian Swan, of Shawnee County. Is a member of Shawnee County Old Settler's Society.

PROF. JONATHAN S. SLIE was born in Black Rock, N. Y., in 1838, and remained there until 1845, when his parents removed to Rochester, N. Y. His father was a Congregational minister, and editor of a paper called the Closet, published in Rochester, N. Y. He was also the author of several books on prayer, the last of which was entitled: "The Holy of Holies, or, The World's Try-daily Concert of Prayer." Prof. Slie was prepared for college at Cayuga Lake Academy, and graduated at Hamilton College in 1863. He taught at Walcott, N. Y., two years, afterward at Corning Free Academy. He was principal of these institutions. He married Miss Martha Hubbard, a graduate of the State Normal School, at Albany, N. Y., in 1865. In the spring of 1866, Prof. Slie moved to Painesville, Ohio, where he taught vocal and instrumental music, two years and a half. He then became a professor of music, at Batavia, N. Y., in the State Institution for the Blind. He was also principal of the Literary Department of the same institution. He came to Kansas in 1871. He settled in Manhattan, where he purchased property, and taught music until 1874, at which time he came to Topeka, and became professor of music in Washburn College. He has been principal of Clay Street Public School, and also of North Topeka School. In 1879 he went into the general music business and continued until 1882, when he retired. He now resides in a beautiful house at the corner of Eighth and Polk, facing Bethany College. Prof. Slie's father was a native of New Haven, Conn., and his mother was from Hartford, in the same State. He has had seven children, five of whom are deceased. Two sons remain, one—Wilber H. Slie, but fifteen years of age, has visited England and many other countries. He is now employed in Sexton's printing office. Prof. Slie is a member of the Congregational Church. He also belongs to the United Order of Ancient Templars, and is recorder of the Order.

JACOB N. SLUSHER, foreman of car cleaners A., T. & S. F R. R. Co. Came to Kansas in May, 1871, from Owsley County, Ky., and located in Topeka. Was in the employ of the A., T. & S. F. Co., first engaged in construction, then in the round-house. Was afterward engaged by Kansas Rolling Mill Company for about eighteen months. Was then in the car department for about eleven months, and then farmed about three years near North Topeka, and in September, 1879, again entered the service of the A., T. & S. F. Co. in the paint shop, where he worked until April, 1881, when he was appointed to his present position. His duties include the general supervision of car cleaning; has twenty men under his immediate supervision and directs the overhauling and cleaning of coaches, sleepers, directors' and palace cars, seeing that each coach before it goes out over this great national thoroughfare is in exact "ship shape." Mr. S. also keeps the time of eleven men who are engaged in preparing coaches for the paint shop. Was born in Harlan County, Ky., April 16, 1848. Remained in his native county until sixteen years of age, farming for his father. Removed from there to Decatur County, Ind., the times being perilous and stringent in Kentucky on account of the war. Remained in Indiana until 1865, engaged in farming with his father and returned to his native county in Kentucky, where he remained until 1869, and removed to Owsley County, Ky., where he remained until coming to Kansas in 1871. Was married in May, 1868, at Wallin's Creek, Harlan Co., Ky., to Miss Juda Jackson, a native of that county, and have three children living—Adaphair, Gilbert and Leoma. CHARLES B. SMITH, deputy United States District Attorney, is a native of Oswego, Kendall Co., Ill.; read law in Chicago with McCagg, Fuller & Culver, and was admitted to the bar a short time prior to his location at Topeka, in May, 1873. Most of the early years of his life were spent in Ottawa, La Salle County, and Geneseo, Henry Co., Ill., before going to Chicago. For three years after coming to Topeka he was associated in law practice with Colonel Dennis, afterward with W. H. Rossington until 1881, when W. A. Johnston, the present Attorney General, became a member of the firm. Mr. Smith has been Examiner in the United States Circuit Court, and in 1880 he was appointed to his present position of Deputy United States District Attorney.

HON. IRA H. SMITH was born in Seymour, New Haven Co., Conn., in 1815. He graduated at Yale College in 1842, and from the Yale Theological Seminary in 1845. In 1846 he became pastor of the Congregational Church in North Haven, but was compelled to abandon the ministry and seek a more active occupation, on account of ill health. In 1846 he married Miss Sarah Jane Bartholomew, of Wolcott, Conn., by whom he had two sons and two daughters, only one of whom is now living—Edward G., who is a graduate of the Kansas State University, and is at present in the employ of the L. T. & S. W. R. R. Co. as a civil engineer. Mr. Smith came to Kansas in the fall of 1854, locating upon what is now the site of the railroad depot in Robinson, Brown County. He was engaged in the United States Survey from 1855 to 1857. He represented Brown County in the Legislature in 1861, in which year he removed to Atchison, where he became Receiver in the Land Office, and on the consolidation of the Atchison and Topeka Land offices he removed to the latter place, where he became Registrar, occupying the office until 1873. Mr. Smith was a member of the Topeka Board of Education for several years, and is also a trustee of Washburn College and a member of the Executive Committee.

JACOB SMITH was born near Reading, Berks Co., Pa., June 24, 1829, and reared in Somerset, Perry Co., Ohio. He lived in Bluffton, Ind., for three years prior to coming to Kansas, and was married at that place in April, 1852, to Miss J. J. Foncannon, of Tiffin, Ohio. In 1857 he immigrated to Kansas, and for about three months resided on a claim which he purchased in Tecumseh Township. Since that time he has resided in Topeka, and has become identified with many important interests in that city. He has carefully attended to his farming interests from the time of his first purchasing a claim, and now owns the largest stock farm in Shawnee County. He has also carried on the hardware business during a large portion of his residence in Topeka. He was one of the corporators and for nine years president, of the Topeka Bank, and was for a time president of the De Soto & Pleasant Hill R. R.; also director and treasurer of K. C., T. & S. W. R'y, and for five years County Treasurer. Mr. and Mrs. Smith have buried one child, the sole surviving one being Ida S., wife of W. A. L. Thompson.

Finley, who died in July, 1866, leaving four children—Alonzo D., Sophia C., Samuel P., and Daniel K., Jr. In August, 1867, he was again married, in Highland County, Ohio, to Miss Sarah C. Lucas. They have four children living—Willie G., Mary Emma, Frankie W., and Fred. In 1850 he moved to Pike County, Ill., where he resided six years, and then moved to Marion County, remaining two years, and then returned to Highland County, remaining there until 1870, when he moved to Montgomery County, Iowa, in which he resided until 1879, when he moved to Saline County, Kan., remaining until December, 1881, when he removed to Topeka. He is now engaged in the transfer business in Topeka. Mr. S. has served in two wars. He enlisted in June, 1846, in Company C, Second Ohio Infantry, serving one year. Joined Taylor's army immediately after the battle of Buena Vista, taking part in the succeeding campaigns in Mexico. In 1862, enlisted at Newport, Ky., in Company E, Eighth Kentucky Cavalry, as Sergeant, doing scouting duty and guerrilla, taking part in several engagements with John Morgan's force, and at one time capturing a brigade under Dick Morgan. He served until September, 1863, when he was mustered out at Russellville, Ky. Had four horses shot under him, and his clothes torn off of him, but fortunately escaped unhurt, having experienced several hair-breadth escapes; also served sixty days in 1864, mostly doing patrol duty in Columbus, Ohio.

S. P. SWIFT, M. D., 435 Kansas avenue, North Topeka, was born in Richfield, Summit Co., Ohio, in 1823, where he remained until 1865. He was educated at the Western Homœopathic College, Cleveland, graduating in 1860. He practiced his profession in his native town until he removed to Missouri in 1865. He was a leading physician in Shelbina, Mo., for fifteen years, or until 1880, when he came to Kansas, settling in North Topeka. Dr. Swift was married to Miss D. E. Stofer, of his native town, in 1847. They have four children, two sons and two daughters, all of whom are grown up and in business in Missouri.

T. B. SWEET, president of the Kansas Loan and Trust Company, located in Topeka, January 1, 1873, organized the above company, and has been president since its formation. Mr. Sweet is stockholder, director, and chairman of the executive committee of the Nebraska, Topeka, Iola & Memphis Railroad, and president of Kansas Construction Company, which has control of the construction of that road. He is president of the Vera Cruz Consolidated Gold and Silver Mining Company, director and treasurer of the Godfrey Consolidated Gold and Silver Mining Company, treasurer, director and trustee of the Ticson Mining Company, headquarters at Vera Cruz, N. M.; trustee of the Topeka Mining Association, and stockholder in the Trinidad and other mining companies. Mr. Sweet is a native of Farmington, Me. He was born April 11, 1841, and lived in Farmington until October, 1859. He then moved to Champaign County, Ill., where he remained for about thirteen years, engaged in drug business, and afterward in insurance business. While in Champaign he was also cashier of the First National Bank for two or three years, retiring from that position in April, 1872, on account of ill health. From Champaign he removed to Topeka, January 1, 1873. He was married in Jacksonville, Ill., April 29, 1873, to Annie E. Brown, of Jacksonville, daughter of Judge William Brown. They have three children living—Susie Brown, Mary Bailey, and Paul Bailey; one son, Willie Brown, died November 8, 1880, aged three years. Mr. Sweet is a prominent member and licensed exhorter of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was chairman of the building committee which erected the fine church edifice in Topeka, and is now one of the stewards of that church. He is one of the board of trustees of Baker University, vice-president of Young Men's Christian Association, chairman of executive committee of State Sunday-School Association, trustee of Christ's Hospital, treasurer and member of conference board of trustees of Methodist Episcopal Church Extension Society, treasurer of Kansas Conference Endowment Fund of Baker University, and member of the executive committee of Shawnee County Sunday-School Association.

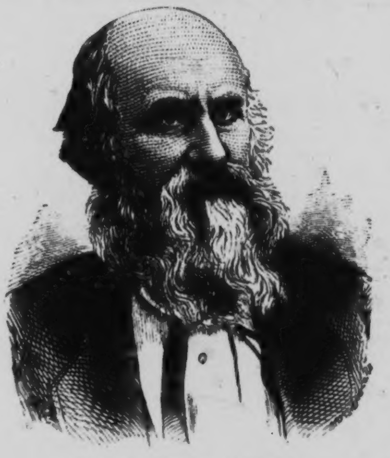
H. C. SWINGLE, restaurateur, Topeka, came to Kansas in 1869. Mr. S. is by adoption a Kansan, having come to the State when he was nine years old. At that time, Lawrence was the nearest railroad point to Topeka, and the Kaw River was crossed on a pontoon bridge. Was born September 27, 1858, at Seymour, Ind. Is one of the pioneers of Topeka. Has been in the restaurant business about one year. Was married, March 20, 1881, at Topeka, to Miss Ella Stout, a native of Pittsburgh, Pa.

EDWIN A. TAFT was born in Uxbridge, Worcester Co., Mass., February 27, 1824. He lived in his native town and vicinity until 1845, when he removed to Providence, R. I., where he commenced his mercantile career, in the dry goods jobbing house of Cragin & Hartwell, continuing with this house until 1851, at which time he removed to Boston, Mass., and was for several years salesman in the well-known wholesale dry goods house of Sweetser, Gookin & Co., returning to Providence in 1858. In the spring of 1860 he established a new dry goods jobbing house there, under the firm name of Taft, Steere & Co., for a term of three years, at the expiration of which term he sold his interest in the business to his partners, and, in 1865, took an interest in the manufacturing of cotton goods with the Putnam Manufacturing Company, of Putnam, Conn., continuing this connection until 1878, in which year he visited Kansas, and decided to make the city of Topeka his future home. Here, on the 1st of April, 1880, he opened a new dry goods store, under the firm name of Taft, Emery & Co. He was married, June 26, 1873, to Adaline S. Emery, of Hunterdon County, N. J. They have one child, Mary Emery. Mr. Taft is a member of the Episcopal Church, and of the Masonic Fraternity.

CHARLES N. TAYLOR, grocer, corner Crane and Jefferson streets, came to Kansas, first in May, 1846. Was born June 14, 1830, at Elyria, Lorain Co., Ohio. Remained in native place five years, and removed with his parents to Rockford, Ill. Enlisted in the United States Army, Company H, First Regiment, Illinois Volunteers, Capt. James Hampton, Lieut. John A. Logan, February 14, 1846. Was engaged in fighting Indians in New Mexico, and stationed at Las Vegas and Santa Fe. Returned to Fort Leavenworth, and was mustered out December 28, 1848. In November of same year joined an expedition to Salt Lake, and for sixteen years following was in every department of the Government service. Enlisted in the War of the Rebellion, Company B, Third Indiana Volunteers, May 2, 1861. At the end of seven months was discharged for wounds received at Ball's Bluff, Va. Enlisted again in Company H, Sixth Michigan Cavalry, Capt. H. L. Wise, commanding, September 15, 1862. Was mustered out December 25, 1865, at Fort Leavenworth. Returned to Michigan, and went into mercantile business, which he continued successfully until 1871, when he sold out and came to Kansas. Was married January 1, 1852, at Grand Rapids, Mich., to Martha J. Snyder. Had two children—Frank, now Master-at-arms of the U. S. steamer Lackawanna; William H., now engineer on the C., B. & Q. R. R. First wife died June 17, 1864, at Chicago, Ill. Was married again, August 30, 1879, at Maple Hill, Kan., to Sarah J. Shultz. Is a member of G. A. R., Topeka.

IRWIN TAYLOR, of the firm of Davis & Taylor, is a native of Marysville, Mason Co., Ky., where he was born June 11, 1845. When quite young he removed to Campbell County, and afterwards spent ten years in Bourbon County, Ky., prior to coming to Kansas. He was educated at Cincinnati High School, Business College and Law College; graduated from the latter institution, and was admitted to the bar in Cincinnati. He commenced practice in Newport, Campbell County, and remained in that place until 1872; then removed to Paris, Bourbon Co., Ky., from whence he emigrated to Topeka in December, 1881. He was married at Paris, Ky., June 11, 1872, to Miss Lizzie H. Hall, only daughter and child of James Hall, an extensive cattle dealer of Kentucky. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor have six children—Huston, Joseph Irwin, Mary Belle, Hall, Elizabeth Caldwell and Lucy. Mr. Irwin Taylor traces his ancestry back six generations, to Edward Taylor, who came from England in 1692, and settled at Middletown, Monmouth Co., N. J. Joseph Taylor, the father of Irwin, was born in 1806; his grandfather, Joseph, was born September 27, 1770, and was married to Jane Irwin, August 8, 1797; his great-grandfather, William Taylor, married Lucy Embly; his great-great-grandfather was Joseph, born 1720, married Elizabeth Ashton, and died in 1766; the next generation back was Edward Taylor, second son of the Edward Taylor that emigrated from England. His wife was Catherine Monford.

DR. ERASTUS TEFFT (deceased), was born at Lebanon, Madison Co., N. Y., December 27, 1818. In 1834 he removed to Elgin, Kane Co., Ill. He afterwards became a private medical student of Dr. Valentine Mott, of New York, attended his first course of medical lectures at the University of New York in 1842-43, and a course at Rush Medical College in 1844-45. He graduated at the University of New York in 1847, and continued his studies and practice with his brother, Dr. Joseph Tefft, of Elgin, until the spring of 1859 and thence came to Topeka, removing his family in July, and remaining in practice in the city until December, 1879. June 7, 1840, he was married to Rhoda Kenyon, a native of New Berlin, N. Y. She died January 26, 1879. In the spring of 1859 he bought the lot upon which the Tefft House was afterwards erected, and built a residence upon it in the fall of the same year. The hotel was built in 1865, Harris & Beasly, from Champaign, Ill., being the first proprietors. Dr. Tefft was Post Surgeon of the army at Topeka, and Assistant Surgeon of the militia. He was also Coroner of Shawnee County several years. Besides the hotel, Mr. Tefft built several dwellings in the city. He was a prominent member and trustee of the Congregational Church. He died January 8, 1880. In the words of the report of the State Medical Society of Kansas, "as a physician he was conscientiously scrupulous of its honor, and as a citizen, enterprising and public-spirited."



DR. ERASTUS TEFFT, (deceased).

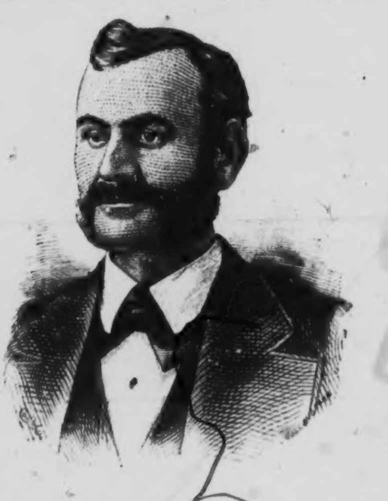
FRED ERASTUS TEFFT, son of Erastus and Rhoda (Kenyon) Tefft, was born in Topeka, June 21, 1861. He took his first course of medical studies at Rush Medical College, and graduated from Starling Medical College, of Columbus, Ohio, February, 1881. He is associated in practice with his brother, Herbert K.

HON. TIMOTHY DWIGHT THACHER is of English descent; his ancestors, if not illustrious, were of one of the leading families that shed lustre on the early days of the republic, and helped with the Otises and Adamses to lay the foundations of the great Republican structure. The Thacher family is one of the oldest in New England. Rev. Thomas Thacher, son of Rev. Peter Thacher, of Salisbury, England, came to Boston June 4, 1635, only fifteen years after the first arrival of the Plymoth colonists. He was eminent in all departments of learning, and ranked among the leading physicians and theologians of his time. He was the author of the first medical work published in New England. He also published one of the early Hebrew lexicons and grammars for the use of Harvard University. From February 16, 1669, to the time of his death, he was pastor of the "Old South Church," in Boston. A century later his great grandson, Rev. Oxenbridge Thacher, associated with the patriot, James Otis, was engaged in the discussion, through the press, of the abuses of power evinced in the government of the colonies. Drake—unquestioned authority—states that the controversy, respecting writs of assistance, inaugurated and defended by these men, 'was nothing more nor less than the cause of independence." Rev. Peter Thacher, brother of Oxenbridge, at that time pastor of the Brattle Street Church, was a no less pronounced rebel against the oppression of the British crown. He delivered an oration before the colonial troops at Watertown, Mass., March 5, 1776, which was published and printed in several successive editions. In it for the first time the grievances of the colonies against the English Government were enumerated in words and order so like that of the Declaration of Independence, which was penned by Jefferson, and promulgated on the succeeding July 4, as to seem a paraphrase of that immortal manifesto. Timothy Dwight Thacher is of the seventh generation in direct descent from Rev. Peter Thacher, the patriot pastor of Brattle Street Church, Boston, in 1776. He was the second child and oldest son of Mowry and Melinda (Livermore) Thacher. His father was an intelligent farmer of Hornellsville, N. Y., where the subject of this sketch was born, October 31, 1831. He was bred on the farm, enjoying the educational advantages afforded by the public schools, which at the age of fifteen were supplemented by a single term at the Franklin Academy Prattsburgh, N. Y., where he acquired a fair knowledge of Latin, and imbibed classical tastes that subsequently impelled him to further study. From fifteen to nineteen he worked on the farm of his father, and in the lumbering region of western New York. At the age of twenty he determined to acquire a thorough education. He accordingly entered the Alfred Academy, where he fitted for a collegiate course. Having completed thoroughly the full course of preparatory study prescribed, he entered the junior class of Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., in 1854, from which he graduated with honors, in the class of 1856. During the subsequent winter, 1856-57, he returned to Union College and began special studies in the supergraduate course under Dr. Hickok and Dr. Taylor Lewis. At that time two old academy class-mates who had already settled at Lawrence, Kan., Lyman and Norman Allen, invited him to join them and take the editorial charge of the Lawrence Republican, a Free-state journal, which they were about to start. After consultation with friends, and in accordance with the advice of Dr. Nott, he accepted the invitation, and thus entered the profession of a journalist, contrary to the undefined professional aspirations that had hitherto urged him on in his educational labors. He arrived in Lawrence, Kan., in April, 1857. The young man did not come unheralded or unknown to his chosen field of work. He bore with him letters of commendation from his old teachers, Drs. Nott and Hickok and Horace Greeley, then in the flush of his wonderful journalistic career. They were all unneeded, as he depended neither on his line of ancestry nor his friendly credentials for a start in life. Confidently looking only to honest merit, backed by earnest endeavor to do the right, he began his work as an editor with the first issue of the Lawrence Republican, May 28, 1857. His editorial conduct of the new Free-state journal was such as to place it at once at the head of the Free-state press of the Territory and insure its success as a business undertaking. The paper was started under the proprietorship of Norman Allen. He sold out in the summer of 1858, to T. D. Thacher, and his cousin, S. O. Thacher and his brother S. M. Thacher. Thus Mr. Thacher became part owner of the paper. He continued in editorial charge through various changes of proprietorship until December 27, 1860, at which time Mr. John Speer bought the paper, and for a few months Mr. Thacher was disconnected with it. September 4, 1862, he bought the paper back, and continued its publication in connection with his brother, S. M. Thacher, until it was destroyed in the Quantrell Raid, August 21, 1863. April 15, 1863, Mr. Thacher purchased the Journal of Commerce, published in Kansas City, and himself removed to that city, leaving the personal conduct of the Republican for the few months succeeding until its destruction in August, with his partner, S. M. Thacher. He continued the publication of the Journal of Commerce until April, 1865, at which time he sold it to Messrs. Van Horn & Hallowell, and, in the following September removed to Philadelphia, and became connected with the Evening Telegraph, as chief editorial writer, which position he held for over two years. In January 1868, he returned to Lawrence, and on February 1, re-established the Republican. March 4, 1869, the paper was consolidated with the State Journal and the Ottawa Home Journal, and afterwards published as the Daily Republican Journal and the Western Home Journal (weekly). Two years later Mr. Thacher became sole proprietor of the paper. Since 1877 the paper thus established has been known as the Lawrence Journal, and has continued under his management up to the present time, 1882. During his long connection with Kansas journalism he has evinced rare ability, and now deservedly ranks among the ablest journalists of the West. His early espousal and vigorous and fearless advocacy of Free-state doctrines brought him into political prominence almost as soon as he arrived in the Territory. He engaged actively in the exciting work of making Kansas a free State, in no-wise confining to the columns of his paper. He wrought to the full measure of his powers to strengthen the Free-state party; spoke often and eloquently for the cause, and was one of the most industrious and efficient organizers of those troublous days. His political career has been patriotically consistent from the beginning and his record in the Republican party, which he helped to organize, and of which he is still an honored and trusted member, has been singularly free from the taints and blemishes incidental to an active participation in political affairs through a period which has "tried and found wanting" not a few who were his co-laborers in the same political field twenty years ago. On December 2, 1857, a convention was held at Lawrence to protest against the Lecompton Constitution. It was at that time the most important gathering of Free-state men ever held in the Territory. Charles Robinson was the president of the convention and Gen. James H. Lane chairman of the committee on resolutions. The resolutions presented were drawn by Mr. Thacher, who was a member of the committee, and William A. Phillips, the well-known correspondent of the New York Tribune. They are quoted fully in the historical part of this work. The protest, as embodied in the resolutions, created a profound sensation throughout the North, and did much in moulding opinion and ultimately defeating the abomination. The convention was re-assembled December 23, to decide whether the members of the Free-state party would participate in the coming election for State officers under the provisions of the Lecompton Constitution. Mr. Thacher sturdily opposed those who favored such a course, and in a most exciting debate of two days, being the acknowledged leader of the anti-voting party, succeeded in defeating the proposition. A contemporary who was present thus writes: "Without intention of his own, Mr Thacher found himself the virtual leader of those who opposed the plans of participating in the election. His speeches during this high debate are still recalled by all Kansans, irrespective of the sides they took upon the question at issue, as among the highest efforts of argumentative eloquence. Notwithstanding Gov. Robinson and most of the older leaders of the Free-state party favored the policy of voting, the convention decided against it, and adhered to its original position." Prior to his work in the two conventions above mentioned, he had spoken during the summer months at the various conventions called to organize the Free-state party, and to the same end had, during the month of June of that year, made a speech, making a tour through the counties of Douglas, Coffey Franklin, Allen and Anderson. Thus he became widely known as an able and fearless Free-state champion during the first six months of his residence in the Territory. He was one of the delegates from Lawrence to the Constitutional Convention held at Leavenworth, from March 25 to April 3, 1858, where he retained his radical views successfully against an earnest opposition, and with others prevented the word "white" from appearing in the Constitution in connection with the rights of citizenship. In January, 1859, Mr. Thacher was elected Territorial Printer by the Legislature. The Governor refusing to recognize the authority of that body the office proved an empty honor. Mr. Thacher was a delegate to the convention held at Osawatomie, May 18, 1859, at which the Republican party was formally organized in Kansas. The convention was called to order by him and its object briefly stated. He also served as one of the secretaries, and as a member of the committee on resolutions, wrote some of the most radical parts of the platform adopted. He was also a member of the Republican State Convention held at Topeka for the nomination of State officers under the Wyandotte Constitution, and made the speech nominating Charles Robinson as Governor. He was also nominated as one of the Republican Presidential electors for 1860; the State not being admitted prior to the election, he consequently did not serve. He, however, did good service during the campaign which resulted in the first national Republican triumph, speaking during the autumn in the States of Michigan and New York. Mr. Thacher was chosen secretary of the State Republican Committee in May, 1861, and was chairman of the committee on credentials in the State convention of that year. At the Republican State Convention held September 17, 1862, he was strongly urged by many friends, without solicitations from him, as a Congressional candidate, and his name was presented, receiving fifteen votes on the sixth ballot. From 1863 to 1868, Mr. Thacher was not a resident of Kansas. Since his return he has been a prominent and hard-working member of the Republican party as in the years before. In 1874 he was a delegate to the Republican State Convention, and was chosen its president. During the fall of that year he made a thorough personal canvass of Douglas County, and restored it to the Republican ranks, from which it had been detached the year before by the so-called "Reform" movement. He was elected the same fall as a member of the Kansas House of Representatives from the Fifty-second Representative District, serving in that body as chairman of the committee on education. In 1876 Mr. Thacher was elected by the Republican State Convention as delegate-at-large to the Republican National Convention held at Cincinnati. He, with the entire Kansas delegation, voted from first to last for the nomination of Hon. James G. Blaine, and further participated in the proceedings of the convention, speaking with telling effect in favor of allowing delegates to vote irrespective of instructions. In 1860 Mr. Thacher was admitted to the bar but he never entered upon the practice of the legal profession. In 1880 Mr. Thacher was appointed Supervisor of the United States census for the first district of Kansas, performing the duties of that office in a satisfactory manner. In January, 1881, Mr Thacher was elected to the post of State Printer for the term of two years, beginning July 1, 1881, which office he now holds. He is now president of the State Historical Society, and one of the regents of the State University. Mr Thacher has been twice married. His first wife was Miss Catherine Faulkner Angell, daughter of Mr. Jesse Angell, a prominent merchant of Livingstone and Allegany counties, N. Y. They were married in Danville, N. Y., September 9, 1857. She died in Lawrence, January 22, 1858. His second wife was Miss Emma Elizabeth Hellman, daughter of Mr William Hellman, of Philadelphia. They were married at Philadelphia, May 18, 1861. They have had eight children, viz., William Mowry, now business manager of the Lawrence Journal, born in Lawrence, March 24, 1863; Eugene, born November 24, 1864, died in Kansas City, July 12, 1865; Horace Hellman, born February 11, 1866, died in Philadelphia, August 13, 1866; Timothy Dwight, Jr., born April 22, 1867, died in Lawrence, February 10, 1881; Kate Angell, born August 16, 1869; Clara, born April 17, 1871; Edith, born September 2, 1877 and Solon Otis, born September 25, 1881. As a matter of genealogical history, we give Mr. Thacher's line as far as we have it: 1st, Rev. Peter Thacher, of Salisbury, England, 1595; 2d, Rev. Thomas Thacher, of Boston, Mass., 1620; 3d, Rev. Peter Thacher, of Milton, Mass., 1651; 4th, Rev. Peter Thacher, of Middleboro, Mass., 1688; 5th, Samuel Thacher, of Middleboro, Mass., 1717; 6th, Nathaniel Thacher, of Middleboro 1767; 7th, Mowry Thacher, Gloucester, R. I., 1802; 8th, Timothy Dwight Thacher, Hornellsville, N. Y., 1831.

CHESTER THOMAS, JR., farmer, Section 28, Town 11, Range 16, P. O. Topeka, owns 155 acres, all improved, with a fine dwelling and surroundings, a fine barn, and all modern conveniences for successful farming. Makes a specialty of growing corn and wheat and stock feeding. Present wheat crops average thirty-seven and one half bushels to the acre. Came to Kansas in October, 1858; first located at Williamsport Township, and came to his present farm in September, 1876. Has been Sheriff of Shawnee County two terms; also Treasurer two terms, also acting Adjutant-General of State under Gov. Osborn. Was appointed by the President Captain and Assistant Commissary in the fall of 1862, and was on duty in Denver, Col., and at Washington, D. C., in 1865. He was born in the State of Pennsylvania, in April, 1837, and went to Minnesota in 1857, and remained there until he came to Kansas. He was married September 26, 1866, to Miss Lorena M. Lindley. They have one child—Lorena Lou. He is a Master Mason.

CHESTER THOMAS, SR., was born July 18, 1810, in Troy Bradford Co., Pa. He came from an old Vermont family of Revolutionary fame. His school advantages were limited, though he was taught the rudiments of an English education by his mother, an intelligent, warm-hearted Christian woman. Study and observation, however, added largely to this meager stock, and he became a man of intelligence. He held various public offices in Pennsylvania, during a period of twenty-five years, but was always interested in farming, and dealt largely in stock, operating as a drover. In April, 1858, he moved to Kansas, settling on a farm in Shawnee County. In 1859 he was elected to the Territorial Council, from the counties of Shawnee, Osage and Lyon. In 1861 he was appointed by President Lincoln to be United States special mail agent for Kansas and the Western territories, embracing Nebraska, Dakota, Colorado, Utah and New Mexico. In 1862 he was appointed Captain and Assistant Quartermaster, which position he held for two years, when he resigned on account of ill health. In 1864 he was chosen a Presidential elector, voting for Abraham Lincoln. He was the associate and active friend of Hon. David Wilmot, author of the celebrated Wilmot Proviso, with whom he co-operated for over twenty years. During this period he was prominently connected with the political affairs of his State, and was intrusted by Wilmot and his associates with responsible positions in Philadelphia and other portions of the State, and was regarded as one of the ablest political managers of those stirring times. He was devoted to the anti-slavery cause, and in Kansas took sides with the Republicans and James H. Lane. Few men in the State did more to promote the Free-state cause. In the fall of 1861 the question of locating the State Capital was submitted to the people, and decided in favor of Topeka. It is not too much to say that Mr. Thomas persistent efforts in behalf of Topeka, secured the vote in its favor. He was the leading spirit in the canvass, and his influence and activity were absolutely necessary to secure the successful issue. He has been three times married. His first wife, Miss Thankful Sophia Stevens, of Troy, Pa., was a woman of eminently excellent traits of character. They were married February 7, 1833 and she died September 21, 1855. They had nine children, three of whom are dead. He was married to his second wife, Miss Lydia L. Stevens, October 9, 1856. She was an amiable and heroic woman, passed through many thrilling scenes in Kansas, and was the only woman who escaped from the terrible massacre of Gen. Blunt's body guard at Baxter Springs, and rode sixty miles on horseback during the night, reaching Fort Scott in safety. She died December 2, 1864, leaving two children. He married his third wife, Miss Mary E. McComb, July 7, 1872. She is a prominent member of the Episcopal Church, and a devoted Christian woman. They have had two children, one of whom is deceased. He is now serving his second term as Police Judge of the city of Topeka.

HERBERT KENYON TEFFT, M. D., son of Erastus and Rhoda Tefft, was born at Elgin, Kane Co., Ill., September 8, 1848. Removed to Topeka, Shawnee Co., Kan., July, 1858. During the war of the Rebellion he served in the Kansas State Militia. He attended Rush Medical College during the fall and winter of 1869 and 1870. Was a private student of Dr. Austin Flint, Sr., and attended Bellevue Hospital Medical College in the year 1872, and graduated from Bellevue Hospital Medical College March 1, 1873, since which time he has been engaged in the practice of medicine and surgery at Topeka, Kan., where he married, December 22, 1874, his present wife, Emma A. Alkire, she was born in Circleville, Ohio, December 11, 1855. She removed to Topeka, Kan., in the year 1866. Their two children are—Lillie Agnes, born December 30, 1875, and Lois Ora, born February 11, 1879. Dr. Tefft is a member of the Kansas State Medical Society.



Herbert K. Tefft. M. D.

FRANK S. THOMAS was born in Canton, Bradford Co., Pa., October 22, 1859. His parents removed to Kansas the same year, and settled on a farm near Topeka, his father, Chester Thomas, being one of the early settlers of the town. Frank S. was educated in the public schools of Topeka, and at an early age began to assist his father, who was a Government beef contractor, in his business, going to Texas at the age of twelve to herd cattle. When he was sixteen he went into the office of George R. Peck, United States District Attorney, where he remained five months, engaged in writing testimony in the Lapham case, and subsequently went to Wilkesbarre, Pa., and learned the drug business, remaining three years. In February, 1879, he returned to Topeka and served as Deputy County Treasurer in the office of his brother, Chester Jr. He is now Deputy County Clerk, and is also engaged in real estate, loan and insurance business.

JONATHAN THOMAS, banker and lumber merchant, North Topeka, is a native of Bucks County, Pa. In 1869 he removed to Homer, Champaign Co., Ill., and was there engaged in the lumber business until he came to Kansas. In January, 1870, he commenced lumber business at Topeka, in company with R. Thomas, his brother and in the following year permanently located at that place. The lumber business was discontinued in 1872, and they were engaged in stock dealing and banking until 1874, when R. Thomas returned to Illinois, Jonathan remaining and continuing in business as a banker, and also, subsequent to 1878, as a lumber merchant. Since July, 1873, he has been connected with the Citizens' Bank, the only banking establishment in North Topeka. He has now a very extensive lumber business, having yards at North Topeka, Meriden, Silver Lake and St. Mary,s. Mr. Hathaway of St. Mary's Kan., is interested with him in the St. Mary's yard, the firm being Thomas & Hathaway at St. Mary's, Mr. Hathaway being interested only in the yards at St. Mary's. At the various yards they do a business of $150,000 per annum all retail. Mr. Thomas is giving his personal attention to both the lumbering and banking business.

DR. A. H. THOMPSON was born in Logansport, Ind., April 8, 1849 and reared from the age of three years in Juniata, Perry Co., Pa. He acquired his early education in the schools and academies near his home, and his professional education in Philadelphia, graduating from the Philadelphia Dental College. He is now engaged in practice at Topeka, and is a member both of the Kansas and Missouri State Dental Societies, also of the Kansas State Historical Society and Kansas Academy of Science. Dr. Thompson was married in Topeka, December 9, 1875, to Fannie Geiger, a native of Martin's Ferry, Ohio. They have one child—Isabella.

W. A. L. THOMPSON, hardware merchant, was born near Harrisburg, Pa., April 18, 1848. In 1866 he removed to Philadelphia and resided in that city until he came to Kansas in May, 1869. After remaining in Topeka about nine months, he went to Park City, where he resided a year, and thence moved to Hutchinson, where he carried on mercantile business eighteen months, and then returned to Topeka. For the succeeding three years he was engaged in cattle raising and dealing, and for the next two with Mr. Funk, in gents' furnishing goods. In August, 1876, he embarked in hardware business, which he still successfully carries on, now giving employment to thirty hands in the various departments. The business is wholesale and retail, and has increased 200 per cent in the last six years. Mr. Thompson was married at Topeka, January 7, 1876, to Ida S., daughter of Jacob Smith, a native of Indiana. They have one child—Helen.

JOSEPH F. THRAPP, of the firm of Watson & Thrapp, real estate and loan agents, came to Kansas October 28, 1869, and after living at Alma, Wabaunsee County, for about six months, removed to Emporia and remained in that city about six months. He then removed to Winfield and stayed two years, from whence he returned to Alma, and engaged in farming, remaining there until he came to Topeka, in November, 1878. After locating in Topeka he engaged in the mail and stage business, running the Alma and Dover stage seven months, at the expiration of which time he went into real estate business with Mr. Watson. He was born in Danville, Ill., November 28, 1849, where he lived until 1866, and subsequently in Ford and Champaign counties, Ill., until he came to Kansas. He was married at Alma, Kan., June 28, 1874, to Nannie Bowman, a native of Thornton, Boone Co., Ind. They have two children—Margaret C. and Daniel B.

PROF. D. C. TILLOTSON, Superintendent of the City Schools of Topeka, Kan., was born in Steuben Township, Warren Co., Ind., March 11, 1856. He was educated in the public schools of his native State and of Kansas, besides being also for a time under the instruction of a private tutor. In 1866 he came to Oskaloosa, Jefferson Co., Kan. At the age of nineteen years he began teaching in that county, and since that time teaching has been his profession. In the fall of 1879 he came to Topeka to take charge of the Quincy School, North Topeka, of which he was principal until he was elected Superintendent of the City Schools, in May, 1881. Prior to coming to Topeka he had charge of the schools at Winchester, Jefferson Co., Kan.

CHARLES E. TILLSON, dealer in meat, of the firm of Tillson & Hammond, 33 Kansas avenue. Born in Sidney, Me., February 3, 1854. Was educated in the academy at Hollowell, Me. He came to Kansas in November, 1881. His father, Jason Tillson, died many years since. He has two brothers and one sister still living in his native State. The present partnership of Tillson & Hammond was formed in December, 1882.

A. K. TIPTON, dairyman, two and one-half miles south of Topeka, came to Kansas, November 26, 1869, from Columbus, Ohio, and located at Topeka; remained one year, and then moved to the farm where he now is. Was born February 8, 1850, at Columbus, Ohio, and was engaged in butchering business with his father during his boyhood. Mr. T., also learned the plane-making trade.

W. P. TOMLINSON was born in Lower Makefield, Bucks Co., Pa., November 15, 1836. His only opportunities for receiving an education when young were in the common schools of his native county, which opportunities were advantageously enjoyed. When eighteen years old he found his way to New York City and entered the field of journalism. In the fall of 1857 he was sent to Kansas as correspondent of the New York Tribune, and sent to that paper graphic descriptions of the early troubles of the State. In December, 1858, he returned to New York, where he published a book on Kansas in 1858, and the difficulties experienced by her people during the border ruffianism. In January, 1859, he sailed from New York for Europe in the capacity of correspondent for the New York Evening Post, landing at Gibraltar, from which point he traveled on foot through Spain to the southern frontier of France, and in due time reached Paris, in which city he remained several weeks, when he crossed the channel to England. During the summer, fall and winter he spent considerable time visiting Scotland and Ireland, making the tour of those countries chiefly on foot, graphically describing in his letters his observations of the different countries and their people. Much of his time abroad was passed in England, from which country he returned to New York in the spring of 1861, where he resumed his journalistic work. In 1864 he published a volume of poems entitled "Home and Abroad." While thus engaged he published several works, some of which contain the speeches of eminent public men, besides other miscellaneous books. From 1865 to 1871 he was connected with the National Anti-Slavery Standard, as publisher and associate editor. In the spring of 1872 he moved to Kansas, locating at Council Grove, in Morris county, where he was employed as land agent for the M. K. & T. R. R. Co., which position he held until the spring of 1873, when he removed to Rush County, where he established the Walnut Valley Standard, and published the same until 1877, when he moved with his paper to Ellis, Ellis County, where he continued its publication as the Standard. Mr. Tomlinson was the first representative elected to the Legislature from Rush County. In 1879 he removed to Russell, Russell County, where he established and published the Independent, and remained there until the fall of 1881, when he removed to Topeka, assuming a position on the editorial staff of the Commonwealth, and while thus employed was appointed executive clerk by Gov. G. W. Glick, January 7, 1883, entering upon the duties of his office immediately thereafter. Mr. Tomlinson was married at Camden, Morris Co., Kansas, in December, 1872, to Miss Nellie M. Raceco, a native of New York State, the issue of which marriage is one daughter—Ella.

JAMES A. TROUTMAN, attorney, was born near Pleasant Grove, Fulton Co., Ind., December 1, 1853, and in March, 1865, came to Kansas with his parents, and located in Tecumseh Township, Shawnee County. His parents, William H. and Nancy (Smith) Troutman, at present reside in Topeka. He was educated in the public schools and at the normal school at Leavenworth, and taught in Kansas and Missouri for three years after leaving the normal school. In July, 1876, he came to Topeka and read law with Peck, Ryan & Johnson, until admitted to the bar in the spring of 1878. He edited the Kansas Temperance Palladium for one year after the fall of 1879, for the first ten weeks at Topeka and for the remainder of the time at Lawrence. Since the discontinuance of that organ he has been engaged in active practice as a partner of Judge Day, with whom he had been associated before engaging in the Prohibition campaign. Mr. Troutman is secretary of the State Temperance Union, a position he has held for three years, and is first vice-president of the Kansas Mutual Benefit Union—a temperance insurance organization. He has also served for two years as grand worthy secretary of the I. O. G. T., and is at present the official head of that order in Kansas.

D. TUTTLE, dealer in meats, of the firm of D. Tuttle & Co., 219 Kansas avenue, was born in Durham, Conn., April 16, 1833. His father's name was Joseph Tuttle, his mother's Phœbe Smith. Both were lineal descendents of old Puritan stock. He remained at Durham on a farm until 1877, when he moved to Topeka, Kan., and established one of the largest meat-markets in the city. He was married in October, 1865, to Mary E. Newell, of Connecticut. One daughter, Jennie M. Tuttle, was born October 26, 1867.

E. A. TUTTLE, M. D., was born in Boston, Mass., September, 13, 1848; was educated in the public schools of Boston, and attended lectures at the Medical Department of Harvard College. For four years he was associated with Dr. Braman, surgeon at Watertown, Mass., Arsenal. Afterward, for three years, he was in practice on Elliott street, Boston. On account of ill-health he removed to Auburn, Kansas, in 1879. Remained there until 1882, and then came to Topeka, where he has since been in practice, besides being a partner with George Williams in the drug business since February, 1883. He is a member of the Kansas State Eclectic Medical Society. The doctor was married at Boston, May 12, 1875, to Edith J. Lindsey, a native of Rockland, Maine. They have one child—Alice D.

OLIVER PRICE UPDEGRAFF money broker, is a native of Mount Pleasant, Jefferson Co., Ohio, where he thoroughly learned the banking business, having been paying teller of the First National Bank of that place for three years prior to coming to Topeka in July, 1879. He embarked in the cattle business and other speculations when he first came here, but within a year he commenced loaning money, making that his principal business, although he has been identified with various enterprises, being one of the original proprietors and promoters of the Grand Opera House Co. At present he is associated with L. M. H. Wood, in the management of that establishment. In the brokerage business, his father-in-law, J. H. Gill, president of the First National Bank of Mount Pleasant, Ohio, is his partner, the firm name being Gill & Updegraff. Mr. Updegraff was married at Mount Pleasant, Ohio, to Mary P. Gill. They have two children, James Gill and Oliver Price, Jr. Mr. U. is a member of the K. of P., being vice-chancellor of Capital Lodge No. 21. He is a Quaker in religion.

J. W. URSCHEL, B street, North Topeka, dealer in meat, was born March 6, 1845, at Canton, Ohio. His parents still live in the same town. He remained at home on a farm until the spring of 1875, when he came to Kansas, settling on a farm near Topeka. He resided there until 1882 when he came to the city, engaging in the business which he now follows. He is a member of the Capital Lodge of Grangers; also a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church of North Topeka. He was married to Miss Helen I. Van Fleet, of Lucas County, Ohio, in March, 1871. They have two children, one son and one daughter. Mr. Urschel has three brothers and three sisters living in Ohio and Indiana.

RT. REV. THOMAS HUBBARD VAIL, S.T.D., LL.D., was born in Richmond, Va., October 21, 1812. His parents were from New England; he was baptized in the Capitol at Richmond, by Rev. Mr. Buchanan, who, for many years, was the assistant of Bishop Moore, in the Monumental Church. On the death of his father, which occurred in 1817, he, with the survivors of the family, returned to New England, where he received his education. He was graduated from Washington (now Trinity) College, Hartford, Conn., in 1831, and from the general Theological Seminary, New York, in 1835. He was ordained a deacon, at New Canaan, Conn., June 29, 1835, by Rt. Rev. Thomas Church Brownell, S.T.D.; January 6, 1837, he was ordained a priest by Rt. Rev. Alexander V. Griswold, S.T.D. During three months succeeding his ordination to the deaconate he officiated in St. James Church, Philadelphia; subsequently he removed to Boston, and was temporarily engaged as assistant to Dr. Wainwright, then rector of Trinity Church; under his direction he went to Worcester, Mass., and organized All Saints Church; in 1837, at Easter, he became rector of Christ Church, Cambridge, Mass., where he remained nearly two years; in 1839, he removed to Connecticut and assumed the rectorship of St. John's Church, Essex; in 1844, he removed to Westerly, R. I. and became the rector of Christ Church, where he remained for fourteen years, during which time he was a deputy to the general convention from the Diocese of Rhode Island; in 1857, he returned to Massachusetts and became the rector of St. Thomas' Church, Taunton; in 1863, he removed to Muscatine, Iowa, and became the rector of Trinity Church; in September, 1864, he was elected Bishop of Kansas, and was consecrated to that holy office in Trinity Church, Muscatine, Iowa, September 15, 1864, by the Rt. Rev. Jackson Kemper, S.T.D., assisted by the Rt. Rev. Henry Washington Lee, S.T.D., and the Rt. Rev. Gregory Thurston Bedell, D.D. He removed soon after to his new field of labor, settling in Topeka. As the first bishop, of the diocese of Kansas, his work is identified with the growth, harmony and general prosperity of the church. When the bishop first came to Kansas, his charge suggested more of labor, faith and hope in the future than of ease or present prosperity. Two small churches were built—one at Wyandotte and one at Lawrence—two were in process of erection—one at Leavenworth and one at Fort Scott, and the walls of churches commenced before the war, were standing at Topeka, Manhattan and Junction City. Now there are thirty-one churches, fourteen parsonages, thirty-two organized parishes, thirty-eight missions outside the regular parishes, and thirty-eight clergy. There is a fine college, the College of the Sisters of Bethany, at Topeka, valued at $150,000, the establishment of which is attributable to the labors of Bishop Vail. He is at present engaged in the work of founding a church hospital at Topeka, to be known as Christ's Hospital; the enterprise is so far on the road to consummation that it is safe to record it as another evidence of his Christian devotion and philanthropy. In addition to his labors and responsibilities as recor and bishop the subject of this sketch has found time for much valuable literary work. Among his published writings are: The Comprehensive Church; Life of Lyde, with an edition of his poems; Plan and Outline of a public library, with selections of books under many heads, and many other minor publications, sermons, charges, pastoral letters, etc. Bishop Vail married, at the age of twenty-three years, Miss Frances Sophia Vose, youngest daughter of Col. Walter Burling, of Natchez, Miss. They had nine children, of whom three survive—Thomas C., now a resident of Topeka; J. Everett, Washington, D. C., and Maria, wife of Rev. Dr. Backwell, of Santa Barbara, Cal. Mrs. Vail died before his settlement in Kansas. April 22, 1867, he married Miss Sedlie Bowman, only child of the Rt. Rev. Bishop Samuel Bowman, D.D., of Pennsylvania. They have had two children, one of whom, a daughter, Ellen Sitgreaves, is now (1883) twelve years of age. Bishop Vail received the degree of Doctor of Sacred Theology, from Brown University, Providence, R. I., in 1858, and that of Doctor of Laws from the University of Kansas, A. D. 1875.

HON. DANIEL M. VALENTINE is a lineal descendent of Richard Valentine, who came from England and settled at Hempstead, Long Island, in 1644. There the family remained till 1728, at which time, Richard, his grandson, removed thence to Elizabeth, N. J. From there, Daniel, a grandson of Richard last named, removed to Ohio with his family, remained in Champaign County for a year or more, and finally settled in Shelby County. John W. Valentine, son of Daniel, was born in New Jersey prior to the emigration of the family to Ohio. He married Rebecca Kinkennon, a native of Tennessee. They were the parents of Daniel M. Valentine, the subject of this sketch. He was born in Shelby County, Ohio, June 18, 1830, and removed with his parents to Tippecanoe County, Ind., in 1836. He was bred on the farm of his father, till twenty years of age, enjoying such educational advantages as the public schools and the academies of the vicinity afforded. He subsequently followed school-teaching and surveying. He removed from Tippecanoe County, Ind., to Iowa, in 1854, first stopping at Jefferson, Greene County, then in Winterset, Madison County, and finally settling at Fontanelle, Adair County. He read law in Indiana and Iowa, and was admitted to practice, at Winterset, in the spring of 1858. In 1859 he came to Kansas, first settling in Leavenworth. In 1860, he removed to Peoria City, Franklin County, where he lived till 1875, at which time he took up his residence at Topeka, the capital of the State, where he has since continued to reside. Mr. Valentine was in active service as a private, at the various times during the war period, 1861-65, whenever the exigencies of the times called the Kansas Militia into active service, to repel the frequent raids of the enemy into the State, or near its borders. He took part in the short but successful campaign which resulted in the discomfiture and defeat of the rebel invasion of Gen. Price. The estimation in which he is held by his fellow citizens, is evinced by the frequency with which they have called him by their votes to offices of trust and honor. While in Iowa, he was County Surveyor of Adair County during 1855-6-7, and Attorney for the same county in 1858, and until his removal to Kansas, in 1859. Since becoming a resident of the latter State, he has been honored as follows: In November, 1861, elected a member of the Kansas House of Representatives, from Franklin County; in 1863-64, he was a member of the State Senate from the same county; he served as Judge of the Fourth Judicial District, from 1864 to 1868, inclusive; and in 1868, was elected as a Justice of the Supreme Court of Kansas, and has been twice re-elected to the same eminent position. At the Republican State Convention he was nominated for a third time as Justice, without a dissenting voice. He is still an honored occupant of the Supreme bench, where, after the long service of fifteen years, he still retains the unqualified confidence of the people as a just and honest judge, and the eminent respect of the bar, for his long tried and often proved ability as a jurist. He is a member of the Masonic Brotherhood, and has been for about twenty-five years a bright exponent of the unostentatious charity which characterizes all true brothers of the mystic tie. His early political affiliations were with the Whig party. For many years past he has been a staunch and unswerving Republican. His religious convictions are deep and all too broad for dogmatic classification, covering more the domain of practical good works in the great field of humanity than that of polemic contests as to the truth or falsity of formulated creeds. In all the walks of life his path is that of rectitude and honor, his reputation untarnished, and his character unstained. Judge Valentine married Miss Martha Root, of Fontanelle, Iowa, June 26, 1855. They have had twelve children. Those living are—D. Adelbert, Sarah Eva, John Wm., Harry Edward, Martha Abbie, Maggie Elsie, Ralph Elmer, Lilian Irene, Louis Franklin. Three children died in infancy. He has been a member of the Masonic order since December 15, 1858.

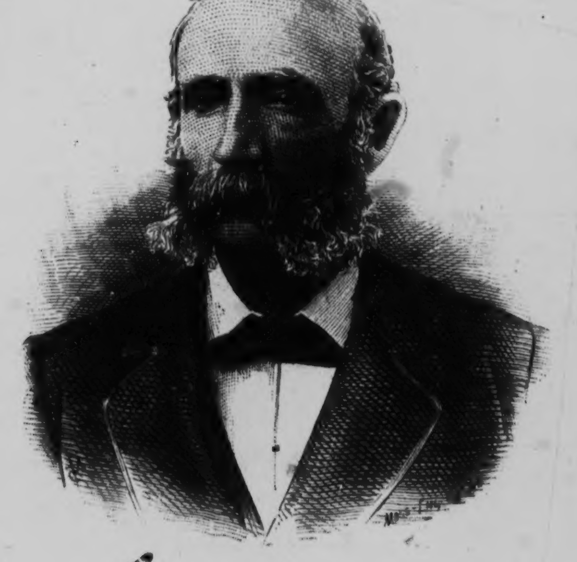
A. H. VANCE, County Attorney, was born in Mt. Vernon, Ohio, November 7, 1842. He acquired his literary education in the schools of Mt. Vernon and at Oberlin College, and studied law at Columbia Law School at Washington, D. C., from which he graduated in the spring of 1868, being admitted to the bar in the District of Columbia the same spring. From that time until he removed to Topeka in November, 1869, he resided at Mt. Vernon, Ohio, engaged in the practice of his profession. He has also been actively engaged in the practice of law in Topeka since his removal to that city. He was elected County Attorney in the fall of 1874, his term commencing January, 1875, and has held the office, by re-election, continuously until the present time. He was married in Topeka, October 20, 1881, to Laura B. Wolf, a native of Cincinnati, Ohio, but for several years a resident of Topeka. Mr. Vance is a member of A. F. & A. M. Blue Lodge, Chapter and Commandery, K. of H. and K. of P.

W. W. VANDERVERE, grocer, of the firm of Vandervere & Cockrell, 263 Kansas avenue. Born in Ogden, Monroe Co., N. Y., in 1837. He lived in Ogden until he reached the age of twenty-one, when he removed to Rochester, N. Y., and engaged in the business of selling fruits. His health failing, he went to Michigan in 1861, where he again went into business, and continued until 1878. He then became a commercial agent and traveled until 1882, at which time he came to Lawrence, Kan. In February, 1883, he went into the grocery business in the city of Topeka. He was married to Ursula R. Seely, of Cleveland, Ohio, in 1857. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, Blue Lodge, Chapter and Commandery, and is a successful business man. He entered upon the secret service of the United States in the spring of 1877, continuing about five years.

COL. GEORGE W. VEALE was born May 20, 1833, in Davies County, Ind., and is the youngest child of James C. and Eleanor Aikman Veale, who were among the earliest settlers of Indiana. George W. spent his early years on a farm, working summers and attending the pioneer schools in the vicinity in the winter. He made the most of his advantages, however, and while yet a youth was able to enter Wabash College, Ind., where he remained two years. The first year of his active business life was spent on the Lower Mississippi, where he had charge of a store boat loaded with goods for planters and farmers, and as clerk of an Ohio and Mississippi River steamer. In 1854 he engaged as clerk with a wholesale dry goods house in Evansville, Ind., and subsequently became traveling and collecting agent for the firm. In 1856 he emigrated to Kansas and started a dry goods business in Leavenworth County which he continued until the breaking out of the war of the Rebellion, when he raised a cavalry company and was mustered into the United States service as Captain of Company E, Fourth Kansas Volunteers. In June, 1861, he was commissioned Major in the Sixth Kansas Cavalry in March, 1862, and served in that position until October 10, 1863; in July 1864, he was commissioned Colonel of Kansas State Militia, and in the following October participated with his regiment, the Second, in the battles on the border during the Price Raid; both commander and men being especially distinguished for bravery and persistent determination in the hard fought engagements at the Mockaby Farm and on the Blue. The spring of 1866 he was commissioned by the Governor of Kansas Commissioner for the sale of State lands; he served as State Senator in 1867-68 and '69; as Representative in 1871-73-75-76, and was again elected Representative in the fall of 1882, and served during the winter of 1883. Mr. Veale was one of the incorporators and was prominently connected with the building of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe R. R., and now has charge of the taxes and other interests of the Kansas and Colorado property of the Union Pacific Railroad Company; his time being mainly devoted to the interests of that road. He was married January 20, 1857, to Miss Nannie Johnson, of Evansville, Ind.; their family consists of two sons, G. W. Veale, Jr., and Walter I. Veale.



Geo. W. Veale

H. P. VROOMAN, located at Council Grove, Kan., in May, 1876, remaining there two years and removed to Eureka, at which place he resided until the fall of 1881, when he removed to Topeka. He was born at Johnstown, Montgomery Co., N. Y., July 24, 1828, and with his parents removed to Ohio, locating near Toledo in 1837; in May, 1850, he commenced the study of law; was admitted to the bar in 1854, and in the fall of the same year was elected Prosecuting Attorney for Monroe County, Mich.; he continued his practice in Monroe and Port Huron until 1865, and then removed to Macon City, Mo., where he was appointed Judge of Court of Common Pleas by the Governor of Missouri in the spring of 1868, and elected to the same office the following fall; he resigned this office six years later, and soon afterward removed to Kansas. He was married at Kalamazoo, Mich., February 20, 1852, to Sarah Buffington, daughter of the United States Consul at Chatham, Canada. They have six children, Frank R., Harry C., Walter W. Hiram G., Carl Schurz, and Roy B. Mr. Vrooman is a member of the Congregational Church, and was the national candidate for Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Kansas in 1878, and for Governor in 1880.

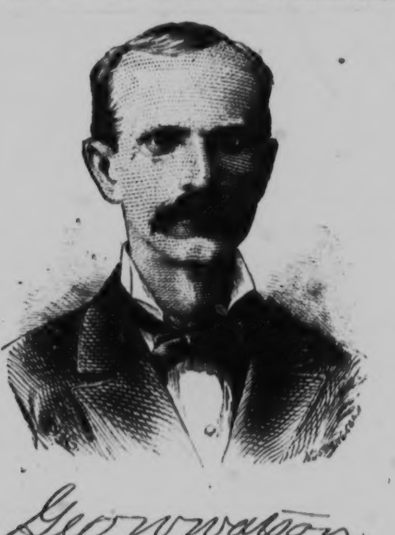
J. E. WALKER, North Topeka, was born in Franklin County, N. Y., July 24, 1847, living there until the spring of 1849, when his parents removed with their family to Watertown, Wis. That was their home until 1860, when they came to Kansas, locating at Baldwin City, where J. E. worked at the trade of carpenter and joiner. December 14, 1863, he enlisted in Company G, Sixteenth Kansas Volunteer Cavalry. He participated in the pursuit of Price through Kansas and Missouri. Was in the battle of Powder River, and participated in a large number of other engagements. He is a member of I. O. O. F., A. O. U. W., and G. A. R. Mr. Walker is a son of Samuel N. Walker, one of the well-known Free-state pioneers of Kansas, being now engaged in grocery business in North Topeka, his son being employed in his store. J. E. was married October 10, 1869, to Miss S. A. Wolfe, of Ottawa, Kan. They have two daughters.

SAMUEL N. WALKER, merchant, North Topeka, was born in Burlington, Vt., August 18, 1816; removed to Watertown, Jefferson Co., Wis., in 1848; lived there and in that vicinity until he came to Kansas in March, 1859. While a resident of Jefferson County, Wis., he held various offices, such as Sheriff, Supervisor, Justice of the Peace, etc. His first location in Kansas was at Baldwin City, Douglas County (held office of Justice of the Peace there) where he resided until April, 1881, when he removed to Osage City, remaining there until his removal to Topeka in October, 1882. He purchased his present store in January, 1883. Since coming to Kansas he has been engaged in mercantile pursuits considerable of the time, at present carrying on a retail grocery business. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church and has been prominently identified with church affairs all the time he has been in the State. He is a member of the Masonic Order. Mr. Walker was married at Bangor, N. Y., August 13, 1843, to Catharine M. Horrigan, a native of Hawkesbury, Canada. They have two children—Jerry E., with his father in the store, and Velira A., who will soon become a resident of Topeka.

W. H. WARD was born in Adrian, Mich., December 9, 1840. He acquired his education in the schools of his native town; graduated from Adrian High School, and read law with his father. When the war of 1861-65 broke out, he organized a company, and finding there would be considerable delay in having it attached to a Michigan regiment, took it to Ohio, and joined the Forty-seventh Ohio Volunteer Infantry, serving in that regiment until August 9, 1864; he was slightly wounded at Charleston, West Va., and was taken prisoner May 3, 1863, and confined in rebel prisons of Vicksburg, Atlanta and Libby about six weeks, when he was exchanged, and rejoined his regiment before Vicksburg, July 3, 1863; he served as captain of his company during the time he was in the army, but was on detached service during the summer of 1864, as Acting Quartermaster at Todd Barracks, Columbus, Ohio, and during the summer and fall of 1862 was Provost Marshal of District of Great Kanawa, being relieved about January 1, 1863, in order that he might accompany his regiment to Vicksburg. Mr. Ward participated in the battles of Lewisburg and Charleston, Va., Arkansas Post, Haines Bluff, Vicksburg, Mission Ridge, Relief of Knoxville, Resaca, Ga., Kenesaw Mountain, Peach Tree Creek, besides other minor engagements or skirmishes. He was married at Adrian, Mich., April 20, 1864, to Miss Mettie J. Kost, a native of Ohio, and a daughter of Prof. John Kost, of Adrian College; their four children are Lorena E., Edith J., William K., and Morgia. Capt. Ward is a member of G. A. R. A. F. & A. M., K. of H., and A. O. U. W., and is president of ex-Prisoners of War Association, of Kansas.

A. WASHBURN, farmer and county commissioner, Section 35, P. O. Topeka, has 160 acres in the home farm, a mile and a half west of the State House; 100 acres under cultivation and the balance in pasture. The farm is all under fence and otherwise well improved; having a large one and a half story frame house, barn, etc., and an orchard of about 400 bearing apple trees besides other fruits; in addition to this Mr. Washburn has one other farm near Topeka in a good state of cultivation. He was born in Stafford, Conn., in 1818, residing there until nineteen years old, when he went to Western New York; for many years he was engaged in the manufacture of woolen goods in Allegany County; in 1869 he became cashier of the First National Bank at Brockfort, N. Y., holding that position for four years; he then removed to Kansas and located on his farm which he had preempted in 1857; he was married in 1841 at Rushford, N. Y., to Miss Caston Gordon. They have one child, Frank. Mr. Washburn is serving his second term as Commissioner of Shawnee County, and is now Chairman of the Board; he has also been Treasurer of Topeka Township, Shawnee County Agricultural Society, and of Capital Grange, of which he is a member; he is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church; his grandfather, Nathan Washburn, was a soldier of the Revolutionary War; was at the Battle of Bunker Hill, and for five years followed the lead of Gen. Washington through the battles of Long Island, Monmouth, Stony Point; was at Valley Forge during that terrible winter, and at many other points of interest during the struggle for independence.

O. WATERMAN, the well-known carriage painter, was born at St. Joseph, Mich., July 24, 1845; when he was seven years old his parents moved to Minnesota, remaining until 1857, when they removed to Kansas, locating in Coffey County; he leared his trade with his father, who was a mechanic; he has followed the business the past twenty-one years. During the past four years he has resided in Topeka and has carried on an extensive business of $3,600 per year; he is a very skillful workman and controls the best trade in the city; his work compares favorably with any work done in Eastern cities; he enlisted in 1864 in Company C, Fifty-first Missouri Volunteers, serving until the close of the war. He was married in Topeka, January 22, 1881, to Miss Lena Long; he is a member of the Shawnee Lodge No. 40, I. O. O. F., at Topeka.



Geo. W. Watson

GEORGE W. WATSON, Receiver United States Land Office and real estate agent, came to Kansas September 20, 1867. Located at Alma, Wabaunsee County, and engaged in teaching, in which profession he continued four years. In 1871 he was elected County Clerk, and re-elected in 1873-75, serving through four of these years as Clerk of the District Court also. While a resident of Alma he engaged in the practice of law, and real estate, and held several municipal offices, being City Clerk, City Treasurer and member of the School Board. He was appointed Receiver of the United States Land Office in 1878, and removed to Topeka, where he still resides, having held the office to the present time. Mr. Watson is a native of Huntington County, Ind., born near Belden, July 29, 1844. He enlisted in Company K, Thirty-third Indiana Volunteer Infantry, August, 1861, and served until June, 1865, being wounded and taken prisoner at the battle of Spring Hill, Tenn., March 5, 1863, and held prisoner three months before exchange was made. He was again wounded at the battle of New Hope Church, in Georgia, during the Atlanta campaign. After leaving the army he returned to Indiana, and in September, 1865, removed to Champaign County, Ill., where he remained until he located in Kansas. He is a member of the G. A. R., A., F. & A. M. In February, 1880, Mr. Joseph F. Thrapp became associated with Mr. Watson in real estate business, the firm being Watson & Thrapp.

J. C. WATT, of the firm of Watt & Powell, manufacturers and wholesale dealers in boots and shoes, North Topeka, came to Kansas in the spring of 1870, from Aurora, Ill., and first located in Marshall County, where he remained two years engaged in farming. Removed to Leavenworth, and remained two years in boot and shoe business, and removed to Perry, Jefferson County, where he remained three years engaged in same business, and came to North Topeka May 10, 1876, and located at No. 35 Kansas avenue, and removed to his present commodious quarters June 1, 1881. This is the only wholesale boot and shoe establishment in Topeka, and they have two traveling salesmen to represent them throughout the State and adjoining territory. Mr. Watt is a member and one of the directors of the Topeka Board of Trade, and one of the directors of the contemplated Fort Scott, Topeka & Lincoln Railroad. Was born in Rome, N. Y., August 15, 1842. His parents moved to Lansing, Mich., when Mr. W. was a mere child, and remained there until he was fifteen years old, and had learned his trade—that of shoemaking. He then worked at his trade in various parts of the country, in all of the principal cities of the United States, from New York to San Francisco, and has mastered every department of the shoe trade now known from "jour" to superintendent and wholesale dealer. Was married September 18, 1874, at Kansas City, Mo., to Mrs. M. Powell, who was born in Missouri. Is a member of Kaw Valley Lodge, No. 20, A. O. U. W. of Topeka.

L. J. WEBB, attorney, came to Kansas May 17, 1868, and located at Fort Scott. He was admitted to the bar in the fall of that year, and in February, 1870, went to Columbus, where he remained for one year, engaged in practice. He was the first mayor of Columbus. In May, 1871, he removed to Winfield, Kan., where he remained in practice until September, 1880, removing to Topeka at that date. While at Winfield he was for two years member of the House of Representatives, and also for two years member of the Republican State Central Committee. He was chairman of the County Central Committee at the time of its organization, and was for several years chairman of the County Committee. Mr. Webb is a native of Ridgebury, Bradford Co., Pa. He was born August 5, 1846, and when six years of age removed to Wisconsin with his father. He enlisted in Company H, Sixteenth Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, October 1, 1861, and served in that regiment eleven months. He was then discharged on account of disability, and almost immediately re-enlisted in Company I, Thirtieth Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, his service to date five days before his discharge from his old regiment, and served until July 15, 1865, returning at the close of his service to Wautoma, Wis., which was his home until he came to Kansas. He was educated in the public schools of Waushara County, Wis., learned the printer's trade, and after coming to Kansas published the Cowley County Censor, the first newspaper in Cowley County. Mr. Webb was married in Bradford County, Pa., August 31, 1870, to Helen M. Herman, a native of that county. They have one child—Mabel F.

CHARLES M. WELCH, son of Daniel and Eliza (Camp) Welsh, was born in Marion County, Ohio, September 19, 1839. His father, of Irish descent, was born in Delaware County, Ohio, in 1817, afterwards lived in Marion County. Moved in 1847 to De Kalb County, Ind., and in 1863 to De Witt County, Ill., where he still lives. His mother, of Scotch descent, was born in 1818, in Onondaga County, N.Y. Daniel and Eliza Welch have had eight children, three only of whom are living. Charles M., the eldest of the sons, had but limited educational advantages, but through the instructions imparted by his mother, and what he was able to acquire in the schools of the neighborhood, made sufficient progress to commence teaching when he was but fifteen. In 1854 he entered Vienna Academy, Newville, Ind., supporting himself by teaching in winter. In 1860 he went to Farmer City, Ill., and taught school, returning the following year to Indiana, where he studied law with Judge John Morris, of Fort Wayne. In August, 1861, he enlisted for three years in Company E, Eleventh Indiana Volunteers, afterward a part of the First Division Thirteenth Army Corps, Gen. Lew Wallace commanding. In the spring of 1864, the Eleventh was reorganised into a veteran regiment, and attached to the Army of Shenandoah, Gen. Phil. Sheridan commanding. After serving four years and one month, Mr. Welch was mustered out in September, 1865, and returned to Farmer City. He taught school there and in the surrounding counties until 1873, and was for the six following years connected with the grain house of J. O. Peckham & Co., of Farmer City, he being a part of the time at Kenney, Ill. In 1877 he re-commenced his law studies with Judge Ingham, finishing them with Mr. Herrick, of Farmer City. He was admitted to the bar at Springfield, June, 1877, and commenced the practice of his profession at Farmer City, of which place he was afterwards elected Mayor, on the temperance issue. He was married April, 1866, to Miss T. C. Ryan, of Defiance County, Ohio, youngest daughter of John Ryan, of New York. He is now engaged in the practice of law in Topeka, having located here June 20, 1882. His brother, Rudolph B. Welch, is associated with him in practice, under the firm name of Welch & Welch.

ORRIN T. WELCH, insurance commissioner, came to Topeka August, 1865, and engaged in insurance and real estate business, in which he continued until he was appointed Commissioner of Insurance, by Gov. Osborn, in 1875, which office he still retains by re-appointment. Mr. Welch was Mayor of the City of Topeka in 1868, 1871 and 1872. He was born in the town of Orleans, Jefferson Co., N. Y., December 3, 1835, and his early life was spent on a farm. In September, 1855, he went to Michigan, and resided in Kalamazoo, in that State, three years, prior to coming to Kansas. He was married at Galesburg, Mich., March 31, 1858, to Abbie E. Simmons, a resident of Michigan, but born in New York. They have one child—Maud. Mr. Welch was elected Justice of the Peace, soon after his removal to Michigan—while yet but twenty-one years old. After serving in that capacity four years, he was elected a member of the Board of Supervisors, and retained the position three years, acting meantime as Deputy Town Clerk, and was then elected by the County Board of Supervisors as their delegate to the State Board of Equalization. During the war he was a member of the Board of Enrollment for the Second Congressional District, and was also Draft Commissioner for Van Buren County, Mich., these years during the war, being the only time he has been out of commission business since he first engaged in it, when about twenty years of age. He is a member of A. F. & A. M., Blue Lodge, Chapter and Commandery, and is director and president of the Masonic Temperance Society. He was director and president of the Citizens' Building and Savings Institution during its successful existence of eleven years, and also vice-president of the Topeka Iron & Steel Company, until it ceased to exist.

RUDOLPH B. WELCH, attorney-at-law, and member of the firm of Welch & Welch, was born near Spencerville, Allen County, Ind., July 23, 1850. His collegiate education was acquired at the Illinois Wesleyan University at Bloomington, from which institution he was graduated in 1877, and immediately after became City Superintendent of Schools at Pontiac, retaining that position until he was elected President of the State Normal School at Emporia, and came to Kansas in August, 1879, to assume the duties of the position. Prior to this time he had been Principal of the high schools of Abingdon and Washington, Ill., and had read law at Pontiac while teaching in that city. While he had charge of the Normal School at Emporia he visited over sixty counties, lecturing before teachers' institutes and other assemblages, and by his efforts and ability so increased the popularity of the school that the number of pupils increased from ninety to 402 during the years he remained there. He resigned his position in the school January, 1882, to take effect June 16, 1882, his resignation being for the purpose of entering into a law partnership with his brother Charles M. in Topeka at that time. The brothers are now engaged in the practice of law under the firm name of Welch & Welch.

JACOB WELCHHANS came to Topeka, May 16, 1868, and was engaged in masonry work for about a year after his arrival. In April, 1869, he was made Deputy County Surveyor and served in that position three years. He was elected representative to the State Legislature in 1873 from the Fifty-eighth District, he being at that time a resident of Monmouth Township, and in 1875 was elected County Surveyor, and served two terms. Since January, 1880, he has been connected with the office of the State Auditor. Mr. W. is a native of German Township, Clarke Co., Ohio. He was born August 5, 1834, and lived in Clarke County until 1863; then removed to Champaign County, Ohio, where he lived until he emigrated to Kansas. He was married in Champaign County, October 11, 1863, to Sarah Elizabeth Palmer, a native of Ross County, Ohio. They have three living children—Olive, Frank Everett, and Alice, having lost one child in infancy. Mr. W. now resides on Section 26, Township 13, Range 16. He removed to Monmouth Township in 1870, and is carrying on a farm there, besides which he has taught school twenty-six terms, and served as Deputy Clerk in the County Clerk's office four years. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, I. O. G. T., I. O. O. F., Patrons of Husbandry, and several literary societies; also of the Shawnee County Teachers' Association.

CHARLES W. WELSH, of the firm of Bennett & Welsh, was born in Clark County, Ill., December 13, 1846, living there until the spring of 1859, when his family moved to Topeka. He enlisted in 1862 in Company M., —— ——— Regiment, Kansas Volunteers, serving until the latter part of 1865, being one year and a half on the Missouri frontier, and the rest of the time in the campaign against the Indians in western Kansas and Colorado. After his discharge he returned to Topeka and soon after began the business of carpenter and builder, which he has since followed. He was married at Topeka, March 3, 1869, to Miss Mattie C. Durham. They have two children—Clifford and Myrtle. The firm of Bennett & Welsh, contractors and builders, have been doing business together since the early part of 1882. They are among the heaviest contractors and builders in the city having done in the year 1882 over $700,000 worth of work, building the State Library, Copeland Hotel, and other buildings. They employ on an average sixty-five men, devoting their attention chiefly to public buildings.

EDWARD H. WHITE, attorney-at-law, came to Kansas in June, 1876, and located on his farm in Mission Township, five miles west of Topeka, where he remained three years, meanwhile teaching Adam's School, Topeka, being principal. Moved to the city in 1879 and engaged in editing and publishing the Topeka Tribune until November, 1881. April, 1880, was elected a member of the School Board for a term of three years. Began the publication of the Colored Patriot, the official organ of colored Kansans, April 20, 1882, and discontinued that paper July 20, 1882. Mr. White has taken an active part in politics, has always been an ardent Republican, was a delegate to the State Convention in 1882. He was born in Clarksville, Montgomery Co., Tenn., November 27, 1847. In 1856, his father being suspected of complicity with John Brown and the underground railroad, the family was driven from the State. He removed with his parents to Debuque, Iowa. Returned to his native State in 1860 and was held by the Confederates one year, and was then captured and detained by the Federals another year, when he went to Ohio and entered Wilberforce College, near Xenia, Ohio, and remained one year, completing the preparatory course. Then entered Oberlin College in the fall of 1865 and remained, with the exception of one year which he spent in the South teaching, until graduating in the classical course in 1870. He was a revenue collector in the Fifth District of Tennessee for six months and was then appointed principal of the institute for colored youth in Philadelphia. Held that position for three years, meanwhile reading law with Judge Pratt, and graduated in Howard University in the law department. Practiced his profession one year in Nashville, Tenn., and was admitted to the Supreme Court of that State, and has since then been admitted to practice in Kansas. He was married December 31, 1873, at Oberlin, Ohio, to Miss Caledonia D. Scott, of that place, a graduate of the High School. They have three children—Edward S., Viola M., and Donald Betran. Mr. White is a member and Grand Secretary of International Good Templars, and a member of the Presbyterian Church.

A. B. WHITING, druggist, was born in Johnson, La Moille Co., Vt., in 1836, where he resided until he came to Kansas, April 19, 1856, locating in what is now Madison Township, Riley County, most of his farm however being located in what is now Davis County. He engaged in farming and freighting. At that early day he paid $104 for 1,000 feet of common flooring lumber on the levee at Leavenworth, freighting it a distance of 140 miles to his home with ox teams, and was obliged to take his first grist to the old Pomeroy Mill at Atchison, also a distance of 140 miles. These facts are alluded to for the purpose of illustrating what a wonderful change has been wrought by the construction of railroads in Kansas. Mr. Whiting removed to Milford, Davis County, in 1864, and engaged in the flouring and saw-mill business, using in his mill the boiler and engine which were thrown into the river at Wyandotte by the border ruffians during the days of early excitement regarding the slavery question in Kansas. Mr. W. also carried on various other enterprises at Milford, being engaged in the mercantile business, building bridges, ferries across the Republican River, etc. When he first located in Kansas he went beyond the extreme western borders of settlement. He still owns an extensive farm in Davis County. In September, 1877, he came to Topeka, and has had business interests here ever since. He spent the most of two years with the Exodus Relief Committee, and January 1, 1883, he and his son, Harris L. Whiting, became proprietors of the North Topeka Times. Mr. Whiting was married at Waterbury, Vt., in 1858, to Kate A. Whitney, a native of that place. They have four children—Harris L., Mary H., Katie L., and Lillie B.

LOUIS WIKIDAL, farmer and stock-raiser, Section 9, P. O. Topeka, owns 150 acres here and 160 acres in Monmouth Township; makes a specialty of raising fine cattle—nothing but thoroughbred Durham; has at present ten head of horses and sixty-five head of cattle. Came to Kansas in October, 1876, and located on this place. Was born in Canton, Ohio, August 27, 1835, and lived in native town until coming to Kansas. His father, Matthew Wikidal, is a well-known banker of Canton, Ohio, and still active in business although eighty-two years of age. Was married October, 1861, to Miss Elizabeth C. Williams; has five children: Mary, Julia, Martha, William and Lewis. Mr. W. is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and Mrs. W. is a member of the English Lutheran Church.

A. P. WILDER, car accountant A., T. & S. F. R. R., was born in Weston, Windsor Co., Vt., July 22, 1832. He was educated in the district schools and at an academy in his native county, and then commenced his business life clerking in mercantile establishments; afterward engaged in business for himself in Brattleboro, Vt. From 1861 till the close of the war he was connected with the Quartermaster's Department. In 1866 he removed to Kansas and began a stock ranch in the vicinity of Topeka; the following year moved into town to take the position of Secretary of the State Fire Insurance Company, retaining this position until the company wound up, reinsuring all its risks for a period of about five years. He became connected with the A., T. & S. F. R. R. in 1872, holding a position in the treasury office a few months, the same year received the appointment of car accountant, the position at that time barely occupying his time, though now employing eleven clerks, all of whom find ample to do.

EDWARD WILDER, born in Boston, Mass., September 4, 1843, was the third of four brothers, only children of David Wilder, for many years Auditor of the State of Massachusetts. When about fourteen years of age he left school to enter the office of the Cunard Steamship Company in Boston, where he remained nearly three years, and in 1860 entered the office of the Superintendent of the B. & W. R. R. Co., where he became paymaster and subsequently auditor, holding these offices until the consolidation of the company with the W. R. R. Co., forming the present B. & A. R. R. Co. Early in 1870, having an attack of the "Western fever," he accepted an offer to go to Hannibal, Mo., as land commissioner of the H. & St. J. R. R. Co., to succeed Mr. George S. Harris, who had just accepted the same position on the B. & M. R. R. In the summer of 1871 he was summoned by telegraph to meet the Directors of the A., T. & S. F. R. R. at Topeka, and there accepted the position of assistant treasurer of the company. He has since been elected secretary and treasurer, which office he now holds. Hon. Ginery Twichell, for many years President of the B. & W. R. R. Co., and afterward President of the A., T. & S. F. R. R. Co., was a staunch and warm friend, and Mr. Wilder gratefully remembers that he is one of hundreds of Massachusetts' men who received their start in life through this warm-hearted, noble friend. Mr. Wilder was married, December 29, 1868, to Miss Mary C. Scott, of Philadelphia, and they have three attractive children. While yet a boy, Mr. Wilder acquired a fondness for library work, having assisted his teacher in organizing and operating the Public Library at Brookline, Mass. His residence in Hannibal was marked by the organization and growth of a Public Subscription Library, which held an important place in that city, until the hard times, which crippled many of the progressive people of the place, compelled the library to succumb. Mr. Wilder has been secretary or president of the Topeka Library Association continuously, with one break of less than a year, since early in 1872, and counts it as one of the chiefest of his pleasures that the library has grown constantly in favor with the people until it has become a free library, with a beautiful building of its own on the most prominent spot of ground in Kansas. Mr. Wilder was brought up in the church of the New Jerusalem, which he joined with his wife soon after their marriage, and he has aided materially in building up a little society of that faith and in establishing a house of worship for it in Topeka.

S. W. WILDER, farmer, two and one-half miles south of Topeka, came to Kansas in May, 1866, from Brattleboro, Vt. Has been Township Trustee and member of School Board of Topeka Township; is also master of Capital Grange, No. 16, P. of H., of Topeka. Enlisted in the army July 13, 1863, in Company H., Sixth Vermont Infantry, and was with his command at Winchester, Fisher's Hill, Cedar Creek, Petersburg, and the final capture of Richmond. Was born March 6, 1838, at Weston, Windsor Co., Vt.; lived at Weston until he was of age, and then moved to Brattleboro and engaged in the grocery business until he entered the service. When mustered out he returned to Brattleboro, where he remained until coming to Kansas. Was married March 1, 1866, at Westmoreland, N. H., to Miss Ellen E. Sabin, of that place. They are both members of P. of H., and Capital Grange, No. 16. Mr. W. is also a member of the Shawnee County Horticultural Society.

EDWARD A. WILHIDE, proprietor of Central Hotel, came to Kansas, April, 1877, and located at Abilene, Dickinson County, and engaged in carpentering. Came to Topeka in September, 1881, and took charge of the Central. Was born in Frederick County, Md., October 5, 1834, and remained in his native town until coming to Kansas. Was married in 1856, at Frederick, Md., to Elizabeth Caine, and have four children: Rebecca, now Mrs. R. Hughes; William, Della and Cora. Mrs. Wilhide died August 15, 1874, at Frederick, Md. Mr. W. is a member of the Protestant Methodist Church. The Central Hotel has a capacity of fifty persons, and is centrally and pleasantly located. Mr. Wilhide is a millwright by trade, and followed that while in Maryland.

A. L. WILLIAMS, attorney, came to Topeka, April 1, 1861, and has since been engaged in practice in that place. During the war he served in the State militia, doing border service to some extent. He has held the offices of Alderman, City Attorney, County Attorney, Assistant U. S. District Attorney (acting as U. S. District Attorney), District Attorney of the State Courts and Attorney General, having been elected to the latter office in 1870, and re-elected in 1872. He is attorney for the U. P. R. R. Co., Kansas Division, and for several other corporations. His native city is Quincy, Ill.

GEORGE WILLIAMS, druggist, was born near Davidsonville, Md., August 10, 1848; lived at Annapolis and in that vicinity until he came to Topeka in July, 1882; engaged in drug business since he came to this city, Dr. E. A. Tuttle, from Boston, having been associated with him since February, 1883. Their store is located on the northeast corner of Topeka avenue and Sixth street, it being the only drug store in that part of the city.

GEORGE O. WILMARTH has been a citizen of Kansas since October, 1855, locating in Lawrence at that date. In 1859, he came to Topeka and engaged in book and stationery business, which he continued until 1870, when he took charge of the Volunteer Fire Department, being made chief engineer in April, 1871. He has continued in the service since that time, and is now chief engineer. He has also been for five years City Clerk. He was born in Providence, R. I., April 13, 1843, and resided there until he immigrated to Kansas. He was married at Attleboro, Mass., August 15, 1864, to Mary A. Starkey, a native of that place. They have buried two children—a son who died in infancy, and Edward G. who died at the age of four years. Charles B., born January 19, 1873, is their only remaining child. Mr. W. is a member of A., F. & A. M., Topeka Lodge, No. 17, and of A. O. U. W.

Have had six children, four of whom are living, as follows: Joseph, Annie, Ogeal and Frankie. Is a member of A., F. & A. M., Euclid Lodge, No. 2, Topeka; is a member of Second Baptist Church of that city.

HON. JOSEPH C. WILSON came to Kansas in October, 1867, and first located in Jackson County, whence, after six months' residence, he removed to Atchison County, settled near Muscotah, and engaged extensively in stock-raising. While here he was twice elected member of the House of Representatives, and once to the State Senate. He served as chairman of the Board of State Commissioners for investigation of all State institutions—charitable, educational and penal. He was appointed Clerk of the Court in April, 1875, and United States Commissioner in December of the same year, both of which positions he still holds. Since his removal to Topeka Mr. Wilson has been chairman of the Republican State Committee one year, and was elected Mayor in the spring of 1881, which position he now occupies. He was born in Richmond, Wayne Co., Ind., October 24, 1844, and married at Rockville, Ind., October, 1867, to Anna J. Morris, of Parke County, Ind. Worthington, George Stanton, Arthur Hastings and Harrington Mead.

LOUIS M. H. WOOD, architect, son of Samuel and Lucy M. (Curl) Wood, was born in Brownsville, Fayette Co., Pa., November 22, 1846. After attending the common schools and academies in the vicinity of his home, he entered Waynesburg College, in Greene County, Pa., where he remained two years; he subsequently took a two years special course of study in architecture and kindred arts at Cornell University; after leaving Cornell he returned to Brownsville and remained one year; then spent a year in Chicago, from whence he removed to Lawrence, Kan., remaining in that city from 1872 to 1879, when he located at Topeka. Since 1872 Mr. Wood has been associated with J. G. Haskell, one of the oldest architects in Kansas, and they have designed many of the finest buildings in the State, among which may be mentioned the Osawatomie Insane Asylum, Topeka Insane Asylum, State Reform School, Emporia National Bank, Barton County Court House, Fort Scott Opera House, Salina Opera House, Lawrence Opera House, Topeka Opera House, Hutchinson Opera House, Arkansas City Opera House, Asylum for Deaf and Dumb at Olathe, Asylum for Imbeciles and Feeble Minded Children, at Lawrence, Government Building at Topeka, besides numerous elegant churches, school houses and private dwellings. Mr. Wood was married at Cleveland, Ohio, January 16, 1874, to Miss Mary Burns, a native of Cleveland, of Scotch descent. They have two children, Samuel Curl and Edna Lucy.

S. M. WOOD, Registrar of Deeds, Topeka, Kan., was elected to his present office in November, 1879, and in 1881 was re-elected to the same office. Mr. Wood is a native of Waterloo, Ohio, born June 18, 1845; in 1857 he removed to Sidney, Champaign Co., Ill., where he resided until September, 1861; at that time he enlisted in Company I, Tenth Illinois Cavalry, commonly known as the "Champaign Rangers;" he served until January, 1865, and was in nearly all the engagements of his command; for about two years he was on detached service with the Army of the Frontier, and was under Gen. Carr at the close of this service. After leaving the army he returned to Illinois and was a student at Abingdon College, Knox County; he was afterward employed with railroad engineering parties in Missouri, on the Iron Mountain Extension and the Louisiana & Missouri River Railroads; in 1869 he left railroad work, came to Kansas and located in Williamsport Township, Shawnee County, where he was engaged in farming until 1871; he then located on a homestead in Osage County, Kan., where he remained until November, 1872, and came to Topeka and accepted a clerkship in the post office, which position he held until October, 1879, when he was elected to his present office. He was married at Clarksborough, N.J., May 8, 1877, to Frances N. Gill, a daughter of Hon. D. B. Gill, and a native of Clarksborough. Mr. Wood is a member of the G. A. R.

COL. SAMUEL N. WOOD was born in Mount Gilead, Ohio, December 30, 1825. His grandfather was a native of Rhode Island. He was the son of David and Esther (Mosher) Wood, who had with their parents emigrated to Ohio from their Eastern homes as early as 1817. The Woods and the Moshers were of the peace-loving society of Friends, no less lovers of peace than humanity, and, as history records, the uncompromising foes of oppression and of African slavery, always and ever. The subject of this sketch thus inherited the Anti-slavery sentiments which became the ruling force in his character and life. His paternal grandfather was a leader in the meetings of the Orthodox Quakers till the time of his death. His maternal grandfather after 1828, when the division occurred, became a leader in the more progressive wing of the brotherhood, followers of Elias Hicks, and known ever since as Hicksites. Both these families of Friends were equally intense in their hatred of slavery. They were from time immemorial Abolitionists of the deepest dye, and ran successfully through Pennsylvania, Ohio, and all the border States, the underground railroads to liberty for the escaping slave. In such a school young Wood was nutured. He was bred to habits of sobriety and industry on a Quaker farm, and received his early education in the schools in the vicinity. He early became interested in the politics of the country, and, at the age of nineteen, in 1844, was selected as the Chairman of the "Liberty Party" Central Committee of his county. James G. Birney was the Abolitionist candidate for the Presidency at that time. Thus early in life he struck out boldly for conscience and right against the popular current. Heedless of the applause or reproof of men, he has fought under the commands of his conscience and his judgment ever since that time. In 1840 he supported VanBuren as the presidential candidate, as opposed to Cass who stood on a slavery platform. In 1852 he supported the straight Abolition ticket of Hale and Julian, and canvassed his section in their favor during the campaign. He was, during the campaign, challenged to a public discussion of the questions at issue by Judson A. Beebee, a lawyer of some repute in the neighborhood. He accepted the challenge, but the discussion never came off, Beebee declining to discuss such weighty questions with a non-professional farmer. Mr. Wood soon after entered the office of Messrs. Stinchcomb & Brumbaugh as a law student, and was admitted to practice at the bar of Morrow County, Ohio, June 5, 1854. He was one of the most earnest and uncompromising opposers of the Kansas-Nebraska iniquity, and on the passage of the bill, immediately sold out his effects, and in accordance with a promise publicly made while the bill was pending, "went to Kansas to fight the battle over again." He left Morrow County, Ohio, June 6, 1854, and traveled with his own team, accompanied by his family, to Cincinnati; thence embarking on a steamboat, he made the somewhat tedious voyage by way of the Ohio, Mississippi, and Missouri rivers, reaching Independence, Mo., June 16. Two days after Mr. Wood, with his wife, entered Kansas on a tour of observation and in search of a home. They proceeded leisurely, stopping at short stages, a day or two in a place. They travelled as far inland as the present town of Clinton, Douglas County, thence south to the Sante Fe road, and back on that road to Independence. Shortly after his return, leaving his family in Independence, he, in company with Mr. Rolf, again went across the Territory on horseback, and selected a claim, four miles west of the site of Lawrence, in the present township of Wakarusa, where he resided during the exciting and troublous years of 1855-56-57. He became early distinguished as a bold and outspoken Anti-slavery man, who was not afraid to show his colors and defend them at all times. His life during the early days of the Territory is interwoven in ineffaceable lines with its history. The reader of the State history will not fail to trace the prominent part he took in the early struggles. He was both a talking and a fighting man, and, as such, incurred the intense hatred of the border-ruffian element. He early became identified with the Free-state party, being a candidate for election to the first Territorial Legislature. He first started a branch of the U. G. R. R., at Lawrence, assisting the first fugitive slave who appeared at Lawrence to escape. This occurred as early as February, 1855. November 21, 1855, Charles M. Dow was murdered by Franklin N. Coleman. The circumstances of the murder, the arrest of Branson for participating in a somewhat turbulent indignation meeting at which Mr. Wood was the principal speaker, his subsequent rescue by Wood, Abbott and others, and the "Wakarusa war" which followed, constitute an exciting chapter in the history of the Territory. Mr. Wood was twice arrested by "Sheriff Jones" for his participation in the Branson rescue, and was himself rescued at the time of his second arrest by his friends. His political career was, from the beginning, such as to place him in the front rank of Anti-slavery and Free-state advocates. He was a Kansas delegate to the National Convention held at Pittsburgh, Pa., in 1856, at which the Republican party was first formed as a national organization and was also a delegate, the same year, to the Philadelphia Convention which nominated John C. Fremont for the Presidency. He participated in the following campaign, speaking in Ohio and other Northern States. He was a warm advocate of the first movement for a State government, known as the "Topeka" government, and subsequently advocated the course which prevailed, of open and bold contest with the Pro-slavery forces, at the ballot-box. In 1859 he removed to Cottonwood Falls, Chase County, where, May 30, he started the Kansas Press, the first newspaper published in the county. In October of the same year he removed it to Council Grove, Morris County, where as the Council Grove Press it became the pioneer newspaper of that county also. He was the same year elected a member of the Territorial Legislature from the district comprised of Morris, Chase, and Madison counties, and was re-elected in 1860, holding during his term the responsible position of Chairman of the Judiciary Committee. Under the State Constitution he was elected a member of the first State senate, where he was again honored with the Chairmanship of the Judiciary Committee. Soon after the inauguration of Lincoln, he received from the President an appointment as Collector of Customs at Paso Del Norte, Texas. The war breaking out, he declined the appointment, resigned his position as Senator, and enlisted. As Captain of the "Kansas Rangers," Company I, Second Regiment, Kansas Infantry, he fought with great bravery at the severe and hardly contested engagement at Wilson's Creek. He was subsequently assigned to a battalion of Missouri troops, "Fremont's Battalion," which he had recruited, serving with distinction, first as Major, and subsequently being promoted as Lieutenant Colonel. With his new command he fought at the battle near Salem, and formed a part of the command of Gen. Curtis in his campaign through Arkansas. He resigned in 1863 and returned to Morris County from which he was elected a member of the State Legislature, serving in the session of 1864. He was re-elected in 1865 but an accident resulting in a fractured leg, prevented his serving during the session for which he had been elected. In 1866 he was elected as State Senator from Morris, Chase, and Marion counties. During the session he introduced the first resolution ever offered in the Kansas Legislature favoring woman suffrage. His mother a contemporary of Lucretia Mott, and, like her a member of the society of Friends, had forty years before presided over the first woman's suffrage meeting ever held in Morrow County, Ohio. In 1867 Mr. Wood started the Chase County Banner which in addition to its record of local affairs, was the special advocate of the rights of women, including that of suffrage. It was printed on the first hand-press brought into the Territory in 1833 by Rev. Jotham Meeker, an Indian missionary, mention of whom appears in the Indian history. The paper was edited by Mr. Wood until the spring of 1869, at which time he sold it out to an association of business men of Cottonwood Falls. In 1867 he was appointed Judge of the Ninth Judicial District. He himself lived in Texas in 1869-70, where he became engaged in cattle-raising, his family still residing in Kansas. In 1872, with many other conscientious and leading Republicans, he for the first time broke from strict affiliation with the party he had helped to found, and whose fortunes he had followed unfalteringly through evil and good repute, and ardently supported Horace Greeley on the liberal Republican platform adopted at the time of his nomination. Since that time, although still sympathizing with his old party on most questions at issue, he has independently advocated financial and labor reforms, taking such advanced and radical grounds as are impossible within the pale of either of the old parties. He edited the Kansas Greenbacker at Emporia, from 1878 to '79, and since May, 1881, has been the editor-in-chief of the Kansas State Journal, published at Topeka, where he has resided since his connection with it. Mr. Wood served in the State Legislature as a member of the Assembly, in 1876 and 1877, being elected Speaker of the House, the latter session. As appears in the railroad history of the State, he was one of the early directors of the A. T. & S. F. R. R., and has been identified with many other public enterprises for the upbuilding of his State. Radical in thought, upright in his motives, and honest in his purposes, few men in Kansas have better earned the right to a respectful and considerate hearing from his fellow-citizens, and few have the ability to plead more eloquently or argue more efficiently with tongue or pen than he. Mr. Wood married Miss Margaret W. Lyon, daughter of William and Elizabeth Lyon, October 3, 1850. Their children were: David, born August 25, 1851; William Lyon, born March 10, 1853; Florence, born January 20, 1857; Dearie, born July 7, 1865; Dearie died July 12, 1879. David Wood is in business at Montrose, Colorado. He is engaged in forwarding goods into the mountain towns. He is unmarried, and in good worldly circumstances. William L. Wood is a well-to-do farmer in Chase County, Kansas. He has 460 acres of land. His children consist of two boys and a girl. Florence is married to J. B. Abbott, a mining engineer. They live at Lake City, Colorado. They have two children, one of each sex.

TOWNSHIPS AND VILLAGES.

The earliest facts connected with the settlement of the townships of Shawnee County have been given in the general county history. It has been narrated how the Choteaus set their stakes in Dover Township as early as 1830. Record has been made of the missionary labors of Rev. Wm. Johnson in the same locality; also of the agricultural labors of Major Daniel Boone five years later. Next the Papan brothers came into Soldier Township, in 1840, and ran the first ferry across the river, just above the island, near the City of Topeka. Auburn Township witnessed the arrival of the Catholic missionary, Father Hocken, in 1847, and John W. Brown purchased the property which had been improved for the Shawnees. In 1848, the Baptist Missionary Society was represented by Rev. Robert Simerwell, in Mission Township, Jonas Lykins having settled in this township the year before. Abram B. Burnett, the well-known Pottawatomie chief, also located on the Reservation of his tribe, and in 1852, Clement Shattio opened up the first farm in Topeka Township, one mile northwest of its present magnificent city.

Uniontown, Tecumseh, Rochester, Indianola, Mairsville, Washington, Kenamo, and Carthage—all virtually defunct towns and villages—had their rise and fall—their aspirations, their decayed hopes—and have been accorded their place in history. The facts which follow, together with the biographical sketches of prominent citizens, will complete the county's history, as regards subsequent settlements in the townships, and the growth and present condition of villages now alive.

TECUMSEH TOWNSHIP.

A full history of the rise and fall of the ancient village of Tecumseh is given in the early history of the county. There is nothing now left of the village but its name, which it retains in honor of receiving at stated intervals, mail favors from Uncle Sam. The township comprises an extent of good and well-cultivated farms, generally tributary to the city of Topeka, where the farmers do their trading, and where they find an excellent market for their produce. There is therefore little probability, that a town of any importance will be formed in this township, at least not for a number of years to come.

ISAAC H. MILLIKEN, farmer, Section 10, P. O. Big Springs, Douglas County. Owns 160 acres, about seventy acres cultivated and ninety in pasture. Has twenty-five head of cattle. Came to Kansas in August, 1864, locating in Tecumseh Township. Moved in 1867 to Douglas County, and came from there to this place in 1869. Has been a member of the School Board for two terms. Enlisted in July, 1863, as private in Company B, One Hundred and Sixty-first Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry. Detailed on duty in the Quartermaster's Department as teamster, and discharged on certificate of disability in August, 1864. Born in Ohio September 11, 1844, and came from there to Kansas. Was married December 12, 1866, to Miss Sidney H. Hilligoss, and has six children—Mary E., Nettie F., Lola B., Gertrude E., Rosa L., and Clyde. Is a member of the Seventh Day Advent Church.

ISAAC MORRIS was born in Dearborn County, Ind., February 22, 1824. He was the son of Amos and Joanna Morris, early settlers, who had emigrated from Pennsylvania. He was bred on a farm, and received his early education in the common schools. In 1840, he removed to Henderson County, Ill. In 1850 he went to California, by the overland route across the plains. He returned in 1852, and engaged in merchandising at Oquawka, which he carried on until the spring of 1857, at which time he moved to Fort Scott, Kan., but mad his first purchase of land, and first started his business, in Vernon County, Mo. There he remained for three years, until the breaking out of the war. He at that time was carrying a large and diversified business. He had a store, a saw mill, a grist mill, and was, in addition, carrying on one of the largest farms in the vicinity. He had also a saw mill on the Osage River, fifteen miles north of Fort Scott, near Mapleton. His business in Missouri was entirely broken up, almost at the very commencement of the war. As early as July, 1861, his store was robbed by a party of rebel raiders under Gen. Rains. He had, two weeks before the raid, removed his family to Mapleton, and at the time barely escaped with his life. His business and residence in Missouri were ended at that time. Shortly after he removed his family still further from the enemy's country, settled them at Topeka, and himself returned to his mill at Mapleton. There, in semi-military style, he continued business. There he organized a company of home guards, of which he was commissioned Captain. It was known and designated in the State roster of militia as Company C, Sixth Regiment Kansas Militia, and as such did service on the frontier during the war, whenever the militia were called upon, and stood guard over the mill and surrounding country. Capt. Morris ran the Mapleton mill for the next two years entirely for the government, furnishing lumber for stockades and other army purposes, his company being subject to duty constantly during the time. At the close of the war he made Topeka his home, having large landed interests in the southeastern part of Shawnee County, where he improved many farms. He built the Fifth Avenue Hotel during 1869-70-71, and during those years purchased and commenced improvements on what is now his home. His first purchase was a tract of treeless prairie, ten acres in extent, what is designated as second bottom. It is situated one-half mile west of the old town site of Tecumseh village, in what on the old village plat is designated as Stinson's addition. At the time of his purchase it was but little improved, and the large octagon house but partially erected. The first trees upon it were set out fourteen years ago; now, 1882, the house stands completely embowered in shade trees, only the observatory upon its top showing above them, and is approached through a long shaded lane from the street. The grounds, by subsequent purchases, now contain sixty acres, all under the highest state of cultivation, or covered with every variety of fruit-bearing trees indigenous to the climate—peaches, pears, apples. It is a model Kansas fruit farm, yielding a yearly-increasing and ample income to the enterprising proprietor, who has literally made the desert to "bud and blossom as the rose." It is a worthy example of what the soil and climate of Kansas, coupled with intelligent labor and patient work, can produce. Here Mr. Morris resides, still in the full strength of manhood, enjoying the quiet and munificent reward of his past toil. Mr. Morris was married January 6, 1847, to Miss Hannah Hollingsworth, of Richmond, Ind. Nine children have been born to them, four of whom survive—Oscar N., George O., Arwilda Ann, wife of Mr. H. U. Mudge, conductor on the A. T. & S. Fe Railroad, and Emma, wife of Mr. J. W. Naylor.

JAMES Y. MURNAN, farmer, Section 12, P. O. Tecumseh. Owns eighty acres; has under cultivation forty-five acres; thirty-five acres in orchard, meadow and pasture; has some good stock, sixteen head of cattle and twenty hogs. Came to Kansas in the spring of 1879, locating on this place. Enlisted as private in the spring of 1864 in Company A, Two Hundred and Fifteenth Regiment Pennsylvania Infantry Volunteers, and mustered out in July, 1865. Born in England, May 24, 1841. Came to the United States in 1864, stopping in Washington City and from there to Pennsylvania, where he enlisted in the army. After he was mustered out of the service he was employed by a firm in Massachusetts to set up machinery (being a machinist) and traveled in a great many States in their employ, and came from Massachusetts to Kansas. Was married January 29, 1871, to Angie Nichols. Is a member of the Presbyterian Church, also of the I. O. O. F.

MRS. MARY E. NAYLOR, farmer, Section 35, P. O. Tecumseh. Owns 160 acres, all in cultivation. Came to Kansas in the fall of 1854, locating on her present farm. Her husband and father were at the first convention held in Tecumseh as well as at the first election. Was here when the Free-state Legislature was broken up by the United States troops under Major Anderson of Fort Sumter fame. Was born in Mead County, Ky., in 1822, and moved to Indiana with her parents when only five years of age, locating at Montezuma, and attended school in her childhood with the Indian children on the reservation. Removed to Illinois in the spring of 1842, and remained there until coming to Kansas. Was married in 1844 to Osborn Naylor. Her husband was in the State militia during the Price raid and captured at the Locust Grove fight in Missouri and died from the effects of over exertion and starvation a few days after reaching home, in 1864. Has four children—Maria A., John W., James R. and Samuel W. Her father, Charles Jordan, was a local preacher of the Methodist Episcopal Church and died in Topeka in 1872. The first quarterly conference ever held in Kansas was at her cabin in the spring of 1855, by Elder Still. Is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

WILLIAM A. RANKIN, farmer, Section 9, P. O. Big Springs, Douglas County. Owns 240 acres; about sixty acres in cultivation and the balance in timber, meadow and pasture. Came to Kansas in October, 1881, and located here. Was born in Ohio, November 17, 1837, and came from his native place to Kansas. Was married March 20, 1865, to Miss Parmela Milliken and has two children—Joseph H. and Minnie M. Mr. R. is a member of the Christian Union Church. Is a Mason and a member of the Knights of Pythias.

ALFRED S. ROBERTS, farmer and stock-raiser, Section 22, P. O. Big Springs, Douglas County. Owns 171 acres, fifty under cultivation, fifty in pasture, sixty in meadow and eleven in timber. He has thirty head of cattle. Came to Kansas in the spring of 1856 with his parents, his father locating on the section west of this. When he was of age he bought and improved a quarter section west of his father, but sold out and went to Chautauqua County in 1869, and remained there eight years, improving a tract of land and dealing extensively in stock, but having lost two children and his family being in poor health, he sold out and went to Colorado for his health. Came back to Leavenworth County, bought eighty acres of land, improved it, sold out and came to his present location in 1880. Has held all the different positions on the school board as well as township. Was in the State militia during the Price raid and was with his command at the engagements on the Big Blue and Locust Grove, in Missouri. He made his escape by having a good horse and taking desperate chances. Mr. R. was born in Ohio, January 7, 1841, and came from there to Kansas. He was married August 22, 1866, to Miss Ellen Crum, and has one child, Rosa. He is a member and Elder of the Christian Church. Mr. Robert's farm was the scene of a bloodless affray during the troublous times of 1856. A party of Texas Rangers came suddenly over a hill on the east side of his farm, but halted at seeing a few men and boys who had met hunting for stray horses. Among them was Mr. R., who on seeing the Rangers started to run, thinking they would make a charge on them, but the Texas Rangers, thinking they were the advance of Lane's men and that they were trying to draw them into pursuit, made a precipitate retreat, never stopping until they had crossed the Kansas River.

JESSE W. STEPHENSON, farmer, P. O. Topeka, Sections 34 and 35. Owns 164 acres, 120 of which are under cultivation, with good dwelling and good out-buildings. Makes a specialty of wheat and corn, but deals in stock, horses and cattle. Has been a member of the school board several years. Came to Kansas in March, 1854, locating on his present farm. Mr. S. attended the first public meeting ever held in Tecumseh Township, as well as the first election, when they were driven away by an armed band of border ruffians, who carried the election to suit themselves. Was in Atchison in 1861, when the first lead was thrown from the Missouri side of the river. Enlisted in Company C, Second Kansas Cavalry as a private. Was with his command in the battle of the Big Blue in Missouri during the Price raid, and was elected to First Lieutenant and was mustered out at Topeka in November, 1864. Mr. S. was born in Ohio, in 1828; at the age of three years removed to Edgar County, Ill., where he was married in 1851 to Miss Nancy Jane Jordan, remaining there until he came to Kansas. They have nine children, viz—Emma E., Nancy Candace, Eva, William, Mary E., Hattie J., Marinda L., Ulysses Grant and Jesse W. Mr. Stephenson has been a member of the Methodist Church for the past forty years.

MRS. HARRIET S. STRICKLER, Section 31, P. O. Tecumseh, owns 160 acres, 110 under cultivation; 12 acres in clover and timothy, and the balance in pasture. Mrs. S. is a native of Tennessee and came to Kansas in 1857, joining her father, Fred. P. Stanton, who was Secretary under Gov. Walker, and for a time acting Governor of the Territory, and who came to Kansas some time previous and located in Douglas County, near Lecompton. Miss Stanton was married to Gen. Strickler in November, 1861, and located on this place directly after the marriage. Gen. Strickler was a native of Virginia, born in December, 1811, and was educated at the Virginia Military Institute, and came to Kansas in 1854. Was a member of the Territorial Senate, also was in command of the Territorial Militia. At one time, during the border troubles, he had Senator Pomeroy a prisoner, and for fear he could not properly protect him released him. Gen. S. was Auditor of Claims during the early settlement of Kansas, but after the Free-state party came in power retired from politics. Had held the position both as president and secretary of the Agricultural Society. Gen. S. went out as a private in the State Militia, and participated in the fights on the border during the Price raid, doing good service by way of advice on military matters. Two years previous to his death was in the employ of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe R. R. Co., as Land Appraiser on the line south of Topeka and through the Indian Territory. He died August 31, 1873, leaving four children—Jacquelin, Jose, Celeste and Frederick A. Mrs. S. is not a member of any church, but is a strong advocate for the Evangelists.

CAPT. THOMAS D. STRONG, farmer, Section 12, P. O. Tecumseh, owns 160 acres, 60 of which are under cultivation, and the balance in meadow and pasture. He came to Kansas in March, 1881, and located on this place. He was born in Hartford, Conn., March 18, 1844. In 1852 he moved with his parents to Louisiana. Went to New York in 1858, and in 1859 went to sea, following seafaring and commanding his vessel until July, 1880, when he landed in Philadelphia and came to Kansas. He was married July 29, 1876, to Miss Emily M. Miller. He is a member of the Episcopal Church.

Has served two terms as Township Trustee for Tecumseh Township. Was Justice of Peace in Illinois; also Postmaster. Was born in Ohio in 1813, moving from there to Indiana when one year old. At the age of twenty-one went to Illinois, remaining there until coming to Kansas. Was married in 1836, to Miss Malvina C. Burbank. Has six children—Samuel B., Spencer P., Susan M., Mary E., Malvina C., and Ellen E.

JAMES K. WAYSMAN, farmer, Section 33, P. O. Topeka, owns 525 acres, about 300 acres under cultivation, and the rest in timber; has a fine stone dwelling, barn, out-buildings, and an elegant home. His was the first claim located in Shawnee County. He has twenty horses, fifteen head of cattle, and fifteen hogs. He was born in Augusta County, Va., September 5, 1816, and moved to Missouri with his parents in 1818, locating in Howard County. In the spring of 1854, Mr. Waysman was extensively engaged in the stock business, and started to California with 400 head of cattle, and when a short distance from where Topeka now stands, went into camp, where he first learned of the treaty with the Indians, throwing the country open for settlement. He therefore abandoned his trip to California, and located on his present farm, May 10, 1854. In his early settlement, a party from Westport came and located on the same land, and tried to run him off, but, after considerable trouble and annoyance, he was allowed to remain in peace. He was married, in 1852, to Miss Rachel M. Hand. They have five children—Mary A., Samuel D., Thomas W., John E. and Virginia L. Mr. Waysman was engaged in freighting across the plains from 1859 until 1863, when the Indians becoming troublesome, he retired from the business, and spent several years in California, returning to this place in 1869, and has since remained here. Was married in 1852, in Moniteau County, Mo. Went first trip to California through the Spanish country and Arizona, in 1849. His second trip was in 1863, by way of Denver, Salt Lake City, Utah, and was corraled by 400 Indians, at O'Fallon's Bluffs, Neb., but he effected a treaty with them by giving them some flour, meal, meat, and tobacco; then traveled up the Platte River with them several days, perfectly unharmed and friendly, with his outfit, but they committed many murders and depredations before and behind him. This was the beginning of the Indian war. Mr. Waysman's next trip to California was in 1880, leaving Topeka August 6, making the trip through with stallions and jacks in 100 days. He has crossed the plains to California, overland, or with teams, five times. He had all of his family with him on two trips. His daughter, V. L. W., spent two birth days on the Great Desert of Utah. Mr. Waysman is now sixty-eight years old, and is anxious to make another trip overland.

LUTHER WOODFORD, farmer and fruit-grower, Section 18, P. O. Topeka, owns 177½ acres, eighty acres under cultivation and in orchard, and the balance of his fine farm in timber, pasture and meadow. Mr. W. makes a specialty of manufacturing fine cider, which he does by a process peculiarly his own, giving it a reputation whereby he finds ready sale at remunerative prices. He also raises fine stock, has seven mules and fifty head of cattle. Came to Kansas in 1857, in the spring, locating on present farm. Was in the State Militia during the Price raid in Missouri, and was in the engagements on Big Blue and Locust Grove, where he narrowly escaped capture, owing to the mettle and bottom of his horse, and running the gauntlet of the enemy's fire. Mr. W. was born in Ohio December 27, 1825, where a greater part of his life was spent prior to coming to Kansas. He was seven years in Pennsylvania, and four years in California, returning from California to Ohio just before coming to Kansas. Mr. Woodford has for the step of his house a plank out of the old jail at Tecumseh, studded with nails and still showing the ax marks made by the friends of Free-state men in releasing them from their prison during the troubles of 1856. Mr. W. is a bachelor.

SOLDIER TOWNSHIP.

In 1854, James Kuykendall, John Cunningham, R. J. Fulton, H. D. McMeekin, P. Fleshman, W. S. Kuykendall, John B. Chapman, D. Milne, James A. Grey, G. P. Dorris, James M. Hand, and Mr. Tipton, settled in the township. A saw-mill was built by G. P. Dorris on his farm during 1854. From September 4, 1855, to February, 1859, the county seat of Calhoun County was located in what is now the southeastern part of Soldier Township, that portion of the township, forming a part of that county during those years, and a part of Jackson County from 1859 to 1860. The history of the most important point in Soldier Township, to-wit: North Topeka, is given in connection with that of Topeka, to which it in truth belongs; also a full account of its local institutions, churches, societies, etc. The personal sketches of its business men appear with those of the city of which it is virtually a part. The personal histories following are of residents of the township proper.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

REV. DAVID BARTRAM, farmer, Section 26, P. O. North Topeka, was born in Staffordshire, England, November 29, 1817. He there learned the trade of blacksmith, at which he worked many years. He there married, in January, 1844, Miss Elizabeth Bannister, who died in 1881, leaving ten children—Mary Ann, Anna, Sampson, Sarah E., Mary, William, Jane Ellen, Albert, Emma, David Henry. Soon after his marriage he emigrated to America, settling in Bureau County, Ill., where he remained until 1863, working partly at his trade and farming. Was there made a deacon in the Methodist Episcopal Church, of which he had long been a member, and had been licensed to preach previous to his coming to America. He still preaches occasionally, in the absence of the regular minister. In 1863 he moved to Kansas, locating at present residence in Shawnee County. Has 400 acres in Soldier Township—180 in cultivation, 120 in pasture, and the rest meadow. His farm is well improved, has good buildings of all kinds, a good orchard, etc.

DR. JOHN FRAZEE BUCK, Superintendent of Kansas State Reform School, was born in Mahoning County, Ohio, August 17, 1831. His grandfather, William Buck, was a native of Ireland, and emigrated to this country near the beginning of the present century, settling in Pennsylvania, and afterward became a pioneer settler of Mahoning County, Ohio. The parents of the subject of this sketch were John and Phœbe Buck, his mother's maiden name being Phœbe Frazee. His father was an early abolitionist, and was one of the two men of his township who voted for James G. Birney for President. He was also one of the organizers of the Free Presbyterian Church. Dr. B. received his education at Poland Academy, in his native county. He first engaged in teaching school, following that for several years in Bourbon County, Ky. On September 2, 1858, he married Ada L., daughter of James Davis, then of Berlin Center, Mahoning County now a business man of Salem, Ohio. Two children, a son and a daughter, were the result of this union, one of whom, Lillie A., is living. Soon after his marriage he removed to Salem, Ohio, where he studied dentistry, afterward locating at North Fairfield, Ohio, where he began the practice of his profession. In the fall of 1861, he enlisted as a member of the band connected with the Sixty-fifth Ohio Infantry Volunteers, serving in that capacity until the issue of the general order dispensing with regimental bands, when he was honorably discharged from the service at Nashville, Tenn. His oldest brother served in a Minnesota regiment, dying at Fort Snelling, Minn., on his way home. After leaving the army, Dr. B. moved to Missouri, and engaged in farming, but the climate not agreeing with the health of his family, he returned to Ohio, and engaged in business with his father-in-law a year or two. He was called as an assistant in the Ohio Reform School, at Lancaster, Ohio, in the fall of 1869, remaining seven years, holding the position of Principal of those schools the last three years. He was then appointed superintendent of the Fairmount Children's Home, near Mount Union. The school is designed to furnish a home for indigent children under sixteen years of age, in the counties of Stark and Columbiana, where such children can be properly trained and cared for until they are adopted by or intrusted to responsible families offering them homes. He was appointed Superintendent of the Kansas State Reform School in June, 1881, but owing to the pressure brought to have him remain at the Fairmount Home, he did not at that time accept. However, in February, 1882, he gave up his position there, and accepted his present position March 1, 1882, bringing a long and valuable experience to its management, which will enable him to place the institution among the first in the country.

A. J. DAVIS, farmer, Section 17, P. O. North Topeka, came to Kansas in 1877, locating at present residence. Owns 160 acres one mile north of city limits, of which 130 acres are in cultivation, the rest timber and pasture. Was born in Marvin County, Ohio, February 29, 1832, and was reared in Hardin County, Ohio, learning milling and millwrighting. He afterwards moved to Champaign County, Ohio, which was his home until he came to Kansas. He has built nearly forty mills of all kinds, including flour, saw mills, and distilleries. He married in Hardin County, Ohio, July 1, 1832, Miss Ann E. Barrett, who was born in Muskingum County, Ohio. They have seven children.

F. W. FLEISCHER, horticulturist, Section 7, P. O. North Topeka. First came to Kansas in the fall of 1854, but did not remain. The following year he returned, being employed as house carpenter at Fort Riley nearly a year. He left there during the winter of 1855 and 1856 and located at his present residence in Soldier Township. He there has forty acres, all in fruit except two acres. His vineyard comprises fourteen acres, the rest of his land being devoted to apple, peach and other fruits. His peach orchard comprises over 1,000 budded trees. He now has one of the best fruit farms in Kansas. He does a business of $2,000 to $3,000 per year. In addition to this farm he has another two miles west of Topeka, which he devotes to grain. He was born in Germany, March 7, 1824, there learning cabinet making. He emigrated to America in 1850, landing at New Orleans, where he was married July 27, 1850, to Miss Frederika Christina Kaler. They have eight children living—William A., Mary A., John T., Margaret A., Rudolph, Louis, George T., Blanch May.

JAMES M. HARDING, farmer, Section 18, Township 11, Range 16, P. O. North Topeka. Was born in Medway, Mass., October 11, 1811, living in that State until six years old. His father then moved with his family to Paris, Bourbon Co., Ky., where James M. remained until about seventeen years old, when he went to Cincinnati, Ohio. He there learned to be a machinist, working there about five years. He then went to St. Louis, where he remained until 1856, when he removed to Kansas; during his residence in St. Louis he was employed for three or four years as engineer on the steamers Reveille, the Little Dove and the North Bend. On his arrival in Shawnee County he engaged in milling, having a steam grist and saw mill which he operated about eighteen years. He has since that time devoted his time to his farm, which consists of 148 acres, of which forty acres are under cultivation and the rest in timber. He has been twice married, his first marriage occurring in Champaign County, Ill., to Jane McElroy. She died three years later, in 1863. He married in Soldier Township Mrs. Nancy E. Marple. They have one daughter—Laura Ann. He was in the Kansas State Militia and took part in the Price raid in 1863.

C. B. KILMER, northeast quarter, Section 26, Township 10, Range 16, Soldier Township, Shawnee County. Is a native of New York. Was born in Syracuse, Onondago Co., October 1, 1829. When sixteen years of age he made his debut for a sea-faring life on a whale ship, which he followed for a quarter of a century—for twenty years as captain, making voyages around the world for a number of years; was at the Sandwich Islands and on many whaling voyages. Wintered at Marble Island (Hudson Sea) the winter of 1864 and 1865. Wintered at Repulse Bay in 1866 and 1867, when Dr. Hall was attempting his "Franklin Research Expedition" to King William's Land. Kept the noted explorer during the winter of 1866 and 1867 and assisted him in his preparations, contributing supplies and in every way doing what he could towards the enterprise. Dr. Hall endeavored to secure Capt. Kilmer to accompany him as Captain of the "Polaris" expedition to the North Pole. After quitting the sea he remained in Syracuse till the spring of 1868, when he came to Kansas, locating where he now resides. He has a fine farm of 320 acres. His nautical education is here discernible, everything in its place and in ship shape style. He was married in Lake County, Ill., in 1863 to Miss Mary G. Gray. They have four children—Charles J., Louis M., Frank D. and George L. He is a member of the Masonic Order and R. A.

GEORGE W. KISTLER, farmer, Section 33, P. O. North Topeka. Was born in Cass County, Ind., in 1833, living there until twenty-three years old. He married in August, 1856, in Carroll County, Ind., Miss Emily Martin, who died in 1868, leaving six children—Frances, Lewis, Ida, Elnora, Charles and Emily. In 1869 he married, in Soldier Township, Shawnee County, Miss Mary Bond. They have three children—William, Gracie and Harry. He came to Kansas in 1856, locating in Shawnee County. He has a fine farm of 200 acres five miles from Topeka, of which 160 acres are in cultivation, the rest timber and grass land under fence. His farm has good improvements, consisting of a two-story frame house, barn and other buildings. When he came to the State he engaged largely in stock-raising, which he carried on for many years. During the war he was in the Kansas State militia and participated in the repulse of Gen. Price in his attempted raid into Kansas. He is a Mason.

CAPTAIN J. H. MILLER, farmer and stock-raiser, P. O. Meriden. Is a native Pennsylvania and was born in Dauphin County, September 17, 1830. Was there educated and reared. In 1856 emigrated to Iowa, locating in Johnson County, where he followed agricultural pursuits until 1869, when he came to Kansas, locating where he now resides. In 1861 he enlisted in Company B, Fourteenth Iowa Volunteer Infantry. He was afterward transferred to the Seventh Iowa Cavalry, and did duty in the far West among the Indians, serving over three years, and was honorably discharged as Sergeant. He was married in Pennsylvania to Miss Sarah A. Hoake. By this union they have four children—Isabelle C., William L., Harry J. and Frank P. Mr. Miller is an active member of the I. O. O. F. and the A. O. U. W.

J. Q. A. PEYTON, farmer and County Commissioner, Section 25, P. O. North Topeka. Has 160 acres, 120 under cultivation, devoted to raising corn, rye, potatoes and other vegetables. Mr. P. deals largely in live stock, chiefly hogs, handling from 200 to 300 head per year. He was born in Clark County, Va., March 13, 1840. When twelve years old he removed to Muskingum County, Ohio, with his parents, residing there until 1870, when he moved to Kansas, locating in Shawnee County. He was married in Muskingum County, Ohio, August 27, 1863, to Miss Mary C. Gander, who died in 1880, leaving three children—Elmer E., Frank T. and Hillis T. On November 24, 1881 he married Miss Lucy E. Neiswender. He is a member of Ohio Lodge No. 132, I. O. O. F., at Silver Lake, and Topeka Lodge No. 17, A. F. & A. M., Topeka, Kan. He is an active Republican, taking great interest in county politics. He now holds the office of County Commissioner. Enlisted in 1861 in Company D, Seventy-eighth Ohio Infantry, serving until 1863, when he was discharged on account of disability. Afterward re-enlisted, but was unable to be mustered into the service. He was in the army of the Tennessee and took part in the first battle of Fort Donelson.

A. W. PLILY, horticulturist, Section 7, P. O. North Topeka, came to Kansas in 1858, locating in Shawnee County. He now owns 100 acres two miles north of Topeka, which he has devoted to fruit growing the past seventeen years. It is all in cultivation except fifteen acres in timber. Thirty acres are in orchard. He makes a specialty of winter fruit, and in this does a business of $2,000 to $3,000 per year. He has paid close attention to horticulture, and is now one of the most successful fruit-growers in Kansas. He was born in Ross County, Ohio, February 11, 1829, and was there reared. He afterwards visited the States of Wisconsin, Iowa and Minnesota, remaining six years, and in 1850 he went to California, where for eight years he followed gold mining and farming. Since that time he has resided in Shawnee County. He was there married, October 15, 1862, to Miss Mary Gregg. They have three children—Wesley, Walter, Allison. He has been a Republican since the organization of that party. For several years he was Justice of the Peace in Soldier Township.

WILLIAM W. REID, farmer, Section 16, P. O. North Topeka, was born in Wayne County, Ohio, November 23, 1835, living in that and in Ashland County until February, 1882, when he moved to Kansas, locating in Shawnee County. He has one of the best farms in Soldier Township. It comprises 160 acres, all under fence—sixty-five acres in cultivation, the rest meadow land. Is preparing to make stock-raising a specialty. He was married in Wayne County, Ohio, April 25, 1856, to Miss Sarah Sechrist. They have three children—Martha Ellen, Austin P., William L. He served three years in the army in the late Rebellion, enlisting in Company C, Sixteenth Ohio Volunteer Infantry, as a private; was afterwards promoted to Sergeant. Was first in the army of West Virginia, in Kentucky, under Gen. Morgan, and with Grant, at the Siege of Vicksburg, taking part in all the battles in that vicinity. Was sent to the Gulf Department, and the following spring was with Gen. Banks in his Red River campaign.

C. D. SHIELDS, farmer and stock-raiser, Section 3, Township 10, Range 16, P. O. Meriden, came to Kansas in the fall of 1854, locating a claim a few miles south of where Meriden is now located. Mr. Shields established the postoffice known to all old-timers as Mount Florence, gave it the name, and was the first postmaster in that part of the county. He also built a store and sold the first goods there. The greater portion of the time since 1854 he has been a resident of Kansas. In 1858 he removed to Woodson County, Kan., near Belmont, residing three years. During the war was in the State Militia for a few months. During the border troubles his sympathies were with the Free-state party. Mr. Shields is a native of Pennsylvania, and was born in Huntingdon County, August 21, 1833. At an early age he emigrated to Henry County, Ind., where he was educated and reared. He has been twice married; first in 1858, to Miss Lucinda Dix, of Kansas, now deceased. By this union has four children—Emma A., Elizabeth E., Navada E., and Sarah M. His present wife was formerly Annie Cohee, of Shawnee County. They have four children—Annie J., Flora V., Jonathan C., Bertie E.

EDWARD SIPES, Superintendent of Shawnee Poor Asylum, P. O. North Topeka, was born in St. Louis County, Mo., July 16, 1843. In 1861 he came to Kansas, locating at Atchison; he there enlisted in August, 1862, in Company D, Thirteenth Kansas Volunteer Infantry, serving until July, 1865, in the Seventh Army Corps, doing duty chiefly in Arkansas, Indian Territory, Kansas and Missouri, taking part in the principal battles in which that corps was engaged; he was Corporal two years of his time. After his discharge he returned to Atchison County, where for two years he engaged in farming. He then went west and engaged in farming in Riley and other counties until 1876, when he came to Shawnee County, where he has since resided. He was appointed Superintendent of the Shawnee County Poor Asylum in the early part of 1879, and has since held that position, giving perfect satisfaction to all concerned. He is a member of the Lincoln Post No. 1, G. A. R., at Topeka. He was married at Topeka February 19, 1879, to Miss Flora Wood. They have two children living—William Paul and Thomas Huron.

PERRY H. SMITH, farmer, Section 18, P. O. North Topeka, was born in Newsted, Erie Co., N. Y., June 2, 1848, living there until nine years of age, when his parents moved to Buffalo, and thence to Upper Canada; after an absence of four years he returned to Erie County and resided there until 1870; he then married, August, 1868, Miss Annie Williams, who was born in Tippecanoe County, Ohio. In 1870 he came West, locating in September of that year at Blue Rapids, Marshall Co., Kan., where he remained about five years, engaged in farming. He then removed to Shawnee County, settling in Soldier Township. He has a quarter section of land, 130 acres being under cultivation; has thirty acres in pasture. He is the inventor of a Roller Attachment for a Grain Drill, consisting of a set of cast iron wheels one and three quarter inches in breadth of tire, and twenty-four inches in diameter, arranged in sets of two placed together upon a short axle which is fastened to an upright standard by means of a loose joint, each wheel working independently of all the other parts, and all coupled together by means of an equalizer upon the top of which rests the driver's tear. This places the driver in the best position to keep the drill hoes clean, to watch the workings of the drill, and drive the team. Each wheel or roller follows in a track made by the drill hoe and close to the drill, which assists greatly in cleaning the trash off the hoes as the wheels are constantly treading on the trash, crushing all the lumps which fall in the track and pressing the soil firmly on the seed, leaving the surface of the soil where the plant is grown two to four inches below the general level of the field, the depth of the rut being determined by the adjustment of the drill, and the addition of weight to the attachment. This affords a compactness of soil that will retain the moisture required to sprout the seed and make it strong and vigorous, and far less liable to be affected by frost, drought or the chinch bug, than is the weak and tender plant. The reason for it is this, if the seed roots on the general surface of the ground, the wind works the dry and loose dirt away from under the stool, leaving the principal roots hurtfully exposed to frost, to drought and the scorching sun; but if the seed is so sown as to root in a rut or a depression from the general surface, then the action of the wind only covers the stool and with it all of the root, securing additional moisture and protection from the biting frost or burning sun, while the compactness of the earth in the track of the wheel of the Attachment anchors it, and prevents the wind in any case from uncovering the plant root. The Attachment can be coupled to any grain drill, and is being manufactured in North Topeka, Kan., by P. H. Smith & Co.

THOMAS WHITE STEPHENS, farmer, Section 30, P. O. North Topeka, was born in Wayne County, Ind., August 27, 1839, living there and in Carroll and Pulaski counties until July, 1861, when he enlisted in Company K, Twentieth Indiana Infantry, serving until August, 1864, when he was discharged. He was in the Army of the Potomac, taking part in McClellan's different campaigns, as well as those of other commanders; was at Fair Oaks, Fredericksburg, Gettysburg, Wilderness and Petersburg battles, and others; was taken prisoner at Orchards, Virginia, being held five weeks and spending a portion of the time in Libby Prison and Belle Isle. He was four times slightly wounded, being protected from serious wounds by his cartridge box and knapsack, once by a book inside his clothing, a Bible taken from Chancellorsville battle ground, once wounded by a Confederate soldier, Alexander Weant, and another time a ball struck his gun and shattered it. After his discharge he returned to Pulaski County, Ind., there marrying on August [illegible] 1864, Miss Mary E. Tyler. They have seven children—Thomas E., Caroline E., James [illegible] George A., John F., Frank F. and Harrison E. In 1877 he came to Kansas, locating in Shawnee County. His farm consists of eighty acres, of which fifty are under cultivation and the rest grass land. He also keeps a small herd of cattle of good grades. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

LEONHARD WENDEL, farmer, Section 8, P. O. North Topeka, came to Kansas in 1854, locating where Topeka now stands. He there established [illegible] first bakery and eating stand, remaining two years and then moved to present farm, consisting of 160 acres, seventy acres being in cultivation, the rest timber and grass land. The entire farm is enclosed by a hedge, besides having several wire fences. Has a good orchard, covering eight acres and consisting mostly of apple, though there are other varieties of fruit. He was born in the village of Kerch Brambach, Hesse-Darmstadt, Germany, October 10, 1804, emigrating to America in 1833. He landed at Baltimore and located at Bedford, Pa., where he was married January, 1836, to Dorothea Oul. They have seven children—Ferdinand, George, John, Sophia, Laura, Elizabeth and Louisa. He and his family are members of the Lutheran Church.

JOHN M. WILKERSON, farmer, Section 7, P. O. North Topeka, was born in Madison County, Ky., August 12, 1844. When six years old he went, with his parents, to DeKalb County, Mo. Two years later they moved to Buchanan County, Mo., where he resided until 1863, when he came to Kansas, immediately enlisting in Company B, Fifteenth Kansas Cavalry, September 26, 1863, serving until October 19, 1865, in the Western Department. Was in all the principal battles in Missouri, Arkansas, Indian Territory and Kansas, among them being Big and Little Blue, Westport, Newtonia, and others. Was Sergeant of his company; after his discharge he returned to Kansas, living on Muddy Creek in Shawnee County, until the spring of 1879, when he moved to his present farm, consisting of 160 acres, all under fence; seventy in cultivation, the rest meadow land. He also combines live stock and farming, keeping a small herd of good grades. He is a member of Kaw Valley Lodge, No. 20, A. O. U. W. at North Topeka. Held the office of Justice of the Peace of Soldier Township seven years. Is now Town Trustee. He is also a member of Lincoln Post, No. 1, G. A. R. He married in Jackson County, Kas., August 2, 1868, Miss Jane Cunningham, who died December 23, 1875, leaving four children—Elizabeth, Annie, Oliver, Mollie J. He married in Buchanan County, Mo., Mrs. Amanda Stockton, December 25, 1876.

SILVER LAKE.

In the spring of 1835, the United States Government, through its Indian agent, Major Robert W. Cummings, selected for the Kaws a farm of 300 acres, just east of the present site of the village of Silver Lake. This was afterwards placed in charge of a superintendent, and various persons were employed by the Government to teach the Indians the art of agriculture. Mr. Thomas Huffaker, who removed with the Kaws to Council Grove, was one of the early superintendents.

After the treaty of 1846, by which the Pottawatomies were granted the eastern portion of the old Kansas reservation, many white men came to this locality, and intermarrying with the tribe, became actual settlers on the lands, or remained as traders or other government employes among the Indians. The California and Oregon, and the military road from Fort Leavenworth, joined a little east of this point, and passed through this section as the great highway north of the Kansas River, making it particularly desirable for location.

Among the settlers of 1847 were the following: Charles Rodd, Stephen McPherson, J. Frap, William Martell, Antoine Tacier, William Johnson, John Harden, Allen Harden, W. H. Wells, William Alley, John D. Scroggins, George Mullen, P. Malosh, Fred H. Counterman, Joseph Ogee, F. Trombley, Joseph G. Kennedy, Lucius Darling, E. R Kennedy and sister, now Mrs. Beaubien.

Settlers of 1848: James A. Grey, Wesley Hopkins, C. B. Randall, H. McDonald, J. C. Vanderpool, Messrs. Van Horne and Brown.

1849: Charles Deane and E. M. Sloan.

The following are names of Pottawatomies or their descendents who received allotments and still reside in the township: J. Copaugh, L. Ogee, Ambrose Copaugh, Robert Ogee, M. B. Beaubien, N. Ogee, Charles Kennedy, Phillip Beaubien, J. P. Ogee, E. R. Kennedy, Jr., Edward Beaubien, J. View, J. E. Kennedy, Samuel Alley and William Alley.

During the years 1852-53, three ferries were established at a point a little east of the confluence of Mission Creek with the Kansas. The locality was known as the "Great Crossing," the ferries crossing the Kansas within a distance of three or four miles, the main crossing being at the Baptist Mission. On the south were the settlements, stores and Pottawatomie Mission buildings, and on the north the roads leading off towards the great California highway. Over these ferries passed an immense amount of travel, the California and Oregon emigration by the Independence route passing the river at this and Papan's ferry below.

The first of the ferries at the great crossing was established by Sidney W. Smith, in 1852, the boat being built in Uniontown by Messrs. Kennedy and Freeman. The second, a deck ferry boat, sixty by ten, started in 1853, was owned and run by Hiram Wells and John Ogee. The third was established in 1853, by Joseph and Louis Ogee.

In 1853 Capt. Alley and H. D. McMeekin started a store in the vicinity; the next being opened by Sloan and Beaubien in a log cabin on the bank of Silver Lake in 1854.

Mr. M. B. Beaubien, whose mother was an Ottawa, settled on Soldier Creek in 1847; went to Uniontown as a trader in 1850, and in 1854 settled at Silver Lake, where he still resides. At the allotment, under the treaty of 1861 he received a half section at Silver Lake and his wife 80 acres. He also received a half section on Soldier Creek. Of the head men of the Pottawatomie tribe who were present at the signing of the treaty, but four are now alive: Benjamin Bertrand of St. Mary's; M. B. Beaubien of Silver Lake; George Young, with the Nation in Indian Territory, and Anthony Navarre, a Mormon preacher, also in the Indian Territory.

The village of Silver Lake is situated on the southeast quarter of Section 9, Town 11, Range 14. The original proprietors of the town site were M. B. Beaubien and A. T. Thomas, the latter now a resident of Topeka and Clerk of United States Circuit Court. The village was platted in February, 1868, by Mr. Huntoon of Topeka, and in July of the same year the first store on the village site was built and started by Messrs. C. S. Palmer and M. B. Beaubien, the first dwelling house having been erected by Mr. Palmer the preceding March. In the spring of 1869, C. S. Palmer opened the first hotel, now kept by A. A. Pliley. Mrs. Nathan Lewis taught a school in her house in the following fall, the little building being still occupied as a dwelling.

A postoffice was established in the spring of 1869, Mr. J. B. Oliver serving as the first postmaster. He was succeeded in the office consecutively as follows: James Smith, C. S. Palmer (1872), W. F. Johnson (1874), Fred Thomas (1881).

In 1873 John J. and J. B. Oliver built the Oliver House, which the former still runs as a hotel. The village was a flag station of the Union Pacific Railway until 1874-75, when a depot was built. The village contains three churches; the Baptist, Methodist and Presbyterian.

The Baptist Church was started in 1877, Rev. J. G. Mauer being the first pastor. The present pastor is Rev. Mr. Rigby. The Methodist Church was built in 1878, through the energetic endeavors of Rev. Mr. McNabb, the pastor in charge at the time. The present pastor is William G. Campbell, and the membership numbers over fifty. The Presbyterian Church, organized since 1881, worships alternate Sundays in the Methodist Church. Connected with the churches is a Union Sabbath-school of forty scholars.

There is one fine school building in the village, and a graded school.

The present population is 400. It is a thriving little village containing two hotels and the usual number of stores and shops.

Silver Lake City Mills, Dearborn & Hazlett owners, is leased by Dearborn & Hutchins. The mill was built in 1881, and is a stone structure, two stories and a half, size 26x44. Engine room, 26 feet square, one story, tin roof, four run of burrs, equipped with latest and best improved mill machinery. Late improvements consist of Ohio double brush, Smith purifiers, electric. The full capacity of the mill is 150 one hundred pound sacks in twenty-four hours, or from 75 to 100 barrels per day. The engine is a Payne automatic upright, 40-horse power.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

JOHN E. BEAUBIEN, farmer, P. O. Silver Lake. Has 180 acres, 100 acres under cultivation on Section 27, Township 11, Range 12. Eighty acres in Wabaunsee County on Section 17, Township 12, Range 11. Home place has sixty acres under plow and forty acres pasture. In 1882 had fifty acres in corn. Small orchard, 150 trees of all varieties. House 14x28, fourteen feet square, built in 1879, cost $600. Twelve head of cattle and eight head of horses. He came to Kansas in November, 1847, his father being one of the first two families that set foot on Kansas soil. First settled on Soldier Creek, opposite George Young's place. Resided there one winter and came over and settled on the Kaw bottom, where they have since resided, and until recently the old house stood where his father, Chas. H. Beaubien, died and where the three youngest children were born. Of his father's family, his mother and six children now survive, and there are twenty-eight grand-children and four great grand-children. His father was a half-breed and his mother a white woman. His father died in 1858. Mr. B. was born August 9, 1837, in Chicago, Ill., and when about nine years old moved to Council Bluffs, Iowa, where he remained about a year and removed to Kansas. Came to Kansas August 15, 1854, and is the oldest resident in this section of the country. First settled in Auburn, and in 1868 moved to his present location, and it was open prairie between him and Topeka, which had not then been located. Was an active Free-state man, having come to the State to aid that cause; was one of the Jim Lane men and a member of the Auburn Vigilance Committee. Mr. J. had many close encounters with the Border Ruffians, but always managed to escape without any harm. At the time of the defeat at Osawatomie on his return from the East, met a party of Missourians, who halted him and made threats of personal violence, but being in possession of their pass word and perfectly cool and collected, he put them off their guard and was allowed to proceed unharmed. Mr. Johnston was born in Washington County, Pa., November 13, 1811, and moved to Ohio in 1820 to Hamilton County, eleven miles from Cincinnati. There learned the trade of carpenter and cabinet-maker and in 1847 started for Oregon. Proceeded as far as Independence, Mo., where some of the party backed out and Mr. J. concluded to locate in Jackson County, Mo., where he continued to reside until coming to Kansas in 1854. Mr. Johnston has been married four times and has had seventeen children, of whom six girls and six boys are living, as follows: Missouri A., Andrew J., George W. L., Laura S., Mary E., Robert B., John F., Stephen B., Annie E., William E., Janie E., and Rosa B., all born in Kansas, except the first four. He is a member of Topeka Lodge, No. 17, A. F. & A. ROSSVILLE.

Soon after the Pottawatomies moved on to their reservation on the Kansas River, the St. Mary's Catholic Mission was established at a point a few miles west of the present site of Rossville Village in the township by that name. Settlements were made at a very early day in the country adjacent to the Mission, it being the nucleus of quite a large scattered population, in addition to that clustered around the mission proper.

The beauty and fertility of the Pottawatomie reserve, and the fact that it was traversed by the California and Oregon road, one of the great highways of the Territory, made it an especially desirable location, but while an Indian reservation, of course, no title to any land could be obtained except through marriage relations with the tribe. Those who settled in the vicinity of Cross Creek in 1847-48, were nearly all connected with the Pottawatomies in this way. Among these settlers were John Bassho, Stephen McPherson, William Martel, Alexander Rodd, Francis Bergeron, Anthony Tacier, Lawton and William Nasseau.

(Metsepa, signifying the "cross," was the Indian name of the creek—so called, because at its junction with the Kansas the angles formed by the two streams bear a resemblance to a cross.)

Soon after their settlement, Bergeron, Tacier and Lawton built a bridge across the creek, at a point a little above the present site of the village of Rossville, on what is now Harrison street. Several bridges were built about the same time in the northern portion of the reservation—one crossing Lost Creek, and one Vermillion; they were built for the benefit of the Indians at the Government expense, toll being collected only from whites.

In 1849 a pole ferry was started by Charles Beaubien and Louis Ogee, crossing the Kansas River from the mouth of the creek to a point directly opposite, now in Maple Hill Township, Wabaunsee County.

The first store of which there is any record, was kept by William Dyer (afterwards of Osawkie) in 1853. Col. A. G. Boone, and James Dahoney afterwards built small log stores and traded with the Indians.

Mrs. Gibson Metty taught the first school in the township, commencing her labors in a little log cabin near the creek with about fifteen scholars, part white and part Indian. Miss Jane Woodward was also one of the very early teachers.

James Baldan, George James, George Stackhouse and Cyrus Higginbotham, were among the settlers of 1855-58.

Dr. Robert S. Gabby, appointed Government Physician at St. Mary's in 1857, removed to Cross Creek in 1861, and still resides at the village of Rossville. He was the first Justice of the Peace appointed in 1867. Mr. John Baker, who came to the place about the same time, is also still a resident.

From 1847 until 1859 the Pottawatomies received their annuities at Uniontown, from 1859 until their final payment in 1870, on the banks of Cross Creek a little west of the present site of the village. At this point were a few shanties, occupied by Anthony Navarre (who cultivated a small farm), James Doheny and Lewis Bellaire, with their dusky families.

By the provisions of the treaty of 1861, land was allotted in severalty to the various members of the tribe who preferred separate farms, the remainder moving to the diminished reserve in Jackson County. At this time allotments were made to some seventy-five white men and six or seven white women who had married into the tribe. These old settlers own some of the finest farms in the county.

The site of the village of Rossville, comprising about 100 acres, was purchased of Anthony Navarre, and So-na-ne-qua, his wife, by A. C. Sherman, Col. George W. Veale, H. H. Wilcox and Fielding Johnson, the original proprietors, in 1871. The depot on the Union Pacific road was at that time established west of the creek, but through the influence of Messrs. Veale and Sherman, backed by an outlay of $1,000, it was removed to its present location in the village. The town site was surveyed and platted by J. B. Whittaker, County Surveyor, now residing in Topeka, the name of Edna being originally selected for the village; but Rossville finally decided upon both for village and township.

The first store on the village site was started by J. C. McIlvane. In 1873 Hartzell & Tatman established their drug store.

The first township election was held in April, 1872, Samuel Real being elected Trustee, James Cass, Treasurer, and Frank C. Saunders, Clerk.

In June, 1881, Rossville was organized as a city of the third class. The first city election was held June 27th, and the following officers elected: H. H. Miller, Mayor; S. V. Maxwell, Samuel Kerr, M. F. Tatman, John Stoyell, and D. P. Elder, Councilmen; C.W. Talmadge, Clerk; D. G. Smith, Treasurer; City Attorney, W. C Sherman.

All of the above are the present city officers (1882) except C. W. Talmadge, a vacancy being occasioned by his absence from the city; Gregg Navarre was appointed in his place.

Rossville is a thriving, busy place, having now four organized churches—Baptist, Presbyterian, Methodist, and Campbellite. One church building (Baptist) is erected, and the material on the ground to construct the Presbyterian. Five schools are in operation, three during six months of the year, and two during nine.

The Pottawatomie Land Agency, organized in 1870, and now in charge of O. LeRoy Sedgwick, has jurisdiction over all the original Pottawatomie reserve of thirty miles square, and lying on both sides of the Kansas river, except the diminished reserve of twelve miles square in Jackson County. All titles are traced to Indian proprietorship—the original allotment rolls being in the possession of this office.

A new postoffice building has recently been erected by A. C. Sherman, who is the present postmaster.

The steam mills now owned by Mulvane Bros., of Topeka, and run by W. M. Mitchner was built by J. C. McIlvane, James Baldwin, and James Stearns. It has four run of stone, and manufactures patent flour, having a capacity of seventy-four barrels a day.

A brick-yard has just been started near the village by Mr. Mowers—his first kiln of one hundred and ten thousand being burned in July, 1882.

The village has now (1882) one hotel, the Maxwell House, kept by S. B. Maxwell; five general stores—C. W. Higgenbotham's, established July, 1882 (formerly Kerr & Higgenbotham); Kerr & Allen, established June, 1882; Peter Shearer (formerly Shearer & Moss); January 1, 1882; Isaac Larrance (formerly Lovejoy & Co.); August 1, 1880; and A. Urbansky's branch store.

Sherman Bros. have a large hardware store and various industries of the village are represented by J. T. Olmstead, shoemaker; George E. Cooke, Richard Mason, and W. S. Templin, blacksmiths, and E. A. Bushor, harnessmaker.

The physicians of the place are Drs. Gabbey, Miller, and McIntire. W. C. Sherman is attorney at law.

The Kansas Valley Times was started by O. LeRoy Sedgwick, at St. Mary's, as the St. Mary's Times, in 1874. It was removed to Rossville in February, 1879, and published under the old name. Within the interim, for one year, under different management, it was called the St. Mary's Democrat. In 1879 it was changed to Kansas Valley Times, and in June, 1882, sold to F. W. Kroenke, who in July removed the office to Topeka, where the paper is now printed. It has a weekly circulation of 1,300, mostly in Kansas Valley. C. W. Talmadge, of Rossville, is the local corresponding editor.

The Baptist Church was organized August 30, 1871, with the following members: T. W. Meserve and wife, James Stearns and wife, James Pulman and wife, Miss Mary Meserve; E. O. Taylor, of Topeka officiating. Rev. William Clark was first pastor. In the following January nine joined the Church. Rev. Mr. Rigby is present pastor. Trustees: H. E. Close, C. W. Higgenbotham, J. A. Smith, S. J. Oliver; the present membership is thirty.

Rossville Lodge A. O. U. W.—Incorporated June 3, 1881, with twelve charter members, as follows: H. H. Miller, M. W.; W. L. Huntington F; S. B. Maxwell, O.; C. W. Talmadge, R.; H. A. Cassabaum, F.; Peter Shearer, R.; R. M. Henderson, G.; H. H. Miller, medical Ex. Present membership, twenty.

Hesperian Lodge No. 111.—Charter dated October 17, 1872, C. W. Higginbotham, master; A. B. Gilman, S. W.; S. W. Spencer, J. W. Organized under dispensation August 19, 1871, with the following names of Master Masons: C. W. Higginbotham, G. W. Kirkpatrick, S. W. Spencer, A. B. Gilman, Thomas Kidman, Thomas Moss, R. L. Downing, Henry Farbach B. W. Higginbotham, H. B. Henderson, W. C. Bayless. Present membership, nineteen. Present officers: H. H. Miller, W. M.; C. W. Higginbotham, S. W., D. W. Holt, J. W.; Alf W. Spence, Sec.; Martin Smith, Treas.; R. Bevens; J. D.; H. Kline, S. D.; H. B. Henderson, tiler.

Was a member of the State Militia and had some trouble with the Confederates during the war on account of his loyal sentiments. Was Deputy Sheriff of Richey County during the war, and as the sheriff would not ride in the south part of the county, he performed that perilous duty and had frequent encounters with the Rebs; owned a very fleet mare and being acquainted with every foot of the ground and the mountain path, always managed to elude his pursuers. When Hammond and Jones' Confederate Command made their raids in the spring of 1863, Mr. Z. saved two of his father's horses by putting them in a smokehouse. Was married in September, 1855, in Greene County, Pa., to Miss Mary Hammer, a native of E. Va.; they have seven children living—Francis M., Samuel P., Pheba S., William H., Samson E. W., Otho R. and Sarah Etta—Asbury J. died near Rossville, February, 1879, aged seventeen years. Mr. Z. is a member of the United Brethren Church; is a Republican and his father was a Democrat, but now votes the Republican ticket.

DOVER TOWNSHIP.

Dover was established as a township in the fall of 1867, the boundary line of the township being defined as follows; "Commencing at the northeast corner of Section 1, Township 13, Range 14; thence west to county line; thence north on county line to where it crosses the Kaw river; thence down the center of the channel to a point where the section line between 34 and 35 intersects Kaw river; thence south on said line to place of beginning."

The first town officers were elected May 5, 1868, and were as follows: Trustee, E. M. Hewins; Treasurer, James Bassett; Clerk, Henry A. Kellam; Justices, Jacob Haskell and George Harden; Constables, M. M. St. John and W. O. Harris.

John Sage was appointed Postmaster in 1862, the mail having been distributed for the previous year by Mr. S. Wooster, with consent of mail agents. E. C. Chapin succeeded Mr. John Sage, Mr. Alfred Sage became Postmaster in June, 1870, and held the office until 1873. Mr. Harvey Loomis succeeded him during that year, and still holds the office.

The village of Dover was started in 1870, a store being built and opened by Henry Snyder, which he sold during the same year to Alfred Sage. In 1872 another store was started by Winkler & Ticknor, now run by Rasson & Sage.

The first school taught in the village was by Miss Isabel Smith, a daughter of Sidney W. Smith, who established one of the first ferries on the Kaw. There are three religious societies—Baptist, Congregational, and Methodist. The Baptists built a stone church in 1869. The society was started in 1868 with fourteen members by Rev. Mr. Raymond. They have now about forty members, with a Sabbath-school of about fifty scholars. The Congregationalists built a wooden church in 1876; society organized in 1875, with eight members. The Methodists first worshiped in the Baptist church, but have erected a church of their own. The village contains about ten families, with the usual shops found in a small hamlet.

He worked in different offices, learning fully all branches of the business—composition, book and job printing. Before entering the business, he attended the Baptist Seminary, and other schools at Worcester. After completing his trade, he attended the Quaboag Seminary at Warren, Mass., fitting himself for journalism. He was foreman of the job department of the Springfield Republican during the years 1853, '54, and '55. He then returned to Worcester, and in 1857 he came to Kansas, landing in Quindaro, a town on the Missouri River, three miles north of Wyandotte. He commenced work on the Quindaro Chindowan, a weekly paper published by John M. Waldon. In the spring of 1858, Mr. Waldon retired and Mr. Corey became the publisher for the Quindaro Board of Trade, continuing until the fall of that year, when the paper was sold and the material moved away. He then bought a farm four miles from Quindaro, on which he lived until 1868. Was in Capt. Clary's Company of Militia, and helped to repel the invasion of Gen. Price. While he was at Quindaro, he became well acquainted with Albert D. Richardson, the celebrated author and brilliant correspondent of the Boston Journal, who made his headquarters at Quindaro. Mr. Corey heard Mr. Richardson's eloquent addresses at a meeting held at Quindaro, July 24, 1857, to ratify the action of the Topeka Convention, and condemn Gov. Walker's action, acting as secretary of that meeting. During the year 1863, and while the U. P. R. R. was in process of construction, Mr. Corey was employed in the office of the Wyandotte Gazette, which was doing much printing for that railroad. He was then placed in a position to learn the plans of the company, and was an eye-witness of the tragic death of Mr. Samuel Hallet, chief contractor, who was shot by a civil engineer. In 1868 he sold his farm and removed to Baldwin City, Douglas County, where he commenced the publication of the Kansas Family Visitor in partnership with C. W. Bryan. The latter retired the next year when Mr. Corey moved his office to Chetopa, Kan. and published the Chetopa Advance, in partnership with John W. Horner. In May, 1869, he sold his interest in the paper to Mr Horner, and in the fall of that year moved to his present farm. He was a member of the City Council when Chetopa was incorporated. He was appointed Postmaster, in 1872, at Plow Boy, which was afterwards changed to Redpath, and still holds the position. He was married at Sterling, Worcester County Mass. AUBURN TOWNSHIP.

In 1855, the following persons located in the place: Rev. James Gillpatrick, Deacon George Holt, Henry Fox, C. Gillpatrick and Samuel Cavender.

In April, 1855, a Sabbath-school, the first in the State, was organized with ten scholars, and ten dollars' worth of books. Samuel Cavender was superintendent.

The first Methodist class in the State was organized at Brownville, in the house of Mrs. Galt, in the fall of 1854. Rev. J. S. Griffin, who organized the class, was appointed to the Wakarusa Mission, during the preceding summer, by the Missouri Conference.

Mr. A. Preston taught the first school in Shawnee County, in one of the old Shawnee cabins, commencing April 1855.

These early events, which took place before the organization of any town, all occurred at the little settlement on the present farm of Mr. Brown.

Among the settlers of 1856 were Capt. John Price, W. S. Hibbard and Daniel Haney.

In the latter part of 1856, a township association was formed, called the Brownville Association, of which M. C. Dickey was president, and L. Farnsworth, John W. Brown and Henry Fox, trustees. This association pre-empted certain lands directly north of and adjoining the claim of Mr. Brown, upon which a town site was located, surveyed and platted, by Jesse D. Wood. The lands were described as follows: West half of northwest quarter of Section 24, west half of southwest quarter of Section 24, east half of southeast quarter of Section 23, and east half of northeast quarter of Section 23, Township 13, Range 14 east. The town to be called Brownville.

Brownville was situated on the head waters of the Wakarusa, at the point where the river receives its two tributaries, the three streams being here of nearly equal size and well lined with timber. The Fort Leavenworth, the California, and the Santa Fe roads, the great Territorial highways along which flowed the currents of trade and immigration to New Mexico, or the new towns along the banks of the rivers and streams, were all within easy access, and the present and permanent prosperity of the place seemed assured.

After the formation of the town it rapidly increased and soon attained a population of 400. In March, 1857, a log hotel was built by the town company, which was situated on "lot 101, Washington avenue," and a two-story concrete schoolhouse was erected, the first in the township.

A brickyard was opened in the spring of 1857, by Barney Williams. A saw mill and blacksmith shop were already in operation, and during the year William A. Simerwell and John E. Moore moved to the village and built a saw and grist mill.

During the year 1857 the citizens of the village petitioned for the establishment of a postoffice, to be called Brownville. The petition was denied on the ground that another office by that name already existed in the Territory. The name of the town was accordingly changed to Auburn by a vote of the citizens, and the office established under that name.

In 1860, a paper called the Auburn Docket was started by D. B. Emmert, now of Fort Scott. The first issue was on June 20th, and it was continued about a year.

A. H. Hale was the first town trustee, and W. F. Johnson the first Justice of the Peace.

The first church in the township was built by the Methodists, in 1856—Rev. J. F. Griffin, pastor.

The first Baptist preacher was Rev. James Gillpatrick, who was also the first Postmaster, serving in that capacity in 1855, before the organization of the town, or the establishment of a regular office.

The first birth in the town and county was a daughter to Lindsey T. Cook—Mollie, born December 22, 1854.

The village of Auburn reached its height of prosperity and importance in 1858, at which time it had reasonable expectations of becoming the county seat of "old Shawnee County," as it was more central than either Tecumseh or Topeka, both in the extreme north of the county, or Burlingame, lying further south. The plan devised that year, between Topeka and Burlingame, whereby the southern tiers of towns were detached from the county, and territory added north of the Kansas River, made Topeka nearer the geographical center, and, on a popular vote, selected it as a county seat. Thus shorn of the prestige attached always to the shire town, its growth stopped short. Later the location of the A. T. & S. Fe R. R., some seven miles east, still further shut it out from the busy world. With the old thoroughfare deserted it fell into a decline, and now, 1882, boasts a resident population of not over 150.

The village, not quite deserted, is still "Sweet Auburn, loveliest village of the plain." Flocks and herds feed on the unfenced prairies, extending miles to the north and east, and the herdsmen still live in the village. Two churches are there, a school, two stores, a blacksmith shop, a shoemaker, a wheelwright, and perhaps a dozen neat dwellings. Beyond, to the south, is the brick mansion of the original settler, Mr Brown, who still lives on the old Mission farm, the site of the Indian village, "old Brownville," not a vestige of which remains.

There is now no mill in the town, the machinery was long since removed and the buildings have gone to decay. Two old stone structures, half unroofed, with port holes on either side, still stand as reminders of early times. The postoffice, the churches, and the school house the never-dying emblems of Republican, Christian civilization, which ever planted, are perennial, still hold their accustomed place in the little hamlet. The present postmaster of Auburn Postoffice, is John Dyke.

The Presbyterian Society was first organized. The Baptists worship in the same church. The Methodists have also a small organization.

On December 15, Dr. Jesse D. Wood, from Kentucky, located on the southeast of Section 33, Township 13, Range 15, and during the month, Darius W. Herald, from Virginia, Dr. C. Lykins, and Mr. Stewart settled in the township.

The following are the settlers of 1855: William Yocum, J. Babcock, J. Carrol, H. M. Sharp, Isaac Baxter, Samuel Allen, Joseph Lykins, Robert Galt, Robert Todd and William Armstrong.

James W. Young and H. K. Winans settled in 1856, and among others, the following arrived in 1857: Seth Todd, Edgar Winans, Alfred Winans, D. Kilby, Blakely & Bennett, R. Buttles, Chester Thomas, Sr., Daniel, Fred and Cyrus Fultz, Rev. Mr. Montford, Dr. A. J. Huntoon, J. Nelson, L. Buttles, Joel Huntoon, J. M. Waugh, John Cunningham, T. H. Lescher, Simon Hawk, Mr. Curtis.

The first birth in the township was a child to Mr. and Mrs. Darius W. Herald, born February, 1855. Mrs. Herald's death—the first—occurred the same month.

The first marriage was that of Richard Steward and Polly Matney, in 1856.

In 1857, the first schoolhouse was built on southwest quarter Section 34, Township 13, Range 15, at Shawnee Center, so called from being within a quarter of a mile of the geographical center of old Shawnee County.

Rev. James Gillpatrick preached the first Baptist sermon in the township, December 16, 1854, in the cabin of Rev. Robert Simerwell.

WAKARUSA VILLAGE.

In the Township of Williamsport, was located and platted for a town site in 1858, by Messrs. Mills and Smith, of Topeka. It is on Sections 25 and 36, Township 13, Range 15, in the southern part of the township, and is a station on the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Road. Among those interested in this town enterprise besides Messrs. Mills and Smith, were Messrs. G. T. Lockard, J. P. Ennis and Zenas King, of Topeka, the town being first named "Kingston," in honor of the latter gentleman. The postoffice having been previously established under the name of "Wakarusa," the citizens were desirous that the village also should take the name of the historical stream, and it was accordingly changed.

In 1871, W. H. Mills, of Illinois, built a hotel and store at the station, both of which are still run by him.

G. W. Hamilton was the first, and L. Merrium is the present Postmaster, the latter being appointed in 1876.

There is one church building in the village, which is occupied alternately by the Presbyterians and Methodists; the Methodist Pastor being Rev. C. N. Riggle.

Wakarusa village claims to have the finest district schoolhouse in the county, if not in the State. It contains over a hundred inhabitants, and has the usual number of village industries, besides the business of crushing stone for railroad ballast. The Sherman Stone Crushing Company have located one of their machines at the village, and employ from fifty to one hundred men.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

APPLETON F. BARKER, farmer and stock-raiser, Section 18, P. O. Wakarusa, owns eighty acres, all enclosed, with good dwelling, barn, outbuildings, apple and peach orchard. Sixty acres cultivated and twenty acres in pasture. Has five horses, thirty-six head of cattle and sixteen hogs. He was born in the State of New York, April 4, 1833, and in 1854 moved to Illinois, and came from there to Kansas in 1858, locating on this section, east of here. Came to this place in 1869. Enlisted as a private in Company F, Sixth Regiment Kansas Infantry, in 1862, but was detached at Fort Leavenworth to serve in the fort battery, and remained there about a year, and was then sent on recruiting service for four months, and recruited eighty-four men, expecting to get a commission and join the Second Kansas, but had his men taken and mustered in the Fifteenth Kansas. Was offered a commission in this regiment, but refused it and was mustered in as Quartermaster Sergeant, and remained in that capacity during the term of service. Was most of the time at headquarters and had charge of the stock, and was mustered out in May 20, 1865, by general orders No. 83. After being mustered out he was engaged to go to Fort Laramie with a drove of horses for the government, to supply Col. Moonlight. Started with fifty-four men in charge of the horses and sixty soldiers as guard, and about one hundred wagons with emigrants on the train, as the Indians were very bad. When above Fort Kearney the Indians stampeded their horses, and they lost twenty-eight of them, and he and another man came near losing their lives while getting the horses up, as they were attacked and had a running fight, and had to stop and kill their horses for breastworks, but were fortunately rescued by a party of soldiers sent to their help. He was married in 1853, to Miss Caroline A. McLain. They have four children—George W., Ambrose A., Ida May and Sarah M. He is one of the School Board, and has been for a number of years. Has been Road Overseer for seventeen years, also Justice of the Peace for four years. Is a member of the First Baptist Church, Topeka, Superintendent of the Sunday-school, and Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Wakarusa Valley Sunday-school Association, and has been since its organization in 1876.

WILLIAM S. HIBBARD, farmer, Section 26, P. O. Wakarusa, owns 178 acres, about sixty acres cultivated and twenty-five acres in timber, and the balance in native meadow and pasture, all enclosed. He was born in New Hampshire, in 1828. Left home when twenty-one years of age and went to Boston and Washington City, and from there in 1850 to Ohio, engaging in the iron business, and came from there to Kansas in 1857, locating near Auburn, and came to his present place in 1876. This farm was preempted by Robert C. Gault, a brother-in-law of Mr. Hibbard, who was one of the Boston Company, and who came to Kansas armed with a Sharp's rifle and a Bible, who at his death left this farm to his sister, Mrs. Hibbard. Mr. Hibbard was married in 1859, to Miss Eliza M. Gault, who is a native of Philadelphia, Pa., who came to Kansas in 1857, with her mother and sister, locating in Auburn Township. They have four children—Anna S., Harry L., David S. and James S. Mr. Hibbard was a member of Capt. Bush's Company in Second Kansas State Militia, and participated in the fight at Locust Grove, Mo., during the Price raid, and was one of the unfortunate ones who were captured, but made his escape when three days out, but was captured by Union scouts being dressed in citizen's clothes, and taken to Fort Scott, and put in the guard there until morning, but the same night there were a large number of rebel prisoners put into the same prison, and the next morning sent under guard to St. Louis and he had great difficulty in identifying himself so as to prevent being sent with them. Mr Hibbard and family are members of the Presbyterian Church, he being one of the original Elders of Auburn Church, organized in 1858, by the Rev. James Brownlee.

JAMES HUTCHINGSON, farmer, Section 29, P. O. Wakarusa, owns seventy acres; forty acres cultivated, and thirty in fine timber. Has four horses, twenty-six head of cattle and fourteen hogs, and farming in a fine state of progress. He was born in Yorkshire, England, February 21, 1835. Came to the United States when nineteen years of age and worked in Paterson, N. J., in a factory, and from there went to Canada and remained one year. Returning and locating for a time in Illinois, and from there to Missouri, working on the Hannibal & St. Joe Railroad, in its construction, and from there to Vernon County, Mo. where he was living when the war broke out, and where for a time he was unmolested, on account of being an Englishman, and was at his home during the battle of Carthage, Mo., and heard the firing of artillery plainly, but after that was subject to a great many annoyances, and was importuned to join the rebel forces, and had to resort to a great many expedients to save his life and property, at one time, passing himself off for a Rebel, Capt. Gatewood, in order to pass their pickets in the night when returning home. At another time he entered a Guerrilla camp in the night, when all were asleep, and helped himself to a gun, escaping without injury. But space will not permit us to give even a part of the many thrilling adventures which Mr. Hutchingson passed through in this troubled time; enough to say that finally he was so continuously annoyed that he traded his farm for a yoke of oxen and loaded what household effects he could on one wagon and made his escape into Kansas, taking with him his wife, whom he had married in September, 1859, and whose maiden name was Sarah Markle, and three of her brothers, landing in Lawrence, Kan., in the fall of 1862, with scarcely anything. He went to work for a man near Lawrence, named Levi Gates, and his three brothers joined Capt. Rankin's Company as recruits, and were murdered in the Quantrell raid, they having no arms to defend themselves with, not having been armed yet. Mr. H. and Mr Gates seized their guns and hastened into Lawrence, as soon as they heard the firing, and were for five hours engaged in the fight, Mr. Gates losing his life, and Mr. Hutchingson barely escaping when hard pressed by hiding behind a stump and presenting his empty gun, and causing the enemy to seek cover, and securing time to reload. After the fight was over, he went for his team and wagon, and hauled the dead together and helped bury them. Mr. H. came to his present farm in 1871, and is and has been an active worker for the promotion of education and improvement in every way. He is a member of the School Board, and has been for the past ten years; is Road Overseer, and has been for the past seven years, and was elected Justice of the Peace in the spring of 1882, to serve for two years. Was born in Monroe County, Ind., November 14, 1822; resided there until 1850, engaged in farming. Has been twice married; first in 1840 to Miss Nancy Hansford, who died August 12, 1877, and by whom he had fourteen children. The second marriage was to Mrs. L. Quick. Mr. R. has paid considerable attention to fine Norman horses, and now owns a match span of fine stallions. Mr, Rapier has a fine orchard of 400 trees, consisting of all varieties of fruit. He is a member of Topeka Lodge No. 51, A. F. & A. M., and also of Oak Grange, No. 665, P. of H.

THOMAS WHITE, farmer, P. O. Topeka, has 200 acres on Section 8; has 135 acres under cultivation, balance hay land and native timber. In 1882 had fifty acres wheat, average yield, twenty bushels; oats, sixty bushels, and corn, forty bushels. His house was built in 1882; size, 24x40, with porches on north and south, two stories and attic, cellar under all. The house is of neat design and modern architecture, costing $2,000. Barn, 30x40, with capacity for twelve horses; 2,000 bushels of wheat, seven head of horses, and twenty cattle and eighty hogs. Makes a specialty of pure Poland China hogs. Has a fine young orchard of all varieties of fruit. Came to Kansas in 1868, and located at his present place in 1878. Was born in Muskingum County, Ohio, September 26, 1829, and when twenty-five years of age moved to Peoria County, Ill. Enlisted in 1862 in Company E, Seventy-seventh Illinois Infantry as a private, and was under Rosecranz in Missouri and Arkansas, and under Grant and A.J. Smith; was with his command in pursuit of Price, Forrest and Quantrell, and in the second battle of Nashville. In the fall of 1863 was made Captain of Company C, First Mississippi Cavalry. Was mustered out July 1, 1865, at Memphis, Tenn. Was married in 1856 in Guernsey County, Ohio, to Miss Maria K. Stearling, a native of Pennsylvania, and has nine children living—Alvin, Charles E., John H., Minnie B., Della M., Lieutenant F., Etta, James W. and Maud H. Is a member of Mission Center Presbyterian Church, and treasurer of Kansas State Grange. Has been Justice of the Peace about five years.

D. R. YOUNGS, farmer, five miles southwest of Topeka, in Mission Township, P. O. box, 937, Topeka; came to Kansas in 1855 with his father and located on the present farm, from Layfayette County, Mo. Was born February 20, 1847, in Lafayette County, Mo., and remained there until seven years old. Was married in 1873 in Topeka, Kan., to Miss Esther Ward, a native of Ohio.

FRANKLIN COUNTY.

FRANKLIN County is located in the second tier of counties west from Missouri, and also in the second tier south from the Kansas River. It is bounded on the north by Douglas County, on the east by Miami, on the south by Anderson, and on the west by Coffey and Osage counties. The first Territorial Legislature passed an act defining the boundaries of the county as follows: Beginning at the southeast corner of Douglas County; thence south twenty-four (24) miles; thence west twenty-four (24) miles; thence north twenty-four miles; thence east twenty-four miles to the place of beginning. The county as thus organized was, and is, twenty-four miles square, containing an area of 576 square miles, or 368,640 acres.

The county is divided into townships as follows, the area of each in square miles being in parenthesis: Appooanse (51); Centropolis (39); Hayes (30); Franklin (36); Peoria (36); Cutler (43); Pottawatomie (40); Richmond (34); Williamsburg (72); Greenwood (36); Ottawa (48); Harrison (29); Ohio (46), and Lincoln (36).

TOPOGRAPHY, GEOLOGY AND STREAMS.

The bottom lands comprise about sixteen per cent of the surface. In the valley of the Marais des Cygnes they average about two miles in width, in that of the Pottawatomie about one mile, in those of Middle and Ottawa creeks about one half mile.

The uplands, comprising about eighty-four per cent of the surface, are generally level or gently undulating prairie. The most uneven portion is in Pottawatomie Township, which occupies the southeastern corner of the county. Here the highest hills rise about two hundred feet above the level of Pottawatomie Creek, and are sometimes precipitous and difficult of ascent. There are some hilly sections about four miles southwest of Ottawa, about the same distance southwest, and also about two miles west of Richmond.

The soil is a sandy loam, is generally exceedingly fertile, and on the uplands ranges from one to two feet deep, while in the valleys of the streams it averages three feet in depth. In the latter it is in places immediately underlaid by gumbo soil, superposited upon clay, which latter is the subsoil on the uplands, and being of a porous nature, forms excellent natural drainage.

At an average depth of from twelve to twenty feet, good limestone is found, well distributed throughout the county, and in some portions sandstone, which, however, is generally too soft to be of much value for building purposes.

In Peoria and Pottawatomie townships, more particularly the latter, a species of granular limestone, or statuary marble, is found. On the Pottawatomie it is about one hundred and twenty feet above the creek, in the bluff which is here almost perpendicular.

It is located on the southeast quarter of Section 5, Township 19, Range 21. It has been named "coralline marble," being the same as the coralline marble which has attracted so much attention in the Derbyshire quarries in England. It is overlaid by five feet of dirt and three strata of common limestone, averaging about twelve inches in thickness. The average thickness of the coralline layer is about twenty inches, texture fine, and very tenacious. The color is a light chocolate, and the marble when polished makes beautiful furniture, mantels, window sills and monuments.

Coal underlies about twenty per cent of the area of the county. It is found most plentiful in the western and southwestern parts, and also about six miles northwest of Ottawa. It crops out in the ravines, and attains in places a depth of twenty feet. The vein averages two feet in thickness, and the quality is good. In 1881 about five thousand tons were mined, mostly in Williamsburg Township.

About eight per cent of the county is covered with timber. The timber belts are confined to the streams. Along the Marais des Cygnes the belt averages a mile in width, along the smaller streams the belts average about one-fourth of a mile in width. The native varieties are the cottonwood, elm, hackberry, hickory, honey locust, mulberry, oak, soft maple, walnut and willow. The principal stream is the Marais des Cygnes (Marsh of Swans), which enters the county from the west, and flows easterly through it into Miami county. Pottawatomie Creek is second in size. It enters near the southeast corner, and flows northeastward into Miami County, uniting at Osawatomie with the Marais des Cygnes. Middle Creek rises in the west part of the county and flows northeastward into the Marais des Cygnes near Peoria. Ottawa Creek rises in Douglas County and flows south into the Marais des Cygnes near Peoria. Appanoose Creek rises in Osage County and flows southeast into the Marais desCygnes, four miles west of Ottawa. Eight Mile Creek rises in Douglas County and flows south into the Marais des Cygnes, one mile west of Ottawa. Hickory Creek rises in the east part of the county and flows south into the Marais des Cygnes, three miles west of the east county line. Turkey Creek rises in Miami County and flows southwest into the Marais des Cygnes a little east of the mouth of Hickory Creek. Walnut Creek rises near the northeast corner of the county and flows southwest into Ottawa Creek, four miles northeast of Ottawa. Wolf Creek rises in the north part of the county, and flows south into Walnut Creek near its mouth. Coal Creek rises near Williamsburg and flows north into the Marais des Cygnes, eight miles west of Ottawa. Rock Creek rises in the southwestern part of the county and flows northeast into the Marais des Cygnes, two miles east of Ottawa. Sac Creek rises near Williamsburg and flows southeast into the Pottawatomie, in Anderson County. Sac Branch rises in the southeast part of the county and flows into the Pottawatomie, near Lane. The county is well supplied with springs, and good well water is obtained at a depth of from twenty to forty feet. The water obtained from wells is made hard by the presence in it of carbonate of lime.

EARLY INDIAN RESIDENTS.

Franklin County was included in the tract of land ceded to the Great and Little Osage Indians, November 10, 1808, and re-ceded by them to the Government in 1825.

On the 30th day of August, 1831, a treaty was concluded between the

"Ottoways" (Ottawas) and the Government of the United States, which treaty was ratified April 6, 1832, by the terms of which the Ottawas, numbering about two hundred, and residing on Blanchard's fork of the Great Auglaize River, and at Oquanoxa's village on the Little Auglaize River, in Ohio, ceded to the United States two tracts of land, containing 21,760 acres, and received in exchange for the same a tract of land in Franklin County, containing 34,000 acres, to be located adjoining the south or west line of the reservation granted to the Shawnees of Missouri and Ohio.

By the same treaty a second band of Ottawa Indians, residing at and near the places called Roche de Bœuf and Wolf Rapids, on the Miami River, of Lake Erie, within the State of Ohio, ceded to the United States two tracts of land, containing in the aggregate 28,157 acres, and received in exchange therefor 40,000 acres, adjoining the lands assigned to the Blanchard's Fork and Oquanoxa's village Indians mentioned above.

These two bands of Ottawas received therefor in the aggregate, within the present limits of Franklin County, 68,157 acres of land. The tract was situated very nearly in the center of the county, and in shape was nearly in the proportion of ten by twelve miles. The Blanchard's Fork band came to their reservation in 1836, and were soon followed by the Roche de Bœuf band.

The chief of the first band was Notno, the chief of the second Com Chaw. Shortly after arriving at their new homes the two bands united under one chief, Com Chaw, continuing to elect him to that position until his death. Besides this chief they had a second or subordinate chief, a council, a constable, assessor and collector, the taxes collected being used for the purpose of defraying the expenses of government.

Their subsistence for the first year after their arrival was provided by the Government. During this year they built bark huts in the woods, in which they lived until taught by Rev. Jotham Meeker, who met them at Kansas City, and led them to their reservation, to cut logs and make log huts, in which art they soon acquired considerable skill. To aid them in the construction of these houses the Government loaned to the first band $2,000, which was to be paid when the lands in Ohio ceded to the Government were sold; and to protect them from the weather while their houses were building, the same Government gave them "Russian sheeting sufficient for tents for their whole band," as well as other necessities.

The Roche de Bœuf band were similarly aided to make their settlement and homes.

The change of climate proved quite unfavorable to their health. Chills and fever, common to uncultivated countries, carried off in a few years half their original number, notwithstanding the watchfulness and diligence of Rev. Jotham and Mrs. Meeker. These and other troubles incident to a new country being overcome, they made considerable progress in agriculture, and gained considerable educational and religious knowledge.

The great flood of 1844 destroyed a great deal of their property, and was a great disaster and hindrance to their progress. After the subsidence of the water, they removed their houses, which had been built in the valley of the Marais des Cygnes for the most part, to the high ground, log by log; afterwards making even more rapid progress than before the flood.

It is interesting to note some of their laws, which may have contributed largely to this result. One of these laws prohibited theft; another, slander; another, the retention of a borrowed article beyond a specified time; another, prohibited the selling or giving away of intoxicating liquors; another, fining drunkards, $5 for the first offense, $10 for the second, and for the third offense the guilty party was to be turned over for punishment under the laws of the United States.

During the first year there were no conversions. In the second year, David Green experienced religion, and became of great assistance to* Mr. Meeker in his labors among the tribe. After becoming somewhat enlightened, they observed the Sabbath with great strictness.

On June 24, 1862, a treaty was made with the Ottawas, by which they were to become citizens of the United States in 1867. By the same treaty, each head of a family received 160 acres, and other members of the tribe, eighty acres of land in fee simple, and, in order to provide for the education of their posterity, twenty thousand acres of land were set apart for the purpose of endowing a school, and in addition, one section of land for a school site, said school to be for the exclusive and perpetual use of the Ottawa Indians and their posterity.

The Piankeshaws, Weas and Peorias, by the treaty of October 29, 1832, had set apart a reservation which, in Franklin County, included a tract in the east part, about twelve by fifteen miles in extent, embracing Peoria Township, about one-half of Franklin Township, and about two miles of the north end of Cutler Township.

By the treaty of February 23, 1867, this tribe of Indians agreed to dispose of their allotments in Kansas, and to remove to a new reservation in the Indian Territory within two years. By this treaty the adult Indians were allowed to sell their own lands, and the chiefs to sell the lands of minors and incompetents.

The Sacs and Foxes.—On the 18th of February, 1867, a treaty was made between the Sacs and Foxes and the United States, by which that confederated band ceded to the United States their remaining lands in Franklin County, and received in exchange a tract of land in the Indian Territory, south of the Cherokee lands, not exceeding 750,000 acres in extent. In July this treaty was ratified, and immediately thereafter, the lands were thrown open to entry and settlement.

The Chippewas and Munsees.—In 1854, the Chippewas, about three hundred in number, were removed to a small reservation lying immediately west of the Ottawa reserve. Their reserve was about seven miles long by two and a half miles wide. In 1860, the Munsees or Christian Indians, about fifty in number, joined the Chippewas. The reservation has been reduced in size from time to time until now it contains seven sections, or 4,480 acres, one-half in Greenwood, and one-half in Lincoln Township.

The Indians on this reserve now number sixty-three, only one of whom, Edward McCoonts, is an original Chippewa. The total number of Chippewas is twenty-six, and of the Munsees thirty-seven. Two of those counted as Chippewas were originally Ottawas.

The members of this confederated tribe hold their lands in severalty without the right of alienation, except to other members of the tribe, and this only with the consent of the Secretary of the Interior. A few of them are good farmers, and qualified intellectually to become citizens, but the most of them prefer to subsist by days' work, and upon their small annuity, than to cultivate their little farms. The Government holds in trust for them $42,000, five per cent. interest on which is their annuity.

They were under the Sac and Fox agency until that tribe was moved from the county, since which time they have been attached to the Pottawatomie Agency.

The missionaries (Moravians) among them have been Rev. G. F. Oehler, who came out with the Munsees; Rev. Joseph Romig from 1861 to 1870; Rev. Levi Ricksecker, 1870 to 1880; Rev. C. R. Kinsey commencing in 1880. About twenty-five of the Indians are members of the church, which is sustained by the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel among the Heathen. A school is taught by the missionary about six months each year.

EARLY SETTLEMENTS.

Owing to the fact that most of the land in Franklin County was occupied by a number of different tribes of Indians, the titles to whose reservations were not extinguished until 1862, 1864 and 1867, the settlement of the county was not so early as that of adjoining counties. Along the northern edge, however, on what was known as the "Shawnee purchase," a strip of land about three miles wide, the Shawnee title to which was extinguished by the treaty of May 10, 1854, a number of settlements were made in that year.

The first settler in the county was Reuben Hackett, who located, near the west line of what is now Hayes Township, on June 7, 1854, on the west branch of Ottawa Creek, and near the north line of the county. Amos Hanna moved in about the same time. Quite a number of others came into this part of the county during the same year, among them, Rev. William Moore and four or five sons, who settled about a mile east of the present location of Norwood.

In 1857, quite a large number had settled on West Branch: Jacob, John, Lemen, William and Elvill Copple; Rudolph Miller and seven sons; William Hackett, C. P. Sherman, Louis Allison, Daniel Heverlain, a Mr. Craven, William Sutton, Daniel Storrs, Jesse and John Moore, a Mr. Wright, F. M. Hodges, Thomas Mewhinney, Jacob Brunck, and David Hodges; and on the east branch of Ottawa Creek, Esquire Merchant, Calvin and John Leonard and John Heck.

The first settlers in Appanoose Township were Missourians, who came in in 1856; C. Shrimp, Washington Baker, James Cleveland and Mr. Foster were of the number. In 1857, Daniel Dean, T. H. Tutcher, Henry Horr, and James Bellenny settled on the west branch of Appanoose Creek, and on the middle branch, Moses Beeman, J. W. Wadsworth, and the widow Critchfield. In 1858, there were added to the above the following persons: Thomas Tutcher, Sr., Alfred Tutcher, M. St. John, W. Beard, J. W. Davis, John Logan and H. Gilbert.

Some time after this township was settled, J. H. Whetstone conceived the idea of establishing a colony in its western part. To this end he purchased a tract of land north of the Marais des Cygnes, and mostly in a solid body, containing about fifteen thousand acres. This purchase was made in 1869. In 1870, S. T. Kelsey became associated with Mr. Whetstone. They then proceeded to lay out their purchase into small farms, with the view of selling to parties designing to become actual settlers, and thus collect together a colony, each one of whom should own a farm or village lot. To provide for those who might prefer village life, the town of Pomona was platted and laid out in 1870. Appanoose Township was organized May 17, 1871. It was formed out of part of Centropolis Township and part of the Sac and Fox reservation.

The land now included in Harrison Township, in the center of the county was thrown open to settlement in 1865, when the Ottawas were removed. The Indian lands were generally sold to the highest bidder, very little being purchased by speculators.

The first settler was Enoch Pyle, in the fall of 1865. Later in the same year, or in the spring of 1866, the following parties came into the township John Howell, Mr. Hood, James Hill, J. R. Dailey, Mr. Spencer and Michael Hornbeck. In 1866 these were followed by W. L. John and Thomas Harrison, Henry and Jacob Fouts, E. Walker, Mr. Smith and Charles Howell; in 1867 by N. Latimer, G. W. Castzdafner, Joseph Guy, Mr. Greeves, Mr. Skeeles, Mr. Curtis, Mr. Payne and Dr. Van Schoick. During 1868 there was a large influx of immigration, and this locality became quite thickly settled. Harrison Township was then organized, being taken in part from the Ottawa Reservation and in part from Ohio Township. J. R. Daley built the first stone house on the Ottawa Reserve outside of Ottawa. A schoolhouse was built in the Fouts neighborhood. It has since been replaced by a stone one. The first breaking and fencing in the township was done by Enoch Pyle and the Harrisons.

The first settlement in Centropolis Township was made on Eight Mile Creek, in 1854, near the present site of Centropolis. This was on land opened up to settlement by the treaty of May 10, 1854 with the Shawnee Indians.

This pioneer party of settlers consisted of about fifteen members, whose names, as far as can be ascertained, are as follows: Joab M. Bernard, Timothy Keizer, Jacob Clark, I. C. Hughes, Thomas Doty, John F. Javens, Franklin Barnes, Johnson Farris, Perry Fuller, Leander McClellan, John E. McClellan and Mansfield Carter. They arrived at and camped on Eight Mile Creek on the evening of June 26. In the morning it was proposed to take a vote on the question as to whether Kansas should be a free or slave State; all voting for a free State but two, Joab M. Bernard and Timothy Keizer. This matter being settled, each member selected his claim, J. M. Bernard's being immediately east of and adjoining the present town site of Centropolis. This was on the 27th of June. John F. Javens built the first cabin on Eight Mile Creek near Centropolis and Perry Fuller built on the town site. The first election these settlers attended was in the fall of 1854, at what is now Prairie City, in Douglas County; but finding the polls in the hands of Missourians, they returned home without voting. The first birth in Centropolis Township was that of Sarah C. Hughes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. C. Hughes, March 22, 1855; the first marriage that of Edwin Fusman to Mrs. Nancy Leverton, about April 1, 1855, and the first death that of Mrs. William E. Crum in the winter of 1855-6.

Some time early in 1855, J. M. Bernard opened a store on his quarter section, and on the 3d of March was appointed Postmaster, the postoffice being appropriately named after him, St. Bernard. The people thenceforth obtained their mail at St. Bernard instead of at Kansas City, until 1858, when a postoffice was established at Minneola. J. M. Bernard being a Pro-slavery man, the Missouri Legislature of Kansas Territory in 1855, located the county seat at St. Bernard. The town, however, never either grew or prospered, and was at last extinguished by a raid on Mr. Bernard by Free-state men to whom he had become very obnoxious. When Mr. Bernard was gone there was nothing left of the town. No attempt has ever been made to revive it.

In 1855 Perry Fuller built a frame store on the present site of Centropolis, for the purpose mainly of trading with the Indians. A town company was formed the following year, and a thriving settlement grew up here.

The first settlers in Franklin Township, in the northeast corner of the county, so far as we can learn, were William Thornbrough and Lewis Reed, who settled on Walnut Creek, in 1856. In the early part of 1857 Dr. I. Pile located there, also Nathan Mowry, a Mr. Phillips, George E. Sweetzer and Mr. Armstrong. During the same year a large number of squatters made claims as agents of speculators. In time, however, the whole township was taken up by bona fide settlers, and is now thoroughly settled, there being but one vacant quarter section.

The settlement of the southern part of Franklin County was greatly retarded for some years by the purchase of the land by speculators, who persistently held it at prices above the means of the majority of those desiring land for settlement.

The first settler in what is now Ohio Township, is believed to have been Thomas Ivy, who located on upper Middle creek in 1855. During the same year the following heads of families had selected claims upon the stream: Judge Merritt, James Carter, Mr. Montgomery, Mr. Robinson, Mr. Epperson, Jacob Bolman, William Agnew, D. R. Ricker, Hiram Howard and Calvin Randall.

In 1857 the lands came into market and a large immigration set in, mainly from Ohio. Among those who came were John Deitrich, Wm. Fugate, Joseph Smith, John E. Baer, Thomas, Ezekiel and Emanuel Jenkins, P. P. Elder, W. E. Kibbie, John Hendricks, J. W. Iliff, D. C. Wetherwax, Abram Shanks, Benjamin Briggs, B. C. Sanford, J. H. Cook, A. R. Morton, Reuben Painter, David Baer, John Baer, William Servatus, Robert Cowder, William A. Morton, James Carl, and Mrs. Johnson, all Free-state but the first two. In 1858, William Nightingale and James McFaddin, Pro-slavery, moved in from Missouri.

In 1837 the Pottawatomie Indians were removed to a tract of land on this creek in the southeast part of the county, which has since been known by their name. In 1847-48 they were removed to Pottawatomie County, and this part of Franklin County, a few years afterwards, was thrown open to settlement. The first settlers who came in were two brothers, Henry and William Sherman, Germans. Henry was afterwards known as "Dutch Henry," and the crossing of Pottawatomie Creek near his place as "Dutch Henry's Crossing."

In 1854 a few settlers came to this locality, whose names have since become historic: Allen Wilkinson, James P. Doyle and his family, including three sons named Drury, William and John, and also Rev. David Baldwin. In 1855 the following, among others, came to Pottawatomie Township: Joshua Baker; Robert, David and Daniel Sturgen; John Blunt, Sr. (father of Gen Blunt). Eldridge and John S. Blunt, David Watt, William and George Partridge, John Boutcher, J. A. B. White, and the Kilbourn family. In 1856 the following pioneers came: Judge James Hanway and his two sons, John S. and Brougham, William, Ward and Robert Hodson, Robert Hamilton, Capt. J. G. Reese, John Y. Yerkes, John Powell, William and James Fitten, William H. Ambrose and L. Dunham. In 1858 came Samuel, Asa and Dr. Holiday, Barton Needham and John White

THE POTTAWATOMIE RIFLE COMPANY.

In 1856 the Pottawatomie Rifle Company was organized by settlers in the Pottawatomie valley. It was composed exclusively of Free-state men, about one hundred in number, John Brown, Jr., Captain. The object in view in organizing the company was to protect the Free-state men against the Missouri border ruffians, and to resist the enforcement of what was known as the "bogus laws" to wit, the laws passed by the Pro-slavery legislature. An incident will illustrate their mode of operating. At the election of March 30, 1855, at which time there were about fifty legal voters in the district, most of whom, however, stayed away from the polls, 199 votes were cast, principally by residents of Missouri. This was exasperating to the Free-state men, as by similar frauds, perpetrated on the same day, the Missouri Legislature of Kansas, which enacted the "bogus laws," had been elected. A short time after the organization of the Pottawatomie Rifle Company, Judge Cato's court was in session at Henry Sherman's house. In order to ascertain what was to be the attitude of the judiciary in regard to the enforcement of the "bogus laws," the Pottawatomie Rifle Company proceeded to Judge Cato's court, and stacking their arms near "Old John Brown's Cabin," approached the house in which court was being held. The Judge was delivering his charge to the jury. At the conclusion of the charge, they became satisfied it was the design to enforce the obnoxious laws. To satisfy themselves still further, they handed a paper to Judge Cato, upon which the following words were written: "We, the citizens of this part of the Territory would thank the court to state, if he intended in his charge to the jury, to be understood as recognizing and enforcing the laws passed at the Shawnee Mission." After reading the paper, the Judge threw it aside, and excitedly replied, that "the court could not permit itself to be interfered with by outside parties."

Capt. Brown thereupon cried out to his men in a loud voice, "The Pottawatomie Rifle Company will assemble on the parade ground!" This order was enough for Judge Cato, and the next morning, court, jury and sheriff were all making the best possible time towards Lecompton. It was about the same time or shortly afterwards, that near the postoffice—then called Shermanville, after Henry Sherman—Poindexter Manace was brutally flogged with ox-whips in the hands of ruffians, under the command of Capt. Mitchell, one of Col. Buford's gang. Mr. Manace was considerably advanced in years, and entirely inoffensive. He was accosted by Capt. Mitchell, with "What paper do you take?" Mr. Manace taking a copy of his paper from his pocket, replied "The New York Tribune, and I consider it a very good paper." At this remark Capt. Mitchell said it "was a d——d abolition sheet, an incendiary publication, and ought to be burnt." At this moment one of Capt. Mitchell's party knocked Mr. Manace down with a heavy ox-whip, and while he was prostrate upon the ground, other ruffians joined in and punished him severely for being a Free-state man and a reader of the New York Tribune.

This outrage caused considerable excitement in the neighborhood. The rifle company met next day, and the meeting was attended by more than the usual number. As a consequence the report spread that the abolitionists were preparing to retaliate on Capt. Mitchell and his associates, for their brutal outrage on old Mr. Manace. The next morning Mitchell and his Georgians had left the neighborhood, to the great joy of the Free-state men.

THE POTTAWATOMIE MASSACRE.

By the "Pottawatomie Massacre" is meant the killing of James P. Doyle, and his two sons,—Drury and William Doyle—Allen Wilkinson and William Sherman, by John Brown and a party of men under his command. The massacre occurred on the night of the 24th and morning of the 25th of May, 1856, not far above the junction of Mosquito Creek with the Pottawatomie. The object of the massacre was to protect the Free-state settlers, by terrorizing in the most effectual manner the Pro-slavery men, settlers and non-settlers.

For the truth of history it is important that the facts connected with this massacre, concerning which there has been so much controversy, and to which attaches a peculiar interest, should be obtained as nearly as practicable. To this purpose we obtained on August 3, 1882, in the presence of John Hanway, one of the sons of Hon. James Hanway, the following statement from James Townsley, the only surviving, communicative, eye-witness of the tragedy: *

"I joined the Pottawatomie Rifle Company at its re-organization, in May, 1856. At that time, John Brown, Jr., was elected Captain. On the 21st of this month, Lawrence was sacked by a Pro-slavery mob, under Sheriff Jones, and on the day of the sacking, information was received that a movement to that end was in progress. The company was hastily called together, and a forced march to aid in its defense immediately determined upon. We started about four o'clock in the afternoon. About two miles south of Middle Creek, the Osawatomie company, under Captain Dayton, joined us. Upon arriving at Mount Vernon, we halted for two hours, until the rising of the moon. After marching the rest of the night, we went into camp, near the house of John T. Jones, for breakfast. Just before reaching this place, we learned that Lawrence had been destroyed the day before, and the question arose whether we should go on or return. It was decided to go on, and we proceeded up Ottawa Creek to within about five miles of Palmyra. We remained in camp undecided over night, and until noon of the next day. About this time, Owen Brown, and a little later, old John Brown himself, came to me and said information had, just been received that trouble was expected on the Pottawatomie. The old man asked me if I would go with my team and take him and his boys down there, so that they could watch what was going on. I replied that I would do so, my reason being that my family was then living on the Pottawatomie, in Anderson County, about one mile west of Greeley. Making ready for the trip as quickly as possible, we started about two o'clock in the afternoon. The party consisted of old John Brown, and four of his sons—Frederick, Oliver, Owen and Watson—Henry Thompson, his son-in-law, Mr. Winer and myself. Winer rode a pony; all the rest rode in the wagon with me. We camped that night between two deep ravines about one mile above Dutch Henry's crossing.

After supper, John Brown first revealed to me the purpose of the expedition. He said it was to sweep the Pottawatomie of all Pro-slavery men living on it. To this end he desired me to guide the company some five or six miles up to the forks of the creek, into the neighborhood where I lived, and point out to him on the way up, the residences of all the Pro-slavery men, so that on the way down, he might carry out his design. Horrified at his purpose, I positively refused to comply with his request, saying that I could not take men out of their beds and kill them in that way. Brown said, 'Why, won't you fight your enemies.' To which I replied, 'I have no enemies I can kill in that way.' Failing to prevail upon me, he decided to postpone the expedition until the following night, when they would go, as the old man himself said, where they knew Pro-slavery men to be. I then proposed to him that he take his things out of my wagon and allow me to go home; to which he replied, that, 'I could not go, that I must stay with them; there was no other way of getting along.' We remained in camp that night and all the next day. During the morning of this day, the 24th, I tried to dissuade him and his boys from carrying out the expedition, and to this end talked a great deal. Brown said it was necessary to 'strike terror into the hearts of the Pro-slavery party,' and taking out his revolver, said to me, 'Shut up! You are trying to discourage my boys. Dead men tell no tales.' From the last remark, I inferred that I must henceforth keep still or suffer the consequences. Shortly afterward I stepped down into the ravine, when Owen Brown and Henry Thompson each picked up his rifle and, without saying a word, walked down the banks of the ravine on either side of me. When I returned, they returned. But little more was said during the day.

*This statement is essentially the same as that made by him to Judge Hanway, which was published several years since, and is corroborative testimony rather than new, as Mr. Townsley reiterates and affirms the truth of his former statement, with what modifications and additions he might choose to make.

Some time after dark we were ordered to march, and went northward, crossing Mosquito Creek above the residence of the Doyles. Soon after crossing the creek, one of the party knocked at the door of a cabin, but received no reply. I do not know whose cabin it was. We next came to the residence of the Doyles. John Brown, three of his sons and son-in-law, went to the door, leaving Frederick Brown, Winer and myself a short distance away, ostensibly to see that no one escaped from the house, but really, as I believe, that Brown and Winer might act as guard over me. About this time a large dog attacked us. Frederick Brown struck the dog with his short two-edged sword, after which I struck him, also, with my saber. I do not know whether or not the dog was killed, but we heard no more of him.

The old man Doyle and his sons were ordered to come out. This order they did not immediately obey, the old man being heard instead to call for his gun. At this moment Henry Thompson threw into the house some rolls or balls of hay in which during the day wet gunpowder had been mixed, setting fire to them as he threw them in. This stratagem had the desired effect. The old man and his sons came out, and were marched about one-quarter of a mile in the road toward Dutch Henry's crossing, where a halt was made. Here old John Brown drew his revolver and shot old man Doyle in the forehead, killing him instantly; and Brown's two youngest sons immediately fell upon the younger Doyles with their short two-edged swords. One of the young Doyles was quickly dispatched; the other, attempting to escape, was pursued a short distance and cut down also. We then went down Mosquito Creek, to the house of Allen Wilkinson. Here, as at the Doyle residence, old John Brown, three sons, and son-in-law, went to the door and ordered Wilkinson out, leaving Frederick Brown, Winer and myself in the road a little distance east of the house. Wilkinson was marched a short distance south and killed by one of the young Browns with his short sword, after which his body was dragged to one side and left lying by the side of the road.

We then crossed the Pottawatomie and went to Dutch Henry's house. Here, as at the other two houses, Frederick Brown Winer and myself were left outside a short distance from the door, while old man Brown, three sons and son-in-law went into the house and brought out one or two persons with them. After talking with them some time they took them back into the house, and brought out William Sherman, Dutch Henry's brother, and marched him down into Pottawatomie creek, where John Brown's two youngest sons slew him with their short swords as in the former instances, and left his body lying in the creek.

It was Brown's intention to kill Dutch Henry, also, had he been found at home, as well as George Wilson, Probate Judge of Anderson County, had he been found at Dutch Henry's house, as it was hoped he would be.

The killing was done with swords in order to avoid alarming the neighborhood by the discharge of fire-arms. What mutilation appeared upon the bodies was consequent upon the manner in which the men were killed.

I did not then approve of the killing of those men, but Brown said it must be done for the protection of the Free-state settlers; that it was better that a score of bad men should die than that one Free-state man should be driven out. It was my refusal to pilot the party into the neighborhood where I lived that caused us to remain in camp all night, May 23, and all day May 24. I told him I was willing to go to Lecompton and attack the leaders, or to fight the enemy anywhere in open field, but that I could not kill the men in that way. The deeds of that night are indelibly stamped upon my memory.

In after years my opinion changed as to the wisdom of the massacre. I became, and am, satisfied that it resulted in good to the Free-state cause, and was especially beneficial to the Free-state settlers on Pottowatomie Creek. The Pro-slavery men were dreadfully terrified, and large numbers of them soon left the Territory. It was afterward said that one Free-state man could scare a company of them.

Immediately after the killing of William Sherman, the two sons of Brown who had done all the killing, except the shooting of the old man Doyle, washed their swords in Pottawatomie Creek. I did not wash my sword, having done nothing with it but strike the dog.

Soon after midnight we went back to where my team and the other things had been left, and remained there in camp until the next afternoon. Just before daylight Owen Brown came to me and said 'There shall be no more such work as that.'

In the afternoon we started back to join the Pottawatomie company under John Brown, Jr. We reached them about midnight, in camp near Ottawa Jones' place. When daylight had come, some members of the company noticing the blood and hair upon my sword, picked it up, and after examining it, remarked, 'There is no human blood upon that saber!' This was the end of the expedition."

As to old John Brown's connection with this affair, there is, without James Townsley's statement, abundant evidence, although he himself may, at certain times, have positively denied it, as Redpath and Sanborn in their lives of him state that he did repeatedly. At other times when interrogated in regard to it, he said, "I never shed the blood of a fellow man except in self-defence, or in promotion of a righteous cause." In a speech at Cleveland, Ohio, March 22, 1859, he said he "had never killed anybody, although on some occasions he had shown the young men with him how some things might be done as well as others, and they had done the business." Hon. James Hanway, who was a member of the Pottawatomie Rifle Company under Capt. John Brown, Jr., and present with the company at the time old John Brown, with his party of seven men, started off on his Pottawatomie expedition, wrote a letter under date of March 12, 1860, to James Redpath, from which we quote:

"They started in the afternoon, and three cheers were given to the success of Capt. Brown and his men. Now, sir, what I am going to relate to you I have never mentioned to but one man living, and that is, one of the party made a proposition to me to join the company, and also, gave me such information in regard to their contemplated enterprise as to satisfy my mind that they were the chief actors in the Pottawatomie tragedy."

In a letter published in the Kansas Monthly, for January, 1880, Judge Hanway wrote: "I ventured to approach one of the eight, and from him I learned the programme contemplated. In fact I received an invitation to be one of the party, and being unwilling to consent before I learned the object, I was made acquainted with the object of the expedition; it shocked me," etc.

Judge Hanway also says, in his letter to Redpath, that after the return of the party, "That portion of the company who resided near the Shermans on Pottawatomie Creek recognized several horses which belonged to the ruffians, and several of our men remarked that they hoped they would not take them (the horses) in the neighborhood of Osawatomie, because they were well known.

A few days after the massacre two of Judge Hanway's neighbors, Dr. Gilpatrick and Elbridge Blunt, called on him and made particular inquiries "about the dress of old John Brown—his leather cravat, light coat," etc., etc. These neighbors had started for Kansas City on the morning after the massacre, and had called at Wilkinson's for their mail, he being Postmaster. Mrs. Wilkinson was sick in bed, and told them she feared her husband had been killed. She also gave them a description of the "old man who appeared to be the leader of the party" who had taken her husband out of the house during the night. His dress was also described by other women and men at Sherman, and in summing this part of the testimony up Judge Hanway says: "All I have to say is that my recollection is that it agreed precisely with that worn by John Brown, Sr. Of this there is no doubt."

There can be no doubt that old John Brown was the leader of the party that committed the Pottawatomie massacre. That he, with his own hand, shot James P. Doyle seems almost equally well established. James Townsley has emphatically testified to it, over and over again. Brown habitually carried a revolver, and was too brave and consistent a man to influence other men, especially his own sons, to do what he would not do himself. He believed it was a step necessary to prevent a similar massacre of the Free-state settlers by their Pro-slavery neighbors, and that it was only a question as to who should strike the first blow. At the time the blow was struck opinion was divided even among the Free-state men as to its necessity, but as time has passed the numbers of those living in the immediate neighborhood who approve of it has increased.

The question as to whether it was justifiable depends primarily on its necessity. And its necessity depends on whether there was a conspiracy among the Pro-slavery settlers to massacre the Free-state men.

James Townsley says that George Wilson, whom Brown hoped to find and kill at Dutch Henry's, "had been notifying Free-state men to leave the Territory. He had received such a notice from him himself."

Judge Hanway, in the same letter from which we have already quoted says: "I was personally acquainted with the Doyles, Wilkinson and Sherman and am fully satisfied, as everybody else is, who lived on the creek in 1856, that a base conspiracy was on foot to drive out, burn and kill; in a word, the Pottawatomie Creek from its mouth to its fountain head was to be cleared of every man, woman and child who was for Kansas being a free State."

"I will give one item which has never been published. When the party called at the house of the Shermans, Mrs. Harris, who was living there, commenced getting breakfast, believing the party that had arrived were friends who were expected from Missouri to carry out the Border Ruffian plan of clearing the creek of Abolitionists. This important fact alone is evidence that John Brown was correct in his predictions. This evidence came through a moderate Pro-slavery man, who was astonished to learn that such a plan was under consideration:

"Threats were made to various persons: 'Squire Morse, John Grant and his family, Mr. Winer and others.

"Old John Brown was at my house at various times in 1858. He asked me how the people on the creek regarded the killing of Sherman and the others at that time. My remark was that 'I did not know of a settler of '56 but what regarded it as amongst the most fortunate events in the history of Kansas—that this event saved the lives of the Free-state men on the creek—that those who did the act were looked upon as deliverers.'

"The old man said, 'The first shock frightened the Free-state men almost as much as the ruffians, but I knew that when the facts were understood a reaction would take place. If the killing of these men was murder then I was an accessory.' The remark did not surprise me, because I had heard his brother-in law, Rev. S. L. Adair, say that the old man had said the same to him.

"Take in connection the fact of John Brown running into the Border Ruffian camp with his surveying instruments, and there hearing the plans on foot to drive out or exterminate the settlers on the creek, and I think we have sufficient reason to believe that our lives were in danger, and that John Brown and his little band saved us from premature graves."

In summing up this whole matter, it may be said that although, possibly, the details of the massacre as they occurred may not have been brought to light, or, in other words, although possibly we may not know which particular individual of old John Brown's party killed, which particular individual of the Pottawatomie victims, yet it must be considered established that John Brown, Sr.'s, party of eight men, including himself, killed the three Doyles, Allen, Wilkinson, and William Sherman, on the night of May 24, 1856, in a determined and remorseless manner; that whether or not old John Brown, with his own hand, shot old Mr. Doyle, it is established that he did lead the party from near "Ottawa" Jones' place to the Pottawatomie valley, with the definite and distinct design of murdering as many as "necessary" of the Pro-slavery men living therein, and that he was not only present at, but commanded, the murdering of each of the five miserable victims. His brain may not have conceived the plan originally, and he may have been only the instrument selected by others; but his brain conceived the method of the execution of the plan.

Time will test the truth of Mr. Townsley's statement. It is corroborated now in some particulars. That there was shooting was testified to under oath by Mrs. Doyle, who said she heard two pistol shots, and by John Doyle, who was spared on account of his youth, who said he saw a bullet-hole in his father's forehead. Knowles Shaw, who assisted in the burial of the mangled remains, corroborates the statement of Mr. Townsley as to the places where the killing was done, and also as to the killing of the dog. This is as far as we can now go. What has not been told, or told untruthfully, time will doubtless divulge.

The immediate cause of old John Brown's starting off "on the war path," at that particular time, was that Major H. H. Williams had that day brought the information to the camp of the Pottawatomie Rifle Company that "trouble was expected on the Pottawatomie." 'Squire Morse kept a little store on the creek, and furnished, among other things, gunpowder to the Free-state men. Morse had received notice to leave the Territory within three days, or take the consequences of remaining, one of the charges against him being that of "smuggling in" gunpowder. He was very much frightened, and in fact white with fear, when Major Williams saw him that morning, and he asked of the Major what he should do. After giving 'Squire Morse the best advice he could as to where to go for protection, the Major rode over to the company, with the result already detailed.

The John Brown writers, as they may, not inappropriately, be styled, as Redpath, Sanborn, Hinton, and Webb, for a long time strenuously contended that he was not present at the tragedy; was in fact twenty-five miles away, and was not at all cognizant of it until after it had been committed, basing their argument on his own statements to that effect, and on the assumption that "John Brown was incapable of telling a falsehood."

That he was present and did in fact command the murderers when they were committing the murders, is now established and admitted by them. They still, however, contend quite as strenuously that John Brown did not himself kill anybody, basing their conclusion on the same argument as before; viz: John Brown says he did not kill any one, and he is incapable of telling a falsehood; therefore, etc. If it should some time be established beyond cavil that he did actually kill some one of the five, his especial admirers will then say, as they do now, in regard to his presence there, that they did not understand him, when they understood him to say he did not kill anybody.

But why this studied and persistent attempt to defend him against the charge of having shot old Mr. Doyle with his own hand? He himself frequently admitted that he "approved" of it, that he "endorsed" it, that "if it was murder he was not innocent," "that he was an accessory;" and he even said to Col. Samuel Walker, now living in Lawrence, that he "was in command of the party and ordered the execution." Is it so much worse to kill one, than to be present at and order the killing of five? Or is it so much worse to lie than to murder? If so, then assuredly it is pressingly incumbent upon educators to introduce a new system of ethics into our schools.

Henry Sherman was killed in March, 1857, while traveling the public highway, by two Free-state men. This murder was entirely inexcusable. For although "Dutch Henry" had done his full share of threatening Free-state men, the time had now arrived when, on account of the thousands of Free-state emigrants that were pouring into the Territory, he had ceased to be regarded as dangerous to them or their rights. Private malice prompted the deed.

"JOHN BROWN'S CABIN."

This famous cabin was located one mile southwest of Lane Postoffice, in this county, on the northwest quarter of Section 4, Township 19, Range 21. It was built by Judge James Hanway in 1857, for pre-emption purposes, and was occupied by himself and family about two years. It was made of oak, hickory and walnut logs, was chinked and daubed, had floor, doors and windows, and was withal a very comfortable cabin.

During the years 1857-58, John Brown was accustomed to visit Judge Hanway's family, then living in it, and it was here he wrote his "Parallels," published in the Lawrence Republican and New York Tribune. Anderson, Kagi and others who fell at Harper's Ferry, often found an asylum in it, as did also Col. Montgomery and his men, when pursued by Gen. Harney.

It was in a cabin about four miles southwest from Lane, owned by Charles Severns, that John Brown successfully secreted eleven fugitive slaves for a full month, when the whole country was filled with hunters in pursuit.

Old John Brown never owned the Hanway cabin, nor professed to own it, and never occupied it, save as a visitor or guest. It was photographed by A. W. Baker, of Ottawa, and by him named "John Brown's Cabin." Being thus named, the photograph of it met with immense salé all over the United States.

John Brown never owned a cabin in Kansas; but he erected one on contract for Orson Day, a brother of his last wife, in the winter of 1855-56. This cabin is located one and a half miles west of Rantoul, Franklin County.

THE FIRST FREE-STATE LEGISLATURE.

A Mass Convention was held at Centropolis, August 14, 1857. Similar conventions were held at different places in the Territory during the same summer and early fall. The question in each convention was whether the Free-state men should take part in the election to be held October 5, of that year. They believed it to be of vital importance to the people of Kansas that its government should be controlled by the bona fide citizens of the Territory, instead of as heretofore, by the citizens of Missouri. They also believed that in a fair election they could outvote the Pro-slavery residents of the Territory. And as Governor Walker had repeatedly pledged himself that a full and fair vote should be had before impartial judges, they agreed to participate in the election. At that election the majority of the Free-state party, on delegate to Congress was 4,089, and they elected a majority of the members of the Territorial Legislature, thus for the first time obtaining control of their own government. It was at this time that the short-lived town of Minneola came into existence. Lecompton had too many Pro-slavery associations connected with it to be satisfactory to the Free-state Legislature as a capital; hence although compelled by law to meet there, they invariably adjourned each year for three years to Lawrence to hold their sessions. The location at Centropolis not being any more satisfactory than the associations connected with Lecompton, the idea was conceived at Lawrence of starting Minneola. Perry Fuller was the leading spirit in the enterprise. He said that nine quarter sections of land, or 1,440 acres, lying one mile east of Centropolis, in a beautiful location, could be secured for $3,131. This land belonged to the following parties: Charles L. Robbins, Wm. E. Crum, Samuel T. Shore, Wm. Mewhinney, Terry Critchfield, Joab M. Bernard, Frederick Ruch and two others. These men were willing to throw their interests into a town site, on condition of being made shareholders in the town company. The total cost of the land including attorney's fees, building of necessary houses, filing plat, and conveyancing, amounted to $3,700. A large number of people were desirous of becoming stockholders in the town company, which when organized consisted of the following members, those in italics being members of the Legislature: R. Gilpatrick, James G. Blunt, Jacob G. Reese, Gideon Seymour, John Curtis, P. P. Orr, A. Barry, C. Columbia, Henry Owens, Calvin Smith, Robert B. Mitchell, A. T. Stile, Hiram Appleman, George H. Keller, Samuel Stewart, C. Graham, Wm. Pennock, S. S. Cooper, O. E. Learnard, B. H. Weir, James S. Emery, Robert Morrow, G. Danford, S. B. Prentice, S. C. Russell, Terry Critchfield, Ralph Mayfield, William Y. Roberts, William McClure, E. St. John, J. G. Patrick, Daniel Sibbett, John Wright, H. Miles Moore, Augustus Wattles, Oliver Barber, A. A. Jamison, C. F. Currier, Joel K. Goodin, Hugh S. Walsh, Gaius Jenkins, John Mann, A. J. Shannon, Edward S. Nash, John P. Hattersheit, R. G. Elliott, George Ford, Lyman Allen, A. R. Morton, J. A. Marcell, C. L. Robbins, William E. Crum, Joab M. Bernard, Perry Fuller, John Goodall, C. W. Babcock, O. A. Bassett, G. W. Deitzler, S. W. Eldridge, Charles Robinson, Asa Reynard, T. Sampson, S. Stewart, John Speer, Charles Jenkins, A. J. Mead, E. W. Morrill, Thomas McCage, A. G. Patrick and M. J. Parrott.

The name, Minneola, was suggested by E. N. Morrill. At the time the organization of the Minneola Town Company was effected, the Legislature, in session at Lawrence, passed an act under date of February 10, 1858, making Minneola the capital of the Territory. One half-section was entered as the town site, the rest of the nine quarter-sections were deeded to the Town Company, the grantors receiving Town Company stock in exchange. Money was raised by assessments and by mortgage; buildings erected, including a hotel, and a hall in which the sessions of the Legislature were to be held, the hotel costing about $8,000 and the hall about $1,500, and all in less than six weeks. These men were in earnest about making Minneola the capital of the Territory and State-to-be. Ex-Judge Bassett was made secretary and surveyor, and Perry Fuller, business manager. The same Legislature that made Minneola the capital, made provision for numerous railroads, all centering there. Maps and bird's eye views were made, representing this to be the case. Town lots in the choicest locations were sold at exorbitant prices. Everything seemed to betoken a brilliant future for the town. But "the best laid plans of mice and men gang aft' aglee." The Territorial officers refused to move the substantial portions of the government to Minneola. The legality of the act making that town the capital was called in question, and being referred to the Attorney-General of the United States, was by him declared to be in violation of the Organic Act. In the meantime the Legislature had provided for a Constitutional Convention to be held at Minneola. This convention assembled March 23, 1858; James H. Lane was elected President of the Convention, and Samuel F. Tappan, Clerk. There were seventy-two delegates present. In order to dampen the hopes of Minneola and reduce her chances for becoming the capital, soon after the convention was called to order, a motion was made to adjourn. The contest over this motion lasted all day and until early in the morning of the 24th, when the convention adjourned to Leavenworth, reassembling there on the evening of the 25th.

Failing to become the capital, Minneola soon began to decline, and the town site is now divided up into farms. The delegates to this convention from Franklin County, were Joel K. Goodin and Jacob G. Reese.

HORSE THIEVES.

In 1858, a number of horses were stolen in the county. Suspicion fell on two men named Shaw and Johnson, and finally their guilt became sufficiently evident to warrant an arrest. They were taken to a house on upper Middle Creek, tried by a "Squatters' Court," and sentenced to be hanged. A party headed by P. P. Elder came up from Ohio City to prevent the hanging, if possible, and succeeded for a time in saving the lives of the condemned. But at night they were taken past the Sac and Fox Agencies to an island in the Marais des Cygnes and hanged to a tree. This was a serious blow to the business of horse-stealing in that part of the country.

In 1863, an organization, distinguished by the name of the "Red Heads," existed in Missouri. They plundered and murdered Unionists and Rebels indiscriminately. Mutual attempts were made to capture them, and they were at length driven into Kansas, locating in different parts of the State. In January, 1864, one of their number, James Bailey, went from Lawrence to Ohio City, and went to work for John Hendricks. He also became mail carrier. At this time, James Fitton was County Treasurer, and H. F. Sheldon, Register of Deeds. Each had a key to the county safe. One morning in the latter part of February, Bailey was missing, as was also a horse belonging to Hendricks, his employer. It was also found that the safe had been opened, considerable money stolen as well as some valuable papers, and Mr. Sheldon's key to the safe could not be found. While no suspicions were attached to Mr. Sheldon, yet, fearing such might be the case unless the thief were caught, he adopted the most vigorous measures for the capture and return of Bailey, the suspected criminal. Sheldon pursued, and captured him at Gasconade, Mo. Upon arriving at Jefferson City, the prisoner was placed under guard, while Sheldon returned to a railroad cut, in passing through which he had seen Bailey throw something out of the car window. Here he found some $300 of the amount stolen, and some of the papers. Bailey, after again escaping, and being recaptured, was taken to Lawrence, where he was induced to confess belonging to the "Red Heads," and to give information which fastened upon them the guilt of numerous other thefts in the county and vicinity, and which led to the breaking up of all their many bands. Among those exposed by Bailey, were the old man Stevens and his two sons, living near Stanton, Miami County, who had committed several thefts. It transpired that the three had stolen a pair of mules belonging to a Mr. Tulloss, of Peoria Township, and one of the boys had stolen a span of horses from a Mr. Roberts, and sold them at Fort Scott for $400. Upon his return he had accepted from Mr. Roberts $25 to assist in finding and capturing the thief. The mules had been taken to Leavenworth by the elder brother.

On the night that these developments were made, the father and younger son were arrested by eighty-three citizens of the neighborhood, and hanged to a tree. The older brother was captured by the Sheriff, C. L. Robbins, and taken to Ohio City. On the night of his arrival, he was taken to the woods by about sixty of the citizens, and likewise hanged to a tree. These summary proceedings had a tendency to discourage horse-stealing again for a time.

Through the confessions of Bailey and Stevens, the leader of the whole gang of "Red Heads" was apprehended and captured. At the time of his capture he was playing the rôle of a Methodist minister, leading a camp meeting in Jefferson County. He and four others were hanged within a mile of the camp-meeting grounds. Bailey hanged himself in the Lawrence jail.

All the money stolen from the county safe was recovered, except about $275. Mr. Sheldon was exonerated from all blame in connection with the affair, ex-Gov. Wilson Shannon giving it as his opinion that reasonable care had been exercised by him in protecting the county's property, which was all the law required.

COUNTY ORGANIZATION AND COUNTY SEAT TROUBLES.

Franklin County was organized in 1855, and named in honor of Benjamin Franklin, the illustrious American philosopher. A partial set of officers was appointed by the Governor, and in 1857 an election was held and a full set of officers chosen. Part of them declined to qualify, and in the spring of 1858 the vacancies were filled. The first officers of the county were as follows: Commissioners—J. A. Marcell, Wm. Thornbrough and John F. Javens; J. A. Marcell being also Probate Judge; Clerk, Robt. Cowdin; Treasurer, T. J. Mewhinney; Sheriff, C. L. Robbins; Prosecuting Attorney, P. P. Elder; Register of Deeds, Wm. Austin; Coroner, John Bingham. On March 15, 1858, the Commissioners at their meeting divided the county into six townships, as follows: Centropolis, Chippewa, Ohio, Ottawa, Peoria and Pottawatomie. At the first of the elections under the Wyandotte Constitution movement, April 16, 1859, Franklin County cast ninety-one votes for a Constitution and one against one. On the 7th of June, at the election for delegates to the Wyandotte Convention, Judge James Hanway received 217 votes to 116 for Joab Tony. On October 4 following, Franklin County cast 301 votes for the Wyandotte Constitution to 111 against it. At the election held November 8, for delegate to Congress, Marcus J. Parrott, Republican candidate, received 265 votes to 172 for Saunders W. Johnson, Democratic candidate. At the same election P. P. Elder was elected to the Territorial Council, receiving 283 votes to 201 for Isaiah Pile, and Henry Shively was elected to the House of Representatives by a vote of 221 to 216 votes for John F. Javeus. On November 6, 1860, James Hanway was elected to the House of Representatives by 244 votes to 190 for all others.

Since Kansas has been a State Franklin County has had in the State Senate the following citizens: P. P. Elder, Jacob G. Reese, D. M. Valentine, A. Wiley, P. P. Elder, N. Merchant, A. M. Blair, W. L. Parkinson, J. P. Harris and A. W. Benson.

The following citizens of Franklin County have been members of the State House of Representatives: W. H. H. Lawrence, J. A. Marcell, D. M. Valentine, H. V. Beeson, G. W. E. Griffith, Isaiah Pile, James W. Smith, Hugh A. Cook, James Hanway, Wm. Pennock, Jacob G. Reese, William E. Kibbie, J. M. Loos, James N. Foster, H. P. Welch, T. C. Bowles, John McClanahan, James Hanway, George T. Pierce, J. M. Loos, H. P. Welch, Wm. H. Clark, Wm. H. Schofield, E. J. Nugent, Wm. Bateman, C. B. Mason, J. H. Harrison, P. P. Elder, J. N. Foster, P. P. Elder, J. Dunnuck, R. E. Genness, P. P. Elder, James Robb, J. A. Towle, C. P. Crouch and W. B. Bass.

The contests over the county seat have been numerous and exciting. It was first located at St. Bernard by the Legislature in 1855. When St. Bernard became extinct, the county seat was transferred to Minneola. An election was held March 26, 1860, to relocate it, at which Ohio City received 243 votes, Peoria 206, and Minneola 182. No place having received a majority of the votes cast, another election was held April 16, 1860, at which Peoria received 342 votes, and Ohio City 320. Then followed a contest between Peoria and Minneola. The latter place enjoined the removal of the records. A law suit followed, which Peoria won. Minneola appealed to the County Court, and gained the decision. Peoria carried the case to the Supreme Court of the Territory. While the case was pending in the Court, the Territorial Legislature passed an act re-submitting the whole matter to the people. This was on January 21, 1861, three days after the Territory was admitted into the Union as a State. The re-submitting of the question complicated matters to such an extent that Peoria had to consult counsel. Counsel opined that the Territorial Legislature had no right to pass any law after the Territory became a State, and advised pressing the matter in the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court decided that as the Legislature had not been notified of the admission of the State into the Union, its acts were legal. The case was therefore re-submitted to the people and decided in favor of Minneola.

The next election on the question was held March 25, 1861. Ohio City received 243 votes; Peoria, 127; Centropolis, 98; Mount Vernon, 26; Minneola, 1. No place having received a majority another election was necessary. This was held April 15, following. Ohio City received 363 votes; Peoria, 37. Ohio City therefore became the county seat, and so remained until after another election held August 1, 1864, decided the question in favor of Ottawa. At this election Ottawa received 261 votes; Peoria, 40; Ohio City, 36, and Centropolis, 1. Ottawa having a majority of the votes cast no other election was required.

FRANKLIN COUNTY IN THE WAR.

In the spring of 1861 there were 2,500 inhabitants in the county, scattered along the northern and eastern borders, with a somewhat compact settlement a little south of the center at Ohio City. The remainder of the county was given over to Indians on their reservations. There was little village life, and no rallying points, and consequently those whom patriotism impelled hastened to Lawrence and other near stations to enlist. Company D, of the Twelfth Infantry, was the only company wholly recruited in the county. It was mustered September 25, 1862, and was officered by George W. Ashby, of Ohio City, Captain; Henry Shively, near Stanton, First Lieutenant, and Alfred Johnson, of Peoria, Second Lieutenant. But the county furnished, nevertheless, individuals or squads to almost every regiment organized in the State, till there was hardly an able bodied man who was not under arms. There were twenty enlisted men in the First Kansas Infantry and about the same number in the Second. These regiments participated in the bloody fight of Wilson's Creek, August 10, 1861, and the little town of Minneola alone lost in that battle five men killed. The county also furnished sixteen men to the First Battery, a large number to the Second Cavalry, and probably fifty to the Sixteenth Infantry. Less is known in regard to the other regiments, and what little can be ascertained in any case is from the fading recollections of survivors. The total enlistment and number of casualties and deaths can only be rudely approximated. In October, 1864, Gov. Carney called out the State Militia to repel the invasion threatened by General Sterling Price. The Tenth Kansas State Militia, among others, promptly responded to the call. This regiment had been recruited from Franklin and Anderson Counties. The regimental officers were William Pennock, Colonel, of Centropolis; Miles Morris, Lieutenant-Colonel, Garnett; A. Niley, Major, Garnett; J. K. Goodin, Adjutant, Minneola; I. C. Hughes, Quarter Master, Minneola; Mr. F. Holliday, Surgeon, Lane. Company A, was from Centropolis and Minneola; Companies C and D, from Peoria; Companies F and L, from Ottawa, Company G, from Ohio City, and most of Company H, from Berea. There were no battles or skirmishes within the limits of the county.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY.

This Order, created in the interest of the agricultural class, and having for specific objects "to develop a better and higher manhood and womanhood among them; to enhance the comforts and attractions of their homes, and to foster mutual understanding and co-operation, ;" had its beginning in this county, in the organization, February 14, 1873, of Franklin Grange No. 22, by J. A. Cramer, State Lecturer. This Grange was in South Centropolis Township, and had for officers, W. S. Hanna, master; G. G. Wharton, overseer; J. C. B. Wharton, lecturer, and M. Jenkins, secretary. Mr. Cramer also organized, a little later Liberty Grange, Greenwood Township; Ohio City Grange, Ohio Township, and Wheatland Grange, Centropolis Township. Meanwhile, W. S. Hanna, of Franklin Grange, was promoted to county deputy, and pushed forward the work of organization so energetically, that within a year there were thirty-three Granges in the county, with a membership little short of one thousand. Mr. Hanna, now a substantial farmer of Centropolis Township, as county deputy, state deputy, state chaplain and state lecturer, successively, followed up the work three years, till he had visited seventy counties, lectured in forty, and organized one hundred and forty (140) Granges. So rapid was the development of this Order. Its decline, after a vigorous life of seven years, has been equally rapid, till at date, there is scarcely an organization sustained in the county. But the fruits of the Grange have been neither transient nor insignificent. They are everywhere manifest in the greater consideration in which the agricultural community is held, in the more independent bearing of farmers, and in their better acquaintance, not only with each other, but with men and affairs generally. Fifteen years ago, it would have been difficult to find East or West, in any locality, so many farmers at ease in public meetings either in the chair, or in debate on the floor, as are now to be found in this county. The best features of the Grange must in some form survive.

SCHOOLS AND RAILROADS.

There are ninety school districts in the county, and eighty-nine schoolhouses. According to the census of 1881, there were 6 025 children between the ages of five and twenty-one; 4,543 enrolled, and 2,934 in average daily attendance. The number of teachers employed, exclusive of the Ottawa public schools, 95; the average wages paid to male teachers was $32.60; to females, $21.45. An advance in wages was made the next year, and a higher standard of qualification required in the teachers. The value of school sites and houses was $88,830; of furniture, $7,265; apparatus $1,537; and of books, $420; total value of school property, $98,052.

In 1881 the Franklin County Teachers' Association adopted an eight years' course of study for district schools. The highest studies for the eighth year are history, geography, book-keeping, grammar and arithmetic. The first class to graduate in this course in Franklin County, graduated July 7, 1882, in district No. 41, W. A. Altman, teacher. The names of the graduates are Mary Lester, May Farnum, Agnes Farnum, Carrie Bohnet, Ella Gillett and Emma Gillett.

The first normal institute was held in 1874 by Prof. William Wheeler at the public school building in Ottawa. There were about forty teachers in attendance. In 1875 and 1876 Prof. Wheeler conducted similar institutes. In 1877 the first one was was held under the present law, and each year there have been in attendance about 150 teachers.

Franklin County is well supplied with railroads. The Kansas City, Lawrence, Kansas & Southern Kansas runs from north to south through the county. There is also a line operated by the same company, running from Ottawa, through Olathe, to Kansas City, fifty-five miles distant. The Ottawa & Burlington runs southwesterly, from Ottawa to Burlington in Coffey County. The Leroy Branch of the Missouri Pacific runs from Osawatomie, Miami County, to Ottawa, and the Kansas City & Emporia is in course of construction westward to Emporia. The Missouri Pacific runs across the southeast corner of the county. All these roads, except the last, center in Ottawa, the county seat.

Railroad Bonds.—It may be questioned whether these roads would have been built without local aid. It cannot be, whether they were. The first bond election was held November 6, 1866, on the question of voting $125,000 to the L. L. & G. Railroad, which was carried, and the second was held September 23, 1867, on the question of raising the amount to $200,000. This was carried also on the condition that the cars were to be running to Ottawa by January 1, 1868. The vote of Ottawa Township stood 425 for the bonds, to twelve against. All the other townships voted against the bonds by heavy majorities. Total vote for the bonds was 533; against, 365. The road was completed to Ottawa, December 30, 1867. The county had subscribed for and had received in payment for its bonds, $200,000 in stock of the road. In 1869 the President of the road, James F. Joy, representing to the Commissioners that the only thing necessary "to secure the prosecution of the road," was for the county to surrender its stock, and the surrender of the stock was therefore made on the 19th of July, that year, the county receiving in consideration of the surrender one hundred dollars in cash, according to the county records.

An election was held April 6, 1869, on the question of voting $100,000 in bonds to the Kansas City & Santa Fe, on condition that $50,000 should be issued if the cars were running to Ottawa by July 1, 1870, and $50,000 when they were running to the southern line of the county. In this election those townships through or near which the road was to pass, voted largely for the bonds, while those remote from the line voted largely against them. Ottawa's vote was 504 for the bonds, to eight against them. The total vote of the county was for them, 712; against, 272. The road having been completed only to Ottawa, only $50,000 were issued.

On the 13th of September, 1870, an election was held on issuing $150,000 in bonds to the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railroad, on certain conditions. Ottawa's vote in this case was 662 for the bonds, to 24 against. The other townships followed the same rule as in the preceding case. Peoria stood 129 for, to 9 against; Pomona 25 for, to none against the bonds. The total vote in the county for them 950 to 433 against. These bonds were forfeited by the company failing to build the road.

On July 22, 1872, an election was held on issuing $50,000 to the Kansas City, Burlington & Santa Fe, $100,000 to the Topeka, Ottawa & Fort Scott, and $150,000 to Missouri, Kansas & Texas. Ottawa voted 572 for the bonds, 30 against them. The total vote of the county stood, for them, 1,032; against, 826. These bonds were all forfeited.

On April 15, 1879, an election was held on donating $20,000 in cash, and issuing $55,000 in bonds to the St. Louis, Kansas & Arizona Railroad, and subscribing for $55,000 of the stock of the road. When the road was completed to Ottawa, the $20,000 in cash was to be paid, and $25,000 in bonds issued, and the bonds paid for by the delivery to the county of $25,000 of the stock, a like exchange of $10,000 when the road was completed through the southeast part of the county, and also of $20,000 when the road was completed to the west line of the county, by way of Pomona, or within one mile of Centropolis. The main line of this road was completed, and the Leroy branch to Ottawa. Subsequently the bonds issued in accordance with this agreement were surrendered by the railroad company and the stock by the county, and also the Pottawatomie township bonds, $12,000, voted at the same time, for the same amount of stock held by that township. This exchange was made November 22, 1880.

The Railroad Bonds at present outstanding against the county are 1st, $18,000 of the first issue, of $200,000, upon which the interest has not been paid; interest seven per cent. 2d, $233,600, upon which the interest is six per cent. When the total railroad bonded indebtedness had amounted to $310,000, all but the $18,000 were refunded at eighty cents on the dollar, and the interest reduced to six per cent.

GENERAL STATISTICS.

Some attention has been paid to the cultivation of artificial forests, and considerable to the cultivation of fruit trees. For 1881, there were reported of honey locust trees, 11 acres; of cottonwood, 14 acres; of walnut, 57 acres, and of maple, 75 acres. Of fruit trees the following numbers were reported: Apple trees, bearing, 98,088, not bearing, 54,242; pear trees, bearing, 2,462, not bearing, 5,852; peach trees, bearing, 79,947, not bearing, 25,082, plum trees, bearing, 2,542, not bearing, 2,554; cherry, bearing, 23,722; not bearing, 10,832.

There were reported for 1881, the following numbers of rods of the various kinds of fence: Board, 38,536; rail, 128,163; stone, 32,203; hedge, 343,739; and of wire, 261,953.

In 1860, the population was 3,040; in 1870, 10,385; in 1875, 10,108; in 1878, 12,381; in 1880, 16,800; and in 1882, according to the Assessors' returns, 16,491—divided among the townships as follows: Appanoose, 865; Centropolis, 999; Cutler, 898; Greenwood, 737; Hayes, 655; Harrison, 585; Ottawa, 892; Lincoln, 695; Franklin, 1,093; Ohio, 753; Peoria, 1,079; Pottawatomie, 783; Richmond, 587; Williamsburg, 1,407; and Ottawa City, 4,463.

The total area of the county is 368,640 acres. Of this area 356,069 acres are taxable, and 157,799 acres under cultivation. The aggregate value of the taxable lands is $1,956,669. The total number of village lots is 11,247, of which 4,488 are improved, while 6,759 are unimproved; aggregate value of village lots, $562,107.90. The total value of personal property is $751,298.50; of railroad property, $433,799.61; and of all taxable property, $3,703,875.01.

The personal property of the county is divided into classes as follows: Horses, 9,288, value $249,028; mules, 667, value $23,976; milch cows, 7,966—other cattle, 17,947, value $223,978; sheep, 5,586, value $3,971; swine, 22,980, value $27,321; vehicles, 2,525, value $40,794; shares in National Bank stock, $45,000; merchandise on hand, $145,738; other property, $323,492; making a grand total of $1,083,298, as assessed, from which, when the constitutional exemption of $332,000 is deducted, there remains the taxable value of all personal property, $751,298.

flax, 4,725 acres; timothy, 1,404 acres; clover, 2,526 acres; other tame grasses, 1,555 acres; and of prairie grasses, 29,055 acres.

OTTAWA.

The city of Ottawa is pleasantly located on both banks of the Marais des Cygnes, near the center of Franklin County. The original site was two half sections of smooth prairie land—first bottom—principally on the south side of the river. It derived its name from the Ottawa tribe of Indians, in the heart of whose reservation it was laid out. The beauty of the situation had often attracted the attention of the hardy pioneers, but Indian ownership prevented the settlement until the spring of 1864. At that time title was obtained through treaty and purchase in connection with the founding of Ottawa University. A town company was immediately organized, with C. C. Hutchinson, then Indian Agent, and I. S. Kalloch as leading spirits, and including in its number, James Wind, the Ottawa Chief, and John T. Jones, then minister, Asa S. Lathrop, the company's surveyor and attorney. and a few non-resident politicians and capitalists. The early arrivals pitched their tents at pleasure. But after the survey, J. C. Richmond, on the last day of March, raised the first house in the new town, corner Walnut street and First. This old landmark, somewhat dilapidated, still stands in situ. One of the first necessities of the settlers was postal accommodations. These were secured, and C. T. Evans appointed Postmaster. The first white child born in the town site was "Ottawa" Smith, son of Ed. Smith, whose prompt arrival secured to him a valuable Main street lot, dedicated to that contingency. Under the liberal policy of the company the settlement grew rapidly. J. H. Whetstone brought in a valuable saw-mill. The Ottawa House, which has since been, by turns, hotel and post office, stable, railroad depot, and stable, was erected. And the old Capitol building at Minneola was taken down, removed to Ottawa, and again set up on the northeast corner of Second and Main streets. Here G. S. Holt opened the first dry goods store in town. The rest of the first floor was used for offices. The upstairs was furnished as a hall—known as Lathrop's Hall—and became the general rallying place for town and county. In it were held the courts, public meetings, festivals, and entertainments; and the Baptist Church worshiped here for the space of two years, ministered to by Messrs. Kalloch, Hutchinson, and others. Passing later into the Wilkerson House, this historical building was moved across the alley in 1876, where it still serves the purposes of a hotel. In July the Chippewa and Ottawa reservations were erected by the County Commissioners into a township, under the name of Franklin Township. On the first of August, 1864, Ottawa was made by popular vote the county seat of Franklin County. The county officers at the time were, C. L. Robbins, Sheriff; H. F. Sheldon, County Clerk and Register of Deeds; John Malruff, County Treasurer; and H. P. Welsh, Jacob Sumstine, and Mr. Bicketts, County Commissioners. Among other notables early on the ground, should be mentioned P. P. Elder, C. A. Bunting, G. W. Beeman, Judge Valentine, James Davis, E. J. Nugent, and D. W. Zimmerman, who, without capital, but with indomitable pluck, carried to completion two years later the Luddington Hotel.

By June, 1865, Mr. Kalloch had issued the first number of the Western Home Journal. This paper, ably conducted and widely circulated, became greatly instrumental in attracting settlers and building up the town. One year later Ottawa was incorporated as a town, and the control of its municipal affairs passed from a town company to a Board of Trustees. That fall the brick public school building on Walnut street was completed and school opened. And, under the auspices of the Trustees of the Ottawa University, two departments of the college were started, namely, an Indian school on Hickory and Second streets, with forty pupils, and an advanced grade for the whites in the Cumberland Presbyterian Church on Main street.

During the winter of 1866–7 a bridge company, organized for that purpose, constructed the fine suspension bridge at the foot of Main street. They continued to operate it as a toll bridge till the city purchased it eight years later and made it free.

In October, 1867, the town, by a vote of 127 to 29, was elevated to the rank of a city of the second class; and at the first city election, held November 30, Asa S. Lathrop, was elected Mayor.

Shortly after, the City Council granted the first license to sell intoxicating drinks. And there were good citizens who suspected the City Government was sprung for that very purpose, because license could not be obtained under the former government. As a matter of fact, the outcome of it added nothing to the sobriety or orderliness of the village, but considerable to its budget of expenditures. January, 1868, brought to the city the first locomotive over the Leavenworth, Lawrence & Galveston Railroad. Then followed three or four years of great activity and prosperity. Many fine buildings were erected, the machine shops secured, a steam fire engine purchased, and a public school building completed, at a cost of $30,000. The year 1878 brought an end to the license system.

The city has three parks within its limits. Forest Park lies north of the river and contains forty acres. Much of the primeval forest remains, affording ample shade. The park is without a rival in Kansas for natural attractions. College Park is situated in the southern part of the old city limits, and contains sixteen acres. The Central Public School building stands upon it. Court House Square fronts on Main street, a little south of the center of business. It is *un*adorned by the jail. The jail, located on the public square, is a substantial two story stone building, erected in 1867. The county voted $20,000 in bonds for that purpose. J. H. Whetstone was the contractor.

Government.—The city is divided into four wards and is officered by a Mayor, a Marshal, a Council of eight, Clerk, Attorney, Police Judge, two Constables, and a School Board of eight. The Mayors have been successively: Asa S. Lathrop, 1867; R. E. Jenners, 1868; H. P. Welsh, 1869 70; J. W. Magee, 1871; H. F. Sheldon, 1872-73; J. A. Davenport, 1874; H. F. Sheldon, 1875-76; P. P. Elder, 1877; A. W. Benson, 1878-79-80; L. C. Wasson, 1881-82.

Ottawa has three fine halls, one court-room, four large hardware stores, two stove and tin-shops, eleven dry goods, twenty groceries, three clothing stores, three boots and shoes, two book stores, one drug store, four millinery, three jewelry, four confectionery and bakery establishments, five stables, seven hotels, one billiard saloon, half a dozen eating houses, three extensive lumber yards, etc, etc.

It supports eleven lawyers, as many doctors, four dentists, a score of real estate and insurance men, one private banker, and some street brokers. The population is 5,000.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The first school election held in District No. 30, which district included about the same territory as was included in the Ottawa Reservation, was held November 23, 1864, at the office of the County Treasurer, at which time Joseph Wilkin, G. W. Beeman and H. F. Sheldon were chosen directors. On the 6th of January, 1865, a contract was signed by Miss Mary Ward, now wife of H. J. Smith, President of the First National Bank, to teach a four months school in the district for $50 per month. Miss Lottie Myers was engaged as assistant teacher.

On February 28, 1865, an election was held for the purpose of voting on the question of issuing $2,000 in bonds for the purpose of building a schoolhouse. The bonds were issued, and the schoolhouse was built in 1866; a two story brick 30x50 feet, and costing. ——— standing on Railroad street between Second and Third. It was dedicated about October 1, the dedicatory address being delivered by Prof. P. Fales, at the time, President of the Ottawa University; J. N. Holloway, one of the historians of Kansas, was the first principal in this schoolhouse. His three lady assistants were Miss F. M. Ricksicker, Miss L. M. Hemingway and Miss Mary Keisley. In 1867, G. V. Ricksicker became principal, and in 1869, Prof. Arthur succeeded him. In 1870, Prof. William Wheeler succeeded Prof. Arthur, and has been retained in his position ever since.

After 1866, Ottawa increased in population quite rapidly, and more school room was soon needed. The Cumberland Presbyterian Church was rented, and after a few years, purchased by the Board of Education. The Whetstone building, standing on Main street, immediately north of the Marais des Cygnes was rented for a term of years.

In the spring of 1872, the school district of which the town of Ottawa forms a part, after numerous failures to do so, voted to issue $30,000 in bonds for the purpose of building a new public and high school building. School was opened in this building in April, 1873. It is a three story, brick, twelve-room building, above a stone basement; was completed without the issuance of additional bonds, and is altogether one of the finest and most convenient school buildings in the State.

The schools themselves have attained and sustain a high rank, which is doubtless owing to the rule followed by the Board in retaining the superintendent steadily in his position.

OTTAWA UNIVERSITY.

This institution was organized in 1860, under the name of Roger Williams University. This was the result of steps taken previously by the Baptist denomination of Kansas, the charter of the school being granted by the Territorial Legislature, February 20, 1860.

At that time the Ottawa Indians, through the untiring labors of Rev. Jotham Meeker, had made considerable advancement in civilization, and had begun to appreciate the value of education. For some years they had been thinking of setting apart a portion of their reservation for the purpose of endowing a school, but no steps to that end had yet been taken. When, therefore, the Roger Williams University was established, the Ottawas being nearly all Baptists, sent an invitation to its trustees to meet them with the view of making some arrangement by which their children might attend the institution. The invitation was accepted by the trustees, and a meeting was held December 5, 1860, attended by a committee of four of the trustees and eight of the Ottawas, including the chief and councilmen.

As the result of the meeting, the Indians agreed to donate to the University 20,000 acres of their average lands, and the trustees agreed to raise funds to aid in the erection of buildings, and to educate fifty of the Ottawa children, from four to fourteen years of age, for thirty years, and at the end of the thirty years to give the Indians ten perpetual scholarships in the University.

This agreement in substance was put into a treaty concluded June 24, 1862, and one additional section of land was set apart for school purposes. Five thousand of the twenty thousand acres of land were allowed by the treaty to be sold, and were sold August 20, 1862, to John W. Young and I. S. Kalloch for $6,250, and the proceeds devoted to the erection of proper buildings, and to other improvements upon the school section.

This treaty provided for a board of seven trustees, and named the following five members of the board: John T. Jones, James Wind, William Hurr, and Joseph King, Ottawas, and John G. Pratt, a citizen of Kansas, and authorized the Ottawas to select two other citizens of Kansas as members of the board. I. S. Kalloch and C. C. Hutchinson, were the two selected.

Nothing is said in the treaty about Roger Williams University for the reason that Secretary Usher deemed it unadvisable to appear to endow a denominational institution. On the 21st of April, 1865, the trustees incorporated themselves under the laws of Kansas, as the Ottawa University, a name preferred by the tribe and deemed more appropriate by the trustees.

By the spring of 1866, a good temporary school building had been procured. The school was opened and remained in full and satisfactory operation one year, when it was suspended to await the completion of the new cut stone building in course of construction. This building was finished in the spring of 1869, at a cost of $40,000. School opened in it May 1, and continued until the fall of 1874. On January 9, 1875, the inside and roof of this building were destroyed by fire, the walls not being materially injured. Within ninety days from the time of the fire, the building was re-roofed, joisted and partitioned, and in 1876 was again ready for occupancy.

The Indians retained their interests in and rights to education in the university until 1873, when, having moved to the Indian Territory, a separation of their interests from those of the white Baptists was effected. Of the 15,000 acres left, about 3,000 acres were sold for $16,000, and 1,280 acres were allowed the trustees to meet their liabilities; the balance of the lands, together with the $16,000, were returned to the Indians. This separation was authorized by Act of Congress.

The "Trust Lands" consisted of the remainder of the reservation after the "head rights," school lands and donations had been set aside, and which were held in trust by the Government of the United States, to be sold for the benefit of the tribe. The trustees of the University purchased from the Government 7,858 acres of these lands for $13,792.22, for the purpose of selling them at a profit for the benefit of the University; 7,247 acres were sold for $34,000, and afterwards the balance was also sold.

The first faculty was Prof. P. Fales, Miss Lucy Hatch and Miss Fannie Thomas. The first faculty in the new University building was Rev. Robert Atkinson, Miss Lucy Hatch, Miss McClelland, Miss Emma Topping, Miss Emma Deford and Miss Ruth Gifen.

At the first session of the school, which commenced in May, 1869, there were eighty-three students, only three being Indians, balance white.

An endowment of $50,000 is in process of procurement.

Ottawa University building was erected in 1866. The walls are of limestone, faced with cut sandstone. The cap-sills, corners, etc., are of limestone. It is three stories high, including the basement, 40x65 feet in size, and elegantly finished. Connected with it is one section of choice land, adjacent to the city. Through the land winds a small stream fringed with timber. It is divided into fields of convenient size by osage orange hedges, and adorned with shrubbery, and forest, fruit and ornamental trees.

CHURCHES.

The Ottawa First Baptist Church dates its origin as far back as 1837, when the Rev. J. Meeker began his labors as missionary among the Ottawa Indians, then recently arrived on their reservation, in what is now Franklin County. So devotedly was the work prosecuted that by 1846, sixty-one converts had been baptized. Mr. Meeker entered upon his rest in 1855. On his death, John T. Jones, an Indian convert, as evangelist and afterwards as duly ordained minister, ministered to the spiritual wants of his people, and continued so to do till their dispersion in 1870, the greater part going to their reservation in Indian Territory, a part to their old home in Michigan, and a few remaining. From the founding of Ottawa, the church held services within its limits, as being central, but did not erect a building. Near the old ford on the east side of Main street, Mr. Jones erected a small schoolhouse for the Indian children, and there for a time preached on Sabbaths to the picturesque multitude. Afterwards, in succession, services were held with tolerable regularity in the Mission school building, southeast corner of Hickory and Second streets, in I. S. Kalloch's library, Walnut and Third, and for a few Sabbaths in the brick schoolhouse, now engine house, on Walnut. But wherever held, the gatherings of these strange worshipers always attracted the attention of the new comers.

The Second Baptist Church of Ottawa was organized May 4, 1864. At the time of organization, I. S. Kalloch was chairman of the meeting, and C. C. Hutchinson, secretary. The New Hampshire Confession was adopted as the articles of faith of the church. In order to complete the organization, a second meeting was held, July 27, and still another August 21. By November 1, there were nineteen members, as follows: I. S. Kalloch, Caroline P. Kalloch, I. M. Kalloch, Charles T. Evans, Esther A. Evans, T. C. Sears, G. W. Beeman, J. M. Lackey, C. C. Hutchinson, Martha Hutchinson, Simon A. Keisting, Catherine P. Keisting,

A. H. Dow, Fanny Dow, Nancy S. Filson, D. Brinkerhoff, Isaiah Supernau and wife, and Pauline Supernau. The church was incorporated April 9, 1867. Religious services were held in a little building standing on the present site of the Masonic Block, for about two years. The front two-thirds of the present church building was erected in 1865. In the spring of 1871, an extension of about 16x18 feet was made to the church, which made the total length of the building sixty feet inside. In the summer of 1880, an addition was made to the church, to meet the needs of the Sunday school. The church, as it now stands, including this addition, cost about $3,000. The society owns thirteen lots, twelve of them having been obtained from the Ottawa Town Company, the thirteenth having been presented by Mrs. J. T. Jones in 1877. The first Pastor was Rev. I. S. Kalloch, who served from September, 1864, to January, 1865. In August following, Rev. Isaac Sawyer commenced his pastorate, which continued until September, 1866. From this time until January, 1868, the church depended on supplies, at which latter time Rev. Frederic Greaves became Pastor, and served one year. In November, 1869, Allen Ridell, D. D., took charge, but on account of failing health, preached only about six weeks, and in about three months died. His death was a great bereavement to the church. Rev. A. B. White became Pastor in August, 1870, remaining about two years. Rev. A. C. Peck then followed, and remained about a year. In May, 1874, Rev. I. N. Clark became Pastor, remaining one year. Dr. Anderson then served as Pastor one year, from September, 1875, to September, 1876. In July, 1877, Rev. J. P. Stephenson became Pastor, and at the present writing remains in charge. At the first meeting of the church, May 4, 1864, a committee, consisting of Messrs. Sears, Evans and Lackey, was appointed to organize a Sunday school. This organization was effected in about three weeks since which time there has always been a good Sunday school connected with the church. The total number of members that have been connected with the church is 490, number received by baptism, 187; number that have died, 26; and the present membership is 227.

The Third Baptist Church (colored), enrolled at its organization in 1865 seven members. Somewhat later a site was secured at the corner of First and Sycamore streets, and a small frame dwelling moved thereon and fitted up as a church. This gave place in 1878 to a good frame building with a seating capacity for 230, and built at a cost of $1,300. The membership is 105. In connection with the church is a Sunday school, started and conducted for a number of years by M. L. Laws, a godly man, then a member of the Second Baptist Church. The average attendance is about sixty-five.

Methodist Episcopal Church.—The members of this church were gathered in 1866 under the leadership of Rev. Mr. Adams. Meetings were held in a room then known as Robb's Hall. The next spring Rev. Mr. Satchwell, a member of the Kansas Conference, was sent to the church as its first accredited minister. The society then met in Pickrell Hall. Rev. Mr. Nesley succeeded in 1868 and remained two years. During his ministry the present spacious church edifice was erected, at the corner of Third and Walnut streets. This is the largest church building in town, having beside the assembly-room, which will seat 600 persons, a basement story containing lecture-room, class-room and study. Rev. Mr. Houts was sent to the church in 1870; but his health failing, Mr. Fisher completed the year. Then followed Rev. B. Kelly for three years; Rev. Mr. Pye for two years; F. B. Charrington, a returned foreign missionary, for three years; J. H. Hanna for three years, and in the spring of 1882 Rev. Mr. Tucker. A parsonage was erected within the church enclosure in 1872. Two hundred and sixty-five members are on the church roll. A very flourishing Sunday school is sustained, numbering 300.

The First Presbyterian Church of Ottawa was organized in April, 1866, at the house of A. S. Lathrop, by the Rev. Wm. H. Smith, and consisted of nine members. At the first meeting of the church, Rev. Andrew Parsons, of the Presbytery of Otsego, N. Y., was invited to become their Pastor. He accepted the invitation and began his work with the church in July. He served the church acceptably nearly four years. His successors have been Rev. John Elliott, Rev. R. N. Adams, and Rev. D. C. Milner. Mr. Milner has been Pastor since May, 1875. Services were held at first in Pickrell Hall, and later in the brick schoolhouse on Walnut street. With some aid from the Board of Church Erection, and $2,000 from R. D. Lathrop, a wealthy Christian merchant of New York, the society erected in 1867, on the corner of Main and Fifth streets, the building which they still occupy. It is of dressed stone, 50x30 feet in dimensions, with a seating capacity of 300. The first cost was $5,000. A frame addition was attached in 1881, with a further capacity of 100 seats. A fine bell was hung in the belfry in 1871, but soon became cracked and discordant. The life of the church is well manifested in its excellent Sunday school, which attracts and holds a large number of the young people of the city. The average attendance is little short of two hundred. There is also a Young People's society for social, intellectual and religious culture which meets bimonthly, and is doing a good work.

The United Presbyterian Church, situated northwest corner of Cedar and Sixth streets, is a frame building erected in 1867, at a cost of $800. The church proper was organized by the Presbytery of Kansas in July, 1867, twenty persons entering into church fellowship. Rev. E. C. Cooper was the earliest supply. After him Rev. Messrs. Humphrey and Imbrie. Rev. W. R. Hutchinson became Pastor in 1873. The membership is eighty-four. The Sunday school enrollment is 114.

Christian Church, southeast corner of Fifth and Locust streets, was organized in 1869, by Warren Skeels. He supplied the pulpit for two years. The house is 32x46 feet, and was built in 1872, or rather in the fall of 1873, for the first building when ready for lathing was blown down; the loss was $2,500. There is no salaried minister, but from time to time protracted meetings have been held by N. Shaw, A. Brown, A. C. McKeever, Mr. Poole, W. H. Wilson and others. The church has had sore trials, especially the schism of 1881, out of which sprung "The Church of Christ," but is now harmonized. Isaiah Pile and C. A. Sponsler are the elders, Harvey Keller, clerk. The present membership is sixty-five, and there is in connection with the church a prosperous Sunday school.

The Church of St. Joseph was organized by Father Guindon in 1869. A church building was commenced in 1871 on Poplar street, between Fourth and Fifth. The outside had just been completed except that the doors and windows were not in place when a sudden gale tumbled the structure into utter ruins. Disheartened by this untoward event, no further effort was made for some years to rebuild, but services were held at stated periods in the various halls in town. In 1877, a small house with several lots on Mulberry street, between Third and Fourth, was purchased and fitted for worship. Four years later, within the same enclosure was erected their present capacious church, and at a cost of $2,500. Father Bogardus, on alternate Sabbaths, ministers to the congregation, which consists of about seventy-five families.

The African Methodist Church, as it is called, was organized by the Conference about 1869. The ministerial roll is, Rev. Messrs. Daniel Oaks, J. B. Wallace, W. W. Weir, J. W. Wilson, P. P. Howard, W. L. Harrod and J. W. Wilson. The successive church houses have been, first, a small frame building on First and Mulberry streets; then a larger building on the east side of Oak street, between Fourth and Fifth; and finally, in 1879, on the same site, a substantial stone building, costing $1,600 and capable of seating 300 persons. The membership is 113. The Sunday school has an enrollment of 170.

The First Congregational Church, Ottawa, was organized December 4, 1870, by Rev. James Chew, who became its first Pastor, and ministered to the Church until August 9, 1874. He was succeeded by Rev. R. M. Tunnel, who was Pastor from December, 1874, to September, 1875. Rev. James G. Dougherty, the present Pastor, entered upon his work April 19, 1876.

The present house of worship was dedicated November 21, 1871. The church was organized and supported at first by the American Home Missionary Society, but for the past three years has been self-supporting, and has made considerable contributions toward the support of feebler churches. The present membership is seventy-five. The Sunday school enrolls 100.

The Swedish-American Lutheran Church was organized in 1879, under the ministry of Rev. August Sandberg, with a membership of seventeen. They set about building, the same season, and erected, at a cost of $1,500, on the corner of Fifth and Cedar streets, a very tasty and substantial stone church, which is not only an ornament to the city, but a monument to the liberality of its founders. The Pastor is Rev. A. Lawson. There are thirty-five members, and a Sunday school of fifty members.

The Swedish Evangelical Lutheran Church was established in Ottawa in 1874. Worship was maintained regularly after the Lutheran formulas till 1879. Divisions having arisen, both wings prepared to build. The old church built for itself a home on the corner of Third and Cedar streets, at a cost of $1,300. There services are conducted every Sunday, though at present they have no stated supply. The church counts forty communicants, and a Sunday school of about the same number.

The Church of Christ, as a body of believers, was organized in the summer of 1881 with a membership of thirty, and on the basis that "there shall not be taught or practiced in the church anything for which there is not a command, an example, or a good and reasonable inference in the New Testament Scriptures." Most of the membership had been previously identified with the Christian Church, corner of Fifth and Locust streets. Their withdrawal was occasioned by the introduction into the service of instrumental music, and by other innovations not commanded by Scripture. The same summer, a lot was secured on the west side of Main street, between Fourth and Fifth streets, and a plain but commodious frame church edifice erected at a cost, for lot and building, of $2,000. And, warned by previous experience, the church has endeavored to protect itself in its purity of worship and against oppressive majorities by providing in the title deed that the use of instrumental music in the church, the holding of fairs, festivals, or socials, lectures—any and all practices, in short, not exclusively religious—shall work immediate forfeiture to the participants of all rights and privileges, legal and otherwise, in the church.

Regular services are maintained by the brethren, by evangelists, and by traveling elders or bishops, but they do not permit the services of a stationary paid ministry.

SOCIETIES.

Ottawa Lodge, No. 24, I. O. O. F., was instituted January 26, 1867. Among the charter members were A. H. Dow, now grand master of the State, and H. P. Welsh. They had a hall of their own over the store of L. N. Stacher for a series of years, but on the completion of the Hamlin Block, northeast corner of Second and Main, became joint lessees with several other societies, of what is known as Masonic Hall. The lodge has seventy members in good standing. The officers are: O. A. Frost, N. G.; L. V. Stine, V. G.; J. G. Pierce, treasurer; S. Devore, secretary.

Tancred Commandery, No. 11, Knights Templar, was instituted June, 1878, with nine charter members. S. E. S. Johnson was the first eminent commander. This ancient order also meets in Masonic Hall. Members, 57. Officers: H. J. Smith, E. C.; D. Deford, generalissimo; J. B. Shaffer, captain general; W. T. Pickrell, treasurer; J. A. DeValley recorder.

Franklin Lodge, No. 18, A. F. & A. M. is the oldest of the orders in the city, having been instituted in the spring of 1866. There were thirteen charter members. J. C. Richmond was the first worshipful master. The order now numbers 178. Meets in Masonic Hall. D. H. McGhee, W. M.; J. V. DeValley, treasurer.

Ottawa Lodge, No. 128, A. F. & A. M., counted among its charter members in 1871, H. D. Crane, B. C. McQuesten, L. C. Wasson, J. L. Hawkins, A. W. Benson, C. D. Crane, W. W. Jordan, E. W. Walton and Dr. A. H. Knapp. First officers were B. C. McQuesten, W. M.; H. D. Crane, S. W.; J. H. Cook, J. W. The lodge numbers eighty members and meets in Masonic Hall. James Elliott is W. M.; C. R. Meigs, secretary.

Ottawa Chapter, No. 7, Royal Arch Masons.—This order instituted in 1867, now numbers fifty-seven. It meets on second Wednesday of each month in Masonic Hall. The officers are William Fessenden, H. P.; J. A. Deleally, king; W. T. Pickrell, scribe; E. H. Gregg, secretary, and D. Deford, treasurer.

Union Chapter, No. 65, Eastern Star.—This Masonic order embraces both women and men. Instituted in 1877. Mrs. C. D. Crane was chosen worthy matron, and C. C. Hobart, worthy patron. The membership is fifty and the place of meeting, Masonic Hall. The present worthy matron is Mrs. D. C. Young. Mrs. S. L. Patrick is secretary.

Olive Branch Lodge, No. 33 is an order of York free and accepted Masons, instituted among the colored people of Ottawa, in 1875. They number thirty, and meet in the hall over Hanes & Manning's store. George Hawkins is senior warden.

George H. Thomas Post, No. 18, G. A. R., was established in 1880. Meetings are held second and fourth Fridays at the Court Room. The object of the Post is to cultivate loyalty, and to lend a helping hand to old soldiers and their families in their hours of need. The enrollment is 110. A. W. Benson is commander; D. C. Young, adjutant, and J. S. Cloud, quartermaster.

In addition to the societies already enumerated, there are five into which the element of mutual protection enters prominently, although the social and educational features are not ignored, as follows:

Knights of Honor, Lodge No. 807.—Instituted in 1877, membership 101. Lodge room, Masonic Temple. J. S. Cloud, past dictator; A. H. Sellars, dictator; H. B. F. Kellar, reporter and J. A. DeValley, financial reporter.

Knights and Ladies of Honor—Esther Lodge, organized March, 1879; membership twenty-six; Mrs. Sarah E. Kellar, protector; Mrs. Myra Mottram, secretary; meets in hall of Knights of Pythias.

Knights of Pythias, incorporated April, 1879; meets Wednesday of each month in their own hall, east side of Main, and third door south of Second. The membership is seventy-two; the officers are W. F. Harris, chancellor commander; T. W. McFarlane, vice-chancellor; P. Devore, master of exchequer; D. C. Hardin, master of finance; H. Altman, keeper of records; C. W. Gano, prelate; L. Mathias, master at arms.

Equitable Aid Union -No. 283, organized in 1881; membership forty; meets in the hall of Knights of Pythias. H. D. Williams is chancellor; J. S. Cloud, advocate; C. H. Corwin, president; Mrs. Hannah Thorson, vice-president; Mrs. Fyfe, secretary.

Order of Mutual Protection—Queen City Lodge No. 15; organized April, 1881; membership eighty; place of meeting, Pickrell Hall. J. H. Cook, president; R. W. F. Stein, vice-president; B. Lillard, secretary.

Ottawa Library Association.—This society having for its object "intellectual improvement," had its origin in a "Reading Club" formed among a few ladies in 1870. At a meeting of the club held September 20, 1872, the present name was adopted, and an organization completed with the following officers: Mrs. M. L. Ward, president; Miss Lucy Hatch, vice-president; Mrs. L. N. Stocher, treasurer; Mrs. S. G. Norris, secretary. Board of Directors—A. W. Benson, Mrs. C. D. Crane and Mrs. Ludington. At that time there were forty-five volumes in the library. The library was kept in the old city council room, the city furnishing lights and fuel, till its removal five years ago to the present comfortable quarters on the east side of Main, three doors north of Third street. The association has been principally sustained by the zeal and energy of its many lady friends, of whom safe mention may be made of Mrs. S. G. Norris, dead; Mrs. M. L. Maul and Mrs. T. C. Sears, now non-residents. Judge T. C. Sears, has been the most liberal benefactor, having given at one time $50 in money, and at another $500 worth of new books. The library now numbers 1,500 well selected bound volumes. Books are drawn by the members—who become such on payment of $2 annually—Tuesday and Saturday evenings. The reading room is open to the public without charge six evenings in each week except in summer. It is well supplied with leading periodicals and newspapers. The resources of the association are membership fees, donations, an annual appropriation of $200 by the city council, and various devices in the way of entertainments carried through by devoted friends. The officers are E. E. Fuller, president; D. O. McAllister, vice-president; Mrs. R. A. Wasson, secretary and treasurer, and a Board of Directors, consisting of Mrs. E. E. Fuller, Mrs. C. D. Crane, Mrs. Peter Shiras, Mrs. O. W. Barrett and Dr. L. C. Wasson.

THE PRESS, BANKS, AND OTHER BUSINESS INTERESTS.

The Ottawa Home Journal was established in the fall of 1865, by I. S. Kalloch and C. T. Evans. This paper was more literary than political, acquired a large circulation, and was largely instrumental in attracting immigration to the county. In 1857 John Kitts bought a half interest in the paper, but in a few months dissolved partnership with Kalloch, took the job department, and started the Ottawa Register, publishing it under the editorial management of M. L. Laws, until March 10, 1858. During this month Prof. P. Fales and John Kitts purchased the Home Journal, changed its name to The Republic, continued its politics Republican, and published it under the editorial management of Prof. Fales until September 13, 1869. On this date C. Godfrey Patterson, of New York, purchased the Republic and changed its name to the Ottawa Journal. Patterson edited the paper. In January, 1870, L. J. Perry bought a half interest, retaining it less than a month. In June, 1871, E. H. Snow and C. W. Nelson bought the paper. On January 18, 1872, Nelson sold out to Warren Anderson, who sold out to Snow in the following month of August. On May 20, 1873, Louis Melins became half owner, and on March 1, 1874, John Bain bought a third interest. The paper supported Greeley for President in 1872. On December 4, 1874, the firm of Snow, Melins & Bain bought the Lawrence Republican, mortgaging the Journal office, and ran both papers until by foreclosure the Journal fell into the hands of John Hutchings, of Lawrence, who ran it with Mr. Diggs as editor, as a Republican paper, until January 22, 1876, when it finally suspended, was sold and removed to Kansas City.

The Democratic Leader was established by John Bain, October 28, 1871, and was edited by Major A. J. Allen until January 13, 1872. From this time to August 10, 1872, it was edited by H. H. Hand, at which time it was sold to the Liberal Publishing Company, who consolidated it with the Liberal. In March, 1873, the press and material of the Leader were purchased by Dr. Cooper, and removed to Garnett, where they were used in publishing the Garnett Journal.

The Ottawa Republican was started in March, 1873, by A. T. Sharpe, who purchased the Liberal and changed the name to the Republican. The editorial department was conducted by George B. Jenness. J. N. Murdock bought a half interest in September, and became editor. At the end of six months Sharpe again became sole owner, Murdock remaining in connection with the paper as editor. January 23, 1875, Jenness again assumed editorial charge, continuing until May 10, 1877, when Sharpe assumed control.

The Daily Times was started February 11, 1873, by W. C. Paul, G. B. Jenness editor. The paper was suspended October 26, 1873.

The Ottawa Weekly Times was started June 6, 1874, by the Paul Brothers, and continued till May 5, 1875, when the subscription list was turned over to the Republican.

The Ottawa Triumph was started August 5, 1875, by E. H. Snow, who continued to conduct it until April 1, 1877, when it was sold to a stock company, and changed from a Greenback to a Republican paper. Under the Journal Publishing Company the name of the paper was changed to the Ottawa Journal and Triumph, F. A. Marcell, editor. Subsequently Mr. Snow became proprietor of the paper and changed the politics back to Greenbackism.

The State Press was started by M. M. Bleakmore, October 12, 1878, at Ottawa. It was a Democratic weekly paper, and was continued several years.

The Queen City Herald was established January 5, 1882, at Ottawa, by D. O. McAllister. It is an eight-column folio, Democratic in politics' and is devoted to literature, local news, prohibition and free-trade. At the start the Herald seemed to meet with popular favor having attained in six months a bona fide subscription list of 800.

The First National Bank of Ottawa grew out of the well-known private bank of P. P. Elder & Co., which was started in 1866 at the southwest corner of Main and Second streets, the locality of the bank ever since. It passed into a national bank in 1870 with P. P. Elder president, E. A. Skinner vice-president, R. W. Thacher cashier, and a capital of $50,000. In 1875 A. M. Blair and H. J. Smith bought most of the stock and merged therein a private bank of their own, Blair becoming president, Smith cashier. Recently Mr. Blair sold his interest to E. A. Skinner and C. C. Minton. The officers are: Smith president, Skinner vice-president, C. C. Minton cashier. The July statement showed loans and discounts, $155,745; deposits, $192,500.

The People's National Bank of Ottawa, Kansas, was the 1,910th bank organized under the national bank law. It commenced business January 1, 1872, with H. H. Ludington as president and B. C. McQuester cashier. It soon established itself in the favor and confidence of the people, and has enjoyed ten years of uninterrupted success, paying five dividends to its shareholders and accumulating a large surplus fund. Its present officers and owners are: J. P. Harris president, and Peter Shires cashier. They have had the management for the past six years, and have so conducted the business as to make it one of the leading institutions of the State. It gets a large business from the counties of Franklin, Osage, Miami, Anderson, and Coffey. They do a strictly legitimate banking business, its owners being engaged in no outside enterprise, but devoting their entire attention to the bank. Its deposits are at the present time $200,000, and cash capital and surplus fund $70,000. The safe and vault of Hall's Safe and Lock Company are of the finest and best modern workmanship, have all the latest improvements, and with time attachment to locks.

The Ottawa Oil Mill, located just north of the river on Walnut street, is owned and operated by G. T. Potterf. It has been in operation since 1878. Capital invested is $9,000. It has one hydraulic press whose power is 500 tons. Three barrels of oil, either linseed or castor, are manufactured daily.

The Ottawa Mill, a substantial stone flouring mill, was erected in 1867 by James Davis, on Main and First streets, and was first run by Kirby & Wright. Crane & Wightman afterwards enlarged it and added an elevator. E. E. Fuller came into possession two years ago. The mill has four run of buhrs, with capacity to manufacture daily 20,000 pounds. The elevator has storage capacity for 15,000 bushels. Capital invested, $32,000.

The Forest Mill, situated on Walnut street, south of the river, is a large frame structure built by O. W. Baldwin and Frank Pope in 1872, at a cost of $35,000. A dam and elevator were added in 1875 at a cost of $15,000. Water is mainly used as power, but steam is at hand against emergencies. There are five run of buhrs, manufacturing one hundred and twenty-five barrels of flour daily. The storage accommodations are 27,000 bushels. John Kinneard and J. P. Laird, the owners and manufacturers, have made extensive and costly improvements during 1882, some $15,000 being expended in new machinery.

The Excelsior Mill is the name of the superb flouring establishment erected on Main and Tecumseh streets in 1881. It is of plain but massive architectural proportions, and equipped within and without with the best modern appliances and machinery. The cost was about $38,000. There are seven run of buhrs. One hundred and twenty barrels of flour are daily manufactured. H. D. Crane, J. B. Shaffer, and William Shires own and operate the mill under the firm name of H. D. Crane & Co.

All of these mills manufacture fine grades of flour.

The Franklin County Foundry, situated on the south bank of the river at the foot of Main street, is owned and carried on by S. D. Clark, who is himself a most capable and ingenious machinist. Almost anything in metal he can manufacture. By a "blast" of his own invention and make he readily fuses large masses of iron in thirty-five minutes. The railroad shops make large demands for his castings. The building is 50x80 feet, two stories, with an annex for the engine. Twenty men are employed.

The Machine Shops of the Kansas City, Lawrence and Southern railroad, are situated in the northern part of the city. To secure them, the city, by a vote of 479 for and 13 against, voted, September 13, 1871, aid to the amount of $60,000 in bonds, besides giving the site which cost $7,000 additional. The shops were erected next year at a cost of $100,000 for buildings and machinery. The main shop is 110x118 feet, 22 feet high. There are besides, a wing 60x120 feet, two offices 21x23 feet, a store room 21x23 feet, and an engine house 68 feet deep, having fourteen stalls. All these are solid stone structures. The actual force employed in and around the shops is two hundred men. The monthly pay roll aggregates $9,000. T. D. Volh is the master machinist; John Johnson, general foreman; J. E. Lindzy, foreman of car shop; Moses Mitchell, foreman of blacksmith shop; W. H. Hodge, foreman of paint shop.

Furniture Factory and Saw and Planing Mill.—This establishment, located on Hickory street just south of the river, is the enterprise of J. Jeffries & Co. At date (August, 1882), it is completed but not in operation. The principal building is frame, 36x60 feet, two stories high. There are attached a large stone drying room and an engine room, 15x30 feet. The factory will employ ten men.

Ottawa Furniture Company.—Under this title a company was organized in 1870, with a capital stock of $16,000. After a year's unprofitable operation, the stock was sold at 50 per cent, of cost to A. Gottschalk & Co., who have since successfully carried on the business. Their goods are first-class and extensively sold through this State and Texas. Thirty-five men are employed in the factory. Besides the factory, which is just west of the town, there are two extensive warehouses, one at the southwest corner of Main and First streets, the other on Walnut between Third and Fourth.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

PAUL M. ADAMS, wholesale and retail grocer, is a native of Lowell, Mass., and came to Kansas in July, 1869, locating in Ottawa with his father, who originally established this business about that time. The subject of our sketch began business as a clerk with his father and was also for a time employed as clerk in real estate and insurance business at this place. In October 1881, he joined W. C. F. DIETRICH, of Wright & Dietrich, dealers in stoves, tinware, etc.; was born in Ohio Township, Franklin Co. Kan., June 5 1861. His father, Jacob Dietrich, was a farmer, and died in that township in 1863. The subject of this sketch was reared on a farm and followed farming as an occupation. In September, 1881, he came to Ottawa, and in company with T. Z. Wright, purchased the stove and tinware business of the old-established firm of J. L. Hawkins & Co. They carry a fine stock of about $6,000, and also do a large business in the manufacture of tinware. Mr. Dietrich although a young man, has accumulated by industry and economy all his present means.

A. P. ELDER, of Branson & Elder hardware merchants, was born in Kenduskeag, Me., April 17, 1854. Came to Kansas in 1858, and resided with his father, Hon. P. P. Elder, at Ohio City, Franklin County. In 1874, he engaged in the grocery business at Ottawa, in the firm of Cobb & Elder. This firm dissolved a year later and Mr. E. continued the business alone. In 1876, he engaged in the hardware business, and in February, 1881, consolidated his business with that of H. C. Branson, under style of Branson & Elder. This is one of the oldest hardware houses in the city. They manufacture tinware, and also deal in implements, etc., carrying, in all, a stock of $25,000. Mr. Elder has always been prominent in society and politics, and has held many local offices of trust. August 23, 1882, he was nominated by the National Labor party as their candidate for Secretary of State, and although defeated, he ran over 4,000 ahead of their candidate for Governor.

HON. PETER. P. ELDER was born in New Portland, Somerset Co., Me., September 30, 1823; here he read law for several years, but followed farming as an occupation. In 1851, he went to Penobscot County, and was for a few years engaged in the mercantile business. He came to Franklin County Kan., in April, 1857, and practiced law at Ohio City for some years. In 1866, he came to Ottawa and engaged in the banking business, under the style of P. P. Elder & Co., which bank was merged, in 1870, into the First National Bank, Mr. Elder being president of the same for two years. He has, since his arrival in this county, in connection with other pursuits, been engaged in farming, and since 1872, has devoted his time exclusively to the management of his farms and stock business. He is one of the most extensive farmers in this county, owning at this time 1,400 acres of land. Mr. Elder has always been identified with the interests of this county and State. He was a member of the first Board of County Commissioners, and elected Lieutenant-Governor of the State in 1870; was elected to the Territorial Senate in 1859-60 and State in 1868, and House in 1875, 1876 and 1877. In the latter year, was elected Speaker but was forced to resign on account of ill health.

CALVIN ESTERLY, Superintendent of Ottawa City Schools, was born near Youngstown, Mahoning County Ohio, June 23, 1852, and came with his father, Benjamin Esterly, to Ottawa, Kan., in November, 1868. He was educated at the Ottawa University and in 1870, began business life as a school teacher, following that occupation in this locality for three years. He then received an appointment to West Point, and attended there for four years; passed a successful examination, and June 15, 1877, was commissioned Second Lieutenant in Company L, Tenth United States Cavalry, in which he served five years, principally on the western frontier participating in the Apache and other Indian wars; returned to Ottawa on receiving the appointment to his present position, in June, 1882.

FRANCIS P. GATES, breeder and trainer of racing horses, P. O. Ottawa, was born in Mansfield, Ohio, March 19, 1835, and reared on a farm. In 1857, he went to Omaha, Neb., where he remained for about seven months, engaged in building, etc., after which he returned to his home in Ohio. In July, 1861, he enlisted in Company E, Third Ohio Cavalry; was shortly afterwards appointed Second Lieutenant, a year later promoted to First Lieutenant, then Captain, and in 1864, to Major of the regiment; was mustered out as Senior Major in August, 1865. In the spring of 1866, he came to Kansas, and was for about six years engaged in trading and shipping stock between Ottawa and Kansas City. In 1872, he located in Ottawa, and engaged in farming and stock-raising. He owns 480 acres of improved land, and in connection with his farming pursuits, he built, in 1880, a large and commodious stable, where he makes a specialty of breeding and training blooded horses. He owns the famous horses Red Jacket, Bluebole and Seal Skin, all with a record of less than 2:30. The Major was married in Ottawa in January 1871, to Jennie V. Bain, and they have a family of four children.

WILLIAM B. GATES, farmer, Section 20, P. O. Ottawa, was born in Mansfield, Ohio, in 1838, and reared on a farm. After reaching the age of manhood he was for a time employed as a commercial traveller. On September 13, 1861, he enlisted in Company E, Third Ohio

Cavalry; was promoted November 23, 1863, to Second Lieutenant, to First Lieutenant, December 2, 1864, and to Captain on the 14th of December of the same year. He served until mustered out August 4, 1865. He then was for a year engaged in the hardware business, at Shelby, Ohio, after which he emigrated west to Kansas City, and engaged in livery business in company with his brother, Francis P. Gates. In the spring of 1870 he came to Franklin County, Kan., located at Ottawa, and was for about six years engaged in agricultural pursuits. In 1876 he entered the employ of Emerson, Fisher & Co., of Cincinnati, Ohio, manufacturers of carriages, etc., as a traveling salesman, in which capacity he was engaged some four years, and in the spring of 1880 moved on to his present farm, which consists of 320 acres, 115 of which are in cultivation. Mr. Gates is also a breeder of Durham Shorthorn and Devonshire cattle, and fine horses. On his place is a good substantial residence, built of stone, and a fine orchard. The subject of this sketch was married at Plattsmouth, Neb., October 26, 1870, to Sarah A. Buck. They have a family of three children.

JOHN WESLEY GIBSON, farmer, P. O. Ottawa was born in Calvert County, Md., January 17, 1832, removing when quite young to Noble County, Ohio. Some years later he went to Stafford, Monroe County, and was employed in the mercantile business as a clerk for four years. Emigrating to Iowa he settled in Keokuk, and continued in the mercantile business, being employed as a traveling salesman, and while engaged in that capacity came to Ottawa, Kan., in the spring of 1865, and purchased his present farm. He however continued his mercantile pursuits at Keokuk for some four years, after which he took the management of a wholesale hat and cap house at Kansas City, where he remained two years. Then settled on his farm, since which time he has devoted his time to the management of the same, and the breeding of fine Durham cattle. His farm consists of eighty acres, all well improved. He was married in Monroe County, Ohio, in November, 1857, to Mary E. Hawkins. They have two children—Jane E. and Annie G.

O. C. GILLETTE, farmer, P.O.Ottawa, was born in Yates County, N.Y., in September, 1833, and eleven years later accompanied his parents to Berrien County, Mich. Here for some time he followed farming as an occupation, and for nine years carried on a saw-mill in the firm of Gillette & Drew. Mr. Gillette enlisted during the war, but was not accepted on account of ill health. He came to Kansas May 1, 1874, and purchased his present farm, in Ottawa Township, Franklin County, on which he has since resided. He has 260 acres of well-improved land, is largely engaged in producing grain and breeding Poland-China hogs. Mr. Gillette is one of our enterprising farmers, and is highly respected throughout the community.

JOEL KISHLER GOODIN, son of John and Elizabeth (Kishler) Goodin, of Ohio, was born in Perry County, Ohio, February 24, 1824. His father, who was of Scotch-English descent, and a man of much ability, died at his home in Kenton, Hardin Co., Ohio, January 20, 1877, aged seventy-seven years. His mother, a prominent and esteemed member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, died in Kenton in 1858, leaving seven children. Joel, the eldest of the family, was educated in the common schools of Tiffin, Seneca Co., Ohio, supplemented by a course of study at the Norwalk Seminary, and the Columbus Academic and Collegiate Institute, both in Ohio. His attention while in school was more especially devoted to scientific and business branches, his vacations being occupied as clerk in mercantile business. When he was twenty-three he took charge of the settlement of the mercantile business of his father, the latter having sold out his store. He also commenced the study of law in the office of Bradley Camp, in Kenton, with whom he subsequently formed a partnership in real estate and brokerage business, which continued about three years. He was admitted to the practice of law by the Supreme Court of Ohio, February 28, 1854, having previously been in mercantile business at Kenton, Ohio, about two years, and for a short time on a farm. He was married at Bucyrus, Crawford Co., Ohio, January 8, 1846, to Miss Elizabeth Christ, who later was one of the honored pioneer women of Kansas, and who died in Cincinnati, Ohio, May 21, 1870, at the age of forty-six years, leaving two sons—Charles W. and John F. C. On May 16, 1854, Mr. Goodwin with his wife and two children started for Kansas, and on the 16th of August, 1854, settled on the Wakarusa, four miles southwest of the present site of Lawrence, where he lived with his family through the troublous and exciting years of territorial strife, and was known at home and abroad as a staunch and reliable Free-state man, and an open, outspoken friend to the cause. He was appointed by Governor Reeder as the first Justice of the Peace in Kansas Territory; was one of the Free-state candidates for the first Territorial Council, and delegate or officer in nearly every Free-state Convention held in the Territory. He was Clerk of the House of Representives under the Topeka Constitution when the Legislature was dissolved by Colonel Sumner, July 4, 1856; Clerk of Territorial Council in 1857, and Auditor of State in 1858. In the latter year he opened office as an attorney in Douglas County and subsequently removed to Ottawa, Franklin County, where he is still engaged in the practice of his profession. He was elected Kansas State Representative in 1866, and re-elected to same position in 1867. His present wife was Mrs. Catharine A. Coffin, nee Taylor, of Baldwin City, and daughter of Rev. Nathan Taylor, formerly president of Baker University. Mr. Goodwin is a member of the I. O. O. F. and has passed all the chairs in Subordinate Lodge and Encampment; was a charter member of Grand Lodge of Kansas, and has been representative to that body several times.

In February, 1865, he removed to Ridgeway, Osage County, where he engaged in mercantile pursuits for one year, in company with H. D. Tutcher, an elder brother, at this time, selling the business to his partner. He was married to Miss Eliza J. Young, of Marian, Douglas Co., Kan., on March 28, 1865. In 1866 he engaged in the saw-mill business in company with Harry Horr, in Shawnee County, ten miles south of Topeka, until June of that year, when they moved the mill to Franklin County and continued in the business until the spring of 1879, when he moved on his present home, forty acres of Eight Mile Bottom Land, with about five acres of a fine orchard and small fruits of all kinds. During the winters of 1869 and 1873 he carried on a meat market at Ottawa in connection with his farming pursuits. He served as Deputy Sheriff of the county in 1874, '75, '76 and '77, and in 1879 was nominated for Sheriff on the Greenback ticket, but was not elected. He is engaged at this time as traveling salesman and agent for A. H. Andrews & Co., of Chicago, Ill., manufacturers of school, bank, office, library and opera house furniture. His family consists of the wife, four daughters and two sons.

SAMUEL WALGAMOT, manufacturer and dealer in marble monuments, headstones, etc., was born in Franklin County, Pa., in 1823, and seventeen years later removed to Springfield, Ill., where he learned the trade of stone cutter, and followed it as an occupation in the Southern and Western States for eight years. In 1854 he engaged in this business at Chatham, Sangamon Co., Ill., carrying an extensive trade for three years, after which he gave his attention to farming pursuits for several years and again embarked in this business at Lincoln, Logan Co., Ill., following it there until 1866, when he moved to Christian County, continuing there for a year or so. He came to Kansas in May, 1867, and worked at his trade in Topeka. In the spring of 1868 he came to Franklin County, located near Centropolis and followed farming pursuits, and in the spring of 1880 he engaged in this business, doing business under the style of Walgamot & Co. He also has a fine farm in this county consisting of 100 acres.

EMMOR W. WALTON, of E. W. Walton & Co., general merchants, was born in Salem, Ohio, May 12, 1838. He assisted his father, who was engaged in the hardware business. In 1858 he began the study of medicine at Canton, Ohio, with Dr. E. Walker, and graduated in Cincinnati College of Medicine and Surgery in the class of 1860 and 1861. Early in the latter year he was appointed Acting Assistant Surgeon of the United States Army; was for eight months examining surgeon at Harrisburg, Pa.; then an Inspector in the departments of South Carolina and Georgia, serving until the fall of 1865, after which he went to Warrensburg, Mo., and engaged in the drug business in company with R. L. Walker. They were burned out in the spring of 1867, and in September, 1868, the subject of our sketch came to Kansas and was one of the organizers of Montgomery County, and also of Verdigris City, the first county seat of that county. There he practiced medicine, delivering the first child born in the county. In December, 1868, he came to Ottawa and engaged in the mercantile business in company with his father-in-law, E. L. Walker, who died in 1872, and at whose death, Lizzie L., wife of Mr. Walton, became a partner in the business. Frank L. Donaldson was also until quite recently interested in the business. Mr. W. began with a stock of about $500, and his trade has enlarged until he now carries a stock of general merchandise valued at about $9,000. He and his wife also own four farms in this county, comprising 500 to 600 acres. In 1870, in company with George W. Hamblin, he made the first addition to Ottawa, known as the Hamblin & Walton Addition.

LEVI C. WASSON, dentist, was born at Dexter, Washtenaw Co., Mich., August 12, 1843. He began the study of dentistry about 1859, with Dr. Cooper of that place, remaining with him two years; then a student for six months with Dr. Allport, of Chicago, Ill. In 1863 he opened an office at Dexter, Mich., for the practice of his profession, remaining there until he came to Ottawa, Kan., April 12, 1867. He at once established himself in business at this place, and has now a very large practice. From 1869 to October, 1872, he was associated with Dr. W. H. Shulze, now of Atchison, Kan. Mr. Wasson represented the Third ward in the City Council in 1877 and the Fourth ward in 1878 and in May 1881 was elected Mayor of the city for a term of two years.

JOHN C. WATSON, grocer, was born in Ontario, Canada in 1847. Emigrated to Springfield, Ill., in 1864, where he taught school for several years. He came to Kansas in September, 1869, locating at Ottawa. He was employed as a teacher in the public schools for three years. In 1874 he engaged in this business style of the firm at opening was Moore & Watson; two years later the firm sold out and Mr. Watson has since conducted the business alone. He has a nice trade and carries a stock of $1,000 to $1 200. Mr. Watson was for a considerable time a member of the city school board.

ADAM WEAVER, breeder of blooded stock, Section 31, P. O. Ottawa, was born in Marysville, Union County, Ohio, August 1, 1842 and there he followed farming. He enlisted August 12, 1862 in Company F, Thirteenth Ohio Volunteer Infantry, served one year and was disabled by gun shot wound in the left arm at the battle of Stone River and again in both legs on the Cumberland River. He came to Kansas December 30, 1868, and located in Franklin County and has since followed agricultural pursuits. In 1879 he moved onto his present farm, which consists of 340 acres all improved, and since 1876 he has been engaged in breeding pedigreed Short-horn cattle. His cattle have taken many premiums at the County fairs and he is making a success of the enterprise. He was married at Marysville, Union Co., Ohio, March 9, 1865, to Jennie Longbreak and they have a family of two children, Clara and May.

HON. H. P. WELSH, attorney, was born in Roscoe, Coshocton Co., Ohio, July 26, 1834. He studied law at Centreville with Harvey Tannehill, and was admitted to the bar at Bloomfield in September, 1855; was shortly afterward elected prosecuting attorney of Appanoose County, Iowa, and served two years. He came to Franklin County, Kansas, in May 1858, and practiced law at Minneola, also farmed for four years. In the spring of 1865 he came to Ottawa and has since practiced his profession at this place. He was the first Clerk of the District in this county; was County Commissioner for six years, and served one term as County Attorney. He was Journal Clerk of the House of State Representatives in 1863 and 1864, and was elected to the State Legislature in 1867 and again in 1869. He was elected one of the first Trustees of the city of Ottawa, in 1866, and elected Secretary of the Board; was elected Mayor of the city in 1869 and re-elected in 1870, and City Attorney in the spring of 1880. Mr. Welsh was married in Centreville, Iowa, in 1856, to Mary Shaw; she died May 25, 1870 leaving five children—Laura, Minnie, Rose, Florence and Harlen. He was married a second time in Ottawa, in June, 1871, to Isadore A. Crawford. They have one son, Roy.

THOMAS F. WESTFALL, Sheriff of Franklin County was born in Sangamon County, Ill., December 22, 1838. A year later emigrated to Jefferson County, Iowa, with his father; assisted him in his wagon-making shop. In 1856 he returned to Sangamon County, and followed farming. On the 15th of August, 1861, he enlisted in Company B, 26th Illinois Infantry and served through the war. Mr. Westfall came to Ottawa, in February, 1871, and was employed in lumber business for some eight years. He was elected Sheriff in the fall of 1879, and re-elected in 1881. He was married in Sangamon County, Ill., to Arminia J. Jarrett.

W. A. WESTOVER & CO., dealers in boots and shoes. This firm is composed of W. A. Westover and Charles S. Wolsey, the latter being connected with business in Chicago. Mr. Westover manages the business principally. The firm do a large business and carry a large and well assorted stock of about $10,000 to $12,000. Mr. Westover was born in Elgin, Illinois, May 9, 1857, and came to Ottawa, Kansas in the fall of 1876; was for several years employed as a clerk in general merchandise business, and in August, 1879, engaged in his present business in company with F. P. Gould, who retired from the concern in July, 1880, Charles S. Wolsey of Chicago taking his place.

ALPHEUS J. WIGHTMAN, treasurer of Franklin County; was born in Granville, Licking Co., Ohio, January 12, 1829, and was employed as a clerk in the postoffice and general store at that place for several years. In 1849 he removed to Dubuque, Iowa, and six months later crossed the plains to California, where he followed mining for two years, returning to Cascade, Iowa, where he farmed until he came to Ottawa, Kansas, in 1869. He built the Ottawa Mills, in company with H. D. Crane, continuing in that business until 1880. Mr. Wightman has always since his arrival in this State been identified with farming pursuits. He at present owns 321 acres in this county. He has represented the Third ward in the City Council for the past ten years, and was elected County Treasurer in November 1881, entering upon his duties in October 1882.

J. H. WILHITE, dealer in staple and fancy groceries, notions, etc; was born in Ozark County, Missouri in 1835, and removed shortly afterwards with his parents to Jefferson City, Missouri, and followed farming and teaming in that neighborhood. In 1854 he came to Kansas, farmed for a year in Linn County, then located in Anderson County, where he was engaged in farming and stock raising for about twenty years. He participated in the troubles of 1856, enlisting under the banner of John Brown. In the fall of 1861, he enlisted in Company G, Seventh Kansas Cavalry. In October, 1863, he had his horse shot under him at Corinth, Mississippi, and his right leg was broken by the falling of the animal. He served until November 1, 1865. The subject of this sketch came to Ottawa in 1874, and at once embarked in this business. He carries a stock of $1,200 to $1,500.

WILLIAM H. WOODLIEF, farmer and breeder of blooded cattle, P.O. Ottawa; was born near Cincinnati, Ohio, December 27, 1839 and reared on a farm. He enlisted August 6, 1861 in Company G, First Ohio Cavalry, about a year later was promoted to Second Lieutenant and for six months, during the year that he held that rank, acted as Adjutant of the regiment; was then promoted to Captain, serving until he resigned October 1, 1864. After the war he embarked in the mercantile business and also engaged in contracting for building work, etc. Was for three years Postmaster at Withamsville, and for three years at Mamiesville, Ohio; also had United States Mail contract there from 1872 to 1876. He came to Franklin County, Kan., in April, 1877 and purchased the Toy-Jones estate. He has 1,040 acres of land, all fenced, 400 of which are under cultivation. He is largely engaged in breeding blooded Durham cattle and draught horses. Several of his cattle have taken premiums at the Franklin County fairs. He served during 1881 as trustee of the Township of Ottawa. Mr. Woodlief is one of the largest farmers of this county and is also largely interested in contracts for carrying the United States mails at the cities of Omaha, Nashville, Savannah, New Orleans, Cleveland and Buffalo.

D. C. YOUNG, of Sumner & Young, abstract and loan office, was born in Essex County, N. Y., May 4, 1836. At the age of fourteen he accompanied his parents to Warren County, where he assisted them in farming, and also taught school for several years. He attended Troy Conference Academy, Vermont, then Fort Edward Seminary, New York, and afterward the Chicago University, where he graduated in Law, June 30, 1864. Mr. Young enlisted in June 1861, in the Thirty-fourth Illinois Infantry; was appointed Orderly Sergeant and served two years. He was severely wounded in the right arm and taken prisoner at the battle of Murfreesboro, in December 1862, paroled six weeks later and in about six months exchanged. After his graduation he practiced law at Dixon, Illinois. In 1865 he removed to Toulon, Illinois, practiced there until 1870, when he joined the Greeley Colony and went to Colorado where he was engaged in handling cattle in Weld and Larimer counties for six years. Mr. Young came to Ottawa, Kansas in November 1876 and at once became associated with William Sumner in their present business.

JOHN YOUNG, farmer, P. O. Ottawa, Franklin Co., Kan. Was born in Allegheny County, Versailles Township, Pa., in 1806. Was married to Elizabeth Gregory, February 2, 1828. They brought up a family of five children—George M., William G., John A., Eliza J. and Frank M. Mr. Young was manager of Coal Works near Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, for many years. He removed from Pennsylvania to Warren County, Iowa, in the spring of 1858 and from thence to Kansas in the fall of the same year, settling in Douglas County, fifteen miles southwest of Lawrence. Three of his children accompanied him from Pennsylvania and are still residing in this State. After living in Douglas County about ten years, he disposed of his property there in 1868 and removed to Franklin County, buying lands from the Ottawa Indians, about five miles northwest of the city of Ottawa, Section 16, Township 16, Range 19, where he at present resides. Mrs. Young died here, February 25, 1878. The farm consists of 440 acres of well improved land, well stocked with cattle, hogs, etc., and is managed by his son, William G. Young.

CENTROPOLIS.

As elsewhere stated, the first settlement was made on the site of this town by Perry Fuller. In 1855, he established a store here, for the purpose of trafficking with the Indians. His stock of goods was supplied him by West & James, of Kansas City. A very large business was at once established, the aggregate sales amounting to $50,000 per year. In 1856 Mr. Fuller took William Moore into partnership. The new firm bought out West & James, and continued the business for themselves. About this time the Centropolis Town Company was organized, with the following members: Perry Fuller, John F. Javens, Franklin Barnes, George Powers, Samuel T. Shores, William Moore, J. K. Goodin, George W. Smith, Benjamin C. Westfall, Samuel Mewhinney, Ralph Mayfield, Cyrus K. Holliday, William Y. Roberts, and Cyrus F. Currier. The design of the Town Company was to make the new city they were founding not only the county-seat, but also the Territorial capital and the future capital of the future State, hence the name Centropolis, suggested by Joel K. Goodin. While such hopes were entertained, the town grew quite rapidly, and lots were sold at what seem now exorbitant prices, $500 being readily obtained for a lot which now would not sell for much more than ten cents for farming purposes. This was in 1857, just before the commencement of the similar mushroom growth of Minneola.

In 1856, quite a number of business and dwelling houses were erected. Dr. Hall opened a dry goods and grocery store, which within two years was sold to H. H. Bliss. George Powers started a boarding-house, and, in 1857, erected a building especially for a restaurant. Jacob Long built a trading house, and among other commodities sold liquor to the Indians. In order to break up this traffic, Messrs. Fuller & Moore purchased Long's stock of liquor, and knocking in the heads of the barrels, let it flow out onto the prairie. The squaws, however, sorry to see so much valuable "fire water" wasted, gathered up as much as possible of it, with buckets, as it flowed away.

In 1857, the Town Company built a large steam saw-mill, which was operated the first year by J. A. Marcell, and the second by J. M. Loos. The year 1857 was the most prosperous that Centropolis has seen. At that time there were in all about thirty buildings in the town, among them being four saloons and a prosperous gambling-house.

The first teacher in Centropolis was William Cator, who taught in 1855. The present schoolhouse was built in 1877. It is a neat one story frame building, will seat eighty scholars, and cost about $1,200.

The Methodist Church was organized in 1856. Their first minister was Rev. Mr. Kilpatrick. The subsequent ones have been: Rev. Messrs. Moore, Still, Stewart, Parker, Hahn, Fisher, Rice, Adams, Davis, Ferril, Mooth, Clock, Bratton, Wilson, Rhodes, and Holland.

The Christian Church was organized in 1858. The ministers of this church have been Revs. Messrs. Hutchinson, Brown, Gans, Jeffries, William Nelson, Wilson, Allumbaugh, and C. Curl.

The Union Baptist Church was organized in 1860 with fifty-five members, by Elder Abel Scott. The ministers of this church have been Revs. Messrs. Elliott, Thacker, Ezra Johnson, A. J. Johnson, Daniel Smith, W. Williams, and Creel. The present membership is thirty-five.

The Dunkards were organized in 1865. In this and adjoining counties, Douglas and Osage, they have about sixty members in their organization. They are a peculiar people, being quite clannish and exclusive, seldom marrying outside the church. They are unusually devout, remarkably industrious and reasonably prosperous. In dress they are plain but neat, the women epecially being very attractive.

One of their cardinal doctrines in religion is that one should wash another's feet, and the church is divided on this point into two sects, the one contending that the washing and the wiping of the feet should both be done by the same person, the other that the washing should be done by one person, the wiping by another. There are differences between the two sects on other points equally important.

All the churches, except the Methodists, use the schoolhouse for religious purposes. The Methodists built a church in 1858, which was used for a number of years by all denominations, each having aided to build it; but differences arising which could not be conciliated, the church building was sold, and another erected by the Methodists for their exclusive use. This church was built in 1880, and cost about $1,000.

Since 1860 Centropolis has made but little progress. It contains two general stores, one hardware store, two blacksmith shops, one wagon and one machine shop, one grist mill, one cabinet shop, one hotel, one schoolhouse, and twenty-three families, about 175 inhabitants.

The Press.—The first newspaper in Franklin County, aside from the missionary paper published by Rev. Jotham Meeker, was started at Centropolis in the fall of 1856, by W. H. Austin. It was named the Kansas Leader. In the spring of 1857 it was sold to the Minneola Town Company, moved to Minneola, and named, by Gen. Lane, the Minneola Statesman. It was edited in turn by Joel K. Goodin, Owen A. Bassett and Benjamin Sanford. When it was decided that Minneola was not to be the Capital, the Statesman suspended, the press was purchased and taken to Burlington, and the type scattered.

The Journal was started at Centropolis March 9, 1864, by Charles W. Goodin, son of Joel K. Goodin. It was a small, boys' paper, 4x6, and acquired a circulation of about 500. It was suspended September 3, 1864.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES—CENTROPOLIS TOWNSHIP.

SAMUEL H. BARNETT, farmer and stock-raiser, P. O. Ottawa, was born in Warren County, Ky., January 21, 1827, and two years later emigrated with his parents to Sangamon County, Ill., where he was reared on a farm and followed farming and stock-raising in that county until December, 1869, when he came to Kansas, and located on his present farm in Centropolis, Franklin Co. His son, Charles W., managed the farm up to September, 1881, Mr. Barnett residing principally in the city of Ottawa. He has 540 acres of land, all improved and is quite extensively engaged in raising and feeding cattle for the Eastern markets. The subject of this sketch was elected a County Commissioner of Franklin County in 1871, and re-elected in 1873, and Treasurer of the county in 1875, and re-elected in 1877, holding each office two terms, each of two years. He was elected Treasurer of Franklin County Agricultural Society in July, 1882. Mr. Barnett was married in Minard County, Ill., September 12, 1852, to Mary J. Hanes, of Greene County, Ohio, who died February 16, 1857, leaving three children—Margie, Charles and Olive. He was married again in Fulton County, Ill., September 18, 1862, to Lucinda Dunlap, of Ohio. They have three children—Ellen, William and Alice.

H. H. BLISS, farmer, P. O. Centropolis, was born in Washington County, Vt., in April, 1833. He learned trade of iron moulder, and was employed in that capacity in the manufacturing towns of Massachusetts, etc. In November, 1856, he came to Kansas, and was for a few weeks employed in Leavenworth. In December, 1856, he took up a claim in Centropolis, Franklin County, and has followed farming off and on ever since. From 1858 to 1862, was also engaged in mercantile business. On August 15, of that year, he enlisted in the First Kansas Battery, serving three years, principally on detached service; on his return he built a saw-mill, which he still conducts at times. About 1873, he went to Chicago, and for three years was in the employ of the American Book Publishing Company. Returning here in 1876, he once more embarked in mercantile business, and in June, 1880, sold out to I. A. Wellman, since which time he has given his attention to his farming interests, saw and sorghum mills, and also raises considerable live stock. He owns 180 acres of improved land.

JOHN BRADSHAW, farmer, Section 23, P. O. Centropolis. Is a native of White County, Tenn.; his parents removed to Morgan County, Ill., when he was very young, and he resided there in all about forty-seven years, engaged in agricultural pursuits; he had a fine farm of about 200 acres, and eighty acres of timber land. Mr. Bradshaw came to Franklin County, Kan., in October, 1866, and located on his present farm, which consists of 160 acres, all well improved. He cultivates about 100 acres of his land; has five acres in fruit trees and also raises considerable live stock.

E. S. CLARK, farmer, Section 21, P. O. Centropolis, was born in Canada, in May, 1845; his parents emigrated shortly afterward, to Stephenson County, Ill., where he was reared on a farm. In December, 1863, he enlisted in Company G, Forty-sixth Illinois Infantry, and served two years and nine months. After the war he followed farming in Ogle County, Ill. He came to Franklin County, Kan., in 1867, and was for a short time employed on the farm of Dr. Abraham Still; the Doctor died December 31, 1867, and shortly afterward Mr. Clark took the sole management of the farm. He moved on to his present farm in the fall of 1882. He has 360 acres, of which he cultivates about seventy, and is extensively engaged in raising live stock. Mr. Clark was married in Franklin County, November 25, 1869, to Marovia Still, daughter of Dr. Abraham Still, who came to Kansas as a missionary to the Indians in 1853. They have a family of two children—Perlie and Earl. The widow of the Doctor still resides here; she is the oldest actual settler residing in Kansas. She was born in 1800, enjoys good health and is quite energetic.

REV. ASA DARNALL, farmer, Section 4, P. O. Ottawa, was born December 10, 1823, in Montgomery County, Ky., and when nine years of age his parents removed to Hendricks County, Ind. In the fall of 1849 he removed to Davis County, where he farmed for a year. In 1850 he went to the western part of Iowa, locating in Mills County, near Glenwood, where he made a farm on the Missouri bottom. This he sold in 1853, to go to Councill Bluffs. However, as the Mormons were the principal residents of that town, he remained only a few weeks, removing to Madison County, Iowa, near Winterset, where he improved a farm. In the spring of 1860 he removed to Kansas, in Douglas County, near Baldwin City, where he improved a good farm and lived on it through all the troubles of the Rebellion. He followed agricultural pursuits in Douglas County until 1874, when he went to Lawrence, for the purpose of educating his son. The son's health failing, he removed on his present farm in Franklin County. This he well improved, and has one of the largest fruit farms in the county. Rev. Asa Darnall has been a religious man for many years. In 1848 he joined the Christian Church; 1851 he united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, and has ever since been an active member. He was licensed as a local preacher in 1867, and has done considerable work in that capacity. He was married February 14, 1842, to Miss Sarah Eliza Scott, oldest daughter of Solomon J. Scott, M. D. They have two living children—William Simpson, born April 17, 1856, at Winterset, Iowa, and Sylvia Euarcha, now Mrs. Ashby, born September 16, 1844, at Milroy, Ind.

CHARLES W. EVERETT, farmer, Section 29, P. O. Centropolis, is a native of Delaware County, Ohio, where he was reared on a farm, and for some years conducted a farm on his own account. He came to Kansas in November, 1877, and located in Agency Township, Osage County, where he lived four months, and then came to Franklin County, locating in the western part. A year later he moved onto his present farm. He now has a fine improved farm of 208 acres. On his place is a fine residence and large barn, also a wind-mill, which provides plenty of water for house use, and for his stock, he being quite extensively engaged in raising the same.

CALVIN J. GAMBLE, farmer, Settion 36, P. O. Ottawa, was born in Franklin County, Pa., in February, 1840, and reared on a farm. He enlisted in September, 1861, in Company H, One Hundred and Twenty-sixth Ohio Infantry, and served one year. He was shot in the back of the head, at Fredericksburg, and in the right thigh, at battle of Chancellorsville. In 1864 he removed to Crawford County, Ohio, where he conducted a farm of 600 acres. Mr. Gamble came to Franklin County, Kan., in the fall of 1866. For eight years he farmed in Hayes Township, and in 1874 moved on to his present farm. He has 240 acres of land, 120 of which are in cultivation, and he raises considerable stock. Has an orchard of two and one-half acres, in various fruits. Mr. Gamble was married in Franklin County, Pa., in September, 1863, to Margaret A. Mackey, a native of that county. They have a family of four children.

REUBEN HACKETT, farmer, Section 33, P. O. Ottawa, was born in the Province of Quebec, Canada, March 31, 1810. His parents emigrated seven years later to Posey County, Ind., where he was reared on a farm, and also for some years was engaged as a pilot, etc., on flatboats running on the Mississippi River, during which period he educated himself. In 1834 he moved to LaSalle County, Ill., where for some years he carried on farming in an extensive way. He came to Franklin County, Kan., June 7, 1854, and pre-empted 160 acres in Centropolis Township, on which he resided for twelve years. In 1866 came to his present farm. Mr Hackett has 133 acres of land, 110 of which are under cultivation, and on his place are two coal mines. He took an active part with the Free-state party in the troubles of 1856, and during the late war served in the State Militia. He was the first Justice of the Peace elected in the county and served in that capacity for about seven years. He is quite a literary character, and has written a number of articles on Science, The Early Days of Kansas, and many other subjects, and is also an antiquarian. He is the owner of quite a number of specimens, fossils, etc., the result of his own research. The subject of this sketch was married in Posey County, Ind., October 9, 1834, to Matilda Jones, a native of that State. They have a family of three children—William, Emma J. and Ella G., who was the first white child born in the county.

WILLIAM S. HANNA, farmer and stock raiser, P. O. Ottawa. Was born at Lima, Livingston County, N. Y., July 10, 1840, emigrating with his parents nine years later to Walworth County, Wis., where he was reared on a farm. Received his education at Allen's Grove Academy, where he graduated in 1863. In 1864 he enlisted in the Fortieth Wisconsin Infantry, serving four months. After the war he taught school in Walworth County, Wis., for about four years, and during two years of that period was assistant county superintendent. Then teaching in Jennings County, Ind., for a year, and also at Madison City, Ind., for several months. About 1868 he emigrated to Albany, Ill., where he followed teaching as an occupation. In July, 1870, he came to Franklin County, locating with his father Andrew J. Hanna, in Centropolis, and for about four years he taught school. He was then commissioned by the Kansas State Grange to organize county and local Granges, and organized 140 in two years. In 1875 he was elected chaplain of the State Grange for two years, and then lecturer of that body, which office he occupied for four years. He purchased his present farm in Centropolis Township in 1871, and moved on to the same in 1876. He has now 260 acres, all improved, and is also engaged in breeding blooded Short-horn cattle, and Poland-China hogs. In 1875 he was elected a member of the County board of examiners on education and served two years, and was Justice of the Peace nine years. Mr. Hanna was married in Franklin County, Kansas, September 7, 1876, to Margie A. Barnett. They have one daughter, Cora D.

IRWIN C. HUGHES, farmer, P. O. Centropolis, was born in Jefferson County, Tenn., January 1, 1825, removing to Iowa with parents when quite young, and in 1838 to Andrew County, Mo., where he followed farming and milling. Mr. Hughes came to Kansas June 27, 1854, and located in Franklin County on his present farm, consisting of 160 acres, in Section 19, Township 15, Range 19, and has since followed farming pursuits, and to some extent also engaged in raising stock. The subject of this sketch participated in the Pro-slavery troubles of 1856, and during the late war served as Quartermaster in the Tenth Kansas State Militia. He was elected Justice of the Peace in Territorial times, and served several terms, and has since 1864 been elected at each consecutive election. Mr. Hughes was married first in Andrew County, Mo., to Eliza Clark, who died in 1860, leaving four children. He was married a second time at Centropolis, in June, 1866, to Jane Logan. They have two children.

HON. JOSHUA MARSDEN LUCE, was born in Cattaraugus County, N. Y., August 18, 1830. At the age of twenty years he removed to Kentucky, where he taught school for one year. For three years he was employed in the capacity of salesman at Nashville, Tenn. He then returned to New York and remained for two years. In March, 1857, he removed to Kansas, locating in Franklin County, and took a claim; here he opened up a farm and operated a saw-mill, and pursued other vocations. In 1861-63 he was an Indian trader, and returned to his farm and continued his farming pursuits in conjunction with stock-raising, which he pursued until 1877. He then opened a country store in Centropolis, and still follows that occupation. He has held various public offices. In 1858 he was Enrolling Clerk of the Territorial Council, and was afterward for a time assistant clerk of Hon. Hugh S. Walsh, Secretary of Kansas Territory, and Acting Governor in 1859; was appointed Assistant Indian Agent for the Sacs and Foxes. In 1866 he was elected a member of the Kansas House of Representatives, and re-elected in 1870. In 1867 he was appointed Clerk in the United States Senate Committee on Public Lands, in which capacity he served one year. He refused to pay the political assessments to the agent of the Congressional Republican Committee, and though highly complimented for his fidelity and efficiency, was politely invited to step down and out. The amount demanded was only 5 per cent of his salary, which was $2,560 per annum, or about $128. He then accepted a clerkship in the United States Treasury Department, which he resigned in less than a year and returned to his farm in Kansas. He has generally been a Democrat in political ideas, but during the war was a staunch Union man, and affiliated with the Republican party. He was married at Centropolis, August 10, 1860, to Miss Susan C. Keithley.

JASPER ST. JOHN, Postmaster, was born in Town of Milton, Saratoga Co., N. Y., May 13, 1805. He was reared on a farm and also learned the trade of tanner and currier, following that occupation there and in Cattaraugus County. In 1848 he removed to Seneca County and one year later to Huron County, Ohio, where he carried on a tannery. He came to Kansas in October, 1858, and located in Centropolis, Franklin County, farmed up to 1865, when he engaged in business as a shoemaker and was appointed Postmaster in January, 1876. Mr. St. John is interested in a small way in farming pursuits. He owns a farm of fifty acres, besides some town property.

SOLOMON SHOAF, farmer, Section 21, P. O. Centropolis, was born in Parke County, Ind., in 1832, and was reared on a farm. In 1855 he removed to Vermillion County, Ill., where he farmed. In July, 1857, he came to Franklin County, Kansas, and pre-empted 160 acres of land, on which he still resides. He now owns 372 acres, 200 of which are under cultivation, and he is largely engaged in raising stock. On his place is a fine orchard of about five acres. Mr. Shoaf was married in Fountain County, Ind., in 1853, to Margaret Sowers. They have eight children living—Matthias D., Eliza E., Elmer E., Samuel E., Solomon A., Eddy E., Thomas T., Jacob L., and three deceased, William H., Ulysses U., and Susan M.

GEORGE WASHINGTON SNYDER, farmer, Section 25, P. O. Ottawa, was born in Richland County, Ohio, in 1838, where he followed agricultural pursuits. He came to Franklin County, Kas., October 12, 1868, and located on his present farm. He has 400 acres of land, 220 of which are in cultivation. He raises considerable cattle, and is a breeder of pedigreed Poland-China hogs. On his place is a fine orchard of about three acres. Mr. Snyder was married in Richland County, Ohio, in 1864, to Martha J. Billow. They have four living children and five deceased.

DR. JOSHUA C. B. WHARTON, Section 34, P. O. Centropolis, was born in Claremont County, Ohio, April 29, 1820, and reared on a farm. He studied medicine with Dr. W. B. Hubble, of Amelia, for two years; attended the Cincinnati Eclectic Institute for a while, and also the Cincinnati Eclectic College, where he graduated in 1856. The Doctor began the practice of medicine in Cynthiana, Ohio, in 1846; four years later he removed to Petersburg, Highland County, and five afterwards to Melroy, Ind., where he continued to practice his profession. In 1858 he went to Mattoon, Ill., and in 1859 to Humboldt, Ill., where he practiced about ten years. He came to Franklin County, Kas., in May 1868, and located on his present farm; he has 200 acres, eighty of which are in cultivation. It was the Doctor's intention to cease practicing when he came to Kansas, on account of poor health, but four years after his arrival he resumed again, and he has now an extensive practice.

WILLIAMSBURG.

This enterprising town is in Williamsburg Township, in the southwest corner of the county. Thirty thousand acres of land here were purchased of the Sac and Fox Indians by Wm. B. McKeen, and of him by the Southern Division of the Kansas Pacific Railway Company, through the advice of E. M. Bartholow, at the time Land Commissioner of the Road. Attracted by the abundance of excellent coal in that part of the county, a number of parties purchased land in 1867, among them M. V. Swift. Quite a number of permanent settlements were made in 1868, by Roger Hickok, A. C. Henderson, Albert Supernau, William H. Schofield and others. James F. Dane and Mr. Schofield owned the town site and Mr. Schofield named the town Williamsburg, after his own name, William. In June the town company built the first house, a frame, 16x20, and one and a half stories high. The second building was of stone, erected in the spring of 1869, for a store, by Rev. C. Holman. After a year or two Mr. Holman sold to D. Fogle, who had arrived out in August, 1869. Dr. Aitken opened a drug and grocery store in 1870, and John Boston who arrived in Williamsburg, April 2, 1870, started a wagon shop that year. Lott Wainwright started a blacksmith shop in 1869.

The school district, No. 51, was organized July 16, 1868, and the schoolhouse was built in the summer of 1870. The first school was taught the following winter by Miss Helen M. Beardsley.

The first birth was that of a son of Albert Supernau; the first marriage that of P. M. Widener to Miss Helen M. Beardsley, December 6, 1871, and the first death that of Samuel Widener, August 30, 1870.

The Methodist Church was organized in 1868 with about twelve members, by Rev. A. K. Johnson. They used the schoolhouse until 1878, when they built a stone church, at a cost of about $2,500. The present membership of the church is about sixty. A Sunday school was organized in May, 1870, Wm. H. Schofield first superintendent.

St. Barnabas Episcopal Church was organized in 1878, with twelve members, by Rev. L. L. Holden. Religious services were held in the schoolhouse until the completion of the Methodist Church, in which they worshiped until the summer of 1882, when their own church was completed at a cost of about $1,400. Present membership thirty.

The Williamsburg Mill was built by Mr. Schofield in 1870. It is a large two story stone structure, costing over $20,000, has three run of buhrs, and is located on a lot adjoining the town site on the north, at the head of Tequa Creek. The machinery is propelled by steam.

The Williamsburg Bank was established in April, 1881, by E. M. Bartholow & Co., on the principle of not receiving deposits. The business done by this bank is principally that of loaning money.

J. W. Olson's Bank was opened in January, 1882. This is also a private institution; does a general banking business; receives deposits and loans money.

Stauffer's Hotel was erected in May, 1881, and was the first hotel built here, although a private residence, built by William H. Schofield, had been used as a hotel years before.

At the present time Williamsburg contains four general stores, one hardware, one grocery and two drug stores; one harness, two blacksmith, two wagon and two boot and shoe shops; two agricultural implement dealers, three lumber yards, three physicians, one newspaper, and has about four hundred inhabitants. It has one newspaper, The Weekly Gazette, established April 3, 1880, by Frank Bennett. This is a four-column folio, devoted to local interests, and neutral in politics.

SILKVILLE.

This name is applied to a collection of private buildings owned by E. V. Boissiere, whose farm consists of 3,600 acres, and is under the management of Charles Sears. The buildings consist of a large three-story stone dwelling house, a large three story frame cheese and butter factory, a one-story stone building in which to feed the silkworms, and a similar building for blacksmith shop and stable, besides barns, etc. There are twenty acres of mulberry trees, planted in 1870. In 1872 the first cocoons were made. Since that time the business of growing cocoons has been continued more as an experimental and pioneer business in this country than as a profitable enterprise. The growing of cocoons has been quite successful. The brisk, dry, pure air of Kansas is excellently adapted to the raising of healthy worms, and the mulberry tree grows as rapidly as the peach. The hereditary diseases to which the worm is subject in France, Italy and Japan are rapidly cured in the pure, sound atmosphere of Kansas, when aided by a severe selection of the reproducers. It has been demonstrated that the quality of the silk made in Kansas is equal to that of the best Italian silk, which has heretofore commanded the highest price. The great difficulty in the way of silk culture in the United States is the lack of reeling facilities. A machine analogous to the cotton gin seems to be essential to its successful introduction, at least so long as we have high-priced labor, and no protective tariff on raw silk. The invention of machinery for successfully transforming cocoons into raw silk, will solve the question of silk culture in America, and open a new field of industry, in the raising of cocoons, to which women are especially adapted.

RANSOMVILLE.

This mining town is situated on the Kansas City, Burlington & Santa Fe Railroad, two miles from Williamsburg. It is named after J. H. Ransom, who, in 1880, after examining the quality of coal at this point and comparing it with that at Fort Scott and Carbondale, leased forty acres of E. M. Bartholow, and opened a mine by sinking a shaft. He afterwards purchased 320 acres, and started a store. The postoffice was established early in the summer of 1882, Mr. Ransom being appointed Postmaster. The town consists of about thirty-five small frame cottages, occupied by the miners.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES—WILLIAMSBURG TOWNSHIP.

ALEXANDER L. ANDERSON, merchant, was born in Delaware, Ohio, April 22, 1836, and was reared on a farm. He studied medicine at the Ann Arbor University, graduating in 1859. In August, 1861, he enlisted in Company H, Eighty-ninth Ohio Infantry. Thirty days later he was promoted to Second Lieutenant, and to Captain a few months later. He served in all four years, two of which were in detached service. Was for a time member of a military commission, which was held in the city of Cincinnati, Ohio. He came to Kansas in December, 1865, locating at Ottawa. Was for a year engaged in the grocery business, after which he carried on a hardware establishment up to May, 1877, when he removed to Williamsburg and at once engaged in general merchandise business. He has a fine store and carries a stock of about $10,000. In August, 1882, he admitted to a partnership his son John B., and the style of the firm has since been Anderson & Son. Mr. Anderson has 320 acres of land in this county, and is also engaged in breeding cattle and fine thoroughbred horses.

JASPER ATKINSON, farmer, Section 26, P. O. Williamsburg, is a native of Gallia County, Ohio, where he was reared on a farm. In 1863 he enlisted in Company B, Twenty-second Ohio Infantry, serving something over a year, after which he followed agricultural pursuits in Gallia County until 1868, when he removed to Grundy County, Mo., and for a year carried on a farm and also a saw-mill; then went to Polk County, Neb., where he farmed five years; was for a while not actively engaged in business on account of ill health, and in November, 1878, came to Franklin County, Kan., and located on his farm. He has eighty acres of land thirty-five acres of which are under cultivation, and is quite largely engaged in raising live-stock. He has on his place a fine orchard and also a good limestone quarry.

JACOB L. BARNETT, dealer in general merchandise, was born at Henrysburg, Belmont Co., Ohio, December 27, 1825, and reared on a farm; and was also for three years engaged in merchandise business in Monroe County, Ohio. He enlisted in June, 1861, in Company I, Twenty-fifth Ohio Infantry, serving three years. He received two wounds in the arm and breast at the battle of Gettysburg. In the spring of 1866 he came to Kansas and was engaged in furniture business at Ottawa for a year, and in farming two years; also conducted a grocery business for two years. In 1871 he came to Williamsburg and at once engaged in mercantile business; sold out in 1873 and carried on business at Princeton for two years. In 1875 he returned to this place and at once established himself in present business. He has an extensive trade and carries a stock of $7,000.

ELIJAH M. BARTHOLOW, banker, was born on the banks of the Potomac River, Virginia, February 22, 1815. He studied law in Frederick County, Md., and was admitted to the bar at that place. He, however, turned his attention to mercantile pursuits and for several years had the management of a large wholesale house in Baltimore. In 1857 he went to Dubuque, Iowa, and practiced law about five years. In 1861 he removed to Washington, D. C., where he practiced his profession until 1864, when he was induced to come to Kansas as financial agent of the east division of the U. P. R. R. Co. He held this position for four months, and was then made general superintendent of that division, and eighteen months later was appointed land commissioner for that company. Mr. B. heretofore had his residence at Wyandotte, but on being appointed land commissioner moved to Lawrence, acting for the company there for four years. In 1870 he engaged in the practice of law at that place. In 1876 he moved to Williamsburg and opened a law and real-estate office which he still continues. He organized the Williamsburg bank at this place in 1880 in company with H. Craik. The firm dissolved in 1882, and Mr. B. now conducts the busness. Mr. Bartholow was the first general superintendent of the first railroad in Kansas, the Union Pacific, Eastern Division, and was the first land commissioner in Kansas of same road.

JOHN M. BARTHOLOW, agent, K. C. L. and S. K. R. R. Co., was born in Frederick, Md., in 1845, and resided for several years in Baltimore and Washington. He came to Kansas in April, 1864, and was appointed station agent at Lawrence, of the U. P. R. R. Co., being the first to hold that position in the State. In 1865 he was appointed bookkeeper for the land department of that company, in which position he remained until February, 1867 He was then engaged in hardware business for a year. Afterwards in banking and insurance business until he sold out in September, 1876, and came to Williamsburg. He was engaged in farming pursuits and stock raising for about seven years. On May 22, 1881, he was appointed to his present position and at that time was also appointed agent of Adams Express Company.

In August 1861, he enlisted in Company A, Seventy-third Regiment Illinois Infantry, and was discharged seven months later on account of physical disability, caused by accident while in line of duty. Mr. Bird lost his right hand by the premature discharge of a cannon while celebrating the Fourth of July, 1864, at Buffalo, Sangamon Co., Ill. He came to Kansas in October, 1866, resided for a short time at Ottawa and also Prairie City. In February 1867, he located on his present farm. He owns 244 acres of land and leases 160 acres, cultivates 200 acres and is an extensive raiser of live stock; also breeds fine Norman draught horses. He had his residence destroyed by fire in August, 1881, and immediately built his handsome house. His farm is well improved with good orchard, barns, hedges, etc. Mr. Bird is one of the representative farmers of his township. He was assessor of the township in 1877, '78, '79 and '80. Has always been and is still a straight Republican in politics.

HEWITT CRAIK, law, real estate and insurance office, was born at Louisville, Ky., in February, 1848, and began business life as a clerk in an insurance office, which occupation he followed for several years. In the winter of 1870 he came to Kansas, locating near Cottonwood Falls, Chase County, where he followed farming pursuits for about six years, and during four years of that period held the office of Justice of the Peace. In the summer of 1876, he came to Williamsburg and has since been interested in farming and stock raising. In 1880, he joined E. M. Bartholow and organized the Williamsburg bank. In June, 1882, he sold out his interest and purchased the real estate business of Beatty & Hedges, at this place. He makes a specialty of commercial law. Williamsburgh, was born in Ireland, in 1844, and emigrated with his parents to America in 1850, residing with them in the Eastern States until November, 1860, when he came with them to Franklin County, Kan. His fathe[illegible] McLindon, pre-empted this farm, and the subject of our sketch farmed with him [illegible] 20, 1878, his father died and his son Patrick took entire charge of the place. [illegible] the owner of 400 acres of land, and is extensively engaged in raising stock. [illegible] war he was in the employ of the United States Government as a teamster, and al[illegible]time served in the Kansas State Militia. Mr. McL. was married in Franklin County, [illegible]ugust 25, 1875, to Annie O'Neil. They have a family of four children—James, Bernard, John and Margaret.

DANIEL MAGRATH, farmer, Section 7, P. O. Williamsburg, was born in Ireland, June 10, 1845. When quite young his parents emigrated to West Virginia, and he came with them to Kansas in the fall of 1859. His father, Terence Magrath, located in Anderson County, and the subject of this sketch assisted on the farm. During the war he was employed in teaming for the Government. In 1867, he came to Franklin County, and engaged in agricultural pursuits for himself. In 1868, he located on his present farm. He owns 245 acres, fifty of which are under cultivation. Mr. Magrath is extensively engaged in feeding cattle for the Eastern markets, and raises Short-horn stock, hogs, etc., besides which he is largely engaged in feeding cows for dairy purposes. He was married in Garnett County, Kan., in January, 1867, to Mary Williams; she died March 22, 1879, leaving four children—Emma, Alice, Mary and Margaret. Mr. Magrath was married a second time, in Franklin County, August 16, 1881, to Amelia Law, a native of England. They have one daughter—Isabella.

EDWARD MAGRATH, manufacturer and dealer in harness, saddlery, etc. Was born in Ireland, in 1850, and emigrated with parents when very young to West Virginia. In the fall of 1859, he came with his father, Terence Magrath, to Kansas, and assisted him on the farm in Anderson County for some years, and during two years of that period attended Mount Carmel College, in that county. In 1874, he removed to Ottawa, learned trade of harness maker, and followed it as an occupation in that city until the spring of 1879, when he came to Williamsburg and purchased his present business. He has quite a large trade and gives employment to two men in the manufacturing department. He carries a stock of some $3,000. Mr. Magrath was married at Fort Scott, Kan., November 20, 1879, to Mary Kating, a native of Ohio. They have one daughter—Julia.

MICHAEL MAGRATH, farmer, Section 7, P. O. Emerald, was born in England, in 1848. When quite young he emigrated with his parents to Virginia, and in November, 1859, came with them to Kansas, and assisted his father, Terence Magrath, on his farm in Anderson County. On June 21, 1882, he came to Williamsburg and took charge of the yard at this place.

WELLSVILLE.

This town is located on the Kansas City, Lawrence & Southern Kansas Railroad, near the northeast corner of the county, and is surrounded by gently rolling, fertile prairie, now converted into excellent farms. The town site was purchased in 1870, of J. Emerson, by P. P. Elder, of this county, and J. B. Shute, of Chicago, the latter of whom platted the town site. In August of that year J. C. Sinclair and C. C. Cox built the first dwelling house, and in the fall, H. N Brockway opened the first store. About the same time Aaron Brown started the first blacksmith shop. Mr. Brown, as also J. N. Bell, completed a dwelling house in the spring of 1871. The second store was opened in 1872 by Parker & Ray. A hotel was built in 1875, designed when built for a residence, but afterward remodeled. A drug store was started in 1876 by Paul Laberrier. In 1877, an elevator was built, at a cost of $5 000, with a capacity of 1,200 bushels. In 1878, Nathaniel Steen started a wagon shop. In 1879, E. E. Wilkins purchased the town site, and by pursuing a liberal policy towards men who desired to locate for business or residence purposes, has done much towards building up a thriving village.

The first school was taught by Miss Ella Brown in 1871. The present schoolhouse was erected in 1881. It is a two-story frame building, 32x56 feet, twenty-four feet high, will seat 260 pupils, and cost $3,500.

The postoffice was established in 1872, W. S. Brockway being appointed first Postmaster. With the exception of about six months, he has held the position ever since.

The first birth in Wellsville was that of Catharine Kennedy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kennedy, in 1870; the first marriage that of John C.

Heffley to Miss Della Tinny, December 25, 1878; and the first death that of a daughter of Aaron Brown in May, 1871.

Wellsville contains at present four general stores, two drug stores, two hardware stores, two blacksmith shops, one furniture store, one lumber yard, one wagon shop, one newspaper, and about 300 inhabitants.

The Congregational Church was organized in 1873 by Rev. T. C. Kinney, and a church edifice erected the same year, at a cost of $1,400. The membership upon organization was eight; at present there are fifty members on the roll.

The Baptist Church was organized in 1875. The first minister was Rev. J. P. Stevens. Their church was erected in 1877, at a cost of about $2,000. The present membership of the church is sixty.

The Methodist Church was organized in 1881 by Rev. J. W. Stewart. In June of the same year they dedicated their church, which had been just completed, and cost about $2,500. The present membership of this church is sixty.

The United Presbyterians organized a society in 1882, but as yet have no church building erected.

Wellsville Lodge, I. O. O. F., No. 135, was organized in 1876, with seven members, and the following officers: John Widney, N. G.; F. P. Wellman, Sec.; and L. W. Hostetter, Treas. The present membership is forty-five.

Wellsville Lodge, I. O. G. T., was organized in the fall of 1881, with the following officers: J. A. Laing, W. C.; Miss M. E. Brockway, V. T.; H. N. Brockway, P. W. C., Frank Colwell, Sec.; and C. F. Johnson, Treas. The lodge now numbers fifty members.

The Wellsville News was started by Dr. H. M. Bennett April 20, 1882. It is a five-column folio, and is devoted to local news, and the interests of Wellsville and vicinity It attained a circulation of 300 copies within three months from its establishment.

LE LOUP.

Le Loup is a small station and postoffice on the Kansas City, Lawrence & Southern Kansas Railroad, eight miles from Ottawa. It was at first named Ferguson, after Robert Ferguson, who was one of the first settlers, and who owned the land upon which the town was located. It is situated on level prairie, and though a small place, is quite an important shipping point for grain, hay and stock.

Among those to locate early at Le Loup or Ferguson, were the following persons: J. A. Stonebraker, who in company with Mr. Ferguson built the first house, in 1870; William Hogan, George Morley and Dr. Combs. The Postoffice was established in 1870, Mr. Stonebraker being appointed first Postmaster. In the same year J. A. Stonebraker opened the first store.

The first school was taught by Cyrus Jenkins, in 1879, in a schoolhouse just previously built in the south part of the town. The first sermon was preached in the depot building by Rev. Dr. Pile, in 1872.

Old settlers say that in the early history of the village its progress was retarded by the sale and use of whisky. It is now in a thrifty condition, being inhabited and surrounded by a good, industrious class of people.

He owns 160 acres of land, all improved, and cultivates 145 acres of it. He has an orchard of seven acres, and a good stone quarry on his place. He is also engaged in raising choice cattle and hogs. Mr. Stickel was elected a Commissioner of Franklin County in 1869 and served two years. Was also Township Trustee for several years. He was married in Cedar County, Iowa, in 1859, to Elma Wheatley. They have four children—Lucy M., Mary M., Matilda J. and William W.

E. E. WILKINS, real estate, was born in West Virginia April 1, 1818, and reared on a farm, and was also for a year employed in mercantile business at Evansville. In 1840 he emigrated to Winchester, Adams Co., Ohio. Was for twelve years engaged in mercantile business, after which he embarked in the business of dealing and trading in Western lands. Was also for several years engaged in pork packing at Ripley, Ohio, and for a year in same business at Maysville, Ky., and farmed for two years. In November, 1871, he came to Wellsville, Kan., purchased a farm and followed farming and dealing in live stock and lands. In 1879 he purchased the town site of Wellsville from P. P. Elder and others, and now gives his attention to the improvement of what remains unsold.

PRINCETON.

This thriving village on the Leavenworth, Lawrence and Galveston Railroad has grown up since the building of the road, in 1869. It contains about twenty buildings, and a number of enterprising and prosperous business men and mechanics. It is situated very near the site of a town which has now become historic, and of which nothing remains to-day but its history. This town was known in its palmy days, as Ohio City.

In April, 1857, the Ohio City Town Company was organized, consisting of the following members: J. M. Hendry, P. D. Ridenour, A. R. Morton, A. H. Ross, J. W. Iliff, Reuben Painter, L. DeStigner, Jacob Bolman and R. W. Gilchrist. Ohio City was laid out the same month, and a hotel, the first building in the city, erected. It was a two story frame, the lumber for which was hauled from Kansas City. Wm. Morton was the proprietor. The hotel was burned in 1864. A second hotel was built by J. H. Cook, and is now a tenement house on one of P. P. Elder's farms, this farm being the former town site. The first store was erected by J. W. Iliff, the money being raised by popular subscription. W. E. Kibbie built the first frame house, adjoining the town. He also taught the first school, and was the first Postmaster. The name of the Postoffice was at first Bowling Green, but in time the number of Free-state people increased so much as to outnumber the Pro-slavery men, and in consequence the name was changed to Ohio City.

The first sermon was preached by Rev. Mr. Finckbine. The first regular minister was Rev. H. C. Moys, a Methodist. P. P. Elder was the first Justice of the Peace, and also first Chairman of the County Board of Supervisors. The first steam saw mill was erected by Morton & Painter on Middle Creek, a little above Ohio City, the frame of which is now used for the frame of a barn on T. Jones' farm at Princeton.

The first Fourth of July celebration was held in 1857, at Ohio City, with great enthusiasm. An arbor was built, in which a bountiful feast was spread. Rev. Mr. Andrews was orator of the day, Dr. Finckbine was chaplain of the day, and W. E. Kibbie read the Declaration of Independence.

One of the first, if not the first attempt in the county to prohibit the liquor traffic by high license, was made in Ohio City. B. C. Sanford had opened a saloon. The County Board attempted to close it by requiring Sanford to pay a license of one hundred dollars. To their surprise Sanford paid the amount required, and went on with his business. The next year in order to certainly close the saloon, the license was raised to $250! To the great surprise of all, Sanford without apparent difficulty paid this sum also, and again went on with the business. Some time afterwards it was discovered, and the astonishment of all may be imagined at the discovery, that Weatherwax, one of the greatest temperance advocates in the town, had loaned Sanford the money with which to pay his $250 license!!

After several contests Ohio City became the county seat, in 1861; but in 1864 when the Indian title to the land in the center of the county was extinguished, a lively town sprang up at Ottawa, and at an election held August 1, 1864, the county seat was removed there; where it still remains. At the hight of its prosperity, Ohio City contained about 100 inhabitants. But as Ottawa grew, many of the people moved away to the new town and county seat, others to other places, and still others into the country, and now nothing is left of Ohio City but its name, and a few historical relics of the past such as the following document, which we have transcribed, verbatim et literatim and which may be styled a model of its kind:

Homewood is a small town on the Kansas City, Burlington and Santa Fe Railroad, south and a little west of the center of the county, in Ohio Township. It is pleasantly situated in the midst of a rich agricultural district, and contains a post-office, store, and about twenty inhabitants.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES—OHIO TOWNSHIP.

JOHN BECHTLE, farmer, P. O. Princeton, was born in Clark County, Ohio, August 27, 1835. In 1852 he removed to Knox County, Ill., where he followed agricultural pursuits. He came to Kansas in 1867, located at Ottawa, and was employed in various capacities, and farmed for a year in Centropolis. In 1870 he located on his present farm, Ohio Township, Franklin County. He owns eighty-five acres of land, sixty of which are under cultivation, and a fine orchard consisting of several acres; also raises considerable live stock.

WILLIAM A. CLARK, farmer, P. O. Princeton, was born in Oxford County, Me., in 1838. In 1851 he emigrated to La Salle County, Ill., and eight years later to Shelby County, where he learned the trade of wagon-maker, and followed that occupation for about ten years. Mr. Clark enlisted in 1864 in Company I, One Hundred and Thirty-eighth Illinois Regiment, and served five months. He came to Kansas in June, 1872, located in Franklin Township, Franklin County, and followed agricultural pursuits. In March, 1882, he moved on to his present farm in Ohio Township. He owns 214 acres on which there is a fine orchard of about ten acres, and is quite extensively engaged in raising cattle and hogs.

ALVAH ELDER, farmer, P. O. Princeton, was born in Somerset County, Me., April 7, 1825, where he was reared on a farm, and after reaching the age of manhood followed agricultural pursuits as an occupation. In November, 1861, he enlisted in Company D, Thirteenth Maine Infantry, serving until August 20, 1865. He came to Franklin County in April, 1868, and located on his present farm in Ohio Township. He owns 160 acres of improved land, is quite an extensive raiser of live stock, and has quite a number of cows for dairy purposes. Mr. Elder was elected Justice of the Peace in 1880, and is senior vice-commander of G. A. R. Post, Princeton, No. 111.

W. S. FINLEY, banker, stock farmer and lumber dealer, P. O. Williamsburg, was born in Crawford County, Pa., in 1831. Here he was employed for several years as clerk in general store. In 1857 he moved to Kewaunee, Wis., and entered the employ of D. Slauson & Co., lumber and general merchants; served one year and formed co-partnership with L. P. Congdon (Finley & Congdon) in grocery and drug business. Later became member of lumber firm of Taylor, Slauson & Co. Sold out in 1867, and moved to Fond du Lac, Wis., engaging in lumber and milling business, in firm of Hamilton & Finley; remained in that business till 1879. Served one term as County Treasurer of Kewaunee County. Was a member of State Legislature, Session of 1860-61. Was the Republican candidate for Mayor of Fond du Lac, and defeated by a small majority. In October, 1878, came to Ohio Township, Franklin County, Kan., having purchased the John E. Baer farm of some 760 acres, one of the best in the country, with fine buildings and improvements, establishing a stock business; also the lumber business at Princeton, firm of W. S. Finley & Co. Is proprietor of the Williamsburg Bank, to which he gives most of his attention.

ABRAHAM FUNK, merchant, Homewood, was born in Butler County, Pa., May 29, 1829, and was reared in Beaver County, on a farm. He learned the trade of plasterer at Pittsburgh, and followed it there for four years. He came to Kansas in March, 1858, and located in Leavenworth, and worked at his trade for three years. In May, 1861, he enlisted in Company G, First Kansas Infantry. A few months later was promoted to Second Lieutenant, and then to First Lieutenant, and some time afterward to Captain. He was mustered out in August, 1864, after which he returned to Leavenworth and engaged in the mercantile business. In 1869 he was appointed sutler to Gen. George A. Custer's Regiment, and filled that position one year. Returning to Leavenworth, he disposed of his stock, and moved to Platte County, Mo., and was for about eight years engaged in mercantile and agricultural pursuits at Hampton. In 1878 he came to Homewood and purchased a stock of general merchandise, and has since conducted business at this place. He carries a stock of about $3,000, and is also engaged in farming 160 acres of land. He was appointed Postmaster at this place in 1878. Mr. Funk was married at Allegheny City, Pa., about 1853, to Margaret Simms. She died in 1861, leaving two children—James and Annie. He was married again in Leavenworth, Kansas, about 1865, to Mollie Schupbach. They have three children—William, Jennie and Bessie.

THOMAS GETCHELL, lumber merchant, was born at Alton, N. H., in 1831, and reared on a farm. In 1851 he went to Portland, Maine, where he learned the trade of cooper. Two years later he removed to Buffalo, N. Y., and followed his trade there for three years; then in Crawford County, Pa., for a year, and again in Buffalo for three years. Finally returned to Crawford County, where he worked at his trade until August 15, 1862, when he enlisted in Company K, One Hundred and Fiftieth Pennsylvania Infantry. Was appointed Second Lieutenant, and a few weeks later promoted to First Lieutenant, and May 4, 1863, made a Captain. His company served principally as a guard at the residence of President Lincoln. Capt. Getchell was mustered out of service June 15, 1865, and returned to Crawford County, Pa., where he again followed his trade. In 1868 he went to Fond du Lac, Wis. Was for a year employed in saw mill and lumber business, and for seven years worked as a cooper. He came to Kansas July, 13, 1876, located in Williamsburg Township, Franklin County, and followed farming pursuits. In the spring of 1878 he came to Ohio Township. Was employed on the farm of W. S. Finley, and in the spring of 1879 engaged in lumber business at Princeton with Mr. F., under style of W. S. Finley & Co. The firm carry a stock of about $3,000. Capt. Getchell has full charge of this business. He is a member of the District School Board.

THOMPSON JONES, farmer and stock raiser, P. O. Princeton, was born at Monroe, Butler Co., Ohio, in 1832, and sixteen years later removed with his father, William Jones, to Lee County, Iowa, where he followed farming pursuits. He came to Franklin County in 1857, and located on his present farm in Ohio Township. A year later he returned to Iowa, and resided with his father. In the fall of 1861 he enlisted in Company G, Fourth Iowa Cavalry, and was mustered out as Corporal early in 1865, after which he returned to his farm in Franklin County, on which he has since resided. He, however, took a trip to Colorado in 1875, and remained there several years, engaged in stock raising pursuits. Mr. Jones has a well improved farm of some 365 acres, on which there is a splendid orchard of about fifty acres, and he is extensively engaged in raising and dealing in live stock. He laid out the town of Princeton in 1871, and his farm adjoins the same. He served one term as a Commissioner of Franklin County. Mr. Jones is a member of G. A. R. Post, Princeton, No. 111. He was married in Lee County, Iowa, in 1859, to Melissa B. McMillan. They have a family of six children—Ida, George, Fred, Elva, Nora and Mark.

HON. WILLIAM E. KIBBE, farmer, P. O. Princeton, was born in Jefferson County, N. Y., in 1833, and reared on a farm. He came to Kansas in March, 1867, and pre-empted 160 acres of land in Ohio Township, Franklin County. Mr. Kibbie has now 320 acres of land all well improved, and is one of the leading farmers in this vicinity. He has a fine orchard of about six acres, and raises considerable live stock. He enlisted September 1, 1862, in Company D, Twelfth Kansas Infantry, and served until July 16, 1865. He was elected County Assessor in 1860, and served two years, and in 1866 elected to the State Legislature. Mr. Kibbie was married in Franklin County in August, 1865, to Pamelia Weatherwax, daughter of D. Weatherwax. They have a family of five children—Jennie, Fannie, Mamie, Milo, and Levi.

HARDIN W. LEEDS, of Leeds & Leonard, merchants, was born in Jacksonville, Ill., in 1849, and was reared on a farm. In 1872 he engaged in business in the firm of Fish, Foster & Co., dealers in musical merchandise. Selling out his interest, he came to Princeton, Franklin County, in September, 1878, and in the following spring established a general merchandise business in company with J. R. Thornbury, remaining in partnership with him for six months. He was then for two years in company with E. L. Warren, and for several years with T. Z. Wright. In January, 1882, he admitted his present partner, William Leonard. This is the oldest established and by far the most extensive business house in the place. Mr. Leeds is the oldest merchant in this part of the county, is well known throughout the country, and the trade of the firm is continually increasing. The firm have lately purchased the business of G. W. Harshberger, at Richmond, this county. He is also individually extensively engaged in the hay and grain business. Mr. Leeds was elected Treasurer of Ohio Township in 1878, and has been re-elected yearly ever since. He was appointed Postmaster at Princeton in July, 1881.

WILLIAM LEONARD, of Leeds & Leonard, merchants, was born at Orleans, Orange Co., Ind., in 1836. Reared on a farm, and also taught school for some years. He enlisted at Paola, Ind., in August, 1861, in Company I, Thirty-eighth Indiana Infantry. Was appointed Second Lieutenant, a year later promoted to First Lieutenant, and in 1863 to Captain, serving principally in the United States Signal Corps, on the staffs of Generals Nelson, Crittenden and Howard. He was mustered out in September, 1864, after which he was engaged in mercantile business at Orleans, Ind., for four years, and during that period was also Deputy Collector of United States Internal Revenue. He came to Kansas in 1869, and located in Shawnee County, where he followed agricultural pursuits for three years. In 1872 he moved to Franklin County, and has been interested in farming pursuits since. He has about 170 acres of land located within half a mile of this place, on which he resides. In January, 1882, he purchased an interest in the mercantile establishment of H. W. Leeds, at Princeton. The firm do a large business throughout the surrounding country, and carry a fine stock of about six to eight thousand dollars to supply the demands of their trade. They have two stores, groceries and dry-goods. Mr. Leonard was elected a Commissioner of Franklin County in 1877, and served one term, and is commander of G. A. R. Post, Princeton, No. 111.

Y., where he was employed as a painter for two years, after which he removed to Dane County, Wis., where he was employed at general farm work. He came to Franklin County, Kan., April 28, 1857, and pre-empted 160 acres in Ohio Township, where he followed farming and stock-raising on an extensive scale. Mr. Servatus was married at Montrose, Dane Co., Wis., May 18, 1857, to Delia F. Matta, a native of Pennsylvania. He died February 4, 1881. His widow, Mrs. Delia F. Servatus, still resides on the old homestead. She owns 320 acres, all well improved, on which there is a fine orchard of about twelve acres.

ANDREW SHARP, farmer, P. O. Princeton, was born in Perthshire, Scotland, in July, 1824, and reared on a farm. He was for six years engaged in buying and shipping. In 1855 he emigrated to Canada, and engaged in farming near the city of Hamilton. In the fall of 1868 he came to Franklin County, Kansas, and located on his present farm, consisting of 197 acres in Ohio Township; his place is well improved; has a fine orchard of about five acres, and three acres of maple grove. He is quite extensively engaged in raising cattle and hogs. Mr. S. has been Road Overseer in his district for six years. He was married in Scotland, in 1846 to Amelia Hood. They have a family of five children.

HORATIO TAWNEY, farmer, P.O. Princeton, was born in Richland County, Ohio, June 7, 1834, and fourteen years later removed to Williams County, Ohio, where he followed farming pursuits and also learned the trade of carpenter with his brother. He enlisted in Company C, One Hundredth Ohio Infantry, and was mustered into service August 2, 1862. He was taken prisoner at Limestone Station, Tennessee, on September 8, 1863, and held until March 14, 1864. He was mustered out June 20, 1865. In December of 1865 he came to Franklin County and purchased his present farm in Ohio Township. He has 100 acres, all well improved, on which there is a good orchard of some three acres; also raises considerable stock. Mr. Tawney does considerable work in building, etc. through the country, three of his sons attending to the farm and stock. He served one term as Trustee of the Township some ten years ago. He was married in Williams County, Ohio, to Elizabeth A. Steinbaugh. They have eleven children, nine of whom were born in Kansas. Mr. T. is a member of the G. A. R. Post, Princeton, No. 111.

JAMES R. THORNBURY, physician and surgeon, was born in Morgan County, Ill., in 1842, and reared on a farm. He enlisted in July, 1862, in Battery F, First Regiment of Illinois Artillery, and served until mustered out in July, 1865. He then gave his attention for a short time to agricultural pursuits. In 1866 he moved to Cambria, Macon Co., Mo., where he taught school. In 1868 he began the study of medicine with Dr. J. W. Proctor, and also took a course at College of Physicians and Surgeons at Keokuk, Iowa. In 1872 he came to Franklin County, located at Princeton and has since practiced his profession at this place. Since his arrival here he took another course at the College of Physicians and Surgeons at Keokuk, graduating in the class of 1877-78. The Doctor has been a member of the Kansas State Medical Society since 1880, and is also a member of the Franklin County Medical Society. He is adjutant of the G. A. R. Post, Princeton, No. 111.

POMONA.

The orginal town site of Pomona consisted of 320 acres. It is beautifully situated, ten miles west of Ottawa, on elevated ground, and in one of the most picturesque locations in the State.

The first building on the town site was erected for a residence by A. Jones. The first business house was built by Rev. L. Ricksecker, and was used for a drug store and postoffice. The second business house was put up by A. H. Scranton. It afterwards became the Pomona hotel. William Hayes erected the next business house, and was followed by John Parkinson, who built a residence. Quite a number of other residences were built within a short time. Nelson Reynolds erected a stone blacksmith shop, and McCord & Wilson a wagon shop.

In 1870 a furniture manufactory was established by John Krause & Sons, and the steam flouring mill was built in the same year by H. O. Kelsey. The building is of stone, two stories high and is fitted up with the most approved machinery. It has three run of four foot buhrs, the total expense of mill and machinery being about $20,000.

Within a year from the building of the first house in the town, a two story stone schoolhouse was erected, with room sufficient for two hundred pupils. The cost of this building was $5,000. The first sermon preached was by Rev. L. Ricksecker in May, 1870.

The Methodist Church was organized in April, 1871, by Rev. William Wilkins, with thirty-five members. Religious services were held in the stone schoolhouse until 1880, when a frame church building was erected at a cost of $600. The present membership of the church is seventeen. The ministers of this church have been the following: Revs. William Wilkins, —— Buffington, J. McNulty, J. D. Baldwin, William Whitney, J. W. Clock, J. D. Bratton, E. F. Holland, and —— Melvin.

The Presbyterian Church was organized in 1873 with nine members. The first regular minister was Rev. L. Newcomb. He has been followed by Revs. D. H. Starkey, M. Bone and —— Shull. The present church building was erected in 1879, at a cost of $1,000.

Pomona Lodge, No. 138, A. F. & A. M., was chartered October 16, 1873, with fourteen members. The officers were Benjamin F. Snyder, W. M.; Hans Wood, S. W.; W. Wait, J. W.; Sanford Topping, Secretary. The present membership is thirty-six. The lodge room is in the second story of a fine large brick store building, 24x64 feet, erected in 1881, by J. Parkinson, at a cost of $5,000.

At the present time Pomona contains two general stores, two hardware stores, two blacksmith shops, one wagon shop, one furniture factory, one drug store, one hotel, one agricultural implement dealer, two physicians and about three hundred inhabitants.

Pomona is essentially a colony on a unique plan. The central idea of its founder, was not to provide each colonist with cheap land, but rather to collect together a class of people who had attained the elevation of a certain moral plane, and that each should own much or little property, according to his ability to pay for it in cash or on time. No one can buy property in this colony without signing a contract not to sell intoxicating liquors to be drank as a beverage. Inexperienced colonists are given such advice as they may need in any line. Special attention is devoted to providing such educational advantages as the majority may need. An industrious, sober, intelligent, moral and prosperous colony is the result.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES—APPANOOSE TOWNSHIP.

REV. JOSEPH M. BONE, farmer, Section 28, P. O. Pomona, was born in Wilson County, Tenn. He resided in Moultrie and Christian counties, Ill., for some forty-five years. In 1836 he entered the ministry of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church in Moultrie County, and continued to preach for some forty years, in connection with which he also conducted a farm. Mr. Montgomery has seventy-six acres of land, five of which are laid off in fruit trees of various kinds, and the balance he uses for grain farming. He was married in Auglaize County, Ohio, in 1855, to Mary A. Hook. They have a family of seven children.

JOHN PARKINSON, dealer in live stock, was born at St. Augustine, Fulton Co., Ill., July 28, 1842. His parents emigrated to Leavenworth, Kan., in 1856, and a year later to Franklin County, locating in Centropolis. The subject of this sketch assisted his father on the farm up to 1860, when he went to Colorado and remained seven months. Returning to Franklin County, he, one year later, engaged in farming on his own account. In 1867, he branched out into raising and dealing in live stock. He owns in this county 1,300 acres of land. In 1871, in connection with other pursuits, he embarked in mercantile business at Pomona, selling out in 1878, to Jonathan Parkinson. In February, 1882, he purchased an interest in the business, which is conducted under style of J. Parkinson & Co.; Jefferson Mundy is also a partner in the firm, and he and Mr. Jno. Parkinson have, since May, 1881, been interested together in live stock business. They are large dealers, purchasing heavily in the Western States and Territories.

JOHN F. PATTON, farmer, Section 5, P. O. Pomona, was born in Coshocton County, Ohio, March 7, 1840, and a few months later his parents moved to Edgar County, Ill., where he followed, after arriving at maturity, agricultural and mechanical pursuits. He enlisted in May, 1863, in Company I, One Hundred and Thirty-third Indiana Infantry, and was mustered out in December, 1864. Mr. Patton came to Kansas in March, 1866, resided for about three months in Douglas County, then removed to Topeka, where he was employed as a stone mason on the State Capitol for three months, after which he followed agricultural pursuits in Osage County for about two years, when he made a trip to Edgar County, Ill., where he remained eight months; returning to Kansas in 1869, he farmed for a year in Douglas County. In July, 1870, he came to Franklin County, and located on his present farm. He has 327 acres, all improved, cultivates 120 acres and is quite extensively engaged in raising live stock. He has a good orchard of about three acres. Mr. Patton was elected Justice of the Peace in 1875, and has been re-elected at each election since. He was married in Douglas County, Kan., in March, 1870, to Mary J. Tefft. They have a family of three children—Dora A., Edith E., and Edward C.

SYLVESTER PAUL, Sr., Section 29, P. O. Pomona, was born in Monroe County, N. Y., in October, 1829, and reared on a farm. In October, 1853, he removed to Walworth County, Wis., where he conducted a farm of about 400 acres. During his residence there, he was Justice of the Peace for some time and also Assessor. In February, 1865, he enlisted in Company K, Forty-ninth Wisconsin Infantry, serving four months. Mr. Paul came to Kansas in November, 1873, and located at his present residence, which is on the outskirts of Pomona, Franklin County. He has 332 acres, all well improved; 130 of which are in cultivation. On his place he has erected a fine stone residence, which cost $3,000, and a good barn. He has a good orchard, several stone quarries, and has put up a wind mill, which furnishes an abundant supply of water. Mr. Paul is largely engaged in raising live stock. From February, 1878, to July, 1882, he was also engaged in mercantile business at Pomona. This he sold to his son, Sylvester Paul, Jr., who is still engaged in the same.

ELIAS RICHARDSON, farmer, Section 4, P. O. Pomona, was born in Kentucky in 1846, and when very young his parents removed to Canada, where he was reared on a farm. In the fall of 1871 he came to Franklin County, Kas., and located on his present farm. He owns 108 acres of land, sixty of which are in cultivation. He has a nice orchard and raises considerable stock. Mr. R. was married in Canada in 1868 to Frances Jones. They have a family of seven children.

JACKSON STEELE, farmer, Section 24, P. O. Appanoose, was born in Monongahela County, W. Va., February 13, 1837. He was reared on a farm and for six years worked in iron works in that locality. On June 1, 1861, he enlisted in the Third Virginia Infantry, serving until some time in 1864. He then re-enlisted in the Virginia Cavalry, and was mustered out in 1866. In the spring of 1867 he came to Kansas, and located in Douglas County, where he resided for four years. In the latter part of 1870 he came to Franklin County and located on his present farm, which consists of eighty acres, sixty-five of which are in cultivation and five acres in orchard. He was postmaster at Appanoose from 1871 to 1873, and from July, 1878, to July, 1882, carried the United States mails from Burlingame to Appanoose. Mr. Steele was married in Henry County, Ill., in 1867, to Sarah H. Holland. They have a family of eight children.

CLARK TEFFT, farmer, Section 5, Township 16, Range 18, P. O. Pomona, was born in Washington County, R. I., September 28, 1827, and was reared on a farm until eighteen years of age, when he learned the trade of blacksmith, at which he was employed for about seven years. He also worked in the cotton mills in that locality. Came to Kansas November 19, 1854, settling in Douglas County, where he pre-empted 160 acres of land and improved and farmed the same for about fifteen years. This farm he still owns. During his residence there he was Justice of the Peace for four years. In the spring of 1870 he came to Franklin County and located on his present farm. He has 240 acres, 100 of which are under cultivation. He has a nice orchard and is a raiser of graded Short-horn cattle and Poland-China hogs. He was an active supporter of the Free State cause in the troubles of 1856. Mr. Tefft was married in Washington County, R. I., December 13, 1846, to Clarley A. Larkin. They have two children—Mary J., now Mrs. J. F. Patton, and Milton D., who farms near his father's place.

DR. EBEN TOPPING, drugs, paints and oils, was born in Montgomery County, N. Y., in 1823. Was for a short time engaged in mercantile business in the county. He studied medicine at the New York State Medical College at Albany, and at Cincinnati, Ohio Medical College, where he graduated in 1849. He then practiced in Lewis County, N. Y., for a year. In 1850 he went to Sauk County, Wis., where he practiced, and was also engaged in drug business. In 1864 he removed to Union County, Ill., where he was engaged in fruit growing on an extensive scale. He came to Kansas in the fall of 1867, located in Ottawa, and carried on a nursery business up to 1877, when he moved to Pomona, where in connection with his practice he carries on a drug business.

DENNIS WARD, farmer, Section 32, P. O. Appanoose, was born in Ireland in 1835. Fourteen years later emigrated to America; his parents located in Jersey County, Ill., and he was employed at farm work. In the fall of 1854 he came to Kansas, locating in Doniphan County, and was for three years employed in freighting. In 1857 he came to Franklin County and was employed in teaming Indian supplies, etc., and for a time in teaming for the United States Army during the early portion of the war. In February, 1863, he enlisted in Company K, Sixteenth Kansas Cavalry, serving until the close of the war, after which he gave his attention to agricultural pursuits. In 1868 he moved on to his present farm. Mr. Ward has 250 acres, 200 of which are in cultivation. He has just lately built a fine stone residence on his place, and he is an extensive raiser of cattle, etc. He was married in Osage County, Kan., in 1870, to Louisa Dooty; she died about 1875 leaving one son, William Thomas. Mr. W. was married again in Douglas County, Kan. in 1878, to Mary Fall. They have two children—Mary and John.

JOHN H. WHETSTONE, farmer, Section 32, P. O. Pomona, was born in Hardin County, Ky., April 4, 1829, and four years later his parents emigrated to Coles County, Ill., where he was reared on a farm. In 1849 he went to Shelby County, where he purchased 1,000 acres of land, and improved the same. Here he carried on an extensive grain farm, and also raised stock. In 1859, in connection with his agricultural pursuits, he engaged in mercantile business at Windsor, where he continued until he sold out and came to Kansas in May, 1864. In the fall of that year he located at Ottawa, and built the first sawmill in that region of country, and conducted the same for about two years, after which he embarked in real-estate business. Mr. W. purchased about 15,000 acres of land in one body in Franklin County. On this he placed twenty and one-half miles of wire fencing and 130 miles of Osage hedge. This land he has gradually disposed of until he has now 1,500 acres which he uses for farming purposes; 400 acres are in cultivation, and he has an orchard of about 3,000 trees, principally apple and peach. Mr. W. moved on to his present farm in 1874. Owing to the large amount of land he had on hand Mr. W., in 1875-76, made several trips East in the interest of emigration, and was very successful, bringing to Franklin County a large number of people from Illinois and other Eastern States. His farm adjoins the town of Pomona, which he laid out in 1870. He is still the principal owner of the town site. The subject of our sketch is one of the enterprising men of this county. He was one of the most energetic business men of Ottawa during its early settlement, and did considerable towards making it what it is.

WILLIAM WISCOMBE, farmer, Section 23, P. O. Appanoose, was born in England in 1804, and after reaching maturity, conducted a hotel for about sixteen years. In 1859, he emigrated to Franklin County, Kan., and farmed for several years; then in Shawnee County. In 1870, he returned to Franklin County, and located on his present farm, which consists of eighty acres, all highly improved. He cultivates some forty acres, and has on his farm about four hundred rods of stone fence.

DAVID YECK, farmer, Section 2, P. O. Pomona, was born in Adams County, Penn., in 1844. When quite young his parents emigrated to Logan County, Ohio, where he was reared on a farm. He came to Kansas in July, 1866, and located in Osage County, where he rented land and engaged in farming. In the fall of 1869, he came to Franklin County and located on his present farm, which consists of 407 acres. Mr. Yeck cultivates only fifty acres of his land. He makes a specialty of raising cattle, and uses his land principally for pasture. He breeds high grades of Durham Short-horn cattle and Poland-China hogs. On his place he has put out a nice orchard of about two hundred trees of various fruits.

LANE.

This town is located at the middle of the line between Sections 33 and 34, Township 18, Range 21, in the beautiful Pottawatomie Valley, and on the Missouri Pacific Railroad. The postoffice was established March 21, 1855, and named Shermanville, after the Sherman brothers, who then lived here. Allen Wilkinson was the first postmaster. The place was for a long time popularly known as "Dutch Henry's Crossing," because Dutch Henry lived near the crossing of the creek. The crossing is now within the limits of the town, but of Dutch Henry's cabin, which was during the early border troubles a resort for the Pro-slavery settlers and border ruffians, not a vestige now remains.

The postoffice was abolished August 28, 1856, and re-established March 14, 1857. At the suggestion of Mrs. Judge Hanway, the name of the postoffice and town was on January 28, 1863, changed to Lane, in honor of Gen. James H. Lane. The first store, and the only one here for a number of years, was started and kept by Duncan Holiday.

Modern Lane began with the building of the railroad from Paola to Leroy. The first attempt to build this road failed in 1873. In 1879, Commodore Garrison, who owned the Missouri Pacific, worked up the franchises along the line, and built from Paola to Le Roy. In 1880, Jay Gould bought the Missouri Pacific, and gave to Pottawatomie township her $12,000 in bonds, receiving therefor the $12,000 in stock of the road held by the township.

When the road was built a new town was laid out and platted, adjoining Lane on the northeast, and named Emerson. The town company was composed of F. M. Shaw, M. Mellen, J. W. Walter, S. W. Devore, Mr. Emerson and others. This new town soon began to build up. Dr. Jackson erected two large two-story buildings; E. R. Beeson & Co., built a store; D. Crummin opened a lumber yard; the grange store was removed here from Amo; Mr. Johnson built a hotel; Mr. Fowler, a blacksmith shop, and a number of dwellings were erected. Soon after a disagreement sprang up in regard to the name. Mr. Garrison selected the name Avondale, which was given to, and retained by, the station until 1881. In 1880 a petition was circulated and largely signed to have the postoffice removed to, and called by the name of Avondale. This project was strongly opposed by some of the old settlers, and after a bitter fight, Elder Hendrickson was made Postmaster, and the name "Lane," retained. The Lane Town Company was then formed, and the town of Lane laid out. The town company was composed of John S. and Brougham Hanway, W. H. Ambrose, L. Hendrickson, D. L. Welsh, and others, and for eighteen months the two rival towns of Lane and Avondale, each tried to build itself up at the expense of the other. During the latter part of 1881, the strife ceased, prosperity began and peace reigned. The Lane mills were built this year, and a new two-story, rough coralline marble schoolhouse, costing $3,000, besides about thirty dwelling houses. During the first six months of 1882, about twenty dwellings were erected, making the total number in the town sixty. Besides these there are about twenty-five business houses, among them one hotel, three general stores, one drug store, one boot and shoe store, two millinery stores, two blacksmith shops, one wagon shop, one agricultural implement depot, one marble shop, a number of church organizations, and about three hundred inhabitants.

Lincoln Park is located just across Pottawatomie Creek, north from the village. In this park T. J. Crowder erected in the spring of 1882, a tabernacle 40x80 feet, to which all the denominations resort for religious services, there being no church building nearer than that owned by the Society of Friends, three miles east.

The Lane Advance was established July 1, 1881, by Wilber & Leidom. April 15, 1882, Mr. Leidom sold his interest to S. W. Winter, and on July 1, 1882, Wilber & Winter sold the paper to H. J. Newberry and T. J. Crowder, its present proprietors. It is an eight column, four page weekly, independent in politics, and devoted to temperance, morality and public improvement. The Advance is an Independent paper, but the editor is a strong prohibitionist. The paper is well edited, strictly moral, devoted to the upbuilding of Lane and vicinity, and especially the moral and intellectual features of its society.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES—POTTAWATOMIE TOWNSHIP.

JOHN T. BAKER, farmer and stock-raiser, P. O. Lane, was born in Putnam County, Ind., March 2, 1843, and ten years later removed to Jackson County, Mo., where he resided with his parents for a year, and came with them to Franklin County in October, 1855. His father, Joshua Baker, located in this township, and John T. assisted him in farming until 1868, when he began on his own account. In 1875 he moved on to his present farm, in Section 36, Township 18, Range 20. He has 320 acres, all improved, and is quite extensively engaged in breeding high grades of Short-horn cattle and Poland China hogs. He enlisted August 30, 1862, in Company D, Twelfth Kansas Infantry, and was mustered out in July, 1865. Mr. Baker was Clerk of the Township three terms, and in 1879 was elected a County Commissioner for three years. He was married in Douglas County, Kan., March 4, 1875, to Hattie Ashby. They have a family of two children—Elizabeth and William.

JOSEPH N. BAKER, farmer and stock-raiser, P. O. Lane, was born in Putnam County, Ind., September 24, 1838, and came to Franklin County with his father, Joshua Baker, in the fall of 1855. He assisted his father in farming in the township for some years. In the summer of 1861 he enlisted in Company D, Twelfth Kansas, and served until July, 1865. In the spring of 1867 he moved on to his present farm in Section 31, Township 18, Range 21. He owns 160 acres, all highly improved, and is quite an extensive raiser of cattle and hogs. He has a fine orchard on his place. Mr. Baker was Justice of the Peace for two years, and was elected Trustee of the Township in the spring of 1882. He was married in Miami County, Kan., in the spring of 1867, to Eliza Shear, a native of New York. They have a family of two children—Joshua and Gertie.

E. R. BEESON, of E. R. Beeson & Co., merchants, was born in Richmond, Ind., April 2, 1833, and reared in Highland County, Ohio. In 1850 he emigrated to Canton, Ill., where he was employed as a clerk in mercantile business. He came to Kansas in 1860, located at Osawatomie, and was engaged in freighting and dealing in live stock, traveling in Kansas and other Western States. In 1872 he came to Lane, purchasing the business and stock of D. Holladay. He conducted a general merchandise business for four years, after which he devoted himself to farming and stock business. In December, 1878, he again engaged in business at Lane, in company with S. R. Smith, of Paola. This firm do an extensive business, carrying a stock of $8,000 to supply the demands of their trade.

THOS. J. CROWDER, farmer, P. O. Lane, was born at Springfield, Ill., May 28, 1835, and for some fifteen years carried on a large stock-breeding farm in Sangamon County. In 1872 he went to Nebraska and was engaged in stock-raising and farming in Saunders County. In 1874 he came to Kansas and located the Beulah Colony in Crawford County. He was president of the colony, and remained there engaged in agricultural pursuits over a year, after which he removed to Wyandotte. During the winter months he was engaged in dealing in coal at Kansas City, and in the summer traveled in the interest of emigration for the K. C., L. & S. K. R. R. Co., in which business he was engaged for some four years. Resided then at Lawrence for a year, and during that period located and opened up Bismark Grove, in the interest of the railroad company; then located and resided at Merriam Park, Johnson County, for two years. In April, 1882, he moved to Pottawatomie, Franklin County, and resides a short distance from the town of Lane. He owns in this township eighty acres of land, forty of which he has improved, and is known as Lincoln Park; the balance he farms. Mr. Crowder has also a farm of forty acres in Miami County, and is just about to engage in the breeding of fine stock.

S. W. DEVORE, of Devore & Mellen, real estate and loans, was born in Morrow County, Ohio, and reared on a farm. He learned the trade of carpenter and builder, at Cardington Ohio, and followed it as an occupation. In June, 1861, he enlisted in Company H, Fourth Ohio Infantry, serving three years. Re-enlisted in Company I, One Hundred and Seventy-fourth Ohio Infantry. Was appointed First Sergeant, and six months later promoted to Second Lieutenant, serving one year. He came to Kansas in 1868, located at Paola, and was employed at his trade for two years, after which he came to Franklin County, and for three years followed farming pursuits. Moving into the town of Lane, he again worked at his trade, and in March, 1879, opened a real estate and loan office. The firm name was Walter & Devore. The former retired from the business September 1, 1882, and Morris Mellen was admitted to a partnership.

ERASTUS DICKERSON, farmer and stock-raiser, P. O. Richmond, was born in Sangamon County, Ill., October 10, 1836, and was for some years engaged in agricultural pursuits. In February, 1871, he came to Franklin County and located on his present farm, in Pottawatomie Township. He owns 290 acres of land, and cultivates 150 acres of it. His farm is well improved, and he has a fine residence and orchard on the same. Mr. D. is one of the largest farmers and raisers of stock in this section of country. He was Trustee of the Township for three years, and Clerk for one. Was elected Justice of the Peace in February, 1882.

CHARLES H. GLINKMAN, farmer and stock-raiser, P. O. Lane, was born at Waterloo, Canada, August 22, 1844, where he learned the trade of carpenter and builder. In 1865 he came to the United States and followed his trade in Chicago, St. Louis, and Moberly, Mo. In July, 1870, he came to Franklin County, and located on his present farm, on Section 30, Town 18, Range 21. He owns 278 acres, and is one of the leading farmers and stock-breeders of this Township. On his farm he has a nice residence, amply supplied with water from springs. These springs also supply his barn with water, and are used to supply a large pond, which Mr. G. is about making, in which to breed carp, etc., for table use. He, in connection with his farming pursuits, also at times does considerable work as a carpenter and builder.

HON. LOUIS HENDRICKSON, farmer, P. O. Lane, was born in Jefferson County, Mo., August 19, 1830, where he learned the trade of stone mason, and worked at the same there until 1855, when he moved to Jackson County. In 1857 he joined the Missouri Methodist Episcopal Conference, and preached for four years in Central Missouri. Removed in May, 1861, to Jersey County, Ill., where he was engaged in agricultural pursuits, and also acted as a local preacher until November, 1866, when he came to Kansas, locating in Ottawa. He farmed for a year, then joined the Kansas Methodist Episcopal Conference, and for ten years resided at Osawatomie, Miami County. Was for two years in charge of that circuit, and for eight years acted as a local preacher. In 1868 he embarked in business there as a contractor and builder. Among the many buildings he erected in Osawatomie is the Public Schoolhouse. In 1876 he was elected to the State Legislature, to represent District Thirty. In 1877 he moved to Pottawatomie Township, Franklin County, and engaged in farming pursuits. On his farm he discovered coralline marble, and has built at Lane, from this fine stone, the Public Schoolhouse, Lane Mills, and a magnificent residence for himself. In 1879 he moved to Lane. In July, 1881, was appointed Postmaster at that place, and also about that time engaged in mercantile business, selling out the latter and resigning his postmastership in August, 1882. Mr. Hendrickson is now, in connection with his agricultural pursuits, engaged in conducting a portable sawmill. His residence farm, consisting of 160 acres, adjoins the town of Lane. He owns in the county 270 acres of land, and raises considerable stock.

C. L. KELLEY, grocer, was born at LaGrange, Oldham Co., Ky., in 1853 and during his early years was employed for a short time as a clerk in the mercantile business. In the spring of 1872 he came to Kansas, locating at Louisburg, Miami County; was employed for some six years as a clerk. In 1880 he engaged in the grocery and drug business at that place, continuing until August, 1882, when he sold out and removed to Lane. He at once engaged in this business and has the only exclusive grocery store in this place. Mr. K. has had considerable experience in this line, as his neatly kept place and finely assorted stock will show.

DR. A. J. McINTOSH was born in Hendricks County, Ind., in April, 1832. At the age of sixteen years he began the study of medicine at Jamestown, Ind., remaining with Dr. Smart as a student for five years; afterward continued his studies at the Cincinnati Medical College. In 1853 he began the practice of medicine at Monroe County, Wis., continuing there for five years. In 1857 he came to Kansas, located in Olathe, practicing there until 1862, when he returned to Wisconsin; he was appointed surgeon of the Sixteenth Wisconsin Infantry, serving in that capacity until three years later, after which he practiced at Keokuk, Iowa, for three years. In 1868 he returned to Olathe, practicing his profession there until 1871, when he went to Brosley, Mo., residing on a farm and following his profession. He also attended lectures at the Missouri State Medical College, graduating in March, 1878. In 1879 the doctor removed to Louisburg, Miami County, Kan., and on December 22, 1881, came to Lane. He associated with him in his practice in July, 1882, Dr. J. A. Ambrose. Dr. McIntosh is a member of the Kansas State Medical Society.

JAMES A. MILES, merchant and Postmaster, was born in Platte County, Mo., January 11, 1847, and reared on a farm, and followed farming in that county on his own account, after arriving at the age of maturity. On December 1, 1863, he enlisted in Company E, Sixteenth Kansas and served two years. Mr. Miles came to Kansas in April, 1881, and located in Pottawatomie Township, Franklin County, where, in connection with farming pursuits, he conducted a portable saw mill. On August 5, 1882, he came to Lane and purchased the general merchandise business of L. Hendrickson; although here but a short time, Mr. Miles has a good trade and carries a stock of about $3,500. He was appointed Postmaster at this place, September, 1882.

HORACE J. NEWBERRY, the present proprietor and editor of the Lane Advance, bought out Messrs. Wilber & Winter in June, and took possession July 1, 1882. Was born in Guthrie County, Iowa, November 13, 1855; is a twin, his mate being a girl—name Eunice M. Newberry; has two other sisters, twins—Effie Ann and Emma Jane; also two brothers, Ezra Walter and George Leander, all living. His parents were John Wesley and Mary Newberry—he was born in Washington County, Ohio, February 8, 1832; she was born near Nashville, Tenn., February 16, 1824, maiden name Cooper. Horace J. and Eunice are the oldest of the family. All received a good common school education. Horace worked on the farm until nearly of age, when he learned the painter and paper hanging trade, in which he was successful, being a first-class workman. In 1877 he began corresponding for several newspapers. From Iowa his parents moved to Illinois, thence to Kansas in September, 1865, settling in Miami County. In 1870 they returned to Illinois, and in November, 1876, again moved to Kansas, stopping at Ottawa. From Ottawa they moved to Lane, their present home. Horace was married March 14, 1880, to Miss Lydia H. Allen, of Ohio City, Franklin Co., Kan.; January 20, 1881, a son was born—Horace Elmer. Horace J. has a neat home on the southwest corner of Fifth and Cedar streets, Lane.

HENRY H. PATTON, agent for S. A. Brown & Co., dealers in lumber and grain, was born in Marion County, Ohio, January 25, 1840, and reared on a farm. In July, 1861, he enlisted in Company H, Fourth Ohio Infantry, and served four years, after which he farmed in Marion County until April, 1869, when he came to Kansas, locating at Greeley, Anderson County, since which time he has been interested in farming pursuits. He has an improved farm there of about forty acres. In November, 1881, he moved to Lane and took charge of the lumber yard and business of S. A. Brown & Co., at this place.

HON. JACOB G. REESE, farmer, P. O. Greeley, was born near Eaton, Preble Co., Ohio, November 20, 1825, and was reared there and in Butler County. He became a practical printer and compositor, and in 1847, removed to Greenville, Ohio, where he published the Greenville Banner, a Whig paper, for two years, after which he became associated with E. B. Taylor, and published the Greenville Journal, a Whig and Anti-slavery organ, for one year. He then bought out Mr. Taylor, and continued to publish the Journal for the period of seven years. In March, 1857, he came to Franklin County and located on his present farm, pre-empting the same. He owns 140 acres of land, and is engaged in agriculture, horticulture and stock-raising. Shortly after the outbreak of the war, he recruited Company F, Eleventh Kansas Infantry, which was mustered into service September 11, 1862, and Mr. Reese was at that time elected Captain of the company; eight months later the regiment was changed to cavalry. Capt. Reese was commander of the post at Independence, Mo., for a period of nine months, and also did staff duty for Gen. McKean, acting for four months as Inspector-General and Chief of Cavalry. He participated in the battles of Fort Wayne, Ind. Ter., Cane Hill and Prairie Grove, Ark., resigning on account of ill health, in March, 1865. In 1858, Mr. Reese was elected Chairman of the Board of Township

Trustees, and acted as County Commissioner for one year. Was elected to the State Senate in 1861, and to the House of Representatives in 1865. Mr. Reese was married at Greenville, Ohio, in 1852, to Elenora Stamm, a native of Montgomery County, Ohio. They have one son—Lloyd O. Much of his time is now spent in the congenial employment he finds in the production of articles for the periodical press.

ALBERT SMITH, farmer and stock-raiser, P. O. Lane, was born in Macomb County, Mich., October 4, 1842, and reared on a farm. In the fall of 1865, he came to Franklin County, and has since been engaged in farming and raising stock. In 1867, he moved on to his present farm in Pottawatomie. Mr. Smith owns 198 acres of land, and makes a specialty of raising cattle and hogs. He was married here in August, 1871, to Christina Wilson, a native of Illinois. They have a family of five children all born in this county.

DANIEL K. WATKINS, farmer, P. O. Lane, was born in Montgomery County, Ohio, in November, 1831, removing a few years later to Montgomery County, Ind., where he followed agricultural pursuits. He came to Franklin County March 2, 1857, and pre-empted 160 acres; remaining only a few months, he returned to Indiana. In the fall of 1862 he enlisted in Company K, Eleventh Indiana Infantry, and served twenty-six months, after which he taught school. In the spring of 1866 he returned to Kansas, and was employed on a farm near Ottawa, and in December of that year moved on to his present farm, in Section 30, Township 18, Range 21. He owns 320 acres of land here, all improved, 130 of which are under cultivation, and is also engaged in breeding Short-horn cattle, etc. Mr. Watkins served one term as Trustee of the township. He was married at Ottawa, Kas., in December, 1866, to Mrs. Kinny, widow (formerly Hannah Nofsinger). They have a family of four children.

DR. WILLIS M. WRIGHT was born at Des Moines, Iowa, December 14, 1860. The doctor attended four courses of lectures at the Eclectic Medical Institute, of Cincinnati, Ohio, graduating June 6, 1882. The doctor located at Lane, Franklin Co., Kas., July 15, 1882.

GREENWOOD.

Greenwood Township was organized in 1865. It was originally a part of Ohio Township. The first settlement was made in 1863 by William Nightingale, the Sac and Fox agency having been removed in 1863 to Quenemo, Osage County. Among other settlers who came into the Township soon afterwards were Enos Reynolds, Fred Miller, James Moore, William Crum, George Logan, and Harrison Reed.

The first election was held at Mr. Nightingale's tavern in 1866, and the first schoolhouse, a log one, was built that year. The town of Greenwood is located where the Sac and Fox Agency formerly was. The first agent of the Sac and Foxes was a Mr. James, whose sons have in later times been confounded with the notorious Frank and Jesse James, of Missouri. Perry Fuller succeeded James as agent, and brought about the treaty by which the Indians received their lands in severalty. This treaty provided for the building of houses for the heads of families. Robert S. Stevens secured the contract, and built the houses of stone, that being the most abundant material suited to the purpose. Upon the completion of the houses, the Indians converted them into stables for their ponies, themselves calmly sleeping in the tents as before, with the exception of Keokuk, their chief, and a few others. A number of traders have been located at this agency, among them H. S. Randall, William Pennock, and Thomas McCage.

When the Indians were removed it was determined to start a town. Judge G. B. Greenwood, of Arkansas, then United States Commissioner of Indian Affairs, assisted in making the treaty. Perry Fuller, William Pennock, Thomas McCage, H. S. Randall, H. B. Denman, and Thomas Connelly laid out the town and named it after Judge Greenwood. Two or three houses were built, but the town never prospered, but instead, passed rapidly out of existence.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES—GREENWOOD TOWNSHIP.

DAVID W. BURROWS, farmer, Section 15, P. O. Ottawa, was born in Trumbull County, Ohio, January 1, 1829, and was reared on a farm. He learned the trade of blacksmith and followed it as an occupation in Trumbull and Putnam counties for some twenty-three years. He enlisted October 15, 1861, in Company F, Fourth Ohio Regiment, and served until mustered out in November, 1864. After which he returned to his blacksmith establishment at Ottawa, Putnam Co., Ohio. Mr. Burrows came to Franklin County, Kas., in the fall of 1870, and located on his present farm. He owns eighty acres, all improved, thirty-five of which are in cultivation, and he raises considerable live stock. Mr. Burrows has a fine place. On his farm is a splendid orchard of various kinds of fruit, besides a nice residence, grove, etc. He is also engaged in bee culture, of which he has made quite a success.

JOHN DAVIS, farmer, Section 21, P. O. Pomona, was born in Parke County, Ind., May 1, 1833, and reared on a farm. In February, 1864, he enlisted in Company I, One Hundred and Forty-ninth Indiana Infantry and served nine months, after which he again followed farming pursuits in Parke County. Mr. Davis made his first visit to Kansas in the fall of 1859, and resided for a year in Douglas County, and in March, 1870, returned, locating in Hayes Township, Franklin County, where he farmed for twelve years. During his residence in that district Mr. Davis served one year as Trustee of the Township, one year as Clerk, one year as Treasurer, and also one year as Justice of the Peace. He moved on to his present farm in March, 1882. He owns 320 acres, 125 of which are in cultivation, and he raises considerable Short-horn cattle and Poland-China hogs. His house is one of the old Indian trading posts and was built many years ago. The well on his premises has been in use since about 1844. Mr. Davis was married in Parke County, Ind., in 1856, to Louisa Jerome. They have a family of six children.

J. M. GRIFFIN, farmer, Section 17, P. O. Pomona, was born in Brown County, Ohio, April 10, 1826, and was reared on a farm. In 1851 he removed to Pike County, Ill., where he was engaged for four years in farming, and for six years carried on the mercantile business in Time. He enlisted in August, 1861, in Company E, Twenty-eighth Illinois Infantry and was appointed First Lieutenant, having recruited the company. On January 1, 1862, he was promoted to Captain and served until mustered out, November 8, 1864, after which for two years he conducted a hotel at Time, Pike Co., Ill. Mr. Griffin came to Franklin County, Kas., early in 1869, located in Greenwood Township, and has since followed agricultural pursuits. In 1879 he moved on to his present farm, which consists of 160 acres, all well improved. He has a nice orchard and makes a specialty of raising and dealing in live stock. He is commander of the G. A. R. Post, No. 86, at Pomona. In the fall of 1882 he received the Republican nomination for State Representative of his district.

GEORGE HARRIS, farmer, Section 35, P. O. Homewood, was born at Marietta, Washington Co., Ohio, May 7, 1852, and on June 10, 1859, came with his father, Asa Harris, to Franklin County, Kas., with whom he resided in Centropolis until 1866, when the family moved to the city of Ottawa, and three years later to Greenwood Township. He assisted his father on the farm until 1873, when he embarked in agricultural pursuits on his own account. In 1874 he located on his present farm. He owns eighty acres, all highly improved, and makes a specialty of grain-farming. He has a fine orchard, consisting of two acres of various kinds of fruit trees. Mr. Harris was married in Ottawa, February 13, 1873, to Lucina Oswalt, a native of Ohio. They have a family of three children—Menton R., George O., and Mary E.

JAMES H. RANSOM, merchant, was born at Panama, Chautauqua Co., N. Y., in 1836. He was for some years engaged in the mercantile business, and in February, 1868, came to Kansas. Locating at Burlington he conducted a dairy farm for about a year. Removed to Clinton, Douglas County, and followed agricultural pursuits, in connection with which he conducted saw and grist mills for six years. In 1875 he went to Lawrence and engaged in the coal business, mining for the same at Carbondale. In 1878 he came to Franklin County; located at Williamsburg, where he was engaged in coal-mining for some time, and was also Postmaster for eighteen months. He moved to his present location in the fall of 1881, and engaged in general merchandise business; carries a nice stock of about $2,500, and has a good trade. He owns several coal mines at this place, which yield about 1,000 tons of coal per month, and gives employment to sixty men. Mr. Ransom also owns 791 acres of land, and raises considerable live stock.

HARRISON REED, farmer, Section 16, P. O. Pomona, was born in Virginia in 1815, and reared in Hamilton County, Ohio, where for a time he followed agricultural pursuits, after which he learned the trade of cooper, and worked at it for some years. In 1845 he removed to Schuyler County, Ill., and there he conducted a farm. In 1865 he came to Franklin County, Kas., and located on his present farm. He owns 320 acres of land, 200 of which are in cultivation and also raises considerable live stock. On his premises is a fine orchard of various fruit trees, comprising about seven acres. Mr. Reed is widely known throughout his neighborhood as Deacon Reed. He was one of the organizers of the Mission Baptist Church in this locality, and to-day is one of its most active members.

JAMES L. SMITH, farmer, Section 26, P. O. Ottawa, was born in Green County, Ky., March 23, 1845, and reared on a farm. He came to Franklin County, Kas., in 1865, and located at Homewood, but remained only a few months, returning to his home in Kentucky. He returned again to Franklin County in March, 1866; was employed at general farm work near Homewood, and in 1869 located on his present farm. He owns 140 acres of land, 70 of which are under cultivation, and he is quite an extensive raiser of live stock. He has a nice orchard of about two acres, and produces considerable fruit. Mr. Smith was married at Ottawa, Kas., in July, 1868, to Emily A. Dyle, of Virginia. This union has been blessed with a son—William Leonard.

PEORIA.

Up to 1857 Peoria Township belonged to the Peorias, Weas and Piankeshaws. In April of that year the land was thrown upon the market. Previous to that time, a few persons had entered the Township in anticipation of that event, among them Alexander Rice, Dr. Cusick, Wm. Adkins, Madison Osborne, S. R. Smiley and J. McLain. Upon being offered, the land was nearly all immediately bought up at prices ranging from $1.25 to $2.50 per acre. During the year 1857, Albert Johnson settled and opened a store, and around his store gathered the nucleus of the future town of Peoria. It is beautifully situated on a promontory projecting between the valleys of Hickory Creek and that of the Marais des Cygnes. Albert Johnson was appointed first Postmaster, and also first Assessor, the latter appointment being made by the County Board. In the year 1859 a strife sprang up for the possession of the County seat. It was then at Minneola; Peoria and Mt. Vernon contended for it against Minneola and Ohio City, at the general election. Peoria was successful. Minneola forbade the removal, and a law suit followed in which Minneola was successful as elsewhere detailed.

The first election in Peoria was held in the fall of 1857, at which there was cast but one Democratic vote. During this year a Mr. Fisher, instigated by interested parties, jumped the claim of a Mr. Wright. As the quickest way of settling the difficulty Wright shot Fisher, killing him instantly. The instigators of the jumping laid the case before the Secretary of the Territory. The Secretary replied that Franklin County had a Sheriff recently appointed, and suggested that it was the Sheriff's duty to attend to cases of that kind. By an examination of the records it was found that Wright was himself Sheriff of the County. It was then concluded politic to drop the whole affair.

The first Free-state meeting in the County was held at Peoria, at which P. P. Elder was nominated for Prosecuting Attorney, and Judge Curtis for Delegate to the Territorial Convention whose duty it was to nominate a Delegate to Congress.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.—OHIO TOWNSHIP.

HON. WILLIAM BATEMAN, of Bateman & Johnson, merchants, came to Kansas in March, 1857, and located at Peoria, Franklin County, and has since been engaged in raising stock and farming. In 1860 he engaged in mercantile business, and about a year later admitted his present partner, A. Johnson. They carry a stock of about $2,500, and are largely interested in farming and dealing in live stock. They own as a firm 1,200 acres of land in this county, 815 of which are under cultivation. Mr. B. was Postmaster at this place from 1862 to 1872, and was elected to the State Legislature in the latter year. He was married at Peoria, in the spring of 1865, to Margaret Hunt. They have five children.

CHARLES BOSWORTH, farmer, P. O. Wellsville, was born in Trumbull County, Ohio, in 1824, where he followed agricultural pursuits and was also for some years engaged in the lumber business in Portage and Trumbull counties. He came to Franklin County in July, 1869, and located on his present farm, on Section 22, Township 16, Range 21. He is a large land owner, and one of the most extensive farmers in this county. He owns in Franklin County 1,650 acres, and in Miami County 880 acres, and cultivates in all 1,500 acres, besides which he feeds and fattens large numbers of cattle and hogs for the Eastern markets. On his residence farm is a beautiful home and a good orchard of five acres, besides barn, etc. Has also on his land six houses, etc., for the use of his tenants. Mr. Bosworth is assisted in conducting his farming interests by his son Granville.

DAVID BURTON, farmer, P. O. Peoria, was born in Virginia, September 12, 1812, removing a year later with his parents to Lawrence County, Ind., where he learned the trade of wagon-maker. At the age of twenty-seven he moved to St. Clair County, Mo., and engaged in farming. About 1850 he went to Lafayette County, and about four years conducted a wagon shop. He came to Kansas in September, 1854, located in Douglas County, and was employed at general farm work, and participated in the troubles of 1856, taking an active part with the Free-state advocates. In March, 1857, he located on his present farm in Peoria. He has 290 acres of land, and is also engaged to some extent in breeding and raising hogs. Was also from 1858 to 1860 engaged in mercantile business at this place. Mr. Burton has been Treasurer of the township for the past six years. He was married in Lawrence County, Ind., in 1833, to Mary A. Fentress, who died in 1847, leaving seven children. He was married again in St. Clair County, Mo., in September, 1858, to Martha P. Green. Mr. Burton lost a son, Charles E., in the Union cause during the war.

HAROLD HOWARD, farmer, P.O. Peoria, was born in Chautauqua County, N. Y., February 22, 1830. Six years later his parents emigrated to Kalamazoo County, Mich., and the subject of this sketch followed farming pursuits in that county up to July, 1855, when he came to Kansas, residing in Leavenworth County; pursued farming for about six years. He took an active part in the troubles of 1856, as a supporter of the Free-state cause. About 1861 he moved to Miami County, where he continued to conduct a farm until the fall of 1865, when he came to Franklin County, locating on his present farm in Peoria. He owns between eight and nine hundred acres, 700 of which are in cultivation. Mr. H. is one of the most extensive grain growers in this county. Shortly after his arrival here he built a saw-mill, and conducted it for about fourteen years, in connection with his farming pursuits. During the war he served in the State Militia. Mr. H. was married in Kalamazoo, Mich., in March, 1864, to Isabel Burney. They have four children—Carrie, Clarence, Emma and Nellie.

HARMON IMES, merchant, was born in Lawrence County, Ohio, August 26, 1834. His parents removed to Stark County, Ill., thirteen years later, and he was reared there on a farm, and for ten years carried on a farm for himself. In November, 1865, he came to Franklin County, and located on a farm, since which time he has been engaged in farming and raising stock. In the summer of 1880 the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company built a station on his farm, which is now called Larimore Station, and Mr. Imes was appointed agent, a position which he still occupies. In November, 1880, he embarked in the mercantile business, and now has quite a nice trade throughout the surrounding country. He carries a stock of about $2,000. He was appointed Postmaster of this place in August, 1881. Mr. Imes owns in this county 260 acres of farming land, and the entire town site of Larimore. He was married in Stark County, Ill., February 24, 1861, to Lydia Shade. They have a family of seven children, five of whom were born in this State.

ALFRED JOHNSON, of Bateman & Johnson, merchants, was born in Randolph County, Ind., August 16, 1833. He learned trade of plasterer, and followed that occupation, in connection with farming pursuits for a livelihood. In April, 1856, he came to Kansas, locating in Douglas County, and took an active hand in the troubles of 1856, supporting the Free-state party. In March, 1857, he came to Franklin County, and was one of the organizers of the town site of Peoria, where he has since resided. He was the first to engage in mercantile business at this place, carrying a stock of general merchandise up to 1859. In 1861 he became associated with his present partner, William Bateman. In June, 1862, Mr. J. was appointed a recruiting officer, and recruited Company D, of the Twelfth Kansas Infantry of which he was elected Second Lieutenant. Was promoted to First Lieutenant in fall of 1863, and to Captain early in 1865. Was mustered out in July, 1865. The firm own 1,200 acres of land, and are largely engaged in farming and raising cattle. Mr. Johnson was appointed Postmaster at this place in 1857; held it two years. Was re-appointed in 1872, and is the present incumbent. He was married in Peoria, November 27, 1879, to Florence M. Carey. They have two children—Lela and one infant daughter.

DAVID JOHNSON, farmer and dealer in hogs, P. O. Peoria, was born in West Virginia, September 22, 1819, and seven years later his parents moved to Randolph County, Ind. At twenty-one years of age he learned trade of plasterer, and in connection with farming pursuits, followed that occupation for a livelihood in that county up to September, 1860, when he came to Franklin County, locating in the town of Peoria. He farmed and carried on a hotel business for about twenty-one years. In 1881 he moved on to his present farm in Peoria Township. Mr. Johnson has 326 acres of land in the county, is an enterprising farmer, and is also engaged in raising and dealing in hogs, making a specialty of producing the Berkshire breed. During the war he served in the Kansas State Militia. The subject of our sketch was married in Randolph County, Ind., March 12, 1853, to Jane B. Thompson. They have two children—Catherine, now Mrs. George S. Fisher, and John T.

JOHN F. LAMB, farmer and stock raiser, P. O. Wellsville, was born in Lycoming County, Pa., July 17, 1833, and moved with his parents the same year to La Salle County, Ill., where he was reared on a farm, and was for three years engaged in grain business, at Ottawa, Ill., in firm of Lamb & Shuler, in connection with agricultural pursuits. He came to Franklin County, October, 3, 1871, and located on his present farm in Peoria Township. Mr. Lamb owns 720 acres of land, 300 of which are under cultivation, and he is an extensive raiser of live stock. He was elected a Commissioner of Franklin County in 1877, served two years, and was re-elected in 1880 for a three year's term.

EDMUND LISTER, farmer and stock breeder, P. O. Peoria, was born in Lincolnshire, England, February 16, 1831, and reared on a farm. In 1851 he emigrated to Will County, Ill., where he farmed for three years. In 1854 he crossed the Plains to California, remaining on the Pacific Slope for four years, engaged principally in mining. He came to Franklin County in September, 1859, and purchased 160 acres in Peoria Township, on which he has since resided. Mr. Lister is an enterprising farmer, now owns in this county 640 acres of improved land, 200 of which he devotes to stock raising purposes. He is engaged in raising cattle of the graded Durham class, draught horses, and Cottswold sheep.

BEREA.

Rev J. N. Smith brought into the southern part of the county, in 1857, a small body of United Presbyterians, whom he gathered into a church under the name of the "Berean." Their first house of worship was erected in 1858, of native lumber. This gave place in 1870 to a larger and better frame building which cost $1,400. The town was laid out in 1858, but had no growth as a town. A postoffice was established there in 1863. The Associate Presbyterians built a church in 1867. These two churches, a store built by the town company, a schoolhouse, built in 1861, and a half dozen houses well scattered, constituted the town. When in 1870 the postoffice was removed to Richmond, a new railroad town, three miles west, this ended the town, but the settlement has been from the first one of the most thrifty, straightforward imaginable, with a vote from sixty to eighty always cast solid on the side of temperance, education and every good cause

The first minister was Rev. J. N. Smith. The first child born, his son, Garrett Smith. William Aikin taught the first school in the winter of 1857–58. The first town officers were Rev. J. N. Smith, Alexander Garrett and M. L. Carson. Each church has now a membership of seventy.

Richmond was named after J. C. Richmond, who laid out the town in 1870, on the completion of the L. L. & S. Railroad to that point. It is the cenetr of considerable trade, although the village is very small. There are two churches, a Presbyterian, organized in 1871 by Rev. Mr. Lyman, with a present membership of fifty, and a Methodist Episcopal Church, organized in 1877, by Rev. Mr. Feables, with a membership of twenty-five. There are also a good school-house, one large dry goods and grocery store, a church, depot building and boarding house, hotel, three or four small shops, etc., etc.

Norwood is a small settlement in the northern part of Franklin County, on the Kansas City, Lawrence & Southern Railroad, situated on level prairie. It was named after Henry Ward Beecher's novel of that name. The postoffice was established in 1873, D. W. Moore appointed first Postmaster. Balch & Hedrich opened a store in 1878. Norwood contains one store, the postoffice and about forty inhabitants.

Larimore is a small town on the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railroad about six miles southeast of Ottawa.

Rantoul is also a small station on the same road about seven miles further to the southeast. One mile west of this town old John Brown built the cabin for Orson Day, and a few miles south is where, in February, 1855, John Brown, Jr., Jason Brown, Owen Brown, Frederick Brown and Salmon Brown selected claims, and erected cabins.

He owns ninety-three acres, all well improved but sixteen acres, which is in timber. He has a fine orchard, and also raises considerable stock. From 1859 to 1862 he also conducted a saw and grist mill in this neighborhood, and during the war served in the State Militia. He was for some six years Justice of the Peace. Mr. Carson was married in Monroe County, Ind., September 30, 1840, to Mary E. Wylie. They have a family of five children—Samuel F., John D., Emily A. James N. and Jonathan M.

SAMUEL F. CARSON, farmer and stock-raiser, P. O. Richmond, was born in Monroe County, Ind., January 6, 1845, and came to Franklin County, Kan., with his father in September, 1857, and assisted him in farming in this township. At the outbreak of the war he was for six months in the employ of the United States Government as a teamster, and on March 6, 1862, enlisted in Company A, Third Kansas Infantry, and two months later was mustered into Company C, Tenth Kansas Infantry, serving until March 5, 1865, after which he once more gave his attention to agricultural pursuits. He moved on to his present farm in November, 1870. He has forty-six acres in a high state of cultivation, a fine orchard of about 200 trees, all varieties of fruit, and makes a specialty of breeding Poland-China hogs. He also owns twenty-seven acres of timber land. Mr. Carson was married in Franklin County, November 28, 1867, to Margaret Garrett. They have a family of four children—Celia D., Fannie M., Alice J. and Harry M.

ANDREW G. CUNNINGHAM, farmer and stock-raiser, P. O. Richmond, was born in Putnam County, Ind., September 25, 1845, and in April, 1859, came to Franklin County, Kan., with his father, John A. Cunningham, whom he assisted in farming in this township for several years. Was for several years in the employ of the United States Government during the war as teamster, and also served some time in the Kansas State Militia. In the spring of 1870 he moved on to his present farm on Section 14, Township 19, Range 20. He owns ninety acres, all improved, and is principally engaged in grain farming. He has a nice orchard, consisting of two acres of trees of various fruits. Mr. Cunningham was married in Ottawa, October 18, 1870, to Matilda Wynkoop. They have five children—Susan, David, Enoch, Boyd, and Theresa.

JOHN W. CUNNINGHAM, farmer and stock-raiser, P. O. Richmond, was born in Putnam County, Ind., October 18, 1837, and reared on a farm. He came to Franklin County, Kan., in the spring of 1859, and farmed with his father for some years. He enlisted July 24, 1861, and was mustered into Company C, Tenth Kansas Infantry in January, 1862, serving until August, 1864, after which he farmed for some years. In 1877 he moved to Ottawa and conducted an express and transfer business. In the spring of 1881 he returned to Richmond Township and located on his present farm. C., January 17, 1830, and six years later emigrated with his parents to East Tennessee, where he was reared on the Big Spring farm in Blount County. In October, 1854, he removed to White County, Ill., farmed for a year, and then went to Washington County, Iowa, where he was engaged in agricultural pursuits. He came to Franklin County, Kan., May 1, 1858, and pre-empted his present farm. He has 160 acres all highly improved, with orchards, barns, and a fine residence. He is principally engaged in raising and fattening hogs and cattle. He also owns another farm of 160 acres three miles northwest from his home farm, and sixteen acres of timbered land in Anderson County, for the use of the home farm. Mr. Endsley served in the Kansas State Militia during the late war, and was at the battle at Westport, Mo. He was at Gardner, Johnston Co., Kan., on the night it was sacked by guerrillas from Missouri, and had to succumb when their clicking locks and glittering carbines were brought to bear upon him. Mr. Endsley was Justice of the Peace for four years, from March, 1867, to March, 1871. In 1873 and 1874, he was Trustee of the township. He has since 1876, taken meteorological observations daily in the locality. He was married in East Tennessee, March 4, 1852, to Hetta Allen. They have had a family of four children—James A., Isaac A., John K., who died in 1878, at the age of twenty-one years, and Nelson S.

G. W. HARSHBERGER, merchant, Richmond, is a native of Bedford County, Penn. His parents emigrated to Lanark, Carroll Co., Ill., when he was very young, and here he was for five years employed as a clerk in mercantile business. He came to Franklin County, Kan., in March, 1871, located at Richmond, and at once established himself in general merchandise business, with a stock of about $1,200. His trade has increased yearly until he is now compelled to carry a stock of about $6,000, to supply the demands of his business; he was also agent for the K. C. L. & S. K. R. R. Co. until March 15, 1881. He was appointed Postmaster at this place in the fall of 1871. In 1875, he was elected Treasurer of the township, and has been re-elected yearly since.

JAMES L. HENDERSON, farmer and stock-raiser, P. O. Richmond, was born in Guernsey County, Ohio, in 1835, and fourteen years later removed with parents to Mercer County, Ill., and was reared on a farm. He owns 160 acres, 150 of which are under cultivation. He is quite an extensive breeder of Berkshire hogs and fattens considerable cattle for the Eastern markets. On his place is a fine orchard, consisting of 300 trees of various kinds of fruit.

ELIJAH PERKINS, farmer and stock-raiser, P. O. Richmond, was born in Bath County, Ky., November 13, 1833, and at eighteen years of age moved to Park County, Ind., where he followed agricultural pursuits. He came to Franklin County, in November, 1867, farmed in Harrison Township twelve years, in Pottawatomie a year, after which he moved on to his present farm in Richmond Township. He owns 160 acres, all well improved; has an orchard of eight acres, and is engaged in raising and fattening cattle for the Eastern markets. Mr. Perkins was married in Parke County, Ind., February 14, 1854, to Sarah E. Magill. They have a family of nine children living, and two dead.

FRANCIS M. SHEPHERD, farmer and stock-raiser, P. O. Richmond, was born in Jacksonville, Ill., February 20 1833, and reared on a farm, also worked as a carpenter. In July, 1862, he enlisted in Company F, One Hundred and Twenty-second Illinois Infantry, and served three years. He came to Franklin County, Kan., in October, 1868, and farmed for some four years near Ottawa. In the spring of 1872, he moved on to his present farm in Richmond Township. He owns 136 acres, all well improved, and raises considerable live stock, making a specialty of breeding thoroughbred Short-horn cattle. Mr. S. is considered one of the enterprising farmers of this township. He was married in Carlinville, Ill., in the spring of 1868, to Kate Cobb.

WILLIAM E. SPEARS, farmer and stock raiser, P. O. Richmond, was born at Petersburg, Menard Co., Ill., in 1842, and reared on a farm. In the fall of 1862 he enlisted in Company F, One Hundred and Fourteenth Illinois Infantry. At the retreat from the battle of Guntown Miss., in July, 1864, he was taken prisoner and imprisoned for three months in Andersonville, and two weeks in Mobile prisons. He was mustered out of the service August 20, 1865, after which he conducted a stock farm in Menard County. In March, 1869, he came to Franklin County, Kas., and located at Ottawa, and was for two and a half years engaged in the livery business. In 1873 he purchased and located on his present farm in Richmond Township. He owns 440 acres, fifty acres of it in timber, 175 under cultivation, and five to six acres in an orchard, and the balance in pasture, etc. He is a large raiser of live stock. Mr. Spears was for several years Justice of the Peace, Trustee of the Township for two years, and Clerk of the same one year. He was married in Montgomery County, Ill., in 1877, to Susie M. Hostetter. They have two children, Edwin and Arthur.

CUTLER TOWNSHIP.

FRANK BOWKER, farmer, P. O. Ottawa, was born in England in 1832, and two years later emigrated with his parents to Jersey County, Ill., where he was reared on a farm and after reaching the age of maturity followed farming as an occupation. In the spring of 1865 he came to Kansas, and located on his present farm, consisting of 148 acres in Cutler Township. Mr. Bowker is quite extensively engaged in raising cattle and hogs.

GEORGE W. CARTZDAFNER, farmer, P. O. Rantoul, Franklin Co., Kas., was born in Catoctin Valley, Frederick Co., Md., January 25, 1828, and was reared on a farm. At the age of twenty-one he immigrated to Franklin County, O., and for nearly two years conducted a stationary engine, after which he gave his attention to farming pursuits. In the fall of 1866 he came to Franklin County, Kas., and located in Harrison Township, where he improved a farm and resided on it for nine years. Was Township Clerk the two first terms and afterward Treasurer for one term. In 1876 he removed to his present farm in Cutler Township, and has resided here since. He has about 160 acres, all well improved, and on his place is a fine orchard and vineyard. He is quite extensively engaged in raising live stock. Mr. Cartzdafner was nominated on the Greenback ticket in the fall of 1882, for County Commissioner. He was married in Delaware County, O., October 5, 1854, to Martha Guy. They have a family of five children, John M., Amasa H., Charles M., Frank D., and Florence M.

QUINCY D. COLE, farmer, P. O. Ottawa, was born in Montpelier, Vt., in June, 1822, and was reared on a farm. Some years later he removed to Jefferson County, Wis., and engaged in the manufacture of furniture. In 1849 he crossed the plains to California and remained there about two and one-half years engaged in various enterprises, after which he returned to Wisconsin and engaged in the manufacture of furniture until 1859, when he went back to Vermont and followed farming pursuits for some seven years and then resided in Chicago for a short time. In October, 1867, he came to Franklin County and was for a year engaged in dealing in live stock at Ottawa. In 1868 he moved to his present farm. Mr. Cole has 320 acres of land, all improved, and is extensively engaged in raising cattle for the Eastern markets. He was married in Jefferson County, Wis., in July, 1851, to Caroline Waldo. They have four children—Arthur A., Willie D., Frank L., and Luna A.

DANIEL C. CUTLER, farmer, P. O. Rantoul, was born on the Muskingum river, Ohio, February 20, 1799. Seven years later his parents moved to Hamilton, Essex Co., Mass.

About 1816 he returned to Ohio and engaged in farming pursuits. In 1855 he sold his place and went to Adair County, Iowa. Farmed for two years, and in April, 1857, came to Franklin County, Kas., locating on his present farm. Has resided here since. The Township of Cutler is named after his wife. Mr. Cutler owns 1,000 acres of land in this county and is one of our largest farmers. His business is managed entirely by his son. On his place is a fine orchard, he being one of the most extensive fruit growers of the county. He was about the first Postmaster appointed in this part of the country, and was placed in charge of the Rantoul postoffice in 1859 and held it for several years. He was also a County Commissioner during 1859 and 1860. Mr. Cutler was married November 5, 1834, to Betsey Larkin, who was born in Meigs County, Ohio, August 8, 1806. They have one son, Charles C., who was born August 23, 1835. The Cutlers are widely known throughout the country for their hospitality, and they give a hearty welcome to the stranger.

E. D. HAWLEY, farmer and stock-raiser, P. O. Rantoul, was born in Schuyler County, N. Y., October 26, 1839, and reared on a farm; afterwards followed mercantile business there for four years. In the fall of 1867 he came to Kansas, and located on his present farm in Cutler Township. He has 160 acres of land, on which he has erected a fine stone house, and has a fine fruit orchard of about four acres. He is also engaged in raising cattle and hogs. In 1876 Mr. Hawley was appointed agent for Messrs. Reyburn, Hunter & Co., of Philadelphia, manufacturers and dealers in lightning rods, which firm he still represents. He was married in Yates County, N. Y., to Mary Roberts, who died, leaving no offspring. He was married there again about 1872, to Nettie Bartholomew, and they have a family of three children—Mary L., Cora A. and Charles R.

S. A. HESTER, farmer, P. O. Rantoul, was born in Fleming County, Ky., February 4, 1834. His parents removed when he was young to Jones County, Iowa, and he was reared there on a farm. He came to Franklin County March 22, 1857, and located in this Township and farmed for four years, then went to Douglas County, returning eleven months later he located on his present farm. Mr. Hester enlisted in June, 1862, in Company C, Second Kansas Cavalry, serving five months, then enlisted in the Tenth Kansas State Militia, in Kansas Cavalry, serving until the war closed. After the war he was also, in connection with his farming pursuits, engaged in conducting a sawmill for several years. He has 195 acres in the county, and is quite extensively engaged in raising thorough-bred Short-horn and graded cattle and Poland-China hogs. In February, 1879, Mr. Hester went to Custer County, Col., and became interested in mining. He is now quite extensively engaged in gold and silver quartz mines in that region, and makes frequent trips there in behalf of those interests. Mr. Hester was married in Cutler Township, in 1858, to Mary E. Perkins. She died in 1869, leaving three children—Mary E., Zoa and Juda. He was married again here, in 1870, to Olive E. Bartram, and they have five children—Cora, Milo C., Harry, Zetta G. and Scott A. The subject of our sketch was Treasurer of Peoria Township for five years, and Trustee of Cutler Township for five years. In 1880 he received the nomination for Sheriff of the county, on the Greenback ticket, and lost the election by a very small majority.

SIMEON H. MERRILL, M. D., Rantoul, is a native of Dover, Maine. He studied medicine and graduated at Pittsfield College, Mass., in 1862, and at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., in 1863. The Doctor also passed examinations at Bellevue School of Medicine, Twenty-sixth street, New York, and School of Physicians and Surgeons, at Twenty-third street, New York. During the war he was appointed Assistant-Surgeon in the U. S. A., and did service for some sixteen months in the military hospital, at Augusta, and was for some years engaged in the practice of his profession at Jefferson, Me. The doctor came to Franklin County, Kan., in January, 1868, and located on his present farm one and a half miles south of the village of Rantoul, and in connection with his agricultural pursuits, continues to practice medicine. He owns some 400 acres of land, and is quite an extensive raiser of stock. He is assisted in the management of his farm by his son, George S.

THOMAS G. STEWART, P. O. Ottawa, breeder of Short-horn cattle, was born in Washington County, Pa., in 1821. Ten years later his parents moved to Virginia, where he was reared on a farm. In 1848 he moved to Warren County, Ill., where he followed agricultural pursuits, and in the fall of 1866 emigrated to Kansas, locating in Douglas County. He farmed for four years, and in the spring of 1870 came to Franklin County, locating on his present farm in Cutler Township. He owns 240 acres of land, and is engaged in breeding Short-horn cattle, Berkshire hogs, and Norman draught horses. Several of his Short-horn cattle took premiums and sweepstakes at the Franklin County Fairs of 1881 and 82. He has on his place a fine orchard of about eleven acres, and a beautiful grove of cedars. Mr. Stewart is considered one of the enterprising men of the county.

A. D. REED, farmer, P. O. Rantoul, was born in Wyandotte County, Ohio, January 8, 1834, and reared on a farm. Removed to Iowa in 1854, and came to Kansas in the fall of 1855, with his father, Robert Reed, who still resides here. The subject of our sketch settled on his present farm, in Cutler Township, Franklin County, in the spring of 1856, and has resided on it since. He owns 240 acres of improved land, and is quite extensively engaged in raising, cattle, sheep, and hogs. During the late war Mr. Reed served in the State Militia. He was married in Franklin County, Kas., October 30, 1866, to Myra T. Mitchell, and they have a family of three children—Stella, Vincent M., and Jessie.

BYRON H. REED, stock-raiser, P.O. Rantoul, was born in Fairfield County, Ohio, December 13, 1831, and reared on a farm. In 1854 he removed to Iowa, and came to Kansas in the fall of 1855, locating in Franklin County, near here, and resided with his father, Robert Reed. About 1872 he purchased his present farm, but did not move his family on to it until 1878. He has 228 acres of land, and makes a specialty of dealing in and raising live stock. He made a trip to Denver, Col., a few years ago, and is interested in mining pursuits in that State. Mr. Reed also corresponds for several of our leading Western newspapers. During the war he served in Company D, Twelfth Kansas Infantry as a private. He was tendered a commission several times, but preferred to remain in the ranks. He was married at Paola, Kas., July 26, 1877, to Annie V. Denison. They have a family of two children—Harold B. and Albert E.

QUINCY A. SEYMOUR, raiser and shipper of live stock, P. O. Rantoul, was born in Licking County, Ohio, November 15, 1845, and came to Franklin County in October, 1857, locating with his father, Benjamin J., at this place. His father died in the March following, and Quincy lived on the farm with his mother until March, 1861, when he enlisted in the Second Battalion M. S. M., serving until the battalion was mustered out a year later. He then teamed for the Government eight months, after which he purchased a team, and was for about three years engaged in breaking prairie. At the age of twenty years he purchased eighty acres of land in this neighborhood and engaged in farming and stock-raising. In 1882 he moved to his present place of residence and succeeded in having the M. P. R. R. Co. place the Rantoul station on his land. He resides within a few rods of the same, which gives him splendid facilities for shipping his stock. In 1860 Mr. Seymour had little or no means, and worked for his board at Osawatomie Miami County. He owns now 410 acres of improved land; is the sole owner of the town-site of Rantoul, and is one of the largest stock-dealers in the county. Mr. Seymour was married in this county in March, 1868, to Martha E. Wise. They have two living children—Frankie and Jimmie; and one deceased—Charlie.

HAYES TOWNSHIP.

OLIVER J. BODLEY, farmer and stock-raiser, P. O. Ottawa, was born in Richland County, Ohio, May 26, 1836, and when a youth removed to Bureau County, Ill., where he was engaged in agricultural pursuits and stock-raising; also did considerable business in teaming and grading. He came to Franklin County, November 3, 1878; was for a time engaged in coal-mining at Williamsburg. In March, 1879, he moved on to his present farm, in Hayes Township. Mr. Bodley is one of the leading farmers in the county, and is quite extensively engaged in stock-raising. He uses about 850 acres of land, of which he cultivates 400 acres; the balance is used for stock purposes.

JOHN COPPLE, farmer, Section 23, P. O. Norwood, was born in Clark County, Ind., March 31, 1835, and reared on a farm. He came to Kansas in November, 1854, and for two years resided in Leavenworth County. Early in 1857 he came to Franklin County and pre-empted 160 acres of land, on which he still resides. He now owns 215 acres, 115 of which are in cultivation, and he is also largely engaged in raising live stock. In 1874 Mr. Copple built on his farm a handsome residence, at a cost of about $1,000; and he has a capacious barn, with a stone foundation, which cost about $1,400. He was married in Leavenworth County, Kas., in 1858, to Sarah E. Rasdall. They have three children—Melinda F., Laura, and Jacob.

E. W. HUME, farmer, Section 1, Township 16, Range 19, P. O. Ottawa, was born in Utica, N. Y.; and nine years later, his parents emigrated to Grundy County, Ill., where he was reared on a farm. He enlisted August 1, 1861, in Company G, Thirty-sixth Illinois Infantry, and was mustered out as Sergeant October 15, 1864. Mr. Hume was taken prisoner at the battle of Murfreesboro, January, 1863, but was paroled shortly afterwards. After the war, he followed agricultural pursuits in Grundy County. He came to Franklin County, Kan., in January, 1872; resided for one year in Ottawa Township, and then located on his present farm. He owns 560 acres of land, all improved, and cultivates 160 acres. His principal business is stock-raising, making a specialty of graded Short-horn cattle and Poland-China hogs. He also has a good orchard of about four hundred trees. Mr. Hume held the office of Clerk one year, Trustee of this township for two years, and in 1877 received the Democratic nomination for Sheriff of the county. That party being in the minority, in this county, he was not elected.

NELSON MERCHANT, farmer, P. O. Media, was born at Lyons, Wayne County, N. Y., May 24, 1830, and was reared on a farm. In December, 1857, he came to Franklin County, and pre-empted 160 acres in Hayes Township, on which he still resides. He owns 320 acres in this county, all improved, and is quite an extensive farmer and breeder of stock. He was Justice of the Peace at this place for sixteen consecutive years, Assistant-Assessor of Franklin County for several years, Engrossing Clerk in the State Legislature in 1868, and Sergeant-at-Arms in the State Senate in 1869 and 1870. Mr. Merchant served in the Kansas State Militia during the war. He was married in Wayne County, N. Y., January 29, 1851, to Julia A. Griffith, and they have a family of six children—Herschel N., Lydia E., Nettie L., Foster P., Clarence M. and Charles.

JAMES A. PURDY, agent K. C. L. & S. K. R. R. Co., LeLoup, was born at Hillsboro, Ohio, January 15, 1835. His father was a merchant, and for some years the subject of our sketch followed mercantile business as a clerk, and was for ten years engaged in business for himself at Newmarket, Highland Co., Ohio. In 1862, he removed to Illinois, farmed for some three years in Edgar County and nine years in Douglas County; was then located for two years at Mattoon Ill., employed as collector for the Howe S. M. Co. In June, 1876, he came to Franklin County; located at Pomona, and was for two years engaged in agricultural pursuits; in December, 1878, he came to LeLoup; was appointed station agent, as before mentioned; agent for the Adams Express Co., and Postmaster March 14, 1879. He has also for the past four years been engaged in dealing in grain and baling hay. The style of the firm in this business is Purdy & Mundy. They are also extensively engaged in farming and stock-raising.

A. C. SHINN, farmer, P. O. Ottawa, was born in West Virginia, and was reared on a farm in Hancock County, Ill. In August, 1862, he enlisted in Company G, Twelfth Illinois Cavalry, serving until mustered out in June, 1865. He and wife came overland through Missouri to Kansas in February, 1866, locating on his present farm in Hayes Township, Franklin County. He is the owner of 400 acres of improved land, and is engaged in farming, stock-raising and fruit-growing. Mr. Shinn is one of the leading farmers in this county, and has served two years as Vice-President and two as President of the Franklin County Agricultural Society.

WILLIAM SLATER, farmer, Section 35 and 36, P. O. Norwood; is a native of England, and previous to coming to Kansas, he was for twenty-five years engaged in agricultural pursuits in Grundy County, Ill. He came to Franklin County, March 1, 1882, and located on his present farm. He has 557 acres of land all improved, 270 of which are under cultivation. His principal business is stock-raising; on his place is a fine orchard of ten acres; he is assisted in his business by his son, Alfred Slater, who is a partner in the land.

SAMUEL K. WICKARD, farmer, Section 19, P. O. Media; was born in Parke County, Ind., May 7, 1825, and when very young, his parents emigrated to Butler County, Ohio, where he was brought up in the business of agriculture. His educational advantages were those of the common school; howevar his application to books was such that at the age of nineteen he became one of the popular teachers in the public schools in his county. Continued in the business for seven years during the winter seasons, the summers he spent on the farm with his father. He early embraced the Christian religion and has been a faithful advocate of the doctrine of the Church of Christ ever since, and leaving the impression wherever he has been of a faithful Christian worker. He was married in the year 1850 to Mary E. Bridge, of Butler County, Ohio, and in January 1855, moved to Carroll County, Ind., where he engaged in the business of agriculture. After four years of great success, he, in consequence of the decease of his wife, returned to Butler County, Ohio, and bought a farm and began the business of shipping stock and grain in connection with his farming. In 1869 in company with three other gentlemen, purchased a rotary saw mill and engaged in the manufacture of lumber under the firm name of Wickard, Crane & Co.; continued in this business for seven years, adding thereto the manufacture of ditching tiles, continuing his shipping business, from the station on the Cincinnati & Indianapolis Junction R. R., known as Ogles station, near Oxford, Ohio. In 1863 he assisted in recruiting a company of 100 men for the Sixty-ninth Ohio National Guards, Thomas Moor, Colonel, and was elected Captain by an unanimous vote of the company. After about one year's drill, in obedience to the President's call for the Hundred Days' men of Ohio, they were mustered into the service in May, 1864, as Company I, One Hundred and Sixty-seventh Regiment, Ohio National Guards. They served four months, were permitted to return home with their arms in September, 1864, in time to see that the draft was quietly executed in their county, there having been organized resistance threatened. In 1869, Mr. W. sold out his entire effects and came to Franklin County, Kan., arriving at Ottawa, May 2. His intention was to purchase a stock-ranch somewhere in the State and engage in the cattle business, but his plans were very suddenly changed, by a Providential interference, in the sickness of his family and the decease of his wife and youngest child. He then concluded to locate in Ottawa and engage in the grocery business, which he did under the firm name of S. K. Wickard & Co.; his partner was a nephew of his, who had a small interest with him. After continuing the business successfully for two years, he decided that he liked the country better than the city, and in 1871, he moved to the farm, where he now lives, and since that time he has confined himself chiefly to agricultural pursuits; he has 267 acres, all under fence and mostly under good cultivation. In politics, Mr. Wickard was a staunch Republican, ever since the organization of the party, till about 1872, when he became dissatisfied and allied himself with the party of Reform, or Greenback party, and in 1873 he received the nomination of the party for County Treasurer; losing the election by only sixty-eight votes, and getting all the votes in his precinct, except two. In September, 1882, he was nominated by the same party for State representative, but was beaten by a small majority; the party being in the minority in his district, his election was not expected.

CHARLES C. WIGHTMAN, of Stacher & Wightman, merchants, Le Loup, was born at Cascade, Iowa, in 1856, and when very young moved with his parents to Germantown, Ohio, and was for some years employed with his father in the United States Internal Revenue office at that place. In 1874 he came to Kansas, located at Ottawa, and was for about three years employed in the flour mills of H. D. Crane & Co. About 1877 he entered the employ of L. N. Stacher, in dry-goods business, and in November, 1881, formed a partnership with him, and opened a general merchandise business at this place. The firm do a large business, and carry a stock of about $3,000.

LINCOLN TOWNSHIP.

In August, 1868, he came to Franklin County, and located on his present farm. He owns 138 acres, 100 of which are under cultivation, and has a fine orchard of about five acres. He makes a specialty of raising hops. Mr. Burge was burned out in 1874, losing a $4,000 residence. He, however, was not discouraged, but with his usual energy pushed ahead, and to-day is one of the representative farmers of this township. He is also to a limited extent engaged in bee culture. Mr. Burge was married in Springfield, Ill., in November, 1864, to Martha Clark. They have two children—George and Frank.

ADAM JOHNS, farmer, Section 19, P. O. Ottawa, was born in Germany, October 9, 1848, and emigrated to Erie County, Pa., in 1864, where he learned the trade of blacksmith and followed it for a livelihood. He came to Kansas in 1866, and was employed at his trade at Fort Scott for four months; then at St. Louis, Mo., for eighteen months. In 1868 he removed to Franklin County, and followed his trade for a few months at Ottawa; then carried on a blacksmith establishment for two years; since which time he has given his attention to farming pursuits. In September, 1882, he moved on to his present farm. He has 235 acres, six acres of which are orchard, and he cultivates 170 acres. Mr. Johns is also an extensive raiser of cattle and hogs. He was married in Ottawa, Kan., in 1869, to Agnes Heifen. They have a family of three children—Annie, Antony and Agnes.

SAMUEL McCULLAGH, breeder of pedigreed Berkshire hogs, Section 4, P. O. Ottawa, was born at Nassau, Rensselaer Co., N. Y., in 1842. In April, 1859, he emigrated to Sangamon County, Ill., where he was employed at general farm work. In the fall of 1865 he came to Franklin County, Kan.; farmed for one year in Ohio Township, after which he moved on to his present farm. He owns 160 acres of land, 100 of which are under cultivation. Mr. McCullaugh is the most extensive breeder of thoroughbred Berkshire hogs in the State of Kansas. He keeps nothing but pure bloods; has in all about 180 head. In his herd are his famous boars—Plantagenet, No. 2919; Young Carlisle, No. 6810, and Royal Duke, No. 3601, and the famous sows—Belle; Clermont, No. 2498; Liverpool Belle, No. 6994; Queen of Pleasant Valley, and many others. He is also a breeder of Short-horn cattle. Mr. McCullagh's farm is situated about three miles southwest of the city of Ottawa. He has a very pretty place, and calls it the Pleasant Valley Farm.

JOHN V. POLLINGER, farmer, Section 25, P. O. Ottawa, was born in York County, Pa., January 31, 1840, and reared on a farm. At sixteen years of age he removed to Huron County, Ohio, where he was employed in agricultural pursuits. In 1860 he went to Shelby County, Ill., farmed for a while, and on February 16, 1863, he enlisted in Company C, Tenth Illinois Cavalry, and served until November 25, 1865. He came to Kansas in 1866, located in Ottawa. He was for a while engaged in teaming, and also carried on a billiard hall. In 1867 he engaged in agricultural pursuits in Greenwood Township, which he has followed since. In 1872 he moved on to his present farm. He owns eighty acres of land, seventy of which are under cultivation, and he has quite a fine orchard. Mr. Pollinger was six years Trustee of Greenwood Township, and Trustee of Lincoln Township in 1876. He was elected Justice of the Peace in the spring of 1882.

ABNER RIDDLE, farmer, P. O. Ottawa, was born in Champaign County, Ohio, in 1814, and five years later his parents removed to Sangamon County, Ill., where the subject of our sketch followed farming pursuits. He was a Commissioner of that county for eight years. In October, 1867, he came to Kansas and located in Lincoln Township, Franklin County, and has since been engaged in farming and raising stock. He moved onto his present farm in Section 15, November 10, 1879. He has 190 acres, thirty acres of which are in orchard. He raises considerable Short-Horn cattle, and is a breeder of draught horses. He was elected a Commissioner of Franklin County in 1871 and served two years.

JACOB WILKERSON, breeder of pedigreed Poland-China hogs, Section 29, P.O. Ottawa, was born in Randolph County, Ind., in December, 1851, and reared on a farm. In the spring of 1872 he came to Kansas and assisted his father, John Wilkerson, in farming, in this township. A year later his father died and he and his brother William conducted the farm together for some years. In the spring of 1878 he moved onto his present farm. He owns eighty acres all improved, forty-five of which are under cultivation. He is making a specialty of breeding Poland-China hogs, and is quite successful. He was married in Franklin County, July 14, 1878, to Miss H. N. Leachman, a native of Illinois.

WILLIAM H. WILKERSON, farmer, Section 24, P. O. Ottawa, was born in Randolph County, Ind., March 14, 1849, and reared on a farm. He came to Franklin County, Kansas, in September, 1870, and located on his present farm. For about three years he farmed with his father, since then for himself. He has 360 acres of land, all improved, cultivates 210 acres of it and makes a specialty of fattening cattle and hogs for shipment. He has two good houses on his land and an orchard of three acres. Mr. Wilkerson was elected trustee of this township in 1880. He was married in Franklin County, Kansas, September 21, 1876, to Pauline L. Cannon. They have a family of three children: John N., Lucy J. and Jessie H.

HARRISON TOWNSHIP.

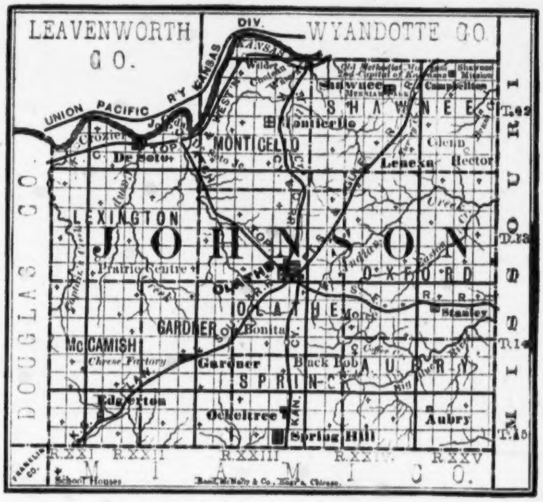
ABRAHAM ANDERSON, farmer, P. O. Ottawa; was born in Sweden, June 22, 1834, and while residing there followed farming pursuits. In October, 1867, he emigrated to Ottawa, Kansas; was for five years employed in a stone quarry, and for about four years worked as a stone mason. In October, 1876, he moved onto his present farm in Harrison Township, Franklin County. He owns 135 acres of land, all improved. He has on his farm several good stone quarries from which he has taken stone and built himself a fine residence and barn. Mr. Anderson was married in Sweden in December, 1855, to Stoofa Billman. They have a family of five children: August J., Alfred, Carl R., William E., John H. E.

THOMAS W. HARRISON, farmer, and stock raiser, P. O. Ottawa, was born in Porter County, Ind., March 31, 1844, and reared at Russellville, Putnam County. In June, 1862, he enlisted in Company K, Eighth Indiana Cavalry, serving three years. In the spring of 1866 he came to Franklin County and located on his present farm in Harrison Township. He has 120 acres of land in a high state of cultivation, and laid off with osage hedges and wire fences. He is quite extensively engaged in raising stock for the Eastern markets and breeding thoroughbred Poland-China hogs. The township derived its name from his father, W. L. Harrison, who resides here. The subject of this sketch was married in Harrison Township, Franklin County, October 5, 1876, to Lillias Perkins. They have two children: Bernice B. and Bruce.

CHARLES B. JONES, farmer and dealer in live stock, P. O. Ottawa; was born at Woodsfield, Monroe Co., Ohio, September 7, 1831, and reared on a farm. He was for some years engaged in farming pursuits for himself and dealing in live stock in company with his father for fifteen years. He enlisted in April, 1861, in Company B, Twenty-fifth Ohio Infantry, serving two years; was elected First Lieutenant at time of mustering the company, and promoted to Captain a year later. He came to Ottawa, Kansas, in 1869; was for four months engaged in grocery business with W. M. Presbaw, and since then in live stock business in company with him. Mr. Jones moved on his present farm in Harrison Township, in June, 1877. He has 160 acres, and his residence is but a short distance from the city of Ottawa. He has on his place a fine orchard of 20 acres, and deals quite extensively in cattle and hogs, buying and fattening his stock for Eastern markets. Mr. Jones was married at Woodsfield, Ohio, February 6, 1862, to Eliza Archbold. She died in March, 1863, leaving one son, Edward A. The subject of our sketch was married a second time in Woodsfield, in March, 1867, to Matilda Manning; they have four children: Clayton, Maud, Samuel P. and Charles L.

JOHNSON COUNTY.

JOHNSON County is located in the eastern part of the State. It is bounded on the north by Leavenworth and Wyandotte counties, on the east by Missouri, on the south by Miami, and on the west by Douglas County. It is twenty-one miles from north to south and twenty-four from east to west, containing 475 square miles, or 304,000 acres. At the first organization of the county, in 1855, the Kansas river constituted its entire northern boundary, but in 1859 the present boundary was established.



The surface of the county is generally undulating. About ten per cent. is bottom land, ninety per cent. upland. The bottom lands are from one-half mile to two miles in width. The central and southwestern are the highest portions, the streams having their sources there and flowing thence toward the north, east and south.

The soil is from one foot to six feet in depth, is very productive and adapted especially to winter wheat, corn, oats, potatoes and wild and tame grasses.

The timber belts along the streams average one-half mile in width, and comprise sixteen per cent. of the surface. The principal varieties that grow are ash, hackberry, hickory, oak, sycamore and walnut.

The streams are not large, but sufficiently numerous. The Kansas River runs along the west two-thirds of the northern boundary, and receives as tributaries, Cedar, Clear, Captain's, Kill, Mill and Turkey creeks. Blue and Indian creeks run eastward, and two forks of Bull Creek run south. There are numerous springs, and good well water is obtained at an average depth of twenty-five feet.

There is considerable limestone and some sandstone in the county, the former being extensively used in building, and a tough variety of the former is now being sawed into flagging stone, window sills, etc. There is also excellent brick clay.

The first white hunter to behold the soil of Kansas, is believed to have been Jacob Pursley, who in 1802 crossed the eastern part of the present State to New Mexico. Other adventurous spirits followed and soon quite a trade was established between Santa Fe N. M., and Booneville, Mo., the latter place being then the frontier town of the West. In course of time Independence, Mo., secured the trade, and became for a time the starting point for all westward bound expeditions of whatever kind. The trade grew to such an extent that about the year 1825 the Government employed Maj. Sibley to establish a wagon road from the Missouri line to Santa Fe. This road ran through Johnson County about four miles south of Olathe, and crossed the Missouri line near the present location of Little Santa Fe, Mo.

THE SHAWNEE INDIANS.

Previous to the advent of the Shawnee Indians in 1828, but little was known of what is now Johnson County, by white people. In common with the whole of the present State of Kansas, it was occupied, when occupied at all, by the Kaw or Kansas tribe of Indians. The whole territory abounded with game of every description. Along the streams, where they could find shelter in the timber, were to be found bears, beaver, mink, otter, wolves, etc., and on the open prairie, antelope, deer and elk. Buffaloes ranged in immense numbers, but seldom east of Morris and Chase counties. In 1825, the Shawnee reservation in Kansas was set apart for these Indians, in accordance with a treaty concluded with them that year.

In 1828, the Fish band, so named from their Chief, about one hundred in number, were removed here, from the vicinity of Cape Girardeau, Mo. In 1829 Rev. Thomas Johnson, a Methodist Episcopal missionary, came to the reservation under the auspices of the church, and established a school for the education of the Indians. This school was located about six miles west of Westport, between the Kansas River and Turkey Creek. In 1830 some members of the tribe on their way from Ohio to this reservation, were exposed, in St. Louis, to the smallpox. Upon arriving at the village located near the site of the present Glenwood depot, they halted and infected the portion of the tribe living there. The disease broke out with great virulence, most of the Indians in the village died, the others fled to other localities. In 1832 the remaining bands of the Shawnee Indians were removed here from Auglaize and adjoining counties in Ohio. After all had been removed here they numbered about 1,000. For a number of years after their removal they continued their accustomed modes of dress, habitation and of making a living—living in wigwams and subsisting on the products of the chase; but as game steadily grew scarcer, attention to the tilling of the soil was forced upon them, and they began to erect buildings more substantial than wigwams.

They also at length effected a change in their form of government. At the time of the removal of the Shawnees from Ohio, they were divided into three bands, each band being presided over by a Chief. The principal of these three chiefs was John Perry, who retained his position at the head of the tribe until his death in 1850. He was succeeded by John Francis, who reigned four years, when he died. The young men of the tribe attempted, at the time of Perry's death, to introduce the principle of electing their chiefs, but the old men defeated them. At the time of the death of Francis the young men made a second attempt to overthrow the hereditary principle of government, and were this time successful. Capt. Parks was elected Chief for two years, and remained in office eight years. Graham Rogers succeeded and served two years; Charles Bluejacket then served four years; Graham Rogers was then re-elected and served two terms, when he died, and Charles Tucker was then elected.*

The boundaries of the original Shawnee Reservation in Kansas, as fixed November 7, 1825, and conveyed to them by deed, May 11. 1844, contained 1,600,000 acres of land. Almost precisely ten years afterwards, on May 10, 1854, they ceded to the United States all of this magnificent reservation but 200,000 acres, which they reserved for homes for themselves.

Under this treaty the "Black Bob band" of the Shawnees, a distinct organization within the tribe, received, as was their choice, and had "assigned and set apart in a compact body to be held in common" by them, such a portion of this 200,000 acres as was equivalent to 200 acres for each member of the band; or more accurately, according to the survey, 33.392 87 acres. Black Bob was their recognized Chief. Being of limited intelligence they preferred to maintain their tribal organization and customs, and to hold their lands in common. An article however was incorporated into the treaty under which they might at any time "make separate selections from the tract assigned to them in common." This privilege they did not avail themselves of until 1866, but continued to live as had been their wont, making but little progress, and spending most of their time in visiting other tribes and hunting, until the breaking out of the war, when on account of the losses and sufferings to which they were subjected from bushwhackers on the one hand and Kansas thieves and jayhawkers on the other, they left their homes, went to the Indian Territory in a body, where they remained until peace was proclaimed, when about one hundred returned for the purpose of disposing of their lands

The other community of the Shawnees remained on the reservation as they were until the survey of their lands into head rights of their own selection was completed, as contemplated and provided for by the treaty of May 10, 1854. By this treaty they each received 200 acres in severalty in any part of the reservation they might choose, surrendering all claim to the rest, which was thus thrown open to settlement by white people. The Indians very naturally made their selections where there was timber, along the creeks, and when their selections had all been made there was but little land left for the white man but open prairie. As a consequence of this state of affairs numerous conflicts arose between the two races over the timber question; and as so often before and since, the civilized man conquered, and it was not long before he was allowed to help himself to the Indian's timber unmolested.

As soon as it was known that a large portion of the reservation was thrown open for settlement large numbers rushed in to secure claims. Many claims were thus taken, "improved," and sold at the first favorable opportunity, so that but few of the earliest settlers remained in the county. Those who came to buy, usually came to stay.

A. Coffman secured the contract for surveying the Shawnee lands as selected by the "head right" community, and was sworn to secrecy in relation thereto. Instead of living up to his oath he permitted a young man in the employ of Dr. John T. Barton and Ed. Nash to accompany him, and each evening to make a copy of the day's field notes, and received $1,000 for the privilege. It was thus easy for the Doctor and his partner to dispose of the choicest lands not taken by the Indians at a considerable profit to themselves, and the settler was certain that no Shawnee could dispute his claim.

Among those who settled in the county during this year (1857) were the following persons, on the Free-state side: Thomas E. Milhoan, William Williams, Rynear Morgan, William Holmes, Dr. Irving Jaynes, J. D. Allen, J. C. Forrest, and L. F. Bancroft; and on the Pro-slavery side, Dr. J. B. Morgan, Col. J. T. Quarles, T. H. Ellis, A. Slaughter, James H. Nounan, C. C. Catron. W. S. Gregory, Jonathan Gore, A. J. Turpin, Dr. Shuck and M. T. Wells. There was a considerable number of others in different parts of the county, as may be seen by referring to our sketches of the separate towns.

During the time of the occupancy of the entire county by the Shawnee Indians, but few white men became residents of it, and they only in some connection with the Indians. The earliest were the Choteau brothers, Frenchmen, who built trading houses among the Shawnees and Delawares in 1828 and 1829.

Rev. Thomas Johnson and family came in 1829. His son Alexander S. Johnson was born at the Mission, July 11, 1832, and was thus the first white child born in the county. Other children of Rev. Mr. Johnson born at the Mission were Eliza S., A. M., W. M., Laura L., Cora and Edna, seven in all with Alexander S.

Samuel Cornatzer came to the Mission in 1844. Mr. Crockett, nephew of Davy Crockett, January 24, 1847: and at different times, Perk Randall, John Bowles, Isaac Parish, Samuel Garrett, John Owens, John Boyle and Calvin Cornatzer.

THE "BLACK BOB" RESERVATION.

This reservation is situated in the southeastern part of the county, at the sources of the Blue and Tomahawk creeks, consisting of 33,392.87 acres, lying in Oxford, Aubry, Spring Hill and Olathe townships. The Indians to whom the reservation belonged abandoned it near the beginning of the war. As it was most excellent land—fertile soil, well watered and timbered—settlers rushed in at the close of the war and soon every quarter-section of it was occupied by a claimant. This was in the years of 1865 and 1866.

About the same time, certain other parties, not actual settlers on the lands, among whom were Gen. James G. Blunt, J. C. Irvin and Judge Pendery, conceived the design of buying up a portion of this land for the purposes of speculation. This was in October, 1867. An examination was made of the treaty of 1825, by which the Shawnees were granted the reservation including Johnson and a portion of Douglas and Miami counties, which was deeded to them May 11, 1844; and also of the treaty of May 10, 1854, by which the whole tract was re-ceded to the Government, and then 200,000 acres retroceded to the Shawnees. At this time the Shawnees had divided into two bands—the severalty, or "head right" community, who selected their lands in severalty, and the "Black Bob" band, who chose to hold their lands in common, under the treaty which also gave them the right to select 200 acres each as a head-right at any future time. Messrs. Blunt, Irvin & Co. became satisfied that the title to the lands vested in the Indians, and hence that having selected his head-right under the treaty, any Indian could sell it and convey a valid title to any person, by complying with the rules and regulations of the Interior Department of the Government for the sale of Indian lands.

These rules were: That the consideration mentioned in the deed was a fair one, that the amount so mentioned had been paid to the grantor by the grantee, and that the transaction was free from fraud. The Indian Agent was under obligation to attach his certificate that these rules had been complied with, in the execution of the deed.

Certain of the Indians having applied therefor in the year 1867, received patents for their shares of the land in severalty, and sold them to different parties for various prices.

The first sale was made October 28 1867, to J. C. Irwin, who purchased in the aggregate 3,600 acres. The next sales were made November 7, 1867, to two of the settlers, Wm. H Nichols and John Wordens; and subsequently, but prior to January 11, 1869 a number of sales were made to other settlers, among whom were William Thomas, J Nichols, Edward P. Robinson, Wm. S. Duffield and William T. Quarles. Sales were made also to other speculators, until in the aggregate the land covered by sixty-nine patents had been sold, the price received by the Indians being on an average $4.80 per acre.

Two protests against the further issue of patents to the Indians, setting forth that gross frauds were being perpetrated, and that the Indians were being swindled out of their lands by the speculators, having been received by the Government, Acting Commissioner Mix, on the 13th of December, 1867, telegraphed Agent Taylor to suspend delivery of the patents to the Indians. This was done and the sale of the lands arrested in consequence. Notwithstanding a few of the settlers had purchased their selections from Indians who had received their patents, the great majority refused to do so, believing their title should come from the Government, and not from the Indian. In the meantime the settlers kept on improving their claims, and have now converted the reservation into one of the fairest and most productive portions of the county. Both settlers and speculators kept an agent in Washington for some years looking after their respective interests; the one party attempting to obtain from Congress confirmation of the validity of the Indian patents, the other attempting to have them set aside and the title declared to vest in the Government. Neither party has thus far been successful. Congress, however, did in 1879, pass a resolution instructing the Attorney General of the United States "to cause a suit in equity to be brought in the name of the United States in the Circuit Court for the District of Kansas to quiet and finally settle the titles to lands claimed by or under the Black Bob band of Shawnee Indians in Kansas, or adversely thereto." In accordance with this resolution, suit in equity was brought in said court in 1880, and is still pending.

Such of the Black Bob band as were enabled to find purchasers for their lands before the sale of the same was suspended, in December, 1867, removed to the Indian Territory and united themselves with the Cherokees, in accordance with an agreement made between the tribes and approved by the President of the United States, while the greater portion of them who had returned to Kansas in order to sell their lands, were by the suspension of the sale prevented from doing so, and were "forced to remain in Kansas without a home, their lands being occupied by trespassers by virtue of the suspension referred to" (E. S. Parker, Commissioner).

We quote as follows from the Annual Report of Indian Affairs of Superintendent Hoag, for 1870:

"Anticipating the fulfillment of their arrangements with the Cherokees for future homes, many of the Shawnees have already removed thither, and most of those yet remaining will remove very soon, even though they may not be able to dispose of their estates in Kansas advantageously, being obstructed as they are by prolonged and unjust legislation. As guardian of these Indians, the Government has permitted her citizens so far to violate her just statutes as to enter upon, occupy and improve, in undisturbed possession, their fairest lands, thus adding to the wealth and comfort of the citizen outlaws, to the discomfort and pinching poverty of her suffering wards, some of whom have been driven from their humble but loved homes, and compelled, if permitted a resting place on soil of their own, to occupy such portion thereof as the coveting and unwelcome intruder did not desire for himself. These lawless occupants of the soil of others, have for years, from the proceeds thereof, retained counsel at the seat of Government for the security of these lands to themselves, in co-operation with their members of Congress; and in a recent bill, in reference thereto, provision is made for the retaining said lands on the payment of $2.50 per acre, when if they were removed therefrom or compelled to pay to the outraged owners a price which a fair competition would secure to them, as justice should secure it, these Indians would at once remove to the Cherokee country with means sufficient to enable them to open and improve homes and surround themselves with the necessary comforts of life, for lack of which many of these poor Shawnees have gone to premature graves. This lingering injustice has continued the Shawnee agency two years longer than its natural life, at an unnecessary expense to the Government, and while this class of intruders are enjoying their ill-gotten incomes, the Black Bob Shawnees are appealing to their guardian, the Government, for aid to keep them from starvation, for which purpose some five hundred dollars has been expended the past year."

The settlers and speculators have all through freely indulged in the application to each other of exceedingly uncomplimentary epithets; politicians have found the question of the title to the Black Bob lands a fruitful source of personal controversy and warfare, and as a result of the manner of the management of the whole matter, the Indian has certainly suffered most cruel wrongs, no matter in whom the title to the lands may ultimately be decided to inhere.

EARLY POLITICAL TROUBLES.

The first election held in the Territory was in the fall of 1853, before the organization of the Territory. At this election, Rev. Thomas Johnson, of the Methodist Church, South, then in charge of the Shawnee Mission, and one of those who had introduced and then held slaves in the Territory, was elected delegate to Congress, for the purpose of urging upon that body the organization of the Territory; but having been elected without authority of law, he was not admitted to a seat as such delegate. He, however, remained in Washington during the session and until after the Kansas-Nebraska bill had become a law, the latter part of May, 1854. At this first election, Indians as well as whites, voted, notwithstanding the fact that they were not citizens of the United States, and consequently had no right to vote—an unpropitious beginning for the future Territory and State of Kansas. But when the question of Territorial organization was yet unsettled, almost everyone about the Indian missions and elsewhere, government agents and employes, missionaries and teachers, were all but universally Democratic and Pro-slavery, and the Indians imbibed and carried into practice the political views of their teachers—religious and secular. The principal exception to this rule was the case of the Friends, or Quakers, who were always and consistently anti-slavery, to their honor be the fact recorded and perpetuated.

At the election of March 30, 1855, for members of First Territorial Legislature, Rev. Thomas Johnson was elected from Johnson County to the Council (now called Senate) and his son, Alexander S. Johnson, to the Legislature. The Legislature was convened at Pawnee, near Fort Riley in Davis County, and organized by electing Rev. Thomas Johnson, President of the Council, and Dr. J. H. Stringfellow, Speaker of the House. Almost immediately after organization, an act was passed locating the capital of the Territory at the Shawnee Mission, and the Legislature adjourned to this, the first capital, on the 16th of July. One of its first acts was the organization of the settled portions of the Territory into counties. Johnson County was named in honor of Rev. Thomas Johnson, President of the Council. Bills were passed for laying out towns and villages in various counties, but none in Johnson County, as it was entirely covered by the Shawnee reservation. Isaac Parish was appointed Sheriff of the County, and William Fisher. Jr., Probate Judge. The County was thus organized and officered nearly two years before any of its land came into market, and before any white people except those connected with the Indians, were allowed to reside in it. At this session of the Legislature the road leading from Kansas City, Mo., to Santa Fe, N. M., passing through the center of the county, was declared a Territorial road; a road was located through the northern part of the county to Lawrence, Lecompton and Fort Riley, and another along the eastern line of the county from Westport, Mo., to Fort Scott.

On the 23d of October, 1855, the Free-state Constitutional Convention assembled at Topeka. Johnson County was not represented in this convention, its people being too intensely Pro-slavery. A constitution was adopted by the convention, the most important feature of which was a clause prohibiting slavery in the State. On the 15th of December, the Topeka Constitution was submitted to the people and received a large popular vote outside of Johnson County. Almost the only anti-slavery people in this county at the time were the Hadleys—Jeremiah and his three sons, Samuel, T. J., and J. Milton Hadley—a family belonging to the Society of Friends. The head of the family, Jeremiah Hadley, came out in August to assume the duties of superintendent of the Shawnee Quaker Mission. The Hadley family were fearless advocates of the Free-state cause. A young man by the name of John Lockhart, of some ability, and good education, residing at the Mission with the Hadleys, was elected to represent Johnson County in the Legislature, under the Topeka Constitution. This Legislature was summoned to meet at Topeka, July 4, 1856. The members assembled in accordance with the summons, but were not permitted to organize, being dispersed by Col. (since Major General) Edwin V. Sumner, acting under orders from President Pierce.

These were troublous times in eastern Kansas generally. Johnson County escaped at this period in a remarkable manner, although suffering considerably at a later period. This escape was owing, doubtless, to the facts that the county was not open to settlement, and that the most of the few settlers here belonged to one political party. Still there were a few incidents which should be recorded as tending to illustrate the character of the times.

In August, a party of border ruffians went to the Quaker Mission, and after threatening to kill the superintendent, Jeremiah Hadley, stole six horses and a mule belonging to the Mission, and a carriage owned by Levi Woodard, and went away.

On May 14, 1858, Montgomery, and a band of his followers, surrounded the house of John Evans, a farmer now residing in the county, and who at the time was a Pro-slavery man, living three miles northeast of Olathe. Forcing an entrance into the house they warned Evans to leave the Territory within ten days, Evans replied that he should not go, and in fact did not go. Montgomery took about $800 in gold, besides other property belonging to Evans, and a gold watch and some money belonging to Patrick Cosgrove, who was Sheriff at the time, and departed.

On another occasion while John Lockhart, mentioned above as having been elected to the Free-state Legislature, and Calvin Cornatzer were on their way to Chillicothe, about three miles west of Shawnee, some armed Missourians overtook them, threatening to arrest them as being in sympathy with Jim Lane. But by adroit explanations by Cornatzer himself and by Dr. Barton, who was then living at Chillicothe, both Lockhart and Cornatzer were allowed to go free. These explanations did not remain satisfactory, however, very long. For in a few weeks thereafter a squad of Missourians sought Lockhart at the Mission, and searched the building thoroughly for him. He saved himself this time by dextrously slipping from one room into another that had been searched. And the same summer Cornatzer was arrested at the instance of two of his Pro-slavery neighbors, who accused him of being a Jim Lane man. He was taken to Tecumseh, lodged in jail, but released next day; the charge not being sustained.

In addition to these comparatively mild experiences there were some flagrant outrages committed within the limits of Johnson County. One of these was the case of a young Missourian, named Cantral. A few days previous to his "trial" and murder, he had participated in the "battle of Black Jack" on the Free-state side, under old John Brown. He was taken prisoner by a party of Missourians under Gen. Whitfield, who were passing through Johnson County on their way to Westport, Mo. They camped for the night about two miles west of Olathe, and during the evening tried Cantral for "treason to the State of Missouri"! He was, of course, convicted, and shot for his crime.

One of the most cold-blooded murders committed on the border was the shooting of Major Gay, U. S. Agent for the Shawnees. He was so shocked at the barbarities committed by the members of his party that he expressed his sympathy for the Free-state men, with the result above indicated; being shot while riding with his son near the Methodist Mission.

A remarkable battle was fought in the western part of Johnson County, this same year. Being fought on Bull Creek, and the rout of one of the armies being complete, it is spoken of now by some Kansans as "The first battle of Bull Run." Gen. Lane met the Pro-slavery forces under Gen. Reid where the village of Lanesfield was located. Lane's forces numbered about four hundred, while Reid's were about fifteen hundred. After a few shots had been exchanged by skirmishers on either side, Reid ordered his men to fall back. This order was obeyed with alacrity, the men, panic-stricken, falling clear back to Westport, Mo., a distance of thirty miles, without stopping to rest their jaded steeds. After the fight, Gen. Lane's men burned the residence of Richard McCamish, as a retaliation of his having taken part in the fight under Reid, as was reported. Other Johnson County participants in the bloodless battle of Lanesville, under Gen. Reid, were Samuel Garrett, P. Cosgrove, S. B. Myrick and Jerry Williams. There were none under Gen. Lane.

During the summer an attempt was made by Joel Grover to organize a company within the county to act with the Free-state men, but owing to the limited number in the county who sympathized with the cause, the attempt was abandoned.

In the fall of 1856, Perk Randall was elected a member of the Legislature, Rev. Thomas Johnson holding over as a member of the Council.

Perhaps nothing more clearly shows the purpose of the Slavery propagandists, and their utter and wanton disregard of the principles of right and liberty, than the records of early elections in a small precinct named Oxford, in Johnson County, near the Missouri line, containing eleven houses. October 5, 1857, an election was held for Councilmen, Senators and Representatives in the Legislature. On the 19th of the month, Governor Robert J. Walker issued a proclamation rejecting the whole return from Oxford precinct. This return was a manuscript fifty feet long, containing 1,628 names, mostly of imaginary voters. On the 20th a Democratic meeting was held at Lecompton, of which Major G. D. Hand, of Johnson County, was secretary. The meeting passed a long series of resolutions severely condemning the Governor for his action in this matter. Had the return been admitted it would have changed the party character of the Legislature, transferring from the Free state to the Pro-slavery side three Councilmen and eight Representatives. On the 21st of December, 1857, an election was held on the Lecompton Constitution. Oxford precinct again distinguished itself by casting 1,214 illegal votes. Shawnee at this election cast 729 illegal votes. At this election, W. J. Sheraff, A. A. Cox, H. W. Jones and J. B. Willey were chosen Representatives in the Legislature from Johnson County. On January 4, 1858, an election was held for the election of officers under the Lecompton Constitution. Oxford precinct now showed a marked improvement over both of its other attempts, casting only 696 illegal votes. On the 29th of the same month in which this last election was held, a census of Oxford was taken in accordance with an act of the Legislature, which census showed that the precinct contained but forty-two voters. At the three elections, above mentioned, the total vote cast in the precinct was: October 5th and 6th, 1,628 votes; December 21st, 1,266 votes; January 4, 1858, 738 votes. We may certainly say with truth that in each and all of these efforts a zeal worthy of a better cause was shown.

In April, 1859, a proposition to hold a Constitutional Convention was submitted to the people of the Territory. The proposition was sustained, and the convention assembled at Wyandotte on the first Tuesday in March, 1859. Johnson County was represented in this convention by John T. Barton (Dem.) and John T. Burris, (Rep.), Col. Burris has the honor of being the first outspoken Republican in this then Democratic stronghold, and the first Republican elected at a general election. On the first Tuesday in October, following, the constitution framed by the Wyandotte Convention, was adopted by the people by a majority of nearly 4,000—10,241 for; 5,530 against it.

During the summer the Republicans, for the first time in the history of the county, organized and put in nomination candidates for the various county offices and two candidates for Representatives in the Legislature—J. E. Hayes, of Olathe, and Dr. Scott, of Shawnee. For Representatives the Democrats nominated L. S. Cornwell, of Olathe, and Charles Simms, of Spring Hill. They were elected over their Republican competitors by majorities of 88 and 126 respectively.

The first Legislature of the State of Kansas met at Topeka, March 26, 1861, Johnson County being represented therein by John Lockhart in the Senate, and by J. E. Corliss, J. F. Legate and J. E. Hayes in the House. In the following fall the Republicans won their first general victory in the County, electing J. F. Legate to the Senate, and W. H. M. Fishback, W. M. Sheen, and Eli McKee to the House, by respectable majorities, and all the county officers as related below:

In 1862, they elected W. H. M. Fishback to the Senate by a majority of 136; Charles H. Stratton to the Legislature by a majority of 119, and William Williams by a majority of 29, the Democrats electing D. G. Campbell by a majority of 28.

Since that time, Johnson County has been honored in the Senate by the following gentlemen:

James B. Abbott, elected in 1866; A. Arrasmith, in 1868; G. M. Bowers, in 1870; John P. St. John, in 1872; W. W. Maltby, in 1874; J. M. Hadley, elected in 1876 for four years; L. W. Breyfogle, in 1880, present member.

John T. Burris, A. S. Johnson and Gerrit C. Rue, in 1865; M. B. Lyon, Albert Johnson and J. W. Sponable, in 1866; J. P. Robinson, D. G. Campbell and J. B. Bruner, in 1867; R. E. Stevenson, D. B. Johnson and J. T. Rankin, in 1868; John T. Burris, John H. Lusher and Frederic Ridlon, in 1869; William Williams, D. B. Johnson and I. D. Clapp, in 1870; J. H. Connelly, T. G. Stephenson and A. Taylor, in 1871; Thomas James, J. M. Miller and A. Belden, in 1872; W. W. Maltby, George F. Rogers and Thomas Hancock, in 1873; D. G. Campbell, R. E. Stevenson and Z. Meredith, in 1874; D. G. Campbell, W. H. Toothaker and George F. Rogers, in 1875; George W. Ridge, Henry Perley and E. Clark, in 1876, for two years; L. W. Breyfogle, Archibald Shaw and J. B. Bruner, in 1878; J. B. Hutchinson, Austin Brown and Rezin Addy, in 1880.

WAR HISTORY.

From the time of the failure of the "English Bill," in 1857, there had been comparative peace on the border. It then became evident to the Pro-slavery party everywhere that, even with the aid of the Government, the "institution" could not be forced upon Kansas. Efforts to that end therefore ceased. The seasons of 1858 and 1859 were mild and propitious. Crops were good, immigration heavy, trade lively, money plenty, in short, prosperity reigned. In 1860, the great drought, mentioned elsewhere, was very disastrous and discouraging.

In 1861, when the war came on, Johnson County, in common with other counties bordering on Missouri, had peculiar reasons for looking forward to the future with grave forebodings. Although peace had reigned near four years, it had been the peace of conquest on the one hand, of defeat on the other. The defeated party was just across the line in Missouri; the hearts of which party were filled with a smoldering hatred which needed but the first spark of war to rekindle it into flame and fury. When that spark was struck by the attack upon Fort Sumter, the exultation of this party was unbounded. They looked upon the North as cowardly, upon the South as invincible, and an easy victory as a logical sequence. To wreak vengeance upon their foes, they were fully determined, now that opportunity had come, and they had many foes in Johnson County.

Although knowing well what to expect, most of this county's people resolved to remain at home and do their duty as it should develop from day to day. A few of the more timid moved to localities they considered more safe. The county furnished its full quota of soldiers throughout the four long years of the war for the Union, who did their full share of noble fighting. In about three weeks after the first call for troops a company of fifty men was enlisted and organized, with S. F. Hill, Captain; James W. Parmeter, First Lieutenant; Warren Kimball, Second Lieutenant; and John K. Rankin, Third Lieutenant. These officers were commissioned May 14, and the company was assigned to the Second Kansas Infantry as Company C. Upon the second call for volunteers a second company was organized, of which J. E. Hayes was Captain; Thomas E. Milhoan, First Lieutenant; and F. H. Burris, Second Lieutenant. For some time this company belonged to the Fourth Regiment, but in the spring of 1862, it became Co. A of the Tenth Regiment, Captain Hayes resigning to accept a position in the Twelfth Regiment, Lieut. Milhoan being promoted to the captaincy. John T. Burris, who had been commissioned Lieut. Colonel of the Fourth Regiment was assigned to the Tenth with the same rank. Thomas McGannon, of Olathe, was made Adjutant of the regiment.

In the winter of 1861-2 the Second Regiment of Infantry, having served out its three months term of enlistment, was re-enlisted as cavalry for three years, Johnson County furnishing part of one company, and two officers: Pat Cosgrove, as First Lieutenant of Co. G., and G. M. Waugh, Second Lieutenant. In May, 1864, Pat Cosgrove was promoted to the Captaincy of Co. L., and Joseph Hutchinson, of Olathe, promoted to fill the vacancy. G. M. Waugh became Lieut. Colonel of the Second Arkansas Infantry, and was serving in that capacity at the close of the war.

Nearly an entire company was raised in Johnson County for the Eighth Kansas Infantry, and was assigned as Co. F. of that regiment with J. M. Hadley as Second Lieutenant. This was in the fall of 1861. On March 15, 1862, Sec. Lieut. Hadley was promoted to the First Lieutenancy of Co. G., Ninth Cavalry, and May 15, 1865, was commissioned Major, retaining that rank until the expiration of his term of enlistment.

On May 3, 1863, T. J. Hadley, who had enlisted as a private in Co. F., Eighth Regiment, was commissioned Second Lieutenant in Co. L., Fifth Cavalry. Among those who enlisted in this latter company, was Col. A. Payne, of Monticello, who in the early days had been a leading and influential member of the Pro-slavery party in the county; but who with many others of similar views, could not follow his party into the struggle for the dismemberment of the Union. In the latter part of the summer of 1862, Wm. Pellet, of Olathe, was commissioned to raise another company of infantry. They were quickly enlisted and organized, with J. W. Parmeter, Captain; and Wm. Pellet, Second Lieutenant. But, as they were almost immediately taken prisoners and paroled by Quantrill's guerrillas, they were not assigned to active duty in the field. As Company H. of the Twelfth Regiment, they performed garrison duty at Forts Leavenworth, Larned and Riley, until August, 1865, when they were mustered out.

A company was raised, also for the Twelfth Regiment, in the vicinity of Gardner and Spring Hill, of which John T. Gordon, of Lanesfield, was Captain; George Ellis, First Lieutenant; and James H. Berkshire, of Spring Hill, Second Lieutenant. This regiment was finally ordered to Ft. Smith, Arkansas, where it became a part of the brigade under Gen. Steele. While marching to effect a junction with Gen. Banks, at Shreveport La., they met the enemy on the 30th of April, 1864, at Jenkins' Ferry, Arkansas. A heavy battle was fought, and early in the engagement, Lieut. Col. Hayes was struck above the knee by a minie ball, inflicting a dangerous wound.

The horrible massacre at Lawrence, which occurred August 21, 1863, aroused the citizens of Kansas to renewed efforts in behalf of the Union and the defense of their own firesides. The Fifteenth Regiment of Cavalry was raised immediately after the Lawrence raid. C. R. Jennison, the notorious jayhawker, who had been Colonel of the Seventh Regiment, was appointed Colonel of the Fifteenth. George H. Hoyt, a notorious red-leg, was commissioned Lieutenant-Colonel, and John M. Laing, Major. This regiment was composed principally of veteran soldiers, veteran red-legs, and veteran jayhawkers, imbued with an intense hatred of the rebellion, brave even to recklessness, and animated with a spirit to avenge the great and peculiar wrongs of Kansas.

Johnson County furnished one entire company to this regiment, besides a number scattered through other companies, and the following officers: John A. Wanless, of Shawnee, Captain Company A; James Wilson, of Spring Hill, First Lieutenant; D. W. Wallingford, of Olathe, Second Lieutenant; John Roberts, of Olathe, Second Lieutenant of Company K, and John Francis, editor of the Olathe Mirror, Regimental Commissary.

This regiment distinguished itself in 1864, fighting Gen. Price's army, when on its famous raid. Outside of this it had but little opportunity to give proof of the material of which it was composed, but during the series of battles incident upon that raid, a portion of the regiment under Lieutenant-Colonel Hoyt, at the battle of the Blue, made one of the most gallant sabre charges of the war.

LOCAL BATTLES AND RAIDS.

The first battle of the war within the limits of the county is distinguished by the name of the battle of Blow-hard. It was fought in August, 1861. The farmers between Olathe and the Missouri had previously held a meeting at the house of Gabriel Reed, and determined to station night patrols on the roads leading into Missouri. From the opposition of one of their number who was present, it was promptly inferred that he was a Rebel sympathizer.

Shortly after the meeting, Pat. Cosgrove and Joseph Hutchison went to Little Santa Fe on official business. They failed to return at the time they were expected, and it was learned next day that they were held as prisoners in Missouri. A company of one hundred men was soon organized, armed with almost every conceivable kind of weapon, and marching with patriotic ardor on Little Santa Fe, fully determined to rescue the prisoners, at whatever cost. After marching about five miles the company halted, sending forward two of their number to reconnoiter. While awaiting the return of this little reconnoitering party the balance spent the time in speculating upon the number of ghastly rebel corpses that would bestrew the ground next morning around Little Santa Fe, unless those prisoners were surrendered on demand. While thus engaged, a long black line of horsemen was suddenly discovered approaching from the direction of the objective point of their march, and our brave warriors, as suddenly losing all solicitude as to the fate of the prisoners whom they had so recently been so anxious to rescue, instantly instituted a retrograde movement towards Olathe, the rapidity of which would have done credit to the most ambitious pedestrian. Upon reaching the summit of a ridge they looked back. Their pursuers were not in sight. A part of them therefore halted, and hastily threw up a fortification of timber, sixty feet square by two feet high. In this fortification about twenty awaited the expected attack of the Rebels, the remainder meanwhile hastening on toward home. The Rebels did not attack. They did not emerge from the timber along Tomahawk Creek. Upon investigation, it was learned that they had merely come out to escort Franklin and his family back to Missouri among their friends.

The prisoners themselves soon returned, not having been harmed nor mistreated in any way. Thus happily ended the battle of Blow-hard.

Jennison's Raid.—Shortly after the happy termination of this "battle," C. R. Jennison made a raid on Olathe. He had raised a company with a view of joining a regiment then being organized at Leavenworth, but not being accepted, he decided to do some independent work. Arriving at Olathe, he arrested L. S. Cornwell, Mr. Drake, Judge Campbell, and a family named Turpin, on the charge of being traitors and rebels. These parties were searched for weapons, sworn not to take up arms against the Union, and released. L. S. Cornwell and Drake left the county in consequence of this raid, and Jennison was never punished for his arbitrary proceeding.

Quantrill's Raid.—September 6, 1862, was the night of Quantrill's famous raid upon Olathe. He had doubtless been informed of the defenceless condition of the town. His band consisted of about one hundred and forty men. Upon approaching Olathe, they killed a young man named Frank Cook, who had shortly previous enlisted in the Twelfth Kansas, and also two brothers, John J. and James B. Judy, who had also enlisted in the Twelfth Regiment. Upon entering Olathe, the inhabitants being taken by surprise, they marched through the town, invaded the houses and stores, stole considerable property and goods of various kinds, corraled the citizens in the public square, and in the melee shot and killed Hiram Blanchard, of Spring Hill, who tried to prevent them from stealing his horse, also Phillip Wiggins and Josiah Skinner. After accomplishing his designs, Quantrill led his men back into Missouri with their plunder.

This raid was a severe check to the prosperity of Olathe, or perhaps it would be more correct to say, a powerful aid to its decline. Its business men had lost heavily by the raid, and but little of the property stolen was ever recovered. The people felt insecure, being subject to raids by both friends and foes of the Union. Afterwards soldiers were stationed in the town for protection, and the citizens felt more secure.

Emboldened by his success at Olathe Quantrill repeated his experiment at Shawnee, on the 17th of October following. At this place a great deal of property was stolen, and nearly the whole town burned down, fourteen houses being entirely consumed, and others considerably damaged by the fire. A Mr. Stiles and a Mr. Becker were killed in the town, and five others besides, outside, one of whom was James Warfield and another an Indian.

In February, 1863, George Todd, one of Quantrell's lieutenants, attacked Spring Hill with a force of ten men, taking the town entirely by surprise, as had been the case at Olathe and Shawnee. Although considerable property was stolen and destroyed, no murder was committed at that time.

During the year, however, the people all over the county were in a state of continual alarm, as an occasional depredation of some kind, or murder, would be reported. Among the citizens of the county shot and killed this year were William Reece, and a Mexican trader and one of his men, all in the vicinity of Indian Creek.

On the 21st of August, 1863, occurred the Lawrence raid. On their way thither, Quantrill's forces passed through Johnson County, camping near Aubry for supper.

During the remainder of the war, however, the border was amply protected. One of the steps taken was the enrollment and arming of the militia of the State. The Thirteenth Regiment, consisting of 500 men, was raised in Johnson County, Julius A. Keeler being commissioned Colonel, Alexander S. Johnson, Lieutenant-Colonel, and William Roy, Adjutant. W. H. M. Fishback, of Olathe, was Brigadier-General, in command of a division, and Harry McBride, Adjutant-General of the same brigade. The duties of the militia, although arduous, were cheerfully performed, and produced a sense of security and protection which could not have been well otherwise obtained. Being citizens of the county, they were simply protecting their own and their neighbors' homes.

COUNTY ORGANIZATION, OFFICIAL ROSTER, ETC.

The county was organized, as has been stated, in 1855, but there was no full complement of officers until March, 1857, when Gov. Robert J. Walker appointed the following: Commissioners, John T. Ector, John Evans, and William Fisher, Jr.; Probate Judge, John P. Campbell; Treasurer, John T. Barton; Sheriff, Pat. Cosgrove. The Commissioners held their first meeting on September 7, and appointed John Henry Blake, clerk, and Samuel C. Wear attended as deputy-sheriff. At this meeting but little business was transacted. An election was ordered for the purpose of electing county officers, which was held on the first Monday in October, but owing to some informality connected with it, declared void. The second meeting of the Commissioners was held October 28, at which time the townships of Aubry, Lexington, Monticello, McCamish, Olathe, Santa Fe (now Oxford), Spring Hill, and Shawnee were organized and special commissioners appointed to prescribe their boundaries. Gardner, then a part of Spring Hill Township, was soon afterward separately organized. At the third meeting of the Commissioners, December 7, Constables were appointed for each township: Anderson Tate, for Olathe; N. T. Milliner, for Monticello; David P. Wear, for Shawnee; T. M. Powers, for McCamish; Robert Victor, for Gardner; Jacob Buttram, for Oxford; and R. Todd, for Lexington.

In March, 1858, the first county election was held, with the following result: Commissioners, John T. Ector, John J. Evans, and William Fisher, Jr.; J. H. Blake, Register of Deeds; James Rich, Clerk of the Board of Commissioners; Pat. Cosgrove, Sheriff; Jonathan Gore, County Attorney; S. B. Myrick, Deputy Clerk; and Samuel Wear, Deputy Sheriff by appointment. In the following September John M. Giffen was appointed County Attorney to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Jonathan Gore.

There seems to have been no attempt at this election on the part of the Free-state men to elect a set of officers, the county being too overwhelmingly Democratic. But they did make an attempt to arrest John T. Evans, on account of his connection with operations in 1856. John Lockhart was the leader of this party. After chasing Evans on the open prairie most of the day they relinquished the attempt, returned to Olathe and arrested Judge Campbell, and took him to Lawrence for trial. Judge Campbell was soon afterwards released.

In the fall of 1859 the following county officers were elected by the Democratic party: Probate Judge, E. S. Wilkenson; Clerk, S. B. Myrick; Treasurer, A. B. Squires; Register of Deeds, J. H. Blake; Sheriff, Pat. Cosgrove, County Attorney, G. M. Waugh; Surveyor, A. Slaughter; Superintendent of Public Instruction, W. Christison. All the officers elected at this time were good men and sufficiently well qualified to perform the duties of their respective offices acceptably to the people with one exception, that of the County Treasurer. He turned out to be an utterly reckless and dishonest official, and at the end of his term to be a defaulter to a very large amount. In compensation or in part compensation to the county he offered to turn in Johnson County scrip, which was refused by the Board of Commissioners. Suit was brought and a judgment obtained against him for $6,000. He again tendered scrip which was again refused, and as a result his bondsmen were released. The county secured nothing on its judgment, and Squires left. The county officers elected in the fall of 1861 were all Republicans, though some of them had but recently joined the party. This was the case with S. B. Myrick, who had fought at the battle of Bull Creek under Gen. Reid and had been repeatedly elected to the office of Clerk by the Democrats. The officers elected were as follows, the figures attached to each name being the majority received: Commissioners, Elias Mason, G. W. Roberts, and Adam Sheets; Clerk, J. H. Jackson (61); Register of Deeds, S. B. Myrick (15); Treasurer John W. Sponable (53); Sheriff, John Jones (92.)

Commissioners, elected in 1863, D. M. Williams, Evan Shriver and Elias Mason; in 1864 Thomas Hogan, to fill a vacancy; in 1865, D. M. Williams, W. C. Smith, and C. L. Dille; in 1867, B. F. Hollenbeck, John Brady and John Fulcher; in 1869, W. H. Brady, John Brady and H. W. McClintock; in 1871, Thomas Douglas, J. B. Marshall and H. W. McClintock; in 1873, J. A. Hibbard, J. E. Barnard and V. R. Ellis; in 1875, L. F. Watts, J. A. Hibbard and Alexander Miller; in 1877, Thomas Douglas, T. G. Stephenson and Thomas Pierce. Hereafter two Commissioners hold over, and one is elected each year. In 1878, C. Zehring is elected for three years; in 1879, T. G. Stephenson; in 1880, A. Fritz; in 1881, C. Zehring.

Judges of Probate have been as follows: L. F. Blodgett elected in 1862, re-elected in 1864; H. P. Noteman, in 1866, 1868 and 1870; G. F. Hendrickson in 1872, and at every successive election until the present time.

Sheriffs—John Janes, in 1863; J. M. Hadley, in 1865 and 1867; A. J. Clemmans, in 1869 and 1871; Nich. Reitz, in 1873; A. J. Clemmans, in 1875 and 1877; William Julian, in 1879 and 1881.

County Clerks—F. E. Henderson, in 1863, 1865 and 1867; John T. Taylor, in 1869 and 1871; Joseph Martin, in 1873, 1875 and 1877; Frank Huntoon, in 1879 and 1881.

Clerks of District Court—J. T. Weaver, elected in 1861; S. B. Myrick, in 1864 and 1866; T. J. Hadley, in 1868; J. M. Hadley, in 1870, 1872 and 1874; A. H. Lott, in 1876, and at each succeeding election since.

Treasurers—J. W. Sponable, elected in 1861 and 1863; Col. J. E. Hayes, in 1865; J. H. Blake, in 1867 and 1869; J. B. Bruner, in 1871 and 1873; H. A. Taylor, in 1875 and 1877; A. G. Carpenter, in 1879 and 1881.

County Attorneys—A. S. Devinney elected in 1864; William Roy, in 1865; John T. Burris, in 1866; J. L. Wines, in 1868; Frank R. Ogg, in 1870 and 1872; J. W. Green, in 1874; J. P. Hindman, in 1876; John T. Burris, in 1878; John A. Rankin, in 1880.

County Surveyors—R. Morgan, in 1861; I. C. Stuck, in 1863; M. J. Burke, in 1865; Frank L. Weaver, in 1867; I. C. Stuck, in 1869 and 1871; D. Hubbard, in 1873; J. P. Hindman, in 1875; A. G. Carpenter, 1877; T. A. Parker, in 1879 and 1881.

Superintendents of Public Instruction—L. F. Blodgett, elected in 1861; O. S. Laws, 1862; W. H. Smith, 1863; O. S. Laws, 1864; C. E. Lewis, 1866 and 1868; J. B. Pollock, 1870; B. S. McFarland, 1872; A. Rennick, 1874; Frank Murdock, 1876 and 1878; W. J. Hull in 1880.

Registers of Deeds—S. B. Myrick, elected in 1861; J. E. Clark, 1862 and 1863; I. S. Farris, 1865-67-69 and 1871; A. H. Lott, 1873; E. L. Caress, 1875-77-79; R. E. Stevenson, 1881.

County Assessors—T. T. Cadwallader, elected in 1861; W. H. Thorn, 1863; John T. Taylor, 1865; Wm. Williams, in 1867, after which time the office was discontinued.

At the organization of the county, the county seat was located where Shawnee now stands, which place was then known as Gum Springs. Early in the summer of 1858, parties interested in the town of Olathe had an election called on the county seat question. Olathe was successful in this election, which was held in May. But as under the Territorial laws, such elections had to be ordered by the Governor, and as in this case the Governor had not heard of the desire of the citizens to change their county seat, the change itself was unwarranted because illegal. Governor Denver, upon hearing of it, ordered the officers back to Gum Springs, and accordingly, having held their last meeting at Olathe on the first of June, they returned to Gum Springs on the 6th. Thereupon, those desiring Olathe to be the county seat went to work and had an election for locating it there held some time in October in a legal manner. They were again successful, and the officers moved to Olathe about the 27th of the same month. In 1859 the jail was built by J. E. Hayes. It is a substantial stone building and cost the county $6,000. In 1859 Fred. W. Case erected the building on the corner now used as a part of the Court House, at a cost of $1,200; in January, 1865, the county bought the balance of the lot on which this corner building stood for $85, and during this latter year the new portion of the building was erected at a cost of $2,825, making a total cost of the Court House of $4,110.

RAILROADS.

Johnson County is crossed by five railroads: The Missouri River, Fort Scott & Gulf, entering the county near its northeastern corner, running in a general southwesterly direction and leaving the county near the middle of its southern boundary; The Kansas City, Lawrence & Southern Kansas, using the line of the former road to Olathe and then running southwesterly to Ottawa; the St. Louis, Lawrence & Denver, entering the county at the northwest corner, running southeasterly through Olathe and to Pleasant Hill, Mo.; and the Kansas & Midland Railroad, running along the Kansas River through the northwest corner of the county; and the Kansas City & Olathe, running north from Olathe and connecting with the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe at Waseca.

An election was held November 7, 1865, on the question of issuing $100,000 in bonds to the Kansas City & Neosho Valley Railroad. The people ardently desiring the advantages of railroad communication with the outside world, voted for the bonds with enthusiasm, 598 for, to 265 against them. This road is now the Kansas City, Fort Scott & Gulf. It was commenced in the summer of 1867, completed to Olathe November 19, and to the south line of the county in 1869.

On the 6th of April, 1869, another election was held on the question of issuing $100,000 in bonds in aid of each of two railroads, the St. Louis, Lawrence & Denver, and the Kansas City & Santa Fe, now the Kansas City, Lawrence & Southern Kansas. There had been held two previous elections on the same proposition, at both of which the bonds had been voted down, but at this election they carried by a vote of 1,301 for, to 627 against them more than two to one. The Kansas City & Santa Fe road was completed to Ottawa in 1870, and the St. Louis, Lawrence & Denver was built from Lawrence to Pleasant Hill, in 1871.

In the year 1873 the county refused to pay interest on the first issue of the bonds, on the ground of alleged illegality of their issue. A law suit was the consequence, which terminated in a compromise. There are now outstanding against the county $283,000 in bonds, $167,000 in five-twenty, six per cents, and $116,000 in seven per cent bonds, maturing in December, 1899. The assessed value of all railroad property in the county is $750,000, the annual taxes upon which, at three per cent, amount to $22,500. The interest on the bonds amounts annually to $18,140; so that the taxes paid by the railroads each year exceed the interest on the bonds by about $4,000, which applied to the payment of the principal would in twenty years amount to $80,000. If we add to this the enhancement in the value of real estate and all kinds of farm products, resulting from the existence of railroads in the county, it would seem that the issuance of bonds was not altogether a bonus without equivalent, as some parties have tried to make it appear. Immediately upon settling the terms of the compromise, a sinking fund was established for the purpose of retiring the bonded indebtedness of the county at as early a day as practicable, and it is more than probable that the last dollar of debt will be paid in good faith long before the maturity of the bonds. The opposition to the payment of the interest on the bonds was not sustained by the sober second thought of the people, and those who favored meeting the obligations of the county, have overwhelmingly triumphed in succeeding elections, as could only be the case in an intelligent and honorable community like that in Johnson County.

COUNTY SOCIETIES.

Gardner Grange No. 68, Patrons of Husbandry, was instituted in 1873, and was the first grange in Johnson County. During the year, and the first few months of 1874, thirty-six granges in all were instituted, with an aggregate membership of 1,200. During the first three years of the existence of the granges, the objects aimed at, were merely social and intellectual, but in 1876 the Johnson County Co-operative Association was instituted, with the view of entering the commercial field, and in July of that year, business was begun in Olathe with one store, which confined itself to the grocery line, and in which there was invested $800. From time to time the business was enlarged by the addition to it of dry goods, boots and shoes, hardware, agricultural implements and wholesale goods. In 1881, the capital invested had increased to $30,000, and the business of the year amounted to $250,000. This amount includes the business done at the central store at Olathe, and the two stores, one each at Stanley and Edgerton. In 1882, there was a branch store established at De Soto, and one at Gardner.

Pomona Grange No. 118, P. of H., was established in 1878, with D. D. Marquis, master, and W. R. Walker, secretary. This grange is composed of delegates from the subordinate granges in the county, of which there are now twenty, instead of thirty-six, as at first, the membership remaining in the aggregate the same, namely 1,200.

The Johnson County Publishing Association, was instituted in 1878, in which year the Olathe Leader, a weekly, four page paper, was established under their proprietorship, with S. K. Ayers, editor. In June, 1881, it was enlarged to an eight page paper, its name changed to the Kansas Patron and Farmer, its editorial management placed in charge of R. E. G. Huntington, D.D., and the paper itself advanced from a mere county paper, to the official organ of the Kansas State Grange.

The Agricultural and Mechanical Fair Association, was organized in 1867, and the first county fair held October 1st, 2d and 3d of that year, but the business of the association being a losing one, its organization was discontinued.

Normal Institute—In 1877, the Legislature passed laws providing for, and regulating normal institutes. These laws provide that the session of each institute shall be not less than four weeks, and that a competent conductor and instructors shall be employed. The first normal institute in Johnson County was held in Olathe, in the summer of 1877, since which time they have been held annually, and have been attended on an average by about one hundred teachers.

STATISTICS.

The public schools of the county are generally in a flourishing condition, and have excellent schoolhouses. In 1882, there were ninety-four districts; 6,879 children of school age; 107 teachers employed, at an average salary for the male teachers of $38.01 per month, and for the females of $29.18. Estimated value of school buildings and grounds, $78,000; furniture, $8,000; apparatus, $1,500; books, $300. Total value of school property, $87,800.

There has been considerable attention paid to the planting of forest trees. In 1881, there were 152 acres of walnut, 184 acres of maple, 16 acres of honey locust, 60 acres of cottonwood, 6 acres of catalpa and 255 acres of other varieties, making a total of 673 acres.

More attention has been paid to fruit than to forest culture. In the same year, as given above, there were growing 158,747 apple trees, 6,064 pear trees, 108,106 peach trees, 5,304 plum trees, and 29,634 cherry trees.

Of the principal crops, there were raised 48,404 acres of winter wheat, 1,132 acres of rye, 57,169 acres of corn, 7,487 acres of oats, 996 acres of potatoes, 26,429 acres of flax, 9,254 acres of timothy, 19,221 acres of clover and 12,354 acres of prairie meadow.

Almost all varieties of fence are used. Of board fence, there were 90,585 rods; rail, 164,815 rods; stone, 20,866 rods; hedge, 560,986 rods; and of wire 88,345 rods—total number of rods of fence 925,397, or 2,891 miles.

In 1882, the personal and real estate of Johnson County had advanced to the following figures: horses, 7,260, value, $251,777; cattle, 16,643, value, $191,325; mules, 1,150, value, $53,794; sheep, 1,647, value $2,491; hogs, 16,628, value, $46,077; goats 4, value $12; vehicles, 2,306, value, $49,701; stocks, $13,900; moneys, $62,321.50; money invested in merchandising, $96,794; in manufactures, $3,865; notes and mortgages, $145,874; farming implements, $34,621; all other personal property, $222,068.50; total of personal property, $1,196,815; deducting from this sum a constitutional exemption of $325,000, there remains as a total of taxable property, $871,845.

Taxable value of real estate is as follows: Number of acres of taxable lands, 262,142, value $2,046,470; village lots, 8,374, value $349,224; railroad property, $732,550. Total taxable value of real estate, $3,128,244.02. Grand total of taxable property, $4,000,089.02.

In 1865 the population of the county was 4,364; in 1870, 13,684; in 1875, 14,580; in 1874, estimated at 18,139; in 1880, according to United States census, 16,854; in 1881, according to Assessor's returns, 15,228.

Total assessment of property for the following years: For 1865, $2,651,000; 1870, $3,095,000; 1875, $3,411,000; 1880, $3,574,000; 1881, $3,769,000; and for 1882, $4,000,089.02. Assessed valuation, being estimated at one-third real value, brings the total true value of all kinds of property in the county up to a trifle over $12,000,000.

OLATHE.

This city, the county-seat of Johnson County, is situated very nearly in the geographical center of the county. It is a thriving city of 3,000 inhabitants, and a railroad center. The city itself and its surroundings are very attractive. Art has added much to nature, and even before the growth or planting of trees, hedges and shrubbery, and before the building of houses and fences, and the embellishment of grounds, nature here, in her wild state, was such as to lead the beholder to exclaim, "O-la-the!" Shawnee for beautiful, hence the future name of the city.

This was in the spring of 1857, when Dr. Barton with a party came out to survey the town site of the future county-seat. With the party was a Shawnee Indian, named Dave Dougherty. The proposed location of the future city was pointed out by Dr. Barton to his companions, from the ridge east of town. After viewing it a few moments, the Indian exclaimed, as above recited, "O la-the!" (beautiful). Barton at once decided on Olathe for the name of the town.

The town site being selected, building upon it was at once commenced. Early in the same spring Dr. Barton and Charles A. Osgood built the first house in the town. It was of rough lumber, 12x14 feet, stood near the present site of the Olathe House, and served as a grocery, drug store, dry goods store, saloon and hotel. The second house was built by Col. Clarkson and Jacob Thuma. It was a one-story frame building, 15x24, of cottonwood boards, and stood near the northeast corner of the public square. The third house was built by Gen. Dick Taylor, a son of Zachary Taylor, President of the United States. Soon after this, a number of other buildings were erected, and the town was thus fairly started. During the year 1857, the following persons came to Olathe and became citizens of the new town: Jonathan Milliken, J. B. Whittier, Charles A. Osgood, C. M. Ott, J. H. Blake, John P. Campbell, S. F. Hill, Charles Mayo, Beattie McHaffie, and Henderson Boggs.

Jonathan Milliken took a farm near the town, built the first substantial house, and the next year was married to Miss Emily L. Whittier, a second cousin to the poet Whittier, and the first white woman in Olathe.

J. B Whittier rented two small buildings near the southwest corner of the square, and opened the first hotel in the town, under the name of the Union House. In the management of this hotel he was assisted by his sister, Miss Emily L. Whittier. Among the guests at the Union House during the summer of 1858, were Gen. James H. Lane, S. C. Pomeroy, afterwards United States Senator from Kansas, A. D. Richardson, Old John Brown, the martyr, and the mildest mannered Quantrill.

S. F. Hill opened a store on the west side of the square, and remained in business here until some time during the war, when he died. C. A. Osgood opened a farm adjoining the town on the south, the first one opened up in Johnson County. John P. Campbell, a cousin of James K. Polk, came here from Nashville, Tenn. He was looked upon as a brilliant and promising lawyer in that State, but he impaired his faculties by the use of alcoholic stimulants, and died of consumption in the early years of the war. C. M. Ott opened a small bakery, upon a capital of fifteen dollars, and by tact, energy and fair dealing, became quite a wealthy and highly respected citizen. Henderson Boggs built the Olathe House, ran it as a hotel for some time, and sold it to Thuma & Scott, who in turn sold it to Benjamin Dare. Mr. Dare dared to extract a check from a letter directed to L. F. Crist. Being apprehended, he gave bonds, secured his bondsman, S. F. Hill, and left Olathe, never to return.

The first marriage in Olathe was that of D. W. Wallingford to Miss Elisabeth Swartz, early in 1857. The attraction between these two persons was sudden as well as mutual, they being married in four days after first meeting. The county records bear no evidence of this marriage having occurred. The first recorded marriage was that of Charles Osgood to Miss Caroline Roberts, June 15, 1857, which was solemnized by John P. Campbell, then Probate Judge.

The Southern Methodists commenced a church building this year, but did not complete it, for in about two months after commencing it, a storm leveled it to the ground, a discouraging event in the straightened condition of the society's finances.

The first child born in Olathe, was a daughter to a slave mother, which, however, did not live. The first white child born was Julia Osgood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Osgood, the birth occurring March 20, 1858.

The first death was that of a carpenter, C. R. Jenkinson, who died in 1857, from the effects of cutting his knee with an adze.

Early in the history of Olathe, Dr. Barton and Ed. Nash opened an office for the sale of real estate. Owing to their having purchased the field notes of the survey by Coffman, as previously related, they really had a monopoly of the claim business and realized very handsome returns. Dr. Barton was, during his residence in the county, its leading Democratic politician and leading physician. He remained in Olathe until 1859 or 1860, when he left the town from motives which though highly honorable, were, to nearly all, very mysterious. Two days previous to the time of his appointed marriage to Miss Josephine Wilkenson, he conveyed to her by deed all his real estate in the county and suddenly departed, leaving his marriage contract unfulfilled. During the war he was medical purveyor for the western department of the Confederate Army, receiving his pay in confederate scrip, which upon the termination of the war was worthless. After the war he went to Texas, where he made considerable money speculating in cotton, traveled extensively in Europe, and finally settled in Kansas City, Mo., where he now resides.

INCORPORATION, SCHOOLS, ETC.

Olathe was incorporated in 1857, but as this was by the "Bogus Legislature," doubts existed in the minds of the town company as to the legality of the incorporation. It was therefore re-incorporated in 1858, and on September 14, 1859, its first board of trustees were elected as follows: J. T. Barton, A. J. Clemmans, Jonathan Milliken, L. S. Cornwell, and S. F. Hill.

During the war the city government was in a very chaotic condition; very little effort was made to keep records intact or in good shape, but after the war was over Olathe was incorporated as a city of the third class, with the following board of trustees: H. K. Stevenson, chairman; Charles Sennet, G. F. Hendrickson, William Vickers, and B. F. Pancoast.

In 1870 the town was organized as a city of the second class, having at the time 2,045 inhabitants. The election was held in April, at which time a mayor, marshal, police justice, and four councilmen were elected. The first mayor was William Pellet. He was succeeded by W. H. M. Fishback, who was elected successively in 1871, '72 and '73; J. H. Dow was elected in 1874 and '75; J. L. Price, in 1876 and '77; S. R. Burch, in 1878 and '79. At this time the term of office was changed to two years. Mayor Burch resigned in December, 1879, E. J. Mariner being elected to fill the vacancy. I. O. Pickering, present Mayor, was elected in 1881.

The first school in Olathe was taught by E. M. Annette, in the little frame building erected by Dick Taylor. The stone schoolhouse on Lulu street was erected in 1868, at a cost of $10,000. The city having outgrown its school accommodations, on December 7, 1881, an election was held, at which $15,000 in bonds was voted for the purpose of building a new schoolhouse, by a vote of 89 for the bonds to 69 against them. On the 25th of May, 1882, another election was held, at which $5,000 was voted for the purchase of a site for the proposed new schoolhouse.

The Olathe College was established in 1873 by Prof. F. R. Poole, at the solicitation of F. R. Ogg and W. H. M. Fishback. Prof. Poole had previously presided over a similar institution at Macon, Mo. At the outset the Olathe College was a success, and it continued to prosper for some years, and graduated large numbers of both sexes. In addition to the commercial branches, common and higher English, and classical studies were taught. Gradually the professor, on account of an unfortunate habit of the use of alcoholic stimulants, lost his popularity, and sold his college in 1877, to McKeever and Shepherd, who in turn sold to McFarland & Hammond in the fall of 1878, they selling in the spring of 1880 to Prof. Keane, under whom the college failed. Prof. Poole's successors were all worthy gentlemen, but their experience demonstrates that besides goodness, something else is required to successfully manage a Commercial College.

Kansas Institute for the Deaf and Dumb.—The first efforts in behalf of the deaf in Kansas were made by Prof. P. A. Emery, of the Indiana Institution. This was in 1862. On March 5, of that year, the Legislature made an appropriation for the school which was located at Baldwin, Douglas County. Appropriations were likewise made in 1863 and 1864. During the early part of this latter year he removed the school to Topeka, and in the fall turned it over to H. H. Nordyke a mute, who continued it through the first months of the winter of 1864-5. On February 10, 1865, the Legislature made a small appropriation to assist Prof. Joseph Mount, a mute, to re-open the school at Baldwin. On February 15, 1866, the Legislature organized the "Asylum for the Deaf and Dumb," by appointing a Board of Trustees, located it at Olathe, and made an appropriation for its support. The first or Charter Board of Trustees were, as near as can now be ascertained, as follows: Warner Craig, of Baldwin, president; Frank E. Henderson, of Olathe, secretary; J. K. Goodin, of Baldwin, auditor; A. S. Johnson, and George H. Lawrence, both of Johnson County. The board held their first meeting at Olathe, November, 1866, in the new stone building, then recently completed for the Institution by Col. J. E. Hayes. The State purchased the building and grounds (twelve and a half acres) of Col. Hayes, for $15,500, and subsequently of other parties, 160 acres of land for a farm for the benefit of the Institution, two and a half miles from Olathe. Prof Thomas Burnside took charge of the institution April 18, 1867, and resigning in November was succeeded by Louis H. Jenkins, who held the position until the spring of 1876, at which time Major T. C. Bowles was elected, and remained in office until his death in April, 1879 J. W. Parker, of the Michigan Institute, was then elected, who in one year resigned, and was succeeded by W. H. De Mott, LL. D., the present incumbent.

In 1873 the Legislature made an appropriation of $20,000 for the erection of the east wing of a new building, which was erected in 1874. In 1880 the west wing was completed, the Legislature having made an appropriation for the purpose of $19,000. Both wings are of brick, three stories high above a stone basement.

On March 11, 1877, the name was changed by the Legislature to the "Kansas Institution for the Deaf and Dumb."

Previous to 1876 there had been admitted to the institution 156 pupils; in 1876, there were admitted 17; in 1877, 18; in 1878, 28; in 1879, 27; in 1880, 33; in 1881, 37. Total number admitted up to 1882, 316. There are now 170 on the rolls, 140 of whom are in attendance, 10 waiting to be placed on the rolls, and 40 awaiting admission.

CHURCHES AND SOCIETIES.

The Church of Christ was organized at Olathe April 16, 1860, by G. W. Hutchinson and Pardee Butler, Evangelists, with about twenty-five members. Most of the time up to 1873, Elder William Gans conducted religious services. The church has experienced several revivals, at one of which twenty-five members were added to their number. In 1872 there were forty-five members. A very neat church building was erected on Park street in 1869, at a cost of about $3,500; but in 1881, on account of the building of the Olathe & Kansas City Railroad close to the church, it was removed to the corner of Chestnut and Lulu streets.

In 1874, Elder J. H. Painter was engaged, who served half time to 1875. Then followed Elders J. A. Elliott, one-fourth time, to April, 1876; William Gans, one-half time to April, 1877; A. C. McKeever, one-half time to June, 1879; J. W. Monser, one-fourth time from January 1, 1880, to October, 1880; and Henry Coggswell, whole time, from April, 1881, to April 1, 1882. The present membership is eighty, and the church with reason looks forward to the accomplishment of a grander work in the future than in the past.

The First Methodist Episcopal Church of Olathe was organized with sixty members in 1865, the organization was perfected in 1866. In 1869 a church building, 36x60 feet, was erected at a cost of $5,000. The lot is 28x143 feet, the building in excellent repair, and the church organization in sound financial condition. The ministers of this church have been as follows: Revs. C. E. Lewis, beginning in 1868; J. T. Nesley, 1870; J. T. Hanna, in 1872; H. D. Fisher, in 1874; J. Biddison, in 1876; Dr. T. H. Phillips, in 1878; A. E. Higgins, in 1880; and Mr. Hill, in 1881. The church is in a healthy and growing condition, with 180 members on the roll.

The First Congregational Church of Olathe was organized October 24, 1865, with six members, by Rev. Lewis Bodwell. A church building was erected on Chestnut street, between Park and Lulu, in 1870, costing $4,000. The first regular minister was Rev. Lincoln Harlow, who commenced his labors with this church December 1, 1865. He has been succeeded by the following: Revs. G. A. Beckwith, commencing October, 1867; F. T. Ingles, October, 1870; F. W. Adams, January, 1873; E. N. Bartlett, October, 1873; Leavitt Bartlett, October, 1874; H. P. Case, September 15, 1878, and P. F. Weil, September 25, 1881. The church is in excellent condition for future work, with eighty-six members on the roll.

The Old School Presbyterian Church was organized October 1, 1865, with eighteen members, by Rev. William Wilson; though as early as 1859 the Presbyterians had commenced their labors in Olathe, Revs. J. C. Beach, William Smith and A. T. Rankin having acted as missionaries and prepared the way for the organization of the church. In 1867 a frame church building, 34x55 feet in size, was erected at a cost of about $2,500. Succeeding Rev. Mr. Wilson was Rev. John McKean, commencing his pastorate January 7, 1866; then followed Revs. N. A. Rankin, April, 1869; J. H. Miller, January, 1872; J. H. Clark, January, 1873; W. R. L. Carrett, October, 1876; W. E. Williamson, February, 1880. The church is in a flourishing condition, with 100 members.

The United Presbyterian Church of Olathe was organized November 10, 1866, with fourteen members, by Rev. D. T. McAuley. Their pastors have been Revs. Andrew Renwick, from 1869 to 1874; J. W. McClenahan, from 1877 to 1879; and their present pastor, commencing July 1, 1880. Membership May 31, 1882, 100.

The present church edifice was erected in 1870, at a cost of about $1,500. A new one is in contemplation, to cost about $5,000.

The African Methodist Episcopal Church was organized with about twelve members in 1868 by Rev. B. F. Bates. From the time of the organization to 1879, the colored Baptists worshiped with their Methodist brethren, but in that year a separation became desirable, and was effected. The Methodist Episcopal Church erected a house of worship costing nearly $1,000. Since 1877 their ministers have been as follows: Rev. D. Carter, commencing his pastorate in 1877; Rev. E. Ferguson, in 1879; Rev. Daniel Coles, in 1880; Rev. Spottswood Alexander, in 1881. The membership is now thirty-two. A Sunday school was organized in connection with the church, in 1869, which has been continued ever since.

The Reformed Presbyterian, or Covenanter Church, was organized in Olathe with forty-nine members, in September, 1865, being the first church of this denomination organized in Kansas. Rev. W. W. McMillan was settled as its pastor in April, 1866, and has been the only and is still its present pastor in Olathe. Its membership is now seventy-nine. Its contributions for all religious purposes for 1881, were $1,127.

In November, 1871, the Pleasant Ridge portion of this congregation effected a separate organization, with twenty-nine members, there being no pastoral change until in the spring of 1873. In May, 1874, Rev. M. Wilkins was settled as pastor and served until his death, July 12, 1880. Its present pastor took charge in October, 1881; its place of worship is five miles east of Olathe, and its membership fifty-two.

This denomination wherever found is radical in its character, forward in reform movements, and never received into, nor tolerated slaveholders in its communion. While its members have borne arms in every national conflict for right and liberty, yet they refrain from the exercise of the elective franchise—believing the National constitution to be, though in many respects most excellent, yet in some things infidel and immoral.

The Roman Catholic Church was organized in Olathe with about twelve members, in 1864, by Rev. Father Myers. He was succeeded by Revs. Father Dustermann, in 1866, Father Pichler, in 1868; Father Cerius, in 1871; Father Pichler, in 1874; Father Casey, in 1875, who still remains. In 1880 the church commenced the erection of a large brick building at the corner of Chestnut and Santa Fe avenue, which when completed will have cost about $12,000.

The First Baptist Church at Olathe, was organized March 27, 1870, with fourteen members. Their house of worship was built in 1873 at a cost of $2,200, since which time improvements have been made at an expense of $800. The pastors of this church have been as follows: Rev. R. P. Evans, from June, 1872, to August, 1876; Rev. F. S. Witter, from March, 1877, to July, same year; Rev. N. Hines, from September, 1878, to July, 1880; Rev. A. L. Vail, commencing March, 1882. There have been two hundred and fifty-nine members received into the church, and there are now one hundred and thirty-eight. A Sunday school was organized in May, 1872, which has now one hundred scholars on the roll.

Olathe Lodge, No. 19, A. F. & A. M., was chartered October 18, 1859, having then twelve members. Its first charter officers were John P. Campbell, W. M.; John T. Burris, S. W.; John T. Barton, J. W. The lodge has at present eighty members.

Olathe Royal Arch Chapter, No. 10, was chartered October 18, 1867, with thirteen members. Its first officers were Viet Rees, high priest; A. J. Clemmans, king; Peter Julien, scribe. It now has forty members enrolled.

Olathe Star Chapter, No. 3, of the Order of the Eastern Star, was chartered in 1869, with thirteen members. Its first officers were Prof. Louis H. Jenkins, W. P.; Mrs. Jenkins, W. M.; Mrs. A. J. Clemmans, A. M. The membership is now fifty-five, forty of them being ladies.

Olathe Lodge, No. 59, I. O. O. F., was instituted July 7, 1870, with six charter members. The first officers installed were W. A. Offenbacher, N. G.; R. E. Stevenson, V. G.; R. Amos, secretary, and J. P. Ralston, treasurer. The present membership is forty-three.

Harmony Lodge, No., 84, I. O. O. F., was instituted December 29, 1871, with sixteen charter members. The officers first installed were W. Williams, N. G.; S. R. Burch, V. G.; J. R. Brown, secretary, and S. S. Blitz, treasurer. The present membership is seventy-two.

The Olathe Rifles were organized in December, 1880, under the statutes for the organization of the militia. The officers of the company at its organization were the following: Captain, S. R. Burch; First Lieutenant, H. S. Miller; Second Lieutenant, Thomas McGannon. The company is one of the largest in the State; has a very fine band connected with it, and is in excellent discipline.

NEWSPAPERS AND BUSINESS INTERESTS.

The Olathe Herald was the first paper published in Johnson County. The first issue appeared August 29, 1859. In politics it was Democratic; it was ably edited and did good work in aiding the settlement and growth of the then new county. It acquired a circulation of twenty-five hundred. Quantrill paid the office a visit September 6, 1862, after which John M. Giffin, its editor and proprietor, gathered up its debris and sold it for $306; original cost having been $3,500. In addition to his newspaper office, Mr. Giffen also lost through Quantrill's efforts, accounts and notes to the amount of $13,000, and the manuscript of an algebra, for which he had been offered $5,000, and fifteen cents royalty on each book sold.

The Olathe Mirror was established in 1861 by John Francis, at present associate editor of the Chicago Religio-Philosophical Journal, which position he assumed in 1868. S. E. McKee bought the Mirror and published it until his death, in 1871. It was then purchased by T. J. Hadley, who changed it from a Republican to a Liberal Republican paper, and through its columns supported Horace Greeley for the presidency in 1872. The Mirror passed into the hands of Pollock & Aikman, who sold it to Pollock & Ogg, and they in turn to McCandless. In 1873 the Mirror and News Letter were consolidated, and the new journal was conducted by M. V. B. Barker until it was sold to J. A. & H. F. Canutt. In the early part of 1882, it was purchased by Hutchinson Bros., live newspaper men, lately from Ohio.

The Western Progress was started by W. H. McGown, in August, 1872. In December following it was purchased by James Wilson. While under his management it was devoted to the cause of the people, and was the determined foe of corruptionists and rings. It took the position at that time that the missions of both the Democratic and Republican parties were at an end, and that some new party must rise from out their ruins. Subsequent events have proved that editors are not always prophets. A. S. McCulloh was proprietor of the paper until 1879, when it passed into the hands of George Higgins, and in 1880, the Gazette purchased its subscription list and good will.

The News Letter was started in February, 1870, by J. A. & H. F. Canutt, as the fourth newspaper enterprise in Johnson County. It was consolidated with the Mirror in 1873, as above narrated.

The Olathe Gazette was established July 24, 1879, by John Hindman, as a five-column folio, all print. Subsequently it was changed to a seven-column folio, half print. While under Mr. Hindman's supervision it was independent in politics. In 1881, it was purchased by W. S. White, its present editor, who changed its politics to Republican, and returned to the all print programme. The paper is devoted mainly to county and local news, and though Republican is not slavishly so. In May, 1882, it again passed into the hands of John Hindman.

The Monthly Visitor, a Catholic paper, was established in April, 1882, by the Catholic Mutual Benevolent Publishing Co., at Olathe. It is the only paper that gives the Leavenworth diocesan news.

The Johnson County Democrat was started May 18, 1882, by W. C. Paul. Typographically it is one of the neatest papers published in the State. Politically it is devoted to the interests of the Democratic party, and is a newspaper principally devoted to local news. It is the first Democratic paper published in the county since the suppression of the Herald by Quantrill.

Col. J. E. Hayes, commenced business in Olathe, as a banker and dealer in exchange, in 1869. In 1871, the bank was organized as the First National Bank of Olathe, Col. J. E. Hayes, president; Charles L. Hayes, cashier. In 1874, the bonds were surrendered and private banking resumed, under the title of the "Hayes Bank." This bank was closed in 1878, and immediately re-organized as the Johnson County Bank, by George B. Lord & Co., and was operated by George B. Lord, until August 1880, at which time R. M. Atchison took charge of it, and still continues as general manager and cashier.

C. E. Waldron & Co., commenced the business of banking in Olathe, in 1870, putting up a two story brick building on the southeast corner of Park and Cherry streets, at a cost of $10,000. In 1876, they were succeeded by the People's Savings Bank, Dr. S. A. Christy, president, which in its turn was succeeded by Price, Ott & Miller, bankers, January 1, 1879. In September, 1879, the bank was purchased by John Harris & Co., who still conduct the business, with W. H. Smith, cashier.

The Olathe Mills.—These mills are situated on Cedar street at the crossing of Mill Creek. They were erected in 1869 by C. M. Ott, their present owner. The main building is 44x72, two and a half stories high, principally stone, and with the machinery and engine, which is of forty-horse power, cost $18,000. It has three run of buhrs, and a capacity of 300 bushels of wheat in twenty-four hours.

In 1882, the building was raised a story and a half, and roller mills put in as an experiment, with a view of substituting them for the buhrs in use up to that time. The total expense occasioned by the change will be about $15,000, and the result will be that the capacity will be increased 100 per cent, and the flour produced will be much cleaner, much whiter and more nutritious than that produced by the ordinary buhr mills.

The Pearl Mills, were built in 1880 by Reed and Jones, at the corner of Santa Fe and Cherry streets. The building is 40x65 feet, of brick, three stories high, and cost $12,000. In this mill are three run of stones and a pony, and its capacity is 300 bushels per twenty-four hours. The engine is forty-five-horse power, boiler fifty. During the first four months of 1882, the mills sold a quantity of flour equivalent to 1,810 barrels.

Olathe contains at the present time three general stores, five drug stores six groceries, four hardware stores, six agricultural implement dealers, four grain dealers, three livery stables, three furniture stores, two jewelry stores, four bakery and confectionery stores, five hotels, three lumber yards, one broom manufactory, four blacksmiths, one brick yard, three harness shops, and 2,850 inhabitants.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

NEWTON AINSWORTH, breeder of thoroughbred stock. Three miles south and a little west of Olathe, is a farm, now under a high state of cultivation, which is of some past note from an occasional mention in history. Its noteworthy feature was a lone elm tree, the stump of which is yet standing. This fact and that of its being the first farm opened in that part of the county, gave it the name of the Lone Elm farm. Its proprietor, Mr. N. Ainsworth, is one of the early pioneers of Kansas. He was born in Dayton, Ohio, March 23, 1835, and reared on a farm in Miami County. Removing West in 1856 he located at Quindaro, Wyandotte Co., Kansas, and during the rise of that place speculated in lots and town stock. The means thus gained secured him his present comfortable homestead upon which he located in the spring of 1857. During the border troubles and the war following, Mr. Ainsworth was much of the time in government employ, mostly freighting across the plains to the military posts. He is the owner of 320 acres of land in this county, and is largely engaged in breeding thoroughbred Short-horn cattle and Cotswold sheep. His exhibit in cattle carried off first premiums at the Kansas City expositions of 1873 and 1874. Mr. Ainsworth is a charter member of the Lone Elm Grange organized in 1873. He was married at Leavenworth, Kansas in the fall of 1869, to Rosa Hawill of that place; they have five children: David, Ralph, Harry, George and Homer.

JOSEPH H. ANDERTON, of Sylvester & Anderton, stone quarry and stone saw mill, was born in Beaver Co., Penn., June 23, 1859. Here he learned the trade of stone-cutter, serving two years as an apprentice, after which he worked at it there as a journeyman for a year. In June, 1878, he came to Kansas and resided in Olathe and during the first six months worked at his trade in Kansas City; after which he settled in Olathe and for some months worked a rented quarry; then bought one and has conducted it since. In March, 1881, he joined C. O. Sylvester and they built a saw mill for the purpose of cutting the stone for building purposes, etc.

ABRAHAM ARTMAN, farmer, P. O. Olathe; was born in Westmoreland County, Penn., February 11, 1839. At the age of nineteen years he went to Augusta, Ind., and learned the trade of wagon maker, and followed it for twelve years. In June, 1869, he came to Kansas and located in Olathe, opening a wagon shop, which business he ceased in the following March, moving onto his present farm at that time, consisting of 160 acres. He is quite extensively engaged in breeding cattle and horses. Has a fine orchard of about five acres, and a quarry from which is obtained a fine grade of building stone. He was married in Augusta, Ind., March 3, 1859, to Mary E. Shellhammer. They have four children: May, Byron E., John E. and Daisy.

W. C. BARRETT & CO., dealers in grain, flax-seed, coal, etc. W. C. Barrett, the senior partner of this firm, has for over twenty-five years been engaged in the grain business. His first experience was in shipping in flat boats on the Wabash River and its tributaries, and was for fifteen years engaged in the business at Champaign, Ill. He was also, during the winters of 1862-'63 and 1863-'64, engaged in pork business in Chicago, Ill., in the firm of D. Gardner & Co. He came to Olathe in August, 1877, and at once established this business. In 1880 he admitted to partnership J. M. Miller, and his son, B. F. Barrett, since which time they have opened branches at Ocheltree and Edgarton, this county, business at the latter place being under the style of Barrett, Judson & Co. In 1880 the firm handled 65,000 bushels of flax, 150,000 bushels of grain; in 1881, 80,000 of flax and 150,000 of grain. They also do an extensive business in coal and considerable in castor beans.

ALBERT D. BEACH, physician and surgeon, was born in New Berne, N. Y., September 3, 1839. He began the study of medicine in 1854, serving an apprenticeship in drug business in Cincinnati, Ohio, for three years, for which he received a pharmacist's certificate, after which he followed the business as a clerk until he came to Kansas, September 3, 1858, at which time he resumed his medical studies with his brother, Dr. E. E. Beach, at Wyandotte. In the fall of 1861 he went to Cincinnati, and attended the Eclectic College for two terms. Returning to Kansas in September, 1862, he located in Olathe, and at once began the practice of medicine. For three years during the war the doctor had charge of the military hospital at this place, with the rank of acting Assistant-Surgeon, U. S. A., and during the years 1876, '77, '79, and a portion of 1881, held the office of County Physician. Dr. Beach was married in Olathe, July 19, 1863, to Frances R. Josselyn. They have one son—Leon Edgar.

GEORGE H. BEACH, hardware and implement dealer, was born in North Bend, Hamilton County, Ohio, September 3, 1847. He came to Kansas with his father, Rev. I. C. Beach, in the fall of 1857, and lived with his parents in Wyandotte City until the spring of 1858, when his father removed to Olathe, Kas., and built one of the first residences in Olathe. George lived with his father until the spring of 1864, when he went to Colorado and secured a position as clerk in a sutler store at Fort Garland, which he filled for thirteen months. Returning to Olathe, he was appointed Deputy County Clerk, filling that position for over one year; was then Deputy Postmaster for eighteen months. In 1868, he purchased one-half interest in the Olathe Mirror, and conducted it for one year, in company with Sam. E. McKee. Mr. Beach was then Assessor of Olathe City and Deputy Clerk of District Court, three years. In 1874, he purchased his present business. His stock then amounted to $2,000, which he has increased to $20,000. His store-room he has increased from 65 feet to 148 feet, two stories high with large ware-room adjoining. He is also interested in mining in Colorado, and owns one-half interest in a large stock ranch in western Kansas. He was married at Olathe, Kas., in January, 1880, to Eva Hull, a native of Illinois. They have one daughter, Lora.

JAMES BELL, physician and surgeon, was born in Washington County, Pa., and was reared in Muskingum County, Ohio, on a farm. He attended the New Concord College for several years, graduating in the scientific department in 1848; then attended the Cleveland Medical College, graduating there in 1850, after which he practiced at New Concord for thirteen years. The doctor, seeking for higher honors, attended Jefferson College, Philadelphia, graduating in 1863, after which he returned again to his practice in New Concord. The doctor was for many years a member of the College of Physicians and Surgeons at Zanesville, Ohio, and in 1859 received a diploma from the same. In July, 1869, he came to Olathe, and at once began to practice. Three years later he was joined by his brother Douglass, who remained in partnership with him until some some in 1879. Two months later Dr. Bell admitted to a partnership his student, Dr. H. E. Mastings. The subject of our sketch was for five years County Physician of Johnson County. Has been a member of the Kansas State Medical Society for ten years. Is a permanent member of the American Medical Association, and is chairman of the Board of State Medicine.

WILLIAM A. BOLES, principal of Olathe public schools, was born in Milton, Saratoga Co., N. Y. July 7, 1831, and reared in Trumbull County, Ohio, on a farm, until he reached the age of fourteen years, when he learned the trade of harness-maker, serving as an apprentice some three years. He then followed it as a journeyman for two years, during which period he studied and improved his early education. He then turned his attention to teaching school, following it in the State of Ohio for two years, then in district schools in Kentucky for two years, in the public schools of New Albany, Ind., for six months, and again in district schools of Kentucky for two terms, after which he taught in the public schools of Louisville for two years, and was principal of public schools of Lexington, Ky., for five years, and again in Louisville for three years as principal of public schools. In 1866 he went to Shelbyville, Ind., and was superintendent of public schools there until the latter part of 1876, when he came to Kansas, locating in Lawrence. He took charge of the public schools of that place, remaining there until he came to Olathe, August 1, 1880, at which time he entered upon his present duties. Mr. Boles has been engaged in conducting schools for the past thirty years, twenty-five of which he has been either principal or superintendent.

HARRY BRICKELL, was born at Niles, Berrien Co., Mich., August 18, 1855, and reared on a farm, and followed farming as an occupation until he came to Olathe, Kan., March 28, 1878; for a year he was engaged in various capacities. In July, 1879, he entered the employ of Geo. B. Lord, and has since been in charge of the Olathe Elevator and Mill. Mr. Lord handles large quantities of grain, and also has a large coal trade in the winter. He resides in St. Louis, Mo., and Mr. Brickell has the management of his affairs at this place.

WILLIAM BRONAUGH, farmer and stock-raiser, P. O. Olathe, was born in Kentucky in 1832. Here he assisted his father in conducting a hotel for two years, and was for the same length of time employed as a clerk in mercantile business. In 1854 he removed to Jackson County, Mo., where he engaged in farming. In August, 1856, he came to Kansas, and the following February located on his present farm. He owns 160 acres of land, all well improved, on which there is a fine orchard of his own planting, of about three acres. He is Treasurer of the District School Board. Mr. Bronaugh was married in Kentucky in 1859, to Nancy Hunt. They have four children—Lila, John, George and Lena.

A. A. BROWN, of Brown & Thompson, hardware merchants. Was born in Otsego County, N. Y., in 1840, and reared in Kalamazoo, Mich., where he studied the profession of dentistry. In May, 1861, he enlisted in the Second Michigan Infantry, serving three months; and on the 12th of August following re-enlisted in Company I, Second Michigan Cavalry; was almost immediately promoted to Quartermaster's Sergeant, and during the last year of the war acted as Quartermaster at Franklin Post, Tenn., and was mustered out of the service in September, 1865. He came to Kansas in January, 1866, locating at Topeka. Was for a year employed as baggagemaster on the K. P. R. R., after which he was employed as a clerk in hardware for some eight years, and during that period he learned the trade of gas and steam fitter. He was also for eight years a member of the Topeka Cornet Band, and for two years had charge of the fire department building at Topeka. Was then for three years engineer at the State Insane Asylum, and for three years engineer at the State Deaf and Dumb Asylum. He came to Olathe January 1, 1882, and in company with O. D. Dickey purchased the hardware stock of W. B. Walker. They conducted the business together until April 13, 1882, when Mr. Dickey sold out his interest to G. S. Thompson. Mr. Brown was married at Topeka, Kan., in 1875, to Lila Little. They have one son—Clarence W.

S. R. BURCH, postmaster, was born in Dresden, Ohio, March 1, 1842, and was reared on a farm. In the spring of 1857 he removed to Cedar Rapids, Iowa, where he followed farming and school-teaching. On September 11, 1861, he enlisted in Company D, Twelfth Iowa Infantry, and served four and one-half years as a soldier, passing through various grades in the army, and for the last nine months of his service was Adjutant General on the staff of Major General Chetlain. After the war he gave his attention to farming, near Cedar Rapids, until he came to Olathe, in November, 1868. June 1, 1869, he opened the American House in company with Peter Cochran, who retired ten years later, he continuing in the business, with Henry Cochan as a partner, until in February, 1882, when he was joined by H. S. Miller, his present partner in this business. Mr. B. was for six years a member of the City School Board, and during four years of that time filled the office of president of the same. He represented the Second Ward in the City Council two terms, and was elected Mayor of Olathe in 1878, and re-elected in 1879, resigning to accept the Postmastership in February, 1880. He was married in Fairfax, Iowa, July 4, 1868, to Maria Cochran, a native of Ohio. They have three children—Mirtie, Jessie, and Sylvester R., Jr.

HENDERSON L. BURGESS, attorney at law, was born at Hubbard, Trumbull Co., Ohio, July 13, 1849. His father, Nelson Burgess, was a Methodist minister. Henderson resided with him in some thirteen different States. Finally settled in Olathe, Kas., in 1866. He enlisted, in the summer of 1867, in Company D, Eighteenth Kansas Cavalry, which was assigned to the command of Gen. George A. Custer, and served about six months. Returning here, was for two or three years employed on various farms in the county, and in 1870 began business life as a clerk in the store of J. C. Morgan & Co., Olathe, and a year later was admitted to a partnership. Mr. M. sold out his interest in about a year to E. Roedel, and Mr. Burgess continued in the business with him until some time in 1873, when he sold out and began the study of law in the office with Gov. John P. St. John. After four years' close study he was admitted to the bar June 20, 1878, before the Tenth Judicial District, since which time he has practiced law at this place. He is a member of the Sloans Legal Union. He was married in Olathe, December 30, 1874, to Sadie M. Shreve, a native of Illinois. By this union they are blessed with two children—Lucy E., born March 10, 1877, and Goldie Lillian, born February 15, 1879.

JOHN TAYLOR BURRIS was born in Butler County, Ohio, December 22, 1828. His grandfather, Jeremiah Burris, was a soldier in the Revolution, and was at the battle of Yorktown. His maternal grandfather, Edward Taylor, held the office of Sergeant-Major under Gen. Anthony Wayne, and participated in the Indian warfare of his time, in Ohio. The parents of the subject of this sketch were John Burris and Eunice (Taylor) Burris. He was bred on a farm and acquired early only the limited education which the common schools afforded. At the age of eleven years, he removed with his parents, to Kentucky, where he lived until eighteen years of age. He supplemented his poor educational advantages with hard study at home, while assisting his father in farm work, and thus fitted himself as a teacher. In 1847, he went to Iowa; soon after his removal to that Territory, the war with Mexico having broken out, he enlisted for the war, as a member of the Mounted Rifles, afterward known as the Third United States Cavalry. He served until the close of the war, and then returned to Iowa, where, receiving his soldier's land warrant, he located it, and cultivated the land until 1852, at which time he sold his farm, opened a hotel, and established a ferry on the Iowa River, at Fredonia. In the fall of 1852, he sold out his business, and commenced the study of law. He was admitted to the bar in 1853, and commenced the practice of his profession at Washington, Iowa. In 1855, he was elected Judge of the County Court. On the expiration of his term, he entered into partnership with a brother, who had located a town on the Mississippi, called by the family name of "Burris," and moved to that place. The venture proved disastrous in a business point of view, and resulted in nearly a total loss of the accumulations of the previous years. In 1858, he came to Kansas, and settled at Olathe, and renewed the practice of law. He was, in 1859, elected a member of the Wyandotte Constitutional Convention, and was thus one of the framers of the Constitution of the State. He was in Washington in the spring of 1861, and during the threatening days of early treason, served as Sergeant in the company known as the Frontier Guards, of which Senator James H. Lane was Captain. He returned to Kansas, having received the appointment from President Lincoln of District Attorney for the new State, and entered upon the duties of his office. In August, 1861, he enlisted, and became Lieutenant-Colonel of the Fourth Kansas Infantry. He continued in the service in the Fourth until its consolidation with the Third into the Tenth Kansas, and in the latter until the close of the war. He bore himself as a brave soldier should, throughout the numerous skirmishes and battles in which his regiment was engaged. For the various battles in which he was engaged, the reader is referred to the history of the regiments in which he held command. At the close of the war he returned to Olathe and resumed the practice of his profession. In 1865, he was elected a member of the Kansas House of Representatives, of which body he was elected the Speaker. In 1866, he was elected Attorney of Johnson County, and in 1869, was appointed Judge of the Tenth Judicial District. During this year he was again elected as State Representative. He has ever taken an active part in the politics of the State, being identified with the Republicans up to 1878, since which time he has voted with the opposition. Outside of politics he has been identified with many enterprises for the advancement and welfare of his State. He was one of the projectors and organizers of the Missouri River, Fort Scott & Gulf R. R., serving as one of the directors of the road for three years. He has been a staunch and unswerving friend of the State Asylum for the Deaf and Dumb, at Olathe, he having introduced the bill into the Legislature whereby it was located at that place. He was married, October 4, 1849, to Miss Martha Ann McGannon, daughter of Reuben McGannon, of Louisa County, Iowa. They have one son, Rev. Alfred T. Burris, and two daughters—Jennie and Eunice.

H. W. BUSHONG, contractor and builder, was born in Columbiana County, Ohio, October 11, 1831. He learned the blacksmith's trade there, serving as an apprentice some sixteen months; then working as a journeyman, and carrying on the business for eight years. After which he learned the trade of carpenter and builder in Richland County, Ohio, following it there until he came to Kansas, in March, 1866, since which time he has been engaged in his present business as a contractor and builder. Among the prominent buildings he has erected here are the Methodist Episcopal Church, Baptist Church, Harris & Co.'s Bank building, J. E. Clark & Son and Walker Bros.' business houses, Olathe Central School building, costing $13,100, and many others. Mr. Bushong was elected Representative of the Second Ward in the City Council in the spring of 1878, and again in 1881. He was married in Richland County, Ohio, September 22, 1853, to Nancy Saviers. They have four children living—Keturah Ann, Ida Loretta, Elmer Ellsworth, and Melvin Saviers; and two dead—William Charles and Linie Pearl.

E. L. CARESS, of E. L. Caress & Son, grocers, was born in Bedford, Ind., March 22, 1837. Here he learned the trade of blacksmith, following it for four years as a journeyman, after which he carried on a shop. He came to Kansas in the fall of 1865, locating in Shawnee Township, Johnson County, and for several years conducted a blacksmith shop, after which he was for two years in the employ of the K. C., Ft. S. & G. R. R. Co., as ticket agent. He then gave his attention again for some time to his blacksmith shop. In 1874 was elected a Trustee of the Township, and again in 1875, which position he resigned in the fall of that year, having been elected Recorder of the county, which position he held for three consecutive terms, of two years each. Since he entered upon the duties of County Recorder, Mr. Caress has resided in Olathe. In January, 1882, he engaged in his present business, with his son, C. E. Caress.

AUSTIN G. CARPENTER, Treasurer of Johnson County, was born in Indiana County, Pa., December 16, 1832. Here he studied civil engineering, and was employed in the capacity of engineer for some years on railroads in the State of Ohio, and afterwards superintended the grading of railroad work in the State of Iowa, for some months, then in same capacity in Stephenson County, Ill., for a short time; after which he was employed in the Engineer Corps of the Madison & Portage City Railroad, at Portage City, Wis. He came to Kansas in April, 1857; located in Allen County, where he was engaged in farming and surveying, and for two years held the office of County Surveyor. On October 16, 1861, he enlisted in Company D, Ninth Kansas Cavalry, which was partially formed from the Iola Battalion, originally organized by James Lane. Mr. Carpenter served as Battalion and Regimental Quartermaster, until January, 1863, when he resigned and joined his company as First Lieutenant; in August following, was appointed Post Quartermaster at Pleasant Hill and Harrisonville, Mo. In April, 1864, he again joined his company as Lieutenant, and went south with his regiment to Fort Smith, Ark., and served until December 20, 1864, after which he returned to Allen County and farmed. In December, 1865, he came to Johnson County, and engaged in farming, in Shawnee Township, where he still has a finely improved farm of 300 acres. Mr. Carpenter was appointed Surveyor of Johnson County in January, 1877, and elected to the office in the fall of that year for a term of two years. He was elected Treasurer of the county in the fall of 1879, and again in 1881. The subject of our sketch was married in Andrew County, Mo., in March, 1865, to Maggie Duncan. She died in December, 1871, leaving one son, John C. Mr. C. was married again at Olathe, in 1872, to Mary A. Freeman. They have one daughter—Margaret M.

FRED W. CASE, farmer and stock-raiser, was born in Monroe County, N. Y., March 19, 1826, and reared in Washtenaw County, Mich., his occupation being that of a farmer. In 1850, he emigrated to California, where he remained for six years engaged in placer gold mining. Returning East, he came to Kansas in May, 1858, and purchased his present farm; resided in the city of Olathe for four years, and in 1862 moved on to his farm, where he has since resided. He is an extensive farmer; owns 480 acres, 370 of which are under cultivation, the balance being used principally for stock-raising purposes. He is a member of Olathe Grange, No. 118. Mr. Case was married in Johnson County, in the fall of 1861, to Ruth E. Gregg, a native of Ohio. They have four children—Hattie, Harry, Sheldon and Lena.

REV. MICHAEL J. CASEY, Pastor St. Paul's Catholic Church, was born in Ireland in March, 1851, and educated at All Hallow's College, graduating from there June 24, 1875, and was ordained by Bishop James McDevitt. In September of that year, he came to Kansas, and shortly afterwards entered upon his present duties.

DR. GEORGE C. CASTLEMAN was born in Canada West, December 28, 1830; was reared on a farm; worked for some years in a woodenware factory. Here he began the study of medicine, which he continued in Jefferson County, N. Y., till 1853, when he began its practice. In this he continued there and in Canada till 1855, when he went to Iowa, practicing in various counties in that State till 1865, when he went to Quincy, Adams Co., Ill., and three years later to Missouri. He came to Olathe, Johnson Co., Kan., in March, 1878, where he now resides. The doctor is a healing medium, known as "The (so-called) Faith Doctor;" uses no medicine in his general practice, effecting his cures through the use of his hands; has practiced in this way for over thirty years. Thousands of letters of inquiry reach him every year, but owing to the cost in time and money, he now answers no letter (professionally) unless it contains at least $1. He is a member of several liberal societies in the State and in the United States; is a member of the Executive Boards of the Kansas Liberal Union, and of the National Spiritual Association.

ANDREW J. CLEMMANS, hardware merchant, was born in Jefferson County, Ohio, November 28, 1833, and learned the trade of blacksmith at Bridgeport, that county, serving an apprenticeship of four years. He followed his trade as a journeyman in Illinois for a short time, and came to Olathe, Kan., in the spring of 1858 and opened a blacksmith shop, which he conducted for about ten years. In 1868, he engaged in hardware business in company with F. Gilbert, and in the winter of 1878, became sole proprietor of the same. The stock carried at the opening of the business was about $800, which has since been increased to $20,000, to supply the demands of his trade. Mr. Clemmans was elected Sheriff of Johnson County in the fall of 1869: re-elected in 1871, 1875 and 1877, serving, in all, eight years.

WELCOME CURTIS, farmer and dealer in live stock, P. O. Olathe; was born in Noble County, Ohio, December 22, 1837, and in company with his father, Hiram Curtis, carried on a large stock farm, and was also for eight years engaged in mercantile business at Carlisle, that county. He came to Kansas in the spring of 1869, locating in Johnson County; was for several engaged in company with his father in speculating and dealing in farm lands. In 1870 he removed onto his present farm, consisting of 200 acres and all well improved. He owns some 320 acres of land and is largely engaged in breeding blooded cattle, and also dealing in live stock. On his land are several stone quarries, valuable for building purposes. Mr. Curtis is one of the leading men in this neighborhood. He is a member of the Grainview Grange. The subject of our sketch was married in Noble County, Ohio, in 1857, to Sarah A. Oshell. They have seven children; Elna, Orin, Mina, Forest, Idella, Nahum and Daisy.

EDWIN E. DAVIS, farmer, P. O. Olathe; was born in Piqua, Miami Co., Ohio, in 1851, and reared on a farm. At sixteen years of age he engaged in railroading, first as a brakeman and then as a conductor of freight trains. Following that business in Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois on various railroads, until he came to Kansas in January, 1879, at which time he purchased forty acres in the township of Olathe, and has since given his attention to farming. He now owns eighty acres of land, all well improved. Mr. Davis is a member of Lone Elm Grange, No. 152, and is now serving his second term as master of that body. He was married at Indianapolis, Ind., April 26, 1878, to Carrie F. Griggs, a native of Memphis, Tenn. They have one daughter, Georgie L., born here.

JOHN W. DENNIS, farmer and stock raiser, was born in Ross County, Ohio, July 6, 1836, and was reared on a farm. In 1852 he moved to Knox County, Ill., where he followed farming and stock breeding. He was a member of Company A, Ninth Missouri Infantry, afterward changed to the Fifty-ninth Illinois. In 1867 he removed to Cass County, Mo., and in 1871 came to Olathe and located on his present farm overlooking the city of Olathe. Mr. Dennis has 175 acres of land, all finely improved by himself in the past twelve years. He has on his place a fine residence and barn and is largely engaged in breeding fine cattle and hogs. On his place is a splendid orchard of four acres. Mr. Dennis was married in Knox County, Ill., in 1863, to Louise J. Barnett. They have three children: William F., Edwin Lee and Carl.

E. P. DIEHL, fruit grower, was born in Adams County, Pa., August 20, 1832. At the age of twenty-two years he removed to Kentucky, where he was engaged in the manufacture of chairs at Paducah for two years, after which he went to Charleston, Mississippi County, and was for a time employed in the construction of railroads, and served for four years as Deputy Sheriff of that county. He enlisted in November, 1861, in First Illinois Cavalry, Company I; served eleven months. He then organized Company A, Fiftieth Illinois Infantry and was appointed Second Lieutenant August 9, 1864; promoted to First Lieutenant in September, and to Captain in November, serving until August 5, 1865. Some time after the war he settled at Osborn, Ohio, and for three years was engaged in conducting a nursery. He came to Olathe September 13, 1868, and has resided on his present place since. He owns forty acres, all of which he has set out in fruit trees, berries, grapes, etc. For about twelve years he also carried on a nursery, but now gives his attention to the culture of fruit almost entirely. Lake Chanute adjoins his place and Mr. Diehl supplies the surrounding country with ice during the summer. He was married in Canton, Ohio, August 19, 1862, to Emma Brownwell. They have four children: Alice A., Ella E., Eva J. and Emily P.

J. H. DOW, merchant, born in Erie County, N. Y., October 22, 1835. He began business life in Washington Territory, where for four years he was engaged in merchandising, freighting, mining, etc., and afterward in the mercantile business in Sycamore, Ill., for two years. In February, 1864, he enlisted in the One Hundred and Thirty-second Illinois Infantry, served six months, and re-enlisted in the One Hundred and Forty-seventh, serving until January 20, 1866. Shortly after this he came to Olathe, Kan., and at once engaged in this business, in company with J. G. Flinn, and a year later became sole proprietor. The business was begun with a stock of about $5,000, which has since been increased until a stock of about $60,000 is now carried to supply the demands of the trade. Mr. Dow was elected Mayor of Olathe in 1874, and re-elected in 1875.

JOHN O. EGELSTON, physician and surgeon, was born in Dearborn County, Ind., November 6, 1827, and was reared on a farm. At the age of twenty-one he began the study of medicine, attending the medical college at Evansville, Ind., for two courses. He then practiced medicine in Lee County, Iowa, for about seven years, after which he attended a course of lectures at the medical department of the State University of Iowa, graduating March 1, 1858. In the fall of that year he located in Linn County, Mo., where he practiced until the breaking out of the war, when he engaged in the performance of contract service for the United States army. In the summer of 1862 he was appointed Assistant-Surgeon, Twenty-fifth Missouri Infantry, and in 1864, Surgeon of the Forty-third Missouri Infantry, in which positions, in connection of that of Medical Director of the Central District of Missouri, he served until the close of the war. He then removed to Independence, Mo., where he was engaged for five years in the practice of his profession, and for a time in the drug trade. He came to Olathe in September, 1870, and has followed his profession at this place ever since. The doctor has the reputation of a fine physician, based on an experience in his profession of over thirty years' active practice.

OLIVER H. EYLAR, farmer, was born in Adams County, Ohio, August 28, 1834. His father was a tanner and saddler, and the subject of this sketch was employed with him for some years, after which, for seven years, he carried on mercantile business at Winchester, and was also engaged in manufacturing saddles, etc. On August 7, 1862, he enlisted in the Seventh Ohio Cavalry: was appointed Second Lieutenant, a year later First Lieutenant, and in a year more was promoted to Captain, serving until July 4, 1865, after which he resided for two years in Jackson County, Mo. In March, 1868, he came to Johnson County, located in Oxford Township, and has since followed agricultural pursuits. He has 160 acres of land in Section 8, Township 14, Range 25, all improved, and raises considerable stock. He has quite recently changed his place of residence to Olathe, where he intends to reside, although is about to purchase more land and farm on an extensive scale. Mr. Eylar was married in Adams County, Ohio, November 24, 1857, to Elma S. Bunn, they having seven living children.

A. E. FARNHAM, farmer and stock dealer, was born in Steuben County, Ind., in 1832, and reared on a farm; at the age of twenty-three years he removed to Galesburg, Ill., where he was engaged in teaming and working on railroad for a year; in 1862 he returned to Indiana, and in March, 1863, came to Kansas, took up a claim in Gardner Township, Johnson County, residing on the same until 1875, when he removed to the city of Olathe. He owns about 280 acres of land; is largely engaged in farming, and since 1875 also engaged in dealing in live stock. Mr. Farnham owns considerable property in this city, and has a fine orchard of three acres on his old homestead in Gardner.

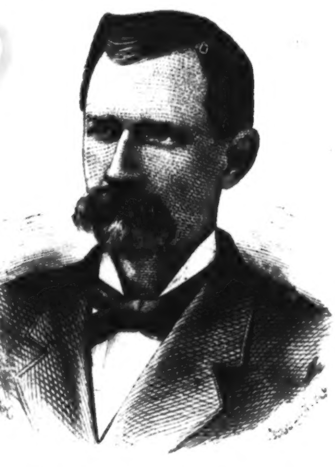
FRANK P. GAINES, dentist, was born in Richmond, Mo., August 27, 1841, and began business life at the age of eighteen years as a clerk in the dry goods business where at Roachport, Mo., following it for one year; he then farmed with his father in Howard County, Mo., for five years, after which he went to Jacksonville, Ill., where for four years he was employed in dry goods business. In 1872, he began to study and practice his profession in Carrolton, Mo., and a few months later removed to Richmond, where he continued to practice until early in 1878, when he had all his property destroyed by a cyclone, and in July, 1878, he came to Olathe and opened an office for the practice of his profession, and is now the leading dentist of this place, having succeeded in building up a large practice.

WILLIAM M. GELLETT, dealer in boots and shoes, was born in Albany, N. Y., November 12, 1834. He began business life in St. Louis, Mo., in 1850, being employed for about a year as a clerk in mercantile business; then in Ottawa, Ill., for a few months, and in Peoria until 1859. In June of that year he came to Olathe, and was employed as a clerk until the summer of 1861, he joined the "Shriver Olathe Scouts," serving six months; on his return here he purchased a stock of general merchandise, and carried on business until cleaned out in the Quantrell raid. In August, 1862 he assisted in organizing Company H, Twelfth Kansas Infantry, and was appointed Second Lieutenant of the same, promoted to First Lieutenant in 1864 and served until August, 1865. In 1866, he was appointed Deputy Treasurer of Johnson County, and filled that office two and a half years, was then for some ten years engaged in general mercantile business in company with J. E. Sutton, and on October 14, 1879, opened in his present business. Mr. Gellett was elected Mayor of Olathe in 1870, and served one term. He was married in Olathe, May 3, 1869, to Jessie Sutton; they have one son—James S.

JOHN M. GIFFEN, attorney at law, was born in Belmont County, Ohio, February 10, 1830, and reared on a farm, and also for some years studied law and medicine, and was admitted to the bar November 10, 1856. He returned to Kansas in the spring of 1857, and pre-empted 160 acres in Shawnee County. In December of that year he entered the office of Gov. Denver as clerk, remaining in his employ until March, 1858; he then settled in Olathe, and practiced law; was appointed attorney of Johnson County shortly after his arrival here, being the first to hold that office, and same up to 1861. In 1859, he established the Olathe Herald, and conducted it up to September 6, 1862. Mr. Giffin has devoted his time off and on to practicing law, farming and improving real estate for the past twenty-four years. In 1880 he received the Democratic nomination for Secretary of State.

FREDERICK GILBERT, hardware and agricultural implements; was born in Boston, England, July 20, 1833, and emigrated to Canada, at the age of nineteen years, he learned the trade of wagon-maker, at New Castle, Ontario, serving as an apprentice three years; removing to Michigan, and followed his trade as a journeyman in Pontiac for two years, and one year at Albion, after which he went to Spring Port, that State, and carried on a wagon and repair shop for nine years, and then worked at his trade in Indiana and Illinois, for a year. In August, 1865, he came to Olathe and at once opened a wagon making and repair shop, conducting it for two years; he then joined A. J. Clemmens and, and opened an implement establishment. A few months later they added a stock of hardware, and continued to conduct business together until 1878, when Mr. Gilbert sold out; a year later he moved to Bonita, this County, where he engaged in general merchandise, also dealing in coal and grain. Remained there only two years, but is still interested in building property there, besides which he owns some 400 acres of farm land. In November, 1881, he returned to Olathe; in February, 1882, engaged in the implement business; in the summer of that year he built a brick building, and a few months later he engaged in the hardware business, with a stock of about $5,000, and is now conducting two separate establishments. Mr. Gilbert was elected Treasurer of the city of Olathe, in the spring of 1879, for a term of one year. He was married in Olathe in 1874, to Mahalia Jane Keefer, of Indiana. They have two children—Berty and Lulu.

In March, 1860, moved to Hillsborough, Henry Co., Iowa In July, 1861, he enlisted in Company K, Sixth Iowa Infantry, and served three years. In 1865 he engaged in stock business in Wapello County, Iowa, and two years later removed to Platte County, Mo., where he remained until he came to Kansas, March 1877. He has one of the finest improved farms in Olathe Township; on his place is a fine orchard and residence. Mr. G. is largely engaged in breeding blooded horses and raising graded cattle.



J M Hadley

HON. JOHN M. HADLEY, proprietor of Johnson County mills; was born in North Carolina, January 25, 1835, and reared on a farm in Morgan County, Ind. He came to Kansas in March 1855, and located at Shawnee Mission, Johnson County, and farmed for two seasons; during the winter of 1856—57, he returned and taught school, in Morgan County, Ind., and in the spring of the latter year, settled near Emporia, Kan., and farmed there for a year, then in Monticello Township, Johnson County, for three years, where he was engaged in farming and teaching school; here he was elected Justice of the Peace, and held the office for three years. In October 1861, he enlisted in Company F, Eighth Kansas Infantry, and some months later was promoted to Second Lieutenant, serving in that capacity for fifteen months, during six months of which period he was Post Adjutant, at Fort Leavenworth. He was promoted to First Lieutenant in the Ninth Kansas Cavalry, and served eight months on the staff of General Thomas Ewing, as Acting Assistant Adjutant; was then promoted to Captain and returned to his regiment; in May 1865, was promoted to Major of the regiment, and mustered out in the latter part of that year—he then located at Olathe, Kan.; was elected Sheriff of Johnson County, in the fall of 1865, and re-elected in 1867, and 1869. In 1870 he was elected clerk of the District Court, and re-elected in 1872 and '74. In the spring of 1877 he opened a law office in company with George W. Wilson, continuing with him for a year, after which he engaged in the mercantile business, at Gardner, this county, but remained there only a short time He purchased his mill property at De Soto, Johnson County, in June, 1880, and added large improvements to the same. These mills are valued at $5,000, and have a capacity of 5,000 pounds of flour per day. He owns some 600 acres of land in this county, and is engaged in farming and raising stock. Mr. Hadley was elected in the fall of 1876, to the State Senate, from this county and served two years. He was married at Olathe, December 20, 1866, to Harriet Beach; she died February 18, 1875, leaving two children—Estelle and Herbert. Mr. Hadley's mills are at De Soto, and he gives them his personal attention, but the residence of himself and family is at Olathe.

J. M. HALL, real estate and insurance agent, was born in Goshen, N. H., August 11, 1819. At four years of age he went with his parents to Bennington County, Vt., where he lived till seventeen years old. Then went to Windsor County, Vt., to school. In six years returned to Bennington County, and there worked in a woolen factory with the exception of three years. Worked at farming until 1847, and then moved to Winnebago County, Wis., and for fifteen years was engaged in farming and mercantile business. Moved to Mendota, Ill., living there six years, most of the time engaged in grain business. In 1866 came to Olathe, Kas., and for a year or so was engaged in the mercantile business, and since then has devoted himself to real estate and insurance business. He is the oldest insurence agent in the place; also makes a specialty of collections. Mr. Hall represented the First ward in the City Council for two terms and was elected a member of the School Board in 1880, and President of that body in the spring of 1882.

THOMAS HAMILL, physician and surgeon, was born in Lawrence County, Pa., in 1830, and educated in the schools of that county. He then attended the Eclectic College of Cincinnati, Ohio, graduating in the spring of 1855, after which he practiced in New Middletown, Ohio, for six months, and in Keokuk, Iowa, until he came to Kansas in April, 1857, where he was for a few months engaged with his brother in the stock business. In February, 1858, he removed to Johnson County, and for a short time resided on a farm in Olathe Township, moving into the town in the following May, and began the practice of his profession at this place. In 1862 he went to Leavenworth and remained a year, and during that period held the office of coroner. Removing to Colorado was appointed Acting Assistant Surgeon First Colorado Cavalry, serving until the fall of 1865, after which he attended the St. Louis Medical College for a term, then the Humboldt Medical College, at St. Louis, Mo., graduating in April, 1867. Returning to Olathe has since devoted himself to his profession. The doctor was married in Springfield, Ill., October 21, 1869, to Bettie W. Short, a native of Ohio. They have two children, Ava and Lloyd.

JAMES M. HAWORTH was born in Clinton County, Ohio, November 19, 1831. Is a member by birthright of the Society of Friends (Quakers). Previous to the war, was engaged in farming and merchandising. Was for many years connected with the Clinton County Agricultural Society, filling the position of president, in 1861. Was elected County Treasurer in 1856, and re-elected in 1858, holding the office four years and three months, his term closing in September, 1861, when he recruited a company, of which he was elected Captain, and going to Camp Chase, was assigned to the Fortieth Ohio Infantry, which regiment was ordered to Eastern Kentucky, and became a part of a brigade under command of Gen. James A. Garfield, on whose staff he served as A. A. A. General, until the General was ordered to another part of the country. In 1865, he removed to Cincinnati and engaged in the wholesale drygoods business, until 1870, when broken health, requiring a change of climate, he removed to Olathe, Kas., from where, in the fall of 1872, he was appointed United States Indian Agent and placed in charge of the Kiowa and Comanche Indians, near Fort Sill, Indian Territory, remaining there until April, 1878. He was one of a commission for locating the Sioux, in the summer of 1878, soon after which he was appointed a special Indian Agent at large, and on February, 1879, was appointed a United States Indian Inspector, which position he held until July, 1882, when he was appointed Inspector of Indian Schools, an office created by the session of Congress which had just closed, the duties being of a supervising care of all the Indian schools in the United States, excepting the five nations in the Indian Territory.

COL. JOSIAH E. HAYES (deceased). The subject of this brief sketch was born in New Hampshire, in July, 1817. He was educated principally at the common schools. In 1834 he went to Putnam County, Ill., and in 1851 to Bureau County. In 1857 he moved to Olathe, Johnson Co., Kan., which town he made his home the remainder of his life. The home of his adoption is largely indebted to his energy and business ability for her prosperity. He erected numerous buildings in the town, among them the stone building belonging to the Kansas Institute for the Deaf and Dumb, the American Hotel, and the Jail, and was himself interested at different times in various kinds of business. In 1861, at the breaking out of the war, in common with many other patriotic men of the county he entered the army, and became Captain of Company A, Fourth Kansas Infantry. In 1862, he was promoted to the Lieutenant-Coloneley of the Twelfth Kansas Infantry, which position he held until the close of the war. In the fall of 1863, his regiment was ordered to Arkansas. It formed a part of Gen. Steele's command, which was attempting to form a junction with Gen. N. P. Banks, at Shreveport, La., when on the 30th of April, 1864, an engagement occurred between Gen. Steele's command and a large force of rebels at Jenkens' Ferry, Ark., ending in the defeat of the Union forces. Early in the engagement, Col. Hayes was struck just below the knee, by a minie ball. The ball was split by striking against the bone, one part passing out of the leg, the other part passing around and above the knee joint, and up back of the thigh bone, nearly to the hip joint. The Union forces upon their retreat left the wounded upon the field, and all, Col. Hayes among them, became prisoners in the enemy's hands. His leg was amputated on the field, by Dr. Redfield, of Fort Scott. He was at first taken to Camden, where he remained four months, suffering great pain and inconvenience from his wound. He was then removed to Shreveport, La., where he remained until exchanged in February, 1864, when he proceeded homeward, reaching Olathe March 11, 1864. Some time subsequently an operation was found necessary, in order to remove the portion of the ball that had passed up the thigh. This was successful, and led to the rumor that a second amputation had been performed, which was not true. Mrs. Hayes, upon learning that her husband was wounded and a prisoner, immediately determined upon going to him. Neither could she be turned aside from her purpose by the earnest entreaties, persuasions and tears of her friends. After a hasty preparation, she started at once for Little Rock, and proceeding thence under flag of truce to the rebel lines, she was permitted to go to Camden, where the Colonel lay, traveling the whole distance, forty miles, through the enemy's country with a rebel soldier for a driver. She remained with her husband until he was exchanged, and in all human probability, through her constant watchfulness and care, saved his life, and brought him home with her to their children and friends. In the fall of 1865, he was elected County Treasurer. In 1869 he commenced the business of banking in Olathe, as detailed under the head of the Johnson County Bank. In 1870 he was elected State Treasurer, and in 1872 re-elected by a majority of 30,000. April 30, 1874, he resigned his office, and was succeeded by John Francis, of Iola, Allen County, who was appointed the next day. On account of the danger of traveling at that time with money on the person, County treasurers very generally refused to settle with the State Treasurer in anything but drafts on New York. These drafts were collected through two Topeka banks. When the financial crisis of 1873 came upon the country, the New York bank having in charge these collections for the Topeka banks suspended. This led to the suspension of the Topeka banks, and this to the embarrassment of the State Treasurer, who had at the time about $75,000 in process of collection. The State was reimbursed over the counter of the Hayes Bank in Olathe, Col. Hayes being made good in part by the receipt of other property, some of it western land. While Col. Hayes was guilty of a technical violation of the State law, which required State taxes to be paid in lawful money, and while his political enemies eagerly seized upon this technical violation of the law as a convenient weapon with which to defeat his aspirations toward further political promotion, yet the State lost not one dollar through the dereliction, and not a shadow of suspicion rested or rests upon the integrity or character of Col. Hayes. Preceding State Treasurers had received County taxes in the same way. It was Col. Hayes' misfortune to be in office when the crisis came, and he who had heard his country's call, who had gone to the fore front of the battle and left a limb, almost his life upon her altar, was here destined to suffer injustice through a wide spread combination of circumstances for which he was no more to blame than is the man who is caught and destroyed by the fierce cyclone. On account of his failing health occasioned by the constant trouble with his wound, he started February 23, 1881, to Eureka Springs, Ark., reaching there on the 26th of the month. Nothing could avail. He died on March 8th, and was brought home to be buried. He had been twice married—the first time to Louisa Fanning, of Illinois, in 1838, and the second time to Miss Nancy A. Potter, on March 28, 1850. Mrs. Hayes is a woman of extraordinary intelligence, firmness and devotion, a bright example of that fortitude which crowned so many American women during the years of trial while the Rebellion lasted. Besides Mrs. Hayes, four children survive—Charles L., Emma J., Arthur L. and Holly E. Hayes.

JOHN HARRIS, banker, was born in Madison County, Ohio, May 10, 1839, and reared in Appanoose County, Iowa, receiving a college education at Mount Pleasant, Iowa. In 1858 he came to Kansas, locating in what is now known as Miami County, where he followed farming until the breaking out of the war, when he returned to Appanoose County and in August, 1861, enlisted in Company M, Seventh Missouri Cavalry, and served until February 3, 1863. He then assisted in raising Company H, Eighth Iowa Cavalry, and at its organization in June, 1863, was elected Sergeant, and a year later promoted to Second Lieutenant, in which capacity he served until September, 1865. He then farmed in Jefferson County, Iowa, for some six years. In 1871 he returned to Kansas and settled in Marion County, homesteading 160 acres, and for six years was exclusively engaged as an itinerant preacher of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. Harris has been a member of the South Kansas Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church since its organization in 1872. In April, 1877, he was elected President of the Bank of Marion Centre and filled that position until October. In July of the same year he became connected with G. M. Knox, and engaged in the banking business with him in Newton, Kas. In April, 1878, he became sole proprietor of this bank, and conducted it alone until June, 1879, when he sold out and shortly afterward came to Olathe, at which time he purchased the People's Savings Bank, conducting it alone up to January, 1881, when he was joined by W. H. Smith, and the firm became John Harris & Co. This connection lasted until September 1, 1883, when Mr. Harris bought out Mr. Smith and thus became sole proprietor. Mr. Harris was married in Appanoose County, Iowa, in 1859, to Irene Hallock. She died July 29, 1880, leaving five children, Mary E., John A., Elmer E., Edith and Justin K.

JOHN E. HEATON, Marshal of the city of Olathe, was born in Delaware County, Ind., October 22, 1845, and was reared on a farm. He enlisted in December, 1861, at Lafayette, Ind., in Company D, Fortieth Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry. Was in the following battles: Shiloh, Tenn., Perrysville, Ky., Stone River, Tenn., Nashville and Franklin, Tenn., Mission Ridge, Tenn., Knoxville, Tenn., and on the Atlanta Campaign, embracing all the battles from Chattanooga, Tenn., to Atlanta, Ga. Served three years in the department of the Cumberland in the Fourth and Twenty-first Army Corps. Was mustered out of service in 1865 at Huntsville, Ala., his term of service having expired. He returned home to White County, Ind., in 1866; moved to Illinois, Iroquois County, near Gilman, and followed farming. In 1868 he moved to Olathe, followed the business of stone-mason until 1878, when he was appointed to the office of City Marshal. Was re-appointed in 1879 and 1880 and 1881. He took a very active part in the temperance cause in Kansas. In politics he is a Republican. He married in 1869 at Olathe, Kansas, Miss Estell Newburry. They have two children living—C. E. and J. E., and one, F. E., deceased.

W. P. K. HEDRICK, proprietor Olathe Marble Works, was born at Greenbrier, Va., January 18, 1846, and at seven years of age removed with his parents to Oskaloosa, Iowa. Here he learned the trade of stone-cutter when but seventeen years of age. In October, 1865, he enlisted in the Twenty-ninth Iowa Infantry, and served until the war closed; after which he worked at his trade in Oskaloosa. In the fall of 1869 he came to Olathe, and for a time was engaged in farming. In 1872 he opened the Olathe Marble Works, this being the only business of this kind in the place. Mr. Hedrick is a fine workman as his work shows, and began the business on a small scale, which has increased until he now gives employment to four men, and is compelled by the demands of trade to keep on hand a large and handsome stock of monuments, mantel-pieces, etc. He is also the owner of the Crystal Limestone Quarries, situated two and a half miles northwest of Olathe, on the Pleasant Hill branch of the A., T. & S. F. R. R. Here he has some eighty acres of the finest kind of limestone, and to the development of which he is now giving considerable attention, as it is in large demand all through the State. Mr. Hedrick was married in Olathe in 1872, to Minnie Russell. They have two children—Clyde and Eva.

REV. EDWARD F. HILL, Pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, was born in Clermont County, Ohio, in 1836; entered the Iowa Conference in 1857; traveled one year, and then located to attend the Iowa Wesleyan University, at Mount Pleasant. He also attended Peak's Academy, Ohio. In 1861 he entered the Cincinnati Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and had charge of various churches in Ohio until he came to Kansas, April 1, 1873, locating at Burlingame. He had charge of the Methodist Episcopal Church there for a year; then at Salem four years; and at Clay Center three years. In March, 1881, he came to Olathe and entered upon his present duties. He was ordained a deacon of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Cincinnati, Ohio, in September, 1862, and ordained elder at Greenfield, Ohio, September, 1864. He labored in the church some twenty-three years, and has been the means of bringing into the church over 2,000 persons. He was married at Cincinnati, July 8, 1863, to Sarah L. Green. They have five children—Charles M., Edward F., James F., Sarah L. and Mary.

SAMUEL H. HILL, farmer, was born in North Carolina in 1836; removing with parents in 1847 to Kentucky; was reared on a farm; in 1856 he removed to Macoupin County, Ill., where he carried on a large stock farm. He came to Olathe in 1869, and located on his present farm. Mr. Hill is one of the leading farmers of this county; he owns 400 acres of land, and is also largely engaged in breeding Poland China hogs; his place is well improved, and on it he has a fine residence, and an orchard, consisting of some three or four acres. He is a member of the Lone Elm Grange. Mr. H., was married in Macoupin County, Ill. in 1860, to Eliza Kent; they have nine children—Martha, John W., George, Annie, Mary, Addie, Charles, Samuel and Elmer.

SOL. HISEY, of Hammond & Hisey, undertakers and dealers in furniture, was born in Columbiana County, Ohio, January 12, 1831. Here he learned the trade of carpenter and builder, serving as an apprentice some three years, after which he followed it in Columbiana and Union counties as a journeyman. On August 12, 1862, he enlisted in Company A, One Hundred and Twenty-first Ohio Infantry; in June, 1863, he was promoted to Sergeant and wounded at the battle of Chickamauga in the following September, by a musket shot in the right thigh, and taken prisoner by the Confederates; but he was paroled eleven days later, and exchanged in May following; he served until his discharge June 19, 1865, after which he returned to Ohio and followed his trade. In the fall of 1868, he came to Olathe, and was engaged in business as a carpenter and builder until March, 1881, when he joined J. A. Hammond in the furniture business. Mr. Hisey was married in Union County, Ohio, November 28, 1852, to Maria L. Garwood, of Ohio; she died July 27, 1875, leaving one daughter—Jennie E. He was married again at Olathe, September 21, 1879, to Mary H. Peck. They have one child—Eva Maud.

D. P. HOAGLAND, farmer, was born May 8, 1833, at Barlow, Washington Co., Ohio; at the age of fifteen he removed to Virginia; went to school at Marshal Academy in the winter, and was for three years employed on flat boats in the summer, running on the Ohio River; then in the State of Iowa for several years, employed as a clerk and also as a carpenter; then in Springfield, Ill., working as a carpenter. He came to Kansas in 1857, and bought a claim two miles west of Oxford, Johnson County, but lost it, it being claimed to be a military reservation. He resided in Kansas City for a short time engaged in contracting and building, and has also conducted a hotel for a few months. He moved to Cass County, Mo. In 1858, built a saw and shingle mill which he conducted for two years. He voted for Lincoln in 1860 and nearly lost his life in consequence; he was fired at several times and ordered to leave the country. In 1861 he came to Olathe and turned his attention to farming. In February, 1862, he enlisted in the Missouri State Militia and served two years; he has resided on his present farm since 1864, and is largely engaged in breeding Short-horned cattle, etc. He has a fine orchard on his place and owns in all some 400 acres. He is secretary of the Olathe Grange, and County Commissioner. Mr. Hoagland was married in Cass County, Mo., in 1859, to Sarah J. Farmer; she died in June, 1878, leaving three children—Fred, Roddy Proctor and Clarence Farmer.

MYRON C. HOLCOMB, manufacturer and dealer in furniture, was born in Monroe County, N. Y., May 28, 1827, and nine years later accompanied his parents to Hillsdale County, Mich., where he assisted his father in clearing two timber farms, and also worked for some years at the trade of painter. Residing with his parents until about twenty-six year of age, after which he worked at painting in De Kalb County, Ill., for some five years, and in other parts of that State and Michigan, until he came to Kansas in June, 1860, at which time he pre-empted 160 acres in Lyon County, and returned home to Michigan. During his absence his claim was jumped, and on returning to the State in the spring of 1862 he settled on 160 acres in Gardner Township, Johnson County, and this he farmed for five years. In 1867 he came to Olathe, and was employed as a painter for a short time, then established a teaming and transfer business which he carried on for ten years. In 1878 he purchased his present business, and in the past four years has increased the stock from $600 to $5,000. Mr. Holcomb had little or no means on his arrival here, and suffered many hardships while residing on his farm. He was a member of the militia during the war, and was molested on several occasions by guerrillas, but notwithstanding all drawbacks, he stuck to his homestead and encouraged and assisted by his wife, and is now in more than comfortable circumstances. He was married at Fremont, Ind., March 1, 1859, to Susan Phenicie, a native of Maryland.

DAVID HUBBARD, of Hubbard & Jones, proprietors of the Pearl Mills, was born in Charlestown, N. H., in 1833, and reared on a farm until twenty-one years of age, when he moved to Carrolton, Ill., where for four years he was engaged in teaching school. He came to Kansas in 1857, locating in Douglas County, where he farmed for four years. In 1861 he was appointed County Surveyor, and filled it for a term, having obtained a knowledge of surveying in his early education. After this was for two years employed as a clerk in the United States Commissariat Department, and in 1865 was appointed Assistant-Assessor United States Internal Revenue, for Wyandotte, Johnson and other counties in Kansas; this position he filled until 1870. He came to Olathe to reside in 1869, and for a time was engaged in farming pursuits. In 1873 was elected to the office of County Surveyor, and the following year engaged in milling business in company with A. Buch, conducting the Ott Mill for three years, after which they conducted a mill at Cherryvale, Kan., for three years. In April, 1881, Mr. H. joined E. C. Jones in present mills. In 1863, while residing on his farm in Douglas County, Mr. Hubbard was called out from his home by Dick Yaegar, one of Quantrell's band, and shot through the left lung, an injury from which he has never thoroughly recovered.

W. J. HULL, Superintendent of Public Instruction for Johnson County, was born in Warren County, Ill., June 2, 1854, and came to Kansas with his mother, November 27, 1865, residing on various farms in Johnson County until the spring of 1869, when he came to Olathe, and for three years attended school at this place, after which he went to Delavan, Ill., and attended the high school there for a year. Returning to this county in the fall of 1873, he was employed in teaching district schools until the fall of 1880, at which time he was elected to his present office, and entered upon the duties of the same January 1, 1881.

M. W. & C. W. HUTCHISON, editors and proprietors of the Olathe Mirror, are the sons of Rev. S. M. and Emily P. Hutchison, of Washington, Guernsey Co., Ohio, and both graduates of Muskingum College, located at New Concord, Muskingum Co., Ohio. The senior member of the firm was for four years a teacher in Muskingum County, Ohio, conducting normal schools during the summer. In 1879 he went to Peoria, Ill., and engaged in teaching a graded school near that city. Afterwards he turned his attention to journalism, establishing the New Concord Enterprise, being connected with several Ohio newspapers as correspondent. In September, 1880, he purchased the Cambridge (Ohio) Herald, conducting it as a Republican newspaper until March 1, 1882, when he sold out, came to Kansas, purchased the Olathe Mirror and News Letter, and at once began such improvements in the office as has made it the leading newspaper in Johnson County, and one of the best on the eastern border. C. W. Hutchison, the junior member of the firm, came to Kansas July 4, 1882, having, like his brother, some experience as a journalist, a well-developed business knowledge, and a fine education. They received the endorsement of many leading Ohio papers. M. W. Hutchison was born at Zanesville, Ohio, September 24, 1854. C. W. Hutchison was born at Mount Vernon, Ohio, May 13, 1861. Besides the brothers in the newspaper business, the remaining members of the family, including the mother, are residents of Johnson County: L. M. Hutchison, M. D., a graduate of Kentucky School of Medicine, who practices his profession in Olathe; Miss Lulu A. Hutchison, an elocutionist of more than ordinary ability, and Miss Leora E. Hutchison, the youngest of the family, who is largely endowed with musical gifts. All are popular in the community in which they reside.

PETER JULIEN, physician and surgeon, was born in Warren County, Ohio, April 15, 1811; moved to Shelby County in 1813; there lived and studied medicine with Dr. L. Houston, and practiced for fifteen years, after which he attended for three terms at the Physio-Medical College, Cincinnati, graduating in the class of 1848-'49, then continued his practice in Shelby County until 1851, afterwards in Logansport, Ind. He came to Kansas in 1857; traveled all over Kansas and South Missouri, and settled in Wyanet City in 1858, and practiced medicine five years; then moved again to Logansport, Ind., for two years. Returning to Kansas, he settled in Olathe in September, 1865. He resumed his practice at this place, and, since August, 1881, in company with Dr. R. A. Williams. Since 1871 the doctor has also been engaged in conducting an establishment for medical baths. He was married in Shelby County, Ohio, January 9, 1833, to Catherine Castle. She died in 1848, leaving four children—Findley, William, Melvina, Nelson. The doctor was married a second time at Vienna, Ohio, in the fall of 1850, to Margaret Stewart. They have one son—Edward.

JULIEN & MAHAFFIE, livery and feed stables; this business was established by this firm in 1867, and is the oldest of the kind in the city; they began in a small way at first but have increased their business, until they now have some twenty fine horses and ten full livery outfits. William Julien, of this firm was born in Shelby County, Ohio, April 9, 1841; nine years later removed with his father to Logansport, Ind., and was educated in the Seminary there. He came to Kansas, in August, 1857, and was for a short time engaged in prospecting, finally settling on a claim in Linn County, in the spring of 1858, on which he resided for a short time, then to Wyandotte, about two years in the employ of the Kansas Stage Company. In the fall of 1862 he went to Kansas City and engaged in the livery business in company with B. L. Riggins; he also in that year enlisted in the One Hundred and Thirteenth Missouri Mounted Infantry, and was appointed Second Lieutenant of Company E, and served two years. In the fall of 1864, he sold out his interest in the livery business in Kansas City and came to Johnson County, Kansas. He was until October, 1866, engaged in farming in Olathe Township, when he sold his farm and came to this city and engaged in his livery business in company with his brother Nelson Julien. Sold out in 1871, to I. N. Phillips and in company with Harry McBride bought grounds and built Elm Park track stables, sold the same in 1873 and engaged with W. A. Mahaffie, in 1874, in the present business. He represented the Second ward in the City Council four years and held the office of City Treasurer four years and served as Deputy Sheriff during 1871, '72, '73 and '74. He was elected Sheriff of Johnson County in November, 1879, and re-elected in 1881, for two years. Mr. Julien was married in Olathe, December 22, 1864, to Isabel Mahaffie; they have two children—James A., and Effie M.

JULIUS A. KEELER, house mover, builder, etc.; was born in Norwalk, Ohio, April 28, 1832, there he learned the trade of carpenter and followed that occupation for a livelihood. He came to Kansas, April 20, 1856, and located in Lawrence and was engaged in emigration interests and also worked some at his trade. In January, 1857, he removed to Linn County, and engaged in agricultural pursuits. In May, 1861, he enlisted in the Second Kansas Infantry, and served six months, but was forced to retire on account of severe injuries received from being kicked by a horse. He was then engaged in recruiting and for a time in 1862 was in charge of Camp Instruction, near Leavenworth City. In the fall of 1862, he organized the first regiment of colored soldiers that was mustered into the United States service, and drilled them for three months, but was too lame to go into the service. On January 1, 1863, he came to Olathe and worked at his trade for a few months. In May of that year, he was commissioned by Governor Carney, First Lieutenant of the Sheriff of Johnson County's Posse. In the fall of the same year he was commissioned to organize the Johnson County Militia and was elected Colonel in which capacity he served until the organization was disbanded in the spring of 1865. Since the war, he has followed his present business, and was also for several years engaged in agricultural pursuits. Mr. Keeler has a field roller of his own invention which took a diploma at the Kansas Exhibition of 1872, and which he patented July 20, 1875. He is engaged in manufacturing the same, and does considerable business.

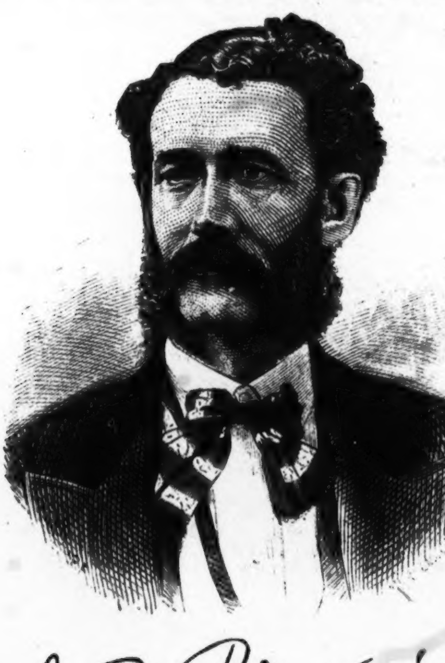
He then worked at his trade in New Orleans until the spring of 1857, when he came to Kansas, and was for a short time engaged in the bakery business in Independence, Mo. He then opened a bakery and grocery store in Olathe, conducting it for twelve years. In 1868 he built his present mills, and has run them, except three years, since. He has just added rollers, which are machinery for making new process flour. The engine has a capacity of fifty-horse power, and the mill consumes 500 bushels of wheat daily. In 1873 Mr. Ott also opened a furniture factory and store at Ottawa, Kas., in company with A. Gottschalk. His interest in this is managed by his son Henry. Mr. O. was married in Olathe, in September, 1860, to Justina Schieve. They have four children—Henry Albert, Charles, and Emma.

MARTIN V. B. PARKER, attorney-at-law, was born in Coles County, Ill., in November, 1840, and was reared on a farm. At the age of fourteen years he went to Jacksonville, Ill., and for six years off and on attended the Illinois College, graduating in 1864. In the early part of the war he enlisted and served sixteen months. After graduating at Jacksonville he attended the law school at Albany N. Y., graduating in May, 1866, and shortly afterward opened a law and real estate business at Lee Summit, Mo. In the spring of 1868 he came to Olathe and engaged in the practice of law in company with John P. St. John. Eight years later they dissolved and Mr. Parker conducted his law and real estate business alone until quite recently when he became associated with A. J. Smith. Mr. Parker is largely interested in farming. He owns some 700 acres of land in this county, all under cultivation. He was married in Jacksonville, Ill., in the fall of 1866 to Emma Woodward. They have five children, May L., Effie E., Luella, Zulu and Zella.

JAMES W. PARMETAR, of Parmetar & Diveibiss, architects and builders, was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1832. Here he learned the trade of carpenter and builder, serving as an apprentice some four years, after which he followed it as a journeyman for about five years, then in the same capacity in Bureau County, Ill., for seven years, and for some time in Niles, Mich., where he studied architecture, etc. He came to Olathe in March, 1858, pre-empted 160 acres in Oxford Township, this county, and resided on the same "off and on" for a short time. Since his arrival in this place he has devoted his time to his present business, and since the spring of 1872 has been in partnership with L. W. Diveibiss. In April, 1861, Mr. P. enlisted in the Second Kansas Infantry, and having assisted in raising Company C, was elected First Lieutenant of the same and served six months. He then assisted in organizing Company H, Twelfth Kansas Infantry, and was appointed Captain of it in August, 1862, by Gen. James Lane, and in that capacity served some three years, two years of which he was in charge of Fort Larned, Kas. Captain Parmetar was taken prisoner during Quantrell's raid, in Olathe, but shortly after paroled. The subject of our sketch was married in McCamish Township, Johnson County, October 13, 1859, to Ellen J. Gray, a native of Ohio. They have one son, Charles W.

WILBUR C. PAUL, editor of the Johnson County Democrat, a new Jeffersonian journal, which was introduced to the public in May, 1882. Mr. Paul was born in New Lisbon, Ohio, June 3, 1853; then lived in Alliance from the time he was nine until he became thirteen years of age, there attending school and working in printing offices during his vacation. When he was fourteen years of age his family moved to Cleveland, Ohio, and there he—from choice rather than necessity—carried routes and sold papers on the streets, always employing the spare moments in acquiring a knowledge of printing. In 1872 he came to Kansas, settling in Ottawa, from which place he has roamed about for four years of the ten that have elapsed since his sojourn there, finally finding his Mecca in Olathe, where he is endeavoring to exert an influence for good.

S. C. PETTEGREW, formerly of the firm of Hubbard & Pettegrew, dealer in lumber, coal and grain; was born in Dearborn County, Ind., September 30, 1849; came to Kansas in August, 1866, locating in Olathe. Engaged in the lumber business in company with his father, under the style of W. G. Pettegrew & Son, which firm lasted about two years. He then managed the lumber yard of Lotshaw, Quade & Co. for two years, and the yard of J. A. McCartney for three years. He became associated with David Hubbard October 23, 1874, and engaged in the business with him at that time with a stock of about $1,500, which they afterward increased to about $4,000. August 1, 1882, Mr. Pettegrew bought out Mr. David Hubbard's interest in the firm, and now the style of the firm is S. C. Pettegrew. The firm has a capital of $6,000. In connection with the business Mr. Pettegrew also does a limited amount of building, etc. He is a member of the Olathe Lodge No. 59, I. O. O. F., and is at present treasurer of that body.



I. O. Pickering.

ISAAC O. PICKERING, attorney at law, was born in Freeport, Harrison Co., Ohio, February 18, 1842, and was reared in Fulton County, Ill. He came to Kansas June 1, 1859, and farmed for a short time in Johnson County, and then in Woodson County. During the winter of 1860-61 he taught school at Winterset, Iowa. In November, 1861, he enlisted in the Ninth Kansas Cavalry, Company F. In 1862 was promoted to Staff Sergeant, and in 1864 to First Lieutenant, and although he held a regimental office was principally employed on the staff of Gen. Reynolds, serving in all four years. After the war he engaged in the mercantile business at Leavenworth, and at the same time carried on a livery business at Olathe, continuing in both only a short time; he then engaged in the hotel business at Olathe in company with J. T. Weaver, following that until 1869, when he sold out and purchased 320 acres of land in Labette County and engaged in farming, losing in four years all he had accumulated heretofore. During 1867-68 and '69 Mr. P., in connection with his business pursuits also read law, and was admitted to the bar in Labette County at the District Court in February, 1872. In 1873 he returned to Olathe and was variously engaged until the session of the Legislature of 1875, when he was elected Assistant Chief Clerk of the House. At the expiration of his official term, he returned to Olathe and entered the law office of Gov. John P. St. John, with whom he is still associated. He is also engaged in farming, and is interested in mining enterprises in Colorado. He was elected attorney of the city of Olathe in the spring of 1878-79-80, and Mayor of the city in 1881 for a term of two years. Mr. Pickering is a member of the Executive Committee of the State Temperance Union.

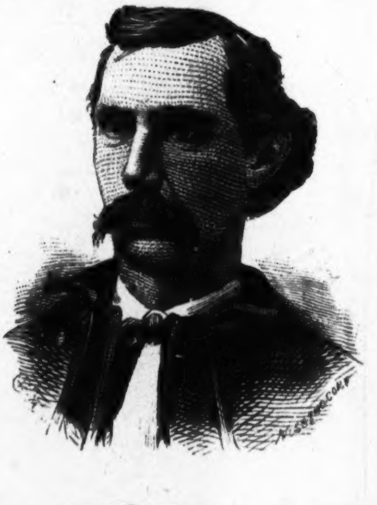
J. R. F. PILCHER, was born in Belmont County, Ohio, in 1832; was educated at Dennison University, Granville, Ohio. Taught school in Ohio and at New Madrid, Mo., nearly two years. Graduated at Cincinnati Law School in 1860. He served in the Confederate army. After the war, he taught in Indiana, and came to Kansas in 1868 and engaged in mercantile business in Olathe. He is at present engaged in lumber and real estate.

FRED E. PRATT, manager for the G. B. Shaw & Co. lumber yard. This yard is a branch of the Kansas City yard of G. B. Shaw & Co., and was established January 25, 1882. The firm has some twenty-five lumber yards in the State of Kansas. They carry a stock here of about $10,000. Mr. Pratt, who is manager of this yard, was born in Groton, Tompkins Co., N. Y., in 1855, and reared in Anoka County, Minn., where he learned the profession of land surveyor, and was employed at it for some time. He came to Kansas in 1875, and was for three years employed in the lumber business in Sterling, after which he returned to Anoka, and was for a few months employed in the State Bank at that place. He then returned to Kansas, and was employed by the Western Lumber Company in various parts of the State. He then went to Kansas City, Mo., and entered the employ of G. B. Shaw & Co., remaining there until appointed to the management of this yard in January, 1882.

W. H. SMITH, of John Harris & Co., bankers, was born in Bloomington, Ind., May 15 1841. At thirteen years of age he removed to Louisville, Ky., where he was employed in banking and mercantile business as bookkeeper for about seven years. Returning to Indiana, he enlisted, in May, 1862, in Company A, Fifty-fourth Indiana Infantry, and was discharged in 1863, on account of ill health; after which he was employed as a bookkeeper at Louisville until 1869, when he entered the wholesale notion house of H. S. Buckner & Co. as a partner, remaining in that business two years. In 1871 he went to Clear Creek, Ind., and for two years was engaged in mercantile business under style of Martin & Smith; and again in Louisville as bookkeeper for three and one-half years. Returning again to Clear Creek, was variously engaged until he came to Kansas, in March, 1879, at which time he located in Newton, and was for six months employed as a bookkeeper in a grocery business. He then came to Olathe, entered the employ of John Harris, banker, as cashier, and in January, 1881, purchased a one-half interest in the concern. Mr. S. was married at Louisville, Ky., to Annie E. Mitchell, a native of that place. They have five children—Marian, Hunter, Emma, Blanche, and Mabel.

DAVID P. SNELLING, dealer in coal, etc., was born in the city of Columbus, Ohio in June, 1839, and in 1851 moved to Chippewa Falls, Wis., where he was employed in saw-mills as sawyer, etc., for some years. In October, 1859, he enlisted in the Thirteenth United States Infantry, Company G, and served five years, and when mustered out he held the rank of First Sergeant. He participated in some eight or nine regular engagements, and was wounded at Black River, Miss., and at the battle of Chancellorsville. After the war Mr. Snelling gave his attention to farming in Jersey County, Ill. He came to Olathe, August 20, 1866, and for two years was engaged in selling merchandise through the country, after which he engaged in the coal business, being the first to open in that line in Olathe. In 1878 he established a telephone exchange at this place. In May, 1881, the same was merged into the Olathe Telephone Exchange, of which he is a stockholder and is agent for the same. Mr. S. is interested in the sand trade at De Soto and Lawrence, Kan., from which he ships sand all through the State. He was married in Jersey County, Ill., in the fall of 1865, to Harriet H. Ford. They have five children — Austin, Herbert, Grace, Gertrude, and Dumont.

JAMES STEVENSON, farmer, was born in Nova Scotia, Ca., May 1, 1844. His parents removed to Alleghany County, Md., seven years later, and thence to Gallatin County, where they remained three years, and removed to Perry County, Ill., where he learned the trade of blacksmith, and followed it as a journeyman there for some years. On April 20, 1861, he enlisted in Company G, Twelfth Kansas Infantry, serving three months, and re-enlisted August 16, 1862, in First Illinois Light Artillery, and served three years. His brother George also served in the same battery. Mr. Stevenson came to Kansas, June 23, 1867, and purchased eighty acres of land, on which he still resides. His brother George has also eighty acres, and the brothers farm together. Both farms [illegible] finely improved—with orchards, groves and hedges. They are extensive farmers, [illegible] also raise considerable stock. Both are members of the Lone Elm Grange, No. 152. Mr. Stevenson was married in Olathe, November 7, 1872, to Sarah J. Byers, who died August 14, 1873.



R E Stevenson

HON. ROBERT E. STEVENSON, Recorder of Johnson County, was born in Morgan County, Ill., in December, 1839. Was educated at Illinois College, Jacksonville, Ill., and graduated in medicine at Rush Medical College, Chicago, in 1862. He enlisted April 15 1861, in Company B, Tenth Illinois Infantry, and after his graduation at Rush College, was appointed Assistant-Surgeon, Seventy-third Illinois Infantry, serving until February, 1864. He then went to Jacksonville, Ill., and practiced; also carried on a drug business. Mr. Stevenson came to Kansas in 1867, and located in Olathe, and for about seven years followed farming and dealing in stock. His farm consisted of 160 acres adjoining the city, and eighty acres of it has since been turned into a town addition. In 1874 he engaged in grain business, following it for five years, after which he entered the employ of the United States Mail Service as route agent on the Santa Fe R. R. This he resigned to accept his present position, having been elected to the same in November, 1881. Mr. Stevenson was elected to represent the Olathe district in the State Legislature in 1868, and again in 1874. He was appointed chairman of Indian Raid Commission in 1879, and a delegate to the Republican National Convention held in 1872 at Philadelphia. The subject of our sketch was married at Jacksonville, Ill., in April, 1864, to Celesta A. McCartney, a native of Belmont County, Ohio. They have four children—Charles McC., M. Kate, Jay and Margaret J.

ISAAC C. STUCK, farmer and stock-raiser, was born in Loudon County, Va., September 29, 1829. Studied civil engineering and surveying in Washington, D. C., and in 1847 commenced as assistant on the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal, and continued on that work until its completion to Cumberland, Md., in 1851. In June of that year he accepted a position as assistant engineer on the North River Canal in Virginia. In 1852-53 was assistant engineer on the extension of the Morris & Essex Railroad, from Dover to Hackettstown in New Jersey, and in 1854 was assistant on the Iron Mountain Railroad in Missouri, and in April, 1855, came to Kansas, and from that time until 1861 was engaged surveying lands for the Government in Kansas and Nebraska. When not engaged in surveying he was examiner and draughtsman in the Surveyor General's office, and in February and March, 1856, while the office was at Wyandotte, he drew from the plats of actual surveys, the first sectional map of Kansas. In 1857, when the office was at Lecompton, he made a map of Douglas County, showing upon its face the names of settlers at that time upon each quarter section of land. This map was engraved at St. Louis, Mo. In 1861 commenced farming, and in 1862 was elected Captain of Company C, Thirteenth Regiment, Kansas State Militia, and served till the close of the war. In 1865 he sold his farm and went to New Mexico, where he again engaged in Government surveying. In 1866 returned to Johnson County, Kan., and located upon the farm where he now resides. Mr. S. was elected three or four times Surveyor of Johnson County, filling that office in all six or eight years. He is not only a thorough surveyor, but one of the finest draughtsmen in the State. Mr. S. was married in 1852, and lost his wife in 1876, and in 1880 married a second time, and now has a family of five boys and one girl.

CYRUS O. SYLVESTER, proprietor of the Olathe Foundry and Machine Shops, was born at Port Clinton, Ottawa Co., Ohio, April 24, 1835. In 1847 his father, William B. Sylvester, moved to Manhattan, Lucas Co., Ohio; in 1849 moved to Attica, Fountain Co., Ind. At eighteen years of age young Sylvester went to Milwaukee, Wis., where he served three years as an apprentice to the machinist trade, in the Reliance Works, with Decker & Seville. He was then made foreman of the machine shop under A. G. Wald, general manager. In 1861 he moved to Attica, Ind., and in 1862 enlisted in Company C, Eighty-sixth Regiment, Indiana Volunteers for three years. During his service he was wounded three times. Was at the battle of Murfreesboro, was all through the Atlanta Campaign; was promoted to First Lieutenant at Powers Ferry, Ga., July 16, 1864. After the Atlanta Campaign he was taken prisoner at Huntsville, Ala., January 18, 1864, and was taken to Galesburg, Ala., whence he escaped and made his way back, a distance of 150 miles on Lookout and Sand Mountains, to within about eight miles of Bridgeport, Ala. Here he was captured by a band of bushwhackers, and then he thought it was all up with him; but he had forged a parole, and this saved him. They detained him to find out whether the parole was genuine, and that night he escaped with a double-barreled shotgun. He was then on Sand Mountain—the mountain was covered with snow, and he had no shoes on his feet; by slow travel, however, he got down to the Tennessee river, where he found a slab on the bank. He tied the locks of his gun close under his arms, and crossed the river on the slab. His limbs were utterly benumbed with the cold water, but he had the gun, and now made his way back to the Union lines. In July, 1865, he was mustered out, and then went to Janesville, Wis. There he had charge of the round house of the C. & N. W. R. R. for two years. He then moved to Williamsport, Ind., and opened a foundry. Three years later he was burned out and removed to Attica, Ind., and there conducted a foundry until March, 1880, when he came to Olathe, Johnson Co., Kan., and established his present business. He does a large trade in repairing farm machinery and making farm rollers, and since March, 1882, has been running a saw mill in connection with his present business.

HENRY A. TAYLOR, Deputy County Treasurer, was born in Fairfield, Iowa, in November, 1847, and reared in Keokuk. Here for a time he studied law, but finally gave his attention to bookkeeping, etc., following it there until he came to Olathe, in May, 1870. Shortly after his arrival here, he was appointed Deputy Clerk of the County, and filled that position for three and a half years. In November, 1873, he was appointed Deputy Treasurer of the County, and served something over two years. In the fall of 1875, he was elected Treasurer of Johnson County for a two years term, and re-elected in 1877, without opposition. Mr. Taylor has occupied his present office since October, 1880. In January, 1881, he was also appointed Financial Agent for the County, and compromised and settled indebtedness for the same, which had been in litigation for some ten years, this employing the principal part of his time for over a year. The subject of our sketch was married in Olathe, in June, 1872, to Harriet H. Taylor, a native of Sycamore, Ill. They have one living daughter—Kate O., and one deceased—Mary.

G. ADAM THEIS, farmer, was born in Germany, January 8, 1830, and reared on a farm. In 1852, he emigrated to Cincinnati, Ohio, where he was employed as a night-watchman in a hotel. He came to Kansas in 1857, located in Johnson County, and followed farming and stock-raising in Olathe Township. Mr. Thies's farm was located in Section 21, Township 13, Range 24, consisting of 160 acres, all well improved; this he traded about three years ago, for 240 acres of land in Anderson County, where he is interested in farming, etc., but still retains his residence in this county. He was married in Johnson County, Kan., in 1863, to Elizabeth N. Gammon. They have three children—William, Mary H. and George H.

S. G. THOMAS, farmer, was born in Fayette County, Ind., in 1833, and was reared on a farm. He learned the trade of carpenter, and was employed at it there and in Madison County some twelve years. In 1861, he turned his attention to farming, and followed it in that county some six years, after which for one year he resided in Rush County and a year in Jackson County, Mo. He came to Olathe in December, 1868, and located on his present farm, which consists of 160 acres, all well improved. He has a nice orchard and grove on his premises. Mr. Thomas was married in 1861, in Madison County, Ind., to Susan M. Busby; she died two years later, leaving one daughter—Jessie. He was married a second time in Rush County, Ind., in December, 1866, to Margaret Ball. They have two children—Zoe O., and Olon C.

GEORGE L. THOMPSON, of Brown & Thompson, hardware merchant, was born in Kickapoo, Leavenworth Co., Kan., December 15, 1855. He began business life at the age of about fourteen years, entering the employ of the K. C., Ft. S. & G. R. R. Co. He worked for a short time in the general offices at Atchison, then as baggageman for three years, afterward as station agent at various places in Kansas, remaining in that employ in all about eleven years. Was then employed in the offices of M. P. R. R. Co. at Atchison for a year in the capacity of clerk, assistant train master, and chief operator, after which he went to Colorado, where for two months he was employed in mercantile business, then four months in Florida, engaged in railroading. Returning to Kansas in March, 1882, he settled in Olathe, and in April joined A. A. Brown in this business. Mr. Thompson was married in Olathe, in 1878, to Miss M. J. Dobbins. They have one infant daughter.

D. H. WALLICK, farmer and stock-raiser, was born in Holmes County, Ohio, in 1832, and was reared on a farm. After reaching manhood, followed farming as an occupation. He enlisted August 9, 1862, in the One Hundred and Second Ohio Infantry, Company G, and served three years. He came to Kansas in April, 1869; was for two years engaged in farming in the neighborhood of Olathe City, and then moved on to his present farm, five and one-half miles southwest of Olathe City, consisting of 160 acres, in March, 1871. His place is splendidly improved, and he has on it a fine orchard of three and one-half acres. He is a charter member of the Lone Elm Grange. Mr. W. was married in Holmes County, Ohio, in April, 1862, to Sarah Moore. They have three children—Elzora, Delbert L. and Franklin.

J. D. WALKER, farmer, was born in Tioga County, Penn., in 1826, and reared in Peoria County, Ill., where he followed farming for many years. In 1869, he came to Olathe, and located on his present farm, consisting of 160 acres, all improved by him in the past twelve years. He is also engaged in raising hogs of the Poland-China and Berkshire breeds. Mr. Walker is assisted in conducting his farm by his three sons—William, Percy and Ray.

GEORGE WHITE, farmer and dealer in stock, was born at Alden, Erie Co., N. Y., in 1828; removed to Princeton, Bureau Co., Ill., in 1844, and a year later engaged in the mercantile business as a clerk. In 1848, he went to St. Louis, Mo., and was employed in the same capacity for a year; then clerked on steamboats on the Illinois and Mississippi rivers. In 1850, he crossed the plains to California and followed mining for a short time, and for a few months was employed as a clerk in a hotel in Sacramento; returning home early in 1852, he engaged in the grocery business in Bureau County, remaining there some three years, after which he again took to boating on the Mississippi River for a short time. In August, 1855, he came to Kansas and followed mercantile business at Leavenworth. In January, 1857, he came to Olathe and located on his present farm, which consists of 165 acres. His place is well improved with fine buildings and an orchard. Mr. White is considered one of the largest raisers of hogs in the county. In September, 1862, he was appointed Under-Sheriff, and re-appointed in 1864, serving, in all, about forty months. Mr. White was married in St. Louis, Mo., October 16, 1855, to Laura V. Strode. They have nine living children—H. B., Minnie M., Eddie C., Charles, Schuyler C., Ida E., Laura, John and Hattie M.; one deceased—Frank S., who died May 30, 1882.

ALFRED WILEY, farmer and stock-raiser, P. O. Olathe, was born near Zanesville, Ohio, in 1837, and reared in Fulton County, Ill., where he began business life as a clerk in mercantile business, following that occupation for several years. He came to Kansas in 1859, located in the city of Olathe, and was for some five years engaged in the provision business in company with his brother. His father came to this State in 1864, and the boys engaged in farming with him; and three years later the subject of sketch took a farm on his own account. In 1875, he moved on to his present farm in the township of Olathe. Mr. Wiley is one of the progressive farmers of this county. He owns 400 acres of land, five acres of which he has laid out in a fine orchard; and is largely engaged in raising live stock, making a specialty of graded cattle and blooded hogs. He is a member of the Grand View Grange, No. 433; was elected master at its organization, and is the present incumbent of that office, having been elected yearly. In the fall of 1861, he enlisted—for three years—in Company C, Second Kansas Infantry. Mr. Wiley was married in Anderson County, Kansas, in 1866, to Sarah J. Bull. They have six children—Charles, Lina, Louisa, Eli, Viola and Edward.

W. F. WILEY, farmer, Section 15, P. O. Olathe, was born in Baltimore, Md., in 1815, and when very young his parents emigrated to Jefferson County, Ohio. He learned the carpenter trade with his father, and followed that occupation in Morgan County, Ohio, until 1840, when he moved to Vermont, Fulton Co., Ill. There he was engaged in building, mercantile, grain and pork business. In 1856, he moved to Henry County, Iowa, and embarked in mercantile business at Salem. Two years later, he moved to Kansas City, Mo., and there he again followed contracting and building. He was forced to leave there on account of his Republican sentiments; and in June, 1861, he located at Olathe, Kan, where, in connection with others, he conducted a flour mill for about two years. He then gave his attention to agricultural pursuits and in 1875, moved on to his present farm. He has 160 acres, all improved, and a very fine orchard. He was married in Morgan County, Ohio, in June, 1836, to Rebecca Todd. They have seven children.

Bonita is a small town situated about five miles south of Olathe on the Kansas City, Fort Scott & Gulf Railroad. The village was first named Alta by the Railroad company on account of it being at the highest point on their road; but there being another postoffice in the State by that name, the name of this town was changed to Bonita, Spanish for beautiful. The name is very appropriate, because of the beauty of the surrounding rolling prairie.

The first settlement was made here by Frank Temple and William Jobi, October 17, 1879. The postoffice was established in December, 1879, F. Gilbert being appointed first Postmaster. Mr. Gilbert also opened a store in the same month on the north side of Main street. The first birth was that of John Temple, December 1, 1881, and the first death that of Miss Annie McElheny, July 17, 1880.

SHAWNEE.

Shawnee (formerly Gum Springs) is situated in the northern part of the county, one mile from the railroad station at Merriam, on undulating prairie adjoining timber. It was named after the Shawnee Indians. The first settlement here was made by J. D. Allen, August 10, 1857. Other early settlers were William Holmes, Richard Williams, J. T. Rowland, W. B. Maupin and A. W. Wear.

The first marriage that was solemnized here was between Timothy Keeser and Martha Patton, September 9, 1857; the first birth that of Robert P. Keeser, June 10, 1858; and the first death that of Mrs. W. B. Maupin, in July, 1858.

The first school was taught in the spring of 1858, in an old Indian meeting-house. The first schoolhouse was built in 1866, near the southwest corner of the public square. In September, 1857, Rev. William Holmes preached the first sermon in the town. A church was built many years previous to the location of the town, called the Shawnee Indian Methodist Episcopal Church (South).

The postoffice was established in July, 1858, M. P. Randall first Postmaster. In 1858, W. B. Maupin built a steam saw and grist mill about 400 yards west of the public square. F. Conant opened a store on the south side of the public square August 10, 1857.

At Shawnee (or Gum Springs, as it was then called) was held the first District Court in the fall of 1857, where resided all the county officers, J. D. Allen was appointed Justice of the Peace by the County Commissioners, in September, 1857, and has held the office ever since.

At the present time Shawnee contains two dry goods stores, one grocery, one blacksmith, one harness shop, one hotel, other places of business and about 400 inhabitants.

The town was twice pillaged and burned by Quantrell, the first time in 1862, and again in 1864, burning thirteen houses at each time and murdering four or five of the people.

Shawnee Methodist Mission was located two and a half miles southwest of Westport, Mo. At the present time there remain the following buildings, which were for many years the scene of the labors of Rev. Thomas Johnson and others for the advancement of the Indians:

The former residence of Rev. Mr. Johnson, a two-story brick, the main part being 24x52, and the wing 24x42, costing when built about $20,000. In 1880 it was purchased by Robert Plunkett, of Kansas City, and by him put in thorough repair, and occupied as a hotel. This building was used by the bogus Legislature in 1855, as the place of holding its first sessions. Besides this hotel there are two other large brick buildings, one of them, during the days of the Mission, used as sleeping apartments by the students in attendance upon the mission school, which is a two-story brick, 100x30; and the other also a two-story brick building, 110x30 feet, which was used for the mission school. Both these buildings are occupied by tenant families, and are gradually going to decay. There is also a district schoolhouse, built in 1873, and a store, blacksmith shop and postoffice. Here is a mineral spring, said to possess great healing powers, which was called by the Indians "medicine water." About a mile southwest of the mission is a famous spring, which has long been known by the name of "Cottonwood Spring." It is at this place that Fremont pitched his first camp after leaving Independence, Mo., on his tour across the plains, and hence the spring is sometimes called Fremont's Spring. A stream of excellent water, one and a half inches in diameter, constantly flows from it with considerable force, the temperature of the water being 54°.

Mrs. Elisabeth Carter.—This history is indebted to the Kansas Historical Society for the following sketch: At the time of her death, Mrs. Carter was the oldest white woman born in Kansas, and was probably the first white female child born within the limits of the State. She was the youngest daughter of Rev. Robert Simerwell, and was born at the Shawnee Baptist Mission, Johnson County, January 24, 1835. When she was about three years old her father moved to Pottawatomie Creek, now in Franklin County, Kan., where she commenced her education in the Indian school taught by Miss E. McCoy. Her father then sent her a few terms to school in Missouri, after which she attended the Monticello Seminary in Illinois, for three years. She taught one year at the Pottawatomie Baptist Mission School, which was situated about three miles west of Topeka. Her mother's health being poor she returned home in the summer of 1855, to Six Mile Creek, in Williamsport Township, Shawnee County. Her mother died in November of that year. In 1859 she taught school in what is now District No. 4, in Williamsport Township, in a little log dwelling house which was built by her father. About the year 1869, she taught a term among the Ottawa Indians, near Ottawa, previous to the Government grant founding the Ottawa University. In the summers of 1861 and 1862, she taught at Shawnee Center, Williamsport Township, and in the village of Auburn in the years of 1863 and 1864. In the summer of 1865, she taught in Ottawa, on the corner of Locust and Second streets. She was married to John S. Carter, March 1, 1866, since which time she has lived near the village of Auburn, Shawnee County. She was converted in her fifteenth year and was baptized by Elder Jacob Knapp at Alton, Ill., and has been an active member of the Baptist Church ever since. She died after a week's illness of pneumonia, January 3, 1883. The funeral services were conducted by her Pastor, Rev. Mr. Stevenson, who spoke from the words, "Blessed are the dead who die in the

LENEXA.

Lenexa is situated on the Missouri River, Fort Scott & Gulf Railroad, seven miles northeast of Olathe, and is surrounded by an excellent farming country. The Railroad Company bought the town site, in 1869, of C. A. Bradshaw, laid out the town and disposed of lots to different parties, among whom, were D. Brickley and Dr. G. M. Bower. The first store in the town was opened by Lee Freeman, in 1869; the second by Dr. Bower, in 1870, and the third by Rush & Gintner. H. D. Gillette moved to Lenexa, in 1870, and started the first blacksmith shop. Among the early settlers in the town were James Rush and Edwin Bradshaw. David Duff moved in in 1871. The postoffice was established in 1870, Lee Freeman being first Postmaster. The first birth in the town was that of Willis Bower, January 19, 1869; the first marriage, that of John Bower, to Miss Mary Bradshaw, in 1873, and the first death, that of George Bower, also in 1873.

The Methodist Church was built in 1878, costing $1,200, during the pastorate of Rev. E. H. Bailiff. Mr. Bailiff has been succeeded by Revs. John Griffiths, A. G. Murray and W. Zimmermann, the present pastor. The Catholic Church was organized, and their church edifice built in 1881. The building cost $1,000, and is a neat frame structure.

The Fountain Head Mill, was erected in 1879, by John Ernshaw and C. W. Miller. It is a two story frame, with two run of buhrs, and cost 4,000. It has a capacity of thirty barrels of flour in twenty-four hours.

Lenexa contains at the present time two stores, two blacksmith shops, two churches, the grist mill, and about seventy-five inhabitants.

HECTOR.

Hector is situated on moderately level prairie. The first settlement was made here by John Dyche, in 1857, other early settlers were J. D. Jennison, Levy Clark and Thomas James. In 1858 the first school was taught by John Hollingsworth, in a house belonging to Levy Clark. A schoolhouse was built in 1865. The postoffice was established in 1866, John Dyche being appointed first Postmaster.

The Cumberland Presbyterian Church was organized in 1868 or 1869, and a church building erected about the same time. It is a brick building 28x40 and cost $4,300. The Methodists have a frame church which was built at an expense of about $3,000. In the year 1868, a difficulty arose between Thomas Cisad and Louis Jarbo, about an eighty acre piece of land, in which the latter was killed. Cisad gave bail, left the county and never returned.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES—SHAWNEE TOWNSHIP.

JAMES D. ALLEN, Shawnee, was born in Greensburg, Ky., in 1812. He began business life when very young; was for ten years in the office of Clerk of that county and Circuit Court. In 1838 he moved to Sangamon County, Ill, and for ten years was engaged in mercantile business at Athens, then returned to Greensburg where he followed the same business until he came to Kansas in August, 1857, at which time he located in Shawnee and engaged in mercantile business, carrying it on for several years, since which time he has devoted himself to farming and gardening. He was appointed Justice of the Peace in November, 1857, and has been elected every second year since, with the exception of two years during the war, when he was driven off by the guerrillas. He has for the past twenty years been Notary Public, and was a member of the first Constitutional Convention, held in March, 1858, at Minneola. Mr. Allen was married in Sangamon County, Ill., in 1835, to Adeline Constant; they have two children: Martha E. and Emily F.

Y., where for two years he followed farming, then in Kane County, Ill., where he was employed in teaming. In March, 1859, he came to Kansas and located in Shawnee and engaged in farming. In 1861 he returned east, residing for a short time in Kane County, Ill., then in Porter County, Ind., for two and a half years employed teaming in the lumber business. In April, 1864, he returned to Shawnee and engaged in general merchandise business, and is now the oldest merchant residing in this place. He also owns 160 acres of land which he farms. Mr. Archer was married in Kane County, Ill., July 9, 1855, to Elizabeth Earnshaw. They have four children: Lydia A., Sarah, George W. and Thomas H.

HON. G. M. BOWER was born in Mesopotamia, Trumbull Co., Ohio, August 17, 1831. He is a graduate of Bellevue Hospital Medical College, N. Y. In 1854 he emigrated to Kendall County, Ill., and began the practice of his profession in 1856. In 1866 he came to Kansas City and located in Shawnee, Kansas, in 1867, and in Lenexa in 1869. He engaged in the drug business at that time in connection with the practice of medicine, and soon after purchased the town site. Was elected to the State Senate in 1871. In 1876 his health failing he sold out his business; traveled in Ohio and subsequently in Colorado. In 1878 located with his family at Larned, Kansas, and carried on general merchandise at Livingston, also practicing medicine. Returning to Lenexa in June, 1880, he again engaged in business, dealing in general merchandise, grain and agricultural implements, also largely in sheep husbandry. The doctor was married in Plattville, Ill., January 5, 1865, to Miss E. B. Brickley. They have three children living: Kittie May, Willis B. and Mary E.

HON. LEWIS W. BREYFOGLE, farmer, P. O. Lenexa, and dealer in live stock, was born in Delaware, Ohio, September 17, 1836. He learned the trade of carpenter and joiner and followed that vocation for a livelihood. In 1862 he turned his attention to farming, following it for a year in Morrow County, then in Delaware. In 1865 he engaged in the grain business. The subject of this sketch came to Johnson County, Kansas, in 1866; for a year he was employed in freighting across the plains to New Mexico for the United States government and in 1867 settled on his present farm. He owns about 600 acres, all improved, and is largely engaged in breeding Short-horn cattle and blooded hogs, and dealing in live stock. He has fifteen acres of orchard on his place and his farm is considered one of the finest in the county. He was elected in 1879, to the State Legislature and in 1881 to the State Senate. Mr. Breyfogle was married in Morrow County, Ohio, March 25, 1860, to Lizzie M. Shaw, who died August 19, 1865, leaving two children: Frank L. and Jessie F. HON. D. G. CAMPBELL, farmer and fruit grower, P. O. Merriam, was born February 13, 1821, in Williamson County, Tenn. His parents moved to West Tennessee, near Paris, Henry County, when he was quite young, where he lived until 1849, when he emigrated to Ouachita County, Ark., near Camden. In 1856 he came to Kansas, but on account of the political troubles prevailing at that time he turned his course and settled in Andrew County, Mo. In 1859 he came to Kansas, locating in Wyandotte County. He came to this, Johnson County, in the spring of 1860 and located in Shawnee Township. In 1865 he moved on to his present farm, which now adjoins the town site of Campbellton. He has turned his attention principally to fruit growing and has one of the best orchards of fine fruit in the county. His original farm consisted of eighty acres; eight acres of this he laid out in lots in the town of Campbellton. He was elected to the State Legislature in 1862, 1863, 1864, and 1867, on the Democratic ticket, and in 1874 and 1875 as an Independent. In 1875 he joined the National Greenback party and supported Peter Cooper for President. Mr. Campbell was married in 1847 in Tennessee to Miss A. V. Cooley. They have five children, Hannibal, Alice, James, Edward, and Frederick.

CALVIN A. CORNATZER, farmer, P. O. Lenexa, was born in North Carolina in 1827. In 1850 he came to Indian Territory, and engaged as a laborer on the Methodist mission farm, then at the Quaker mission, and contrary to the customs of the times, he in 1855 married Miss Emily Smith, a Quaker, and in 1857 located on his present farm, which consists of eighty acres. He confines himself principally to grain farming and gardening. In 1856 he was arrested by the Sheriff of this county, Isaac Parish, and confined in Lecompton jail for one day, for aiding and abetting the Free-state cause. He early espoused the cause and was known to have voted for Jim Lane. He is a man of strict integrity, a close observer of nature's works has an excellent memory, remarkable faculty for telling a story well, and is surrounded by a pleasant family of six children, viz.: Alice, George, Minnie, Hattie, William and Juliette.

SPRING HILL.

This very beautiful town is situated in the southern part of the County, on the Missouri River, Fort Scott & Gulf Railroad, ten miles south of Olathe. The surrounding country is gently undulating, and the soil exceedingly fertile. Vegetation grows in extreme luxuriance.

The first settler in the township was James B. Hovey, who arrived at the present location of the town in March, 1857. About two weeks afterward, William Mavity arrived, and settled where the railroad depot now is. Immediately afterward, S. B. Myrick and E. F. Davis came in and took up the adjoining claims. J. B. Hovey and E. F. Davis became associated in holding the town site. The survey was made May 18, 1857, and the town named by Mr. Hovey, after Spring Hill near Mobile, Ala., a town considered by him one of the most beautiful he had ever seen. It was Mr. Hovey's opinion that Spring Hill, Kan., might be made to fully rival in beauty the older town in Alabama.

In the fall, Mr. Davis sold his interest in the town site to A. B. Simmons, William A. Jenkinson, and J. P. Lockey, and Mr. Hovey sold a portion of his interest to H. E. Brown, James McKoin, and Edwin Walker. In January, 1858, a town company was organized of the above named persons, J. B. Hovey elected President, and A. B. Simmons, Secretary.

The first farmer in the township was George Sprague, whose farm adjoins the north half of the town on the east. Mr. Sprague made the first improvements in the township, building the first good board fence, the first good barn, and the first good two-story frame dwelling. Mr. Sprague settled here in 1857. Quite a large number of others came into the settlement the same fall, among them, D. F. Dayton, James Sweeting, B. H. Stiles, W. G. Davidson, David Sprong, Hiram Mitchell, J. H. Jackson, Thomas Jenkinson, William Sowers, and W. R. Rutter.

The first building in the town was known as the Spring Hill Hotel, built by J. B. Hovey, in the summer of 1857. The postoffice was established in the fall, J. B. Hovey being appointed the first Postmaster.

In the spring of 1858, A. D. Richardson bought an interest in the town, being admitted on the same footing as if he had been an original member. During the same spring, the Methodist Episcopal Church was organized, a building erected which served the purposes of church and schoolhouse, and Rev. Richard P. Duvall became the first resident minister, L. B. Dennis the first presiding elder.

The first store was opened by W. G. Davidson, in the winter of 1857–58, the second in 1860, by a Mr. Prunty.

The Methodist Episcopal Organization erected a new church edifice in 1868, at a cost of $2,700. The membership is now two hundred.

The Presbyterian Church was organized in 1861, with four members, all women. At present there are seventy members on the roll. The church was built in 1869, costing also $2,700.

The Methodist Protestant Church was organized in 1871 and 1878. Their church was built at a cost of about $1,200.

There is also a colored Baptist Church organized in Spring Hill.

In 1869 the railroad reached the southern part of the county. The town being situated on high land, and as considerable cutting down through rock would be necessitated if the road should be built through or near the town, which would cost according to the estimates of the engineers of the road $15,000, the people of Spring Hill were asked to contribute that sum to enable the company to build through and establish a station at the town. This they declined to do. The company therefore built the road one-half mile east of the town, and established their station two miles north, at Ocheltree, possibly as a kind of punishment to the Spring Hill people for refusing to contribute the $15,000, or perhaps expecting the town to be moved to the station, as Lanesfield was moved to Edgerton. For some time the trains did not stop at Spring Hill, and the people had to go to Ocheltree for their mail, and to take the cars. This was very inconvenient, and an effort was made to induce the company to reconsider the matter of a station at Spring Hill. A. D. Richardson, who at the time owned sixty-four lots in the town, went to see Mr. Joy, with whom he was well acquainted, in reference to the matter, and was successful; the people of Spring Hill and vicinity contributing $1,500 toward putting in the side-track.

The first schoolhouse was built in the spring of 1858, and in the summer following Mrs. Duvall taught the first school. The present fine large frame schoolhouse was built in 1868, at a cost of about $4,000. In the spring of 1882 an election was held for the purpose of voting bonds to build a new schoolhouse, which was defeated by a vote of twenty-three for, to ninety-two against.

Spring Hill contains six general stores, besides the Grange store, one dry goods, one grocery, one furniture, two hardware, three drug stores, two hotels, four blacksmiths, two agricultural implement dealers, two grain dealers, three mills, one newspaper and about 700 inhabitants, 215 children of school age.

The Standard Mills were built in 1871, by Miller, Gristy & Jenkinson, at a cost of $25,000. The mill is three stories above the basement, has four run of buhrs, and a capacity of eighty barrels of flour in twenty-four hours. June 1, 1882, the mills became the property of H. L. McLachlin & Bro.

Besides these mills there are two small feed and grist mills, one driven by steam, the other by a wind mill.

The Spring Hill Enterprise was established December 7, 1870, as a Republican journal, by Buel & Sprague. Sprague bought the interest of Buel January 24, 1871, and soon associated with himself Dr. Parker. Dr. Parker then bought out Sprague's interest and conducted the paper as a Democratic journal for a time. Early in 1872 W. H. McGown became the owner, changed the name to the Western Progress, and the politics to Republican.

OCHELTREE.

Ocheltree is situated on the Missouri River, Fort Scott & Gulf Railroad, eight miles south of Olathe. Like all the other towns in Johnson County, it is surrounded by an excellent agricultural region. The town site, containing seventy acres, was laid out in 1867, by a town company, consisting of Wm. A. Ocheltree, Mr. Bayless, Edward H. Allen and Howard M. Holden, and the plat was recorded under the name of Spring Hill Station, it being the design of the railroad company to have no station at the town of Spring Hill, two miles south.

The first building in the town was built in the winter of 1857-58 by J. H. Jackson. It was occupied as a store and dwelling house by William Auld, whose family was the first to settle in the town. The second building was erected by a Mr. Baker, in the summer of 1868, also for a store, for which purpose it is still used. A dwelling house was next erected by J. M. Miller and James McElheney, and in the same summer of 1868, eight or ten other buildings were put up by various parties.

The postoffice was established in 1870, J. M. Miller being appointed first Postmaster. A son of Mr. Miller's was the first child born in the town; a Mr. Henry and Miss Eliza Hess were the first couple married, and Ham Elam was the first to die, in 1872. The first schoolhouse was one moved into the town from the country. The present school building was erected in 1880. It is a two-story frame structure, and cost $2,000.

Ocheltree contains one store, one agricultural implement dealer, one blacksmith, three grain dealers and about forty inhabitants.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES—SPRING HILL TOWNSHIP.

E. H. AINSWORTH, farmer and fruit grower, P. O. Ocheltree, was born in Montgomery County, Ohio, August 1, 1832, and was reared in Miami County. At thirteen years of age he turned his attention to house painting, following it for six years in Shelby County, and during two years of that period also studied dentistry, after which he practiced that profession for eleven years. He came to Kansas in October, 1862, but remained only a short time, returning to his home in Ohio. In 1866 he came again to Kansas. For a year he farmed in Wyandotte County, then moved to Johnson County and located on his present farm. He has 180 acres of land all well improved, twenty-five of which are laid out in a fine orchard. Mr. Ainsworth is also engaged in breeding grade cattle and Poland-China hogs. He was married in Warren County, Ohio, March 16, 1858, to Jane G. Anderson. They have three children, James B., D. Ewing and Charles. Mr. A. is a charter member of the Ocheltree Grange, and was for five years master of the same.

W. G. ANDERSON, breeder of Short-horn cattle, P. O. Ocheltree, was born in Warren County, Ohio, in May, 1839, and reared on a farm there, and after reaching the age of manhood carried on a stock farm until he sold out and came to Kansas in August, 1868, at which time he located on his present farm. He owns 240 acres all well improved for stock farming. He has for the past seven years given special attention to the breeding of Short-horn cattle. His stock is principally from the famous bull Oakland Favorite, which he used in his herd for several years; has now the noted bull "Constance Henry Second," bred by Ware & Berry, of Kentucky. Mr. A. has none but fine stock on his farm, imported from Ohio and Kentucky. He is also largely engaged in breeding Mambrino blooded horses and Poland-China hogs. He has one of the finest stock farms of this nature in the county, and several of his cattle have taken premiums at the fairs of Paola, Kas., and Kansas City, Mo.

JOHN M. CADDY, hardware merchant, was born in Waltham, Mass., in 1850, removing when very young to Greene County, Ohio; he learned the trade of tinner there, serving as an apprentice some four years; he came to Kansas in 1871, locating in Spring Hill. Was for a year employed as a clerk in the hardware business, after which he purchased the stock, etc., and conducted the business until the spring of 1875, when he sold out and moved to Boston, Mass., where for a year he worked at his trade. He then removed to Greene County, Ohio, and worked at it there until 1877, when he returned to Spring Hill and engaged in this business. He has a nice business and carries a stock of $3,500. He was a member of the city council in 1879, and also during that period filled the office of City Clerk. He was elected Mayor of Spring Hill in the spring of 1881 and re-elected in 1882. Was married in 1872, at Spring Hill, to Rebecca Berkshire; they have one son, Edward A.

L. CHAMBERLIN, proprietor of the Spring Hill Mills, was born in Warren County, Ohio in 1845 and reared on a farm, and followed farming as an occupation. He enlisted in 1864 in the One Hundred and Forty-sixth Ohio Infantry and served a few months, after which he again returned to his farm. He came to Spring Hill, Kansas, in the spring of 1869, and has been engaged in farming ever since. He has some 200 acres of land, all under cultivation; he has also engaged in grain and live stock business since 1872, and in April, 1882, he purchased the Standard Mills at this place and now conducts them as the Spring Hill Mills and elevator. They are run by steam and have a capacity of 100 barrels of flour per day. Mr. C. was married in Spring Hill, January, 1872, to Fannie Coons, daughter of Dr. I. A. Coons, of this place. They have two children, Gale and June.

ISRAEL A. COONS, M. D., Spring Hill, was born July 10, 1827, in Fairfield County, Ohio. He studied medicine at the Ohio Medical College and the Starling Medical College, graduating at the latter in 1852. He practiced medicine at Dayton, Ohio, and vicinity, until the spring of 1861, when he entered the army as surgeon of the Fourteenth Ohio Volunteer Infantry, in the three months' service. On his return, he was commissioned surgeon of the Thirty-eighth Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and served, in all, about two and one-half years—a large part of the time as Brigade Surgeon, and for a short time Medical Director of a division. He had charge of a hospital on the battle field of Stone River. The doctor was formerly a member of the State Medical Society of Ohio, and one of its Vice Presidents in 1854. In 1869, he removed from Middletown, Ohio,—where he had been practicing after returning from the army,—to Spring Hill, Kansas where he has been engaged in active practice. He is a member of the American Medical Association, of the Kansas State Medical Society and the Miami County Medical Society, of which he has been President for two years.

JOHN H. DAVIS, M. D., Spring Hill, was born in Warren County, Mo., June 15, 1831, and was reared on a farm. He began the study of medicine in September, 1852, with Dr. Worthington, of Danville, Mo., remaining with him some two years, after which he attended the Missouri University at St. Louis, graduating there in the spring of 1856. The doctor practiced in Highland County, Mo. He went to St. Louis and attended the St. Louis Medical College, graduating from the same in March, 1865, after which he practiced in Franklin County, Mo., and in 1876, entered the employ of the M. P. R. R. Co., as surgeon in the company's hospital. He came to Kansas in May, 1879; located at Louisburg, Miami County; and in the spring of 1882, he removed to Spring Hill.

DOCTRESS C. A. DAYTON is a daughter of Samuel Herbert, of Herkimer County, N.Y., where she was born. She began the study of medicine with Dr. John E. Todd, of Baldwinsville, N. Y.; also took a partial course at Casselton University, Rutland, Vt., being unable to complete the same on account of the antipathy towards her sex in the study of medicine. She began the practice of medicine in 1849 at Baldwinsville, Onondaga Co., N. Y.; from there, went to Butler, Branch Co., Mich., and practiced there nearly five years; thence to Casselton, Rutland Co., Vt.; then to St. Albans, and in January, 1859, she came to Spring Hill, Kan., and has had considerable success in the practice of medicine at this place. In 1831, she was married to Amos A. Dayton, now deceased, and had one son—Dr. Hiram E. Dayton, who was killed at Blue Springs, Mo., while acting as a scout for Capt. Oliver's command, January 27, 1862, by Quantrell's men.

JOHN S. GASAWAY, Postmaster and bookseller, Spring Hill, etc., was born in Jefferson County, Ind., January 15, 1838, and reared on a farm. He enlisted August 22, 1861, in Company E, Third Indiana Cavalry, and when mustered out three years later, he held the rank of Commissary Sergeant; after this he returned to Jefferson County and taught school for some years. In 1871 he came to Kansas and located in Spring Hill; opened a photograph gallery and conducted it for six years. He was appointed Postmaster and entered upon the duties of his office March 8, 1877, and at that time opened business with a stock of stationery, books, etc. He was elected a member of the City Council in the spring of 1880 for a term, and is at present Director of the School Board. Mr. Gasaway was married in Spring Hill July 16, 1873, to Wilda Smith. They have one son—Carl W., born in Spring Hill.

J. A. HIBBARD, farmer, P. O. Spring Hill, was born in Orleans County, N. Y., in 1818; here he learned the trade of carpenter and followed it as an occupation. In 1840 he removed to Fulton County, Ill., and remained for some years engaged at his trade, then removed to McDonough County, where he followed farming. Mr. Hibbard came to Kansas in 1865 and located on his present farm. He owns 160 acres of land all of which he has improved, and five acres of which he has laid out in a fine orchard. He is also engaged to some extent in raising stock. He was married in 1846 at Milwaukee, Wis., to Jeanette Webster; she died in 1847, leaving one son—Hiram H. Mr. Hibbard was married a second time in Fulton County, Ill., in 1849, to Elizabeth Randall, who died in 1875, leaving seven children—Edmund H., Lawrence A., Bruce L., Priam H., William R., George A. and J. Morris. Mr. H. is a charter member of the Morning Grange, No. 227, and was master of the same for two terms. Was County Commissioner of Johnson County, Kan., two terms.

S. B. HOGUE, hardware merchant, was born in Monmouth, Ill., in 1837, and reared on a farm. He came to Kansas in 1858, locating in Miami County, Kan., where he pre-empted 160 acres of land and engaged in farming. In August, 1862, he enlisted in Company I, Twelfth Kansas Infantry. He was taken prisoner at the battle of Saline river, in Arkansas, on April 30, 1864; was held as a prisoner at Princeton, Ark., for forty-four days, when he made his escape, and after two nights and one day's travel, reached Little Rock, Ark. He served three years, and when mustered out held the rank of Sergeant. After the war he returned to his farm in Miami County, where he remained until 1875. In 1875 he took a trip to California—spending one year to recruit his health; then returned to his farm, where he remained until 1878, when he removed to Spring Hill and took the management of the Spring Hill Co-operative Association, in which position he remained about three and one-half years. In May, 1882, he purchased the hardware stock and business of A. F. Wiley & Co., at this place, and now devotes his time to the management of the same. Mr. Hogue was married in Westport, Mo., in November, 1860, to Emily Hogan. They have one daughter—Edith May, now Mrs. Sibley.

JESSE H. JACKSON, merchant and Postmaster Ocheltree, was born in 1817, in St. Clair County, Ill. He was married to Amelia Taylor, daughter of Rev. Stephen L. Taylor, in 1841, and emigrated to Jackson County, Iowa, in 1847; remained there till 1858. He was the means of having the Otter Creek postoffice established, and was Postmaster for about five years, most of the time holding the office of Justice of the Peace. In 1858 he came to Johnson County, near Spring Hill, and located on his present farm, which consists of eighty-five acres, situated on Section 11, Township 15, Range 23. This place he has well improved with hedges, groves and orchard. He was appointed Postmaster at Spring Hill in 1861 or 1862 and held the office for some two or three years. Was elected County Clerk in 1863 and moved to Olathe. At the expiration of his term as County Clerk received the appointment of Postmaster at that place, which office he filled for two years. He then moved back to his farm near Spring Hill, and in 1875 or 1876 received the appointment of Postmaster at Ocheltree, which office he still holds. He has filled the office of Justice of the Peace for six years in Spring Hill Township; has also been Notary Public. Mr. Jackson is now sixty-five years of age, enjoys reasonable health, and is still able to attend to his regular routine of business. He has four children living, the oldest upwards of forty years old. His wife is two years younger than himself, and enjoys good health.

URIAH F. LUELLEN (deceased), was born in Washington County, Penn., in October, 1815, and two years later his parents emigrated to Ohio. On October 10, 1837, he was married to Miss Nancy Waddle, a native of Virginia. They have raised a family of five children: Margaret, Sarah J., John, Mary and Nellie. Mr. Luellen came to Kansas in 1869 and located on a farm adjoining the city of Spring Hill in 1870, and followed farming and the breeding of draft horses of the Norman stock. In 1873 he was awarded a premium for the best yearling colt at the Kansas city exposition. Mr. Luellen died here, November 25, 1877, much regretted by his many friends and acquaintances. His widow still resides on the farm with her daughter Nellie, who is married to Mr. Andrews.

JAMES V. MCCABE, farmer, P. O. Bonita, was born in Perry County, Ohio, 1839, and followed farming as an occupation. He came to Kansas in 1867, locating in Anderson County. He rented some land and farmed for a short time; in the following spring he came to Johnson County and purchased 160 acres in the township of Olathe. About five years ago he purchased another 160 acres in Spring Hill Township, and moved onto the same in the fall of 1881. He now owns 320 acres of land, all well improved, and is quite an extensive farmer. His residence farm is very beautiful; on this farm he lately erected a fine house which is worth some $3,000, and the place is tastefully laid out with orchards, groves and hedges; all this is the result of his industry and thrift. Mr. McCabe was married in Perry County, Ohio in 1862, to Margaret Minough. They have eight children: Mary, Rose, Edward, John, Phillip, Raphael, Joseph and Alice.

HIRAM MITCHELL, dealer in grain, Spring Hill, was born near Logansport, Ind., in 1827, and when very young removed to Henderson County, Ill., and seven years later to Knox County, where he followed farming and stock raising until 1849, when he crossed the plains to California and for about two years carried on an extensive livery business in Sacramento. Returning East in 1852, to Warren County, Ill., he again devoted his attention to farming, etc. He came to Kansas June 18, 1858, located in Spring Hill Township, Johnson County, on 160 acres of land, and farmed for about twenty-two years. In 1861 he engaged in live stock business and has since carried it on in an extensive manner. He also engaged in grain business. In 1880 he moved into the city of Spring Hill, and in May, 1882, erected a large, commodious barn, and in company with two sons, Lewis and John, engaged in livery business. Mr. Mitchell was married in Warren County, Ill., to Ocena Sprague. They have six living children, Louis, John W., Eva., Clara, George and William.

HENRY PERLEY, deceased, was born in Winchendon, Worcester Co., Mass., October 3, 1820, and was for some years employed in the wooden ware factories of that locality, and while thus employed gave himself a common school and academic education. At the age of seventeen years he began to earn his living as school teacher and followed that vocation off and on until he reached the age of thirty-three years, when he removed to McDonough County, Ill., and improved a prairie farm of 240 acres, and followed farming until twelve years later, when he engaged in the nursery business. While there he was Trustee of the Prairie City Academy for over five years. He came to Kansas in the spring of 1869 and located here, where he lived till his death. He had 160 acres overlooking the city of Spring Hill. His land is all well improved. He for six years also carried on a nursery at this place. Mr. P. had one of the finest orchards in the county, having on his place over 4,000 fruit trees of all varieties. He also rented eighty acres of land which he devoted to farming purposes. Mr. Perley was elected to the State Legislature in the fall of 1876 and served one term. The subject of our sketch was married October 26, 1854, to Eveline Smith, and they had two children. Mr. Perley died September 11, 1882.

WILLIAM A. PERRY, farmer and stock dealer, P. O. Gardner, was born in Jersey County, Ill., in April, 1845, and was reared on a farm after which he conducted a farm of his own, consisting of 160 acres. In the fall of 1871 he came to Kansas and located on his present farm. He owns 160 acres, all well improved. He is also engaged in raising cattle in Barber County, this State, in company with J. W. Dennis, and is one of the leading farmers of the neighborhood. He is a member of the Lone Elm Grange. He was married in Alton, Ill., in the summer of 1872 to Mary A. Bergin.

REV. A. M. REYNOLDS, Pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, was born in Richmond County, Va., February 19, 1844, and reared on a farm in Pickaway County, Ohio. He enlisted June 1, 1863, in the Sixth Kansas Volunteer Cavalry, and was mustered out in August, 1865. Immediately after the war he turned his attention to the ministry, and studied for the same at Blackburn's University, Ill., until the spring of 1872, after which he attended the Lane Seminary at Cincinnati, Ohio, and graduated there in January, 1875; was ordained at Blue Ball, Ohio, in November of that year, and had charge of the Presbyterian Church of that place for four years. He came to Spring Hill, Kan., in August, 1879, and at once entered upon his present duties.

JAMES W. ROBINSON, farmer and stock-raiser, P. O. Spring Hill, was born in Greene County, Ill., in 1842. He has always followed farming as an occupation. In 1869 he came to Kansas, and located on his present farm. He has one of the best improved places in the county. He owns 240 acres of land, and has on his premises a beautiful home and a fine barn and orchard. Mr. Robinson is largely engaged in stock-raising, in connection with his farming pursuits, and is one of the leading men in the township. He is a member of the Morning Grange, and holds the office of overseer of that body. He was married in Macon County, Ill., in December, 1869, to Margaret Rieves. They have two children—Ina and Essie.

PETER STAHL, farmer, P. O. Spring Hill, was born in Schuylkill County, Pa., January 19, 1826, and reared on a farm in Union County. There he carried on two farms, one of 106 acres and another of 75, for many years. He came to Kansas October 21, 1878, having purchased his present farm some time previous to his arrival. He has 160 acres in this farm, which is one of the best in the county. It is all splendidly improved, with groves, hedges and orchards. His residence is equal to any in the county, and is beautifully situated, commanding a fine view of the surrounding country and the city of Spring Hill. He is a member of the Ocheltree Grange. Mr. Stahl was married in Union County, Pa., in 1854, to Isabella Mathers, a native of that county. This union has been blessed with eight children.

THOMAS STEVENSON, farmer and stock-raiser, P. O. Spring Hill, was born in Lancaster County, Pa., in 1835, and was reared on a farm near the city of Pittsburgh. In 1856 he moved to Marion County, Ind., where he was employed as a carpenter for about three years. He came to Kansas and located on his present farm January 16, 1858. He owns 240 acres of land, all well improved, and has one of the finest places in the surrounding country. He is largely engaged in raising stock. October 1, 1861, he enlisted in the Fifth Kansas Cavalry, Company I; was promoted to Second Lieutenant January 1, 1863, and was mustered out July 8, 1865. Mr. S. is a member of the Ocheltree Grange, and at one time filled the office of secretary of that body. He was married in Marion County, Ind., in 1860, to Martha J. Negley. They have a family of four children—Nellie, Lizzie, George and Birdie.

MONTICELLO.

Monticello Township is in the northern part of the county, and on account of the heavy bodies of timber it contained, was from the first a favorite place of residence with the Indians. A number of white men came in prior to white occupancy, and marrying Shawnee women, were adopted into the tribe. Among these, Isaac Parish, Samuel Garrett and John Owens, the first two of whom came in in 1847.

Among those who settled in the township in 1857, immediately after the county was opened up to settlement by the whites, were Rev. C. Boles, Francis Brown, T. J. and J. M. Hadley, Jacob Larver, W. Massey, L. W. Mawpin, W. J. McCarthy, Col. A. Payne, B. B. and G. W. Walker, J. E. Corliss, J. W. Hawes and Jesse Wilson.

Monticello town was laid out in June, 1857, by the town company, of which Col. A. Payne was President, and W. J. McCarthy, Secretary. Among those who moved into Monticello this year were C. Brassfield, A. J. Cordray, M. and F. P. Shannon, and J. M. Reed, the latter of whom built a large and commodious hotel, which was accidentally burned in 1862.

In 1857, Rich & Rively opened the first store. The first school in the vicinity was taught in 1857, about a mile west of town. A schoolhouse was built in the town in 1865, and a school taught in it that year. The postoffice was also established this year.

Rev. C. Boles preached the first sermon. In 1880, a Methodist church, 40x50 feet in size, frame and neatly finished, was built about one and a half miles southwest of the town, at a cost of $2,000.

In 1858, the town was almost entirely torn to pieces by a tornado, but it quickly recovered, and for some time was ambitious of being the county seat, but failed of the distinction on account of not being centrally located.

At the present time the town contains two general stores, a blacksmith shop, a school house, about fifteen houses and about sixty inhabitants. It is beautifully situated on rolling prairie, about nine miles north of Olathe.

Wilder is situated in the northern part of Monticello Township, on the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe R. R., and on bottom land about a mile from the Kansas River. It was so named after E. Wilder, of the above named railroad company.

The first settler in the town was Simon Walters, in 1877, during which year the postoffice was established with L. S. Haynes, first Postmaster.

The first marriage was that of William Glynn, to Miss Mary Bradley, November 20, 1878; the first birth, that of Jesse A. Johnson, November 21, 1879, and the first death that of an infant child of James King, in May, 1879.

Rev. C. Boles preached the first sermon here. A saw mill with small grist mill attached was built just east of town by P. P. Hall, in 1879.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES—MONTICELLO TOWNSHIP.

HENRY S. BELL, farmer, P. O. Olathe, was born in Columbiana County, Ohio, in 18[illegible], and reared in Indiana, where he followed farming, draying, etc., for some years. In April, 1866, he came to Kansas and located on his present farm. Mr. Bell is a progressive farmer, and has one of the handsomest homesteads in the township. His house is nearly surrounded by a fine orchard. Besides his farming pursuits he is largely engaged in raising stock. He is a member of the Grand View Grange. Mr. Bell has four sons—Thomas, Harry, Clark and Robert. The latter assists him in conducting the farm. The family own in all about 240 acres, all in a high state of cultivation.

JOHN BRADY, farmer, Section 22, P. O. Monticello, was born in Indiana County, Pa., July 10, 1816, and there for some twenty years he carried on a large stock farm, and was also engaged in dealing in live stock, etc. He came to Kansas in April, 1866, and located in Johnson County on his present farm. He had at first 160 acres, but disposed of eighty acres a few years ago. His land is all improved, and he has a good fruit orchard and grapery. Mr. Brady also owns forty acres in Section 18, Township 12, Range 22, and a farm of 160 acres in Dickinson County, this State. He was elected a member of the Johnson Board of County Commissioners in 1866, and re-elected in 1868, and during the last term of membership was Chairman of the Board. He was elected Trustee of Monticello Township in the spring of 1878, and served one year. He was married in Centre County, Pa., in 1844, to Catherine S. Lee, and they have nine children.

WM. C. BROWN, farmer, P. O. Cedar Junction, was born in Lee County, Iowa, March 4, 1855, and came to Kansas with his father, Oliver D. Brown, and assisted him in farming until his death, February 22, 1880, since which time the subject of our sketch has farmed the place on his own account. He has 100 acres of land, ninety of which are under cultivation, and in connection with farming pursuits raises considerable cattle and hogs.

JOHN W. BURCH, farmer, P. O. Cedar Junction, was born in Dresden, Muskingum Co., Ohio, October 4, 1839. At eighteen years of age he removed to Linn County, Iowa, and followed farming. In the fall of 1861 he enlisted in Company D, Twelfth Iowa Infantry, and was promoted to Sergeant, and served four and a half years. In the spring of 1867 he came to Kansas and located on his present farm. He has a beautiful place, consisting of about 200 acres, and is engaged in connection with farming pursuits, in breeding cattle. Mr. B.

was Treasurer of this Township for two years. He was married in March, 1866, to Martha Cochran. They have four children living—Georgia, Carrie, Hattie and Nellie.

JOHN C. COLLINS, farmer and stock-raiser, near Cedar Junction, Johnson Co., Kas., was born near Keene, in Jessamine Co., Ky. He was the eighth child of Lewis Collins, a well-to-do farmer. His mother was the daughter of George Cleveland, a wealthy farmer and stock-dealer. Both branches were natives of Virginia, coming to Kentucky in an early day. Mr. Collins never knew much of a mother's love and care, she having died when he was three years old, and his father never married again. At the age of thirteen years, having the advantage of a country school education, he went to Mortonsville, a village in Woodford County, Ky., and lived with his brother-in-law, who was a merchant, and entered his store as clerk. He remained in Mortonsville several years, and during his stay had considerable experience in the postal service and hotel business, giving a part of his time to study. At the age of nineteen years he began the mercantile business on his own account, his father favoring him with the use of his name in the business. Two years later, his father, who had been a companion, died. In June, 1852, he was married to Miss Eliza C. Dishmon, of that place, and moved out to the old homestead, giving his attention to the farm until 1855, when he, with his then small family, accompanied by his brother, George L. Collins, moved to Clay County, Mo., where he followed farming and breeding of blooded stock. In March, 1860 he came to Kansas, bringing some of his best horses and cattle, jacks and jennets with him, and located on Cedar Creek, in a neighborhood of Shawnee Indians, who were then thickly settled along the creek. Succeeding in the purchase of some of their timber lands, he, together with his brother, built and operated a steam saw and grist mill, and remained there during the Rebellion. He furnished a considerable amount of lumber to the Government; and also furnished lumber and built houses for the Indians, thus securing some of their lands. In 1865 he commenced the improvement of his present farm, moved on it the following year, and continued to improve and farm until 1871. Leaving the farm in the hands of his brother, he went to Topeka to take the position of Chief Clerk of the State Treasury, conducting that office nearly four years. He removed to Olathe in 1875, and engaged in the grain business. Remained there until the fall of 1877, since which time he has resided on his farm, now well improved, with 200 acres enclosed, 50 acres planted in black walnuts, pines, and other forest trees; orchards, vineyards, small fruits, etc. Pastures well set in blue and other tame grasses. Well stocked, including high-grade and thoroughbred Durham cattle. He has a family of eight children, boys and girls, the eldest daughter being married.

PETER D. COOK, farmer, Section 4, P. O. Wilder, was born in Cardington, Morrow Co., Ohio, June 19, 1838, and reared in the city of Columbus. In 1852 he went to the coal regions of Pennsylvania, and was employed as surveyor and engineer in the coal fields of Huntingdon and Bedford counties until 1856, when he returned to Ohio and engaged in mercantile business in Franklin County. In the fall of that year he moved his stock to Galena, Ohio, and in 1857 closed out and went West through Illinois and Indiana, and taught school for some two years. He came to Kansas in 1859; returned to Decatur, Ill., a few months later and again taught school, and was also for a time engaged in grain commission business. On June 10, 1862 he enlisted in the Seventieth Illinois Infantry; was mustered out in October following, and shortly afterwards came West to Johnson County, Kan. Mr. Cook took up a claim, but abandoned it in the spring, and going farther west, engaged in mining and mercantile pursuits in Idaho. In the spring of 1865 he returned to Illinois, and engaged in in business at Springfield. This he sold out in the summer of 1866; came West again, and located in Topeka, where he engaged in the grocery business, in company with his brother, L. S. Cook. In 1874 they disposed of their grocery store, but continued in partnership in real estate and general speculation until November, 1879. The subject of our sketch was elected Treasurer of the city of Topeka in 1870, '71, '72, '73 and '74. In 1874 he purchased his present property in Monticello Township, Johnson County, and four years later removed here. He has 466 acres of fine land, and in June, 1881, had surveyed and laid out on his land the town of Wilder. He is also largely engaged in raising live stock. Mr. Cook was one of the first directors of the K. C., T. & W. R. R., built in 1875. He is a prominent Mason; has held various high offices in Chapter, Commandery, etc., at Topeka, and still retains his connection with the same.

EDWIN S. CORLESS, farmer, P. O. Cedar Junction, was born in Rock County, Wis., June 15, 1842, and came to Kansas in 1857 with his father, J. K. Corless, who settled in Monticello, and who carried on farming in an extensive manner. He died in June, 1877, leaving three children—Edwin, William and Mary. The subject of our sketch has about 200 acres of land, all under cultivation, and is also engaged in raising stock. During the war he served three years in the Sixteenth Kansas Infantry. He was married in Johnson County, Kan., in 1870, to Alice Brown. She died in the spring of 1879, leaving three children—Frank, Lloyd and Harry.

DAVID J. FRAME, farmer, P. O. Wilder, was born in Loudoun County Va., in 1836 and reared on a farm. After reaching the age of manhood he removed to Greene County, Ohio, and for eight years was employed on a farm; removing to Platte County, Mo., he farmed on his own account for six years. He came to Kansas in March, 1871, and located on his present farm which consists of 120 acres, all highly improved. Mr. Frame is largely engaged in stock raising in this and Reno County. He was married in Platte County, Mo., in 1866, to Miss Anna Smith. They have five children: Alice, Eliza, Herbert, Laura and James.

SAMUEL GARRETT, farmer, Section 3, P. O. Wilder, was born in Devonshire, England, March 24, 1831. There he learned the trade of stone cutter and followed that occupation for a livelihood. In the spring of 1849, he immigrated to Anderson County, Texas, but being deceived in the purchase of some lands he remained only a few months, and on the 20th of July, 1849, he came to Johnson County, Kansas; resided a year with the Shawnee Indians. In 1850 he moved to Council Grove, this State, and for three years traded with the Kaw Indians. In the early part of 1854 he returned to Johnson County, and located on his present farm. On November 10, 1853, he was married to Betsey Captain, a member of the Shawnee tribe, and continued to reside here with that nation until about 1870, when they moved to the Indian Territory. Mr. Garrett accompanied them, and resided there some six years. He owns there 1,100 acres of land. In December, 1876, he returned to his residence in this county, and devotes himself to the management of his farms. He has here 900 acres besides large quantities of live stock. Mr. Garrett's first wife died, leaving him with a family of six children, and he was married again in the Indian Territory, about 1874, to Miss Sidnie Smith.

JOHN GLYNN, farmer, Section 33, P. O. Wilder, was born in Ireland, August 31, 1826, and reared on a farm. In 1850 he emigrated to West Hoboken, N. J., and was for several years employed in a watch case manufactory in that city. In 1859 he came West to Kansas City and engaged in contracting for three years. July 13, 1863, he enlisted in Company B, Eleventh Kansas Cavalry, and was discharged August 14, 1865. He then carried on the Gilliam House and saloon in Missouri City for three years. In July, 1868, he came to Johnson County and located on his present farm. Mr. Glynn has 175 acres of rich bottom land and raises considerable live stock. He was married in West Hoboken, N. J., in November, 1854, to Miss Ellen Maguire. They have a family of nine living children.

W. P. HAIGLER, farmer, P. O. Monticello, was born in Randolph County, Va., May 9, 1824, and reared on a farm. In 1855 he emigrated to Henry County, Iowa, and followed farming as an occupation; was also for several years engaged in mercantile business at Winfield, in that county. He came to Kansas in the spring of 1861, locating on his present farm, which consists of eighty acres, all well improved, on which there is a fine orchard of four acres. He also has twenty acres of timber land. Mr. H. was married in Pendleton County, Va., to Mary Hinkle. They have five living children, Anna, Emma, Lucy, Christina, Elbert, and three deceased, Mattie, Virginia, and Mary Alice.

WILLIAM HARPER, farmer, Section 33, P. O. Monticello, was born in Pendleton County, West Va., February 28, 1832, and reared on a farm. In 1857 he moved to Henry County, Iowa, farmed there two years, then to Randolph County, Mo. He came to Kansas in fall of 1861, and located in Johnson County on his present farm. He has eighty acres, all highly improved, on which there is a fine orchard and grapery. During the Rebellion Mr. H. served in the Johnson County Home Guards. He was married in Pendleton County, Va., July 19, 1855, to Ellen Hinkle; they have one son, Charles P.

J. D. HAZLETT, farmer, Section 28, P. O. Monticello, was born in Indiana County, Pa., January 8th, 1835, and reared on a farm. He learned the trade of carpenter there and followed that occupation for a livelihood. In the spring of 1865 he came to Kansas and located on his present farm. He owns 161 acres of land, 128 acres of which are under cultivation, and also has a good orchard. Mr. Hazlett devotes his time principally to contracting and building. He is a brother of Absalom Hazlett, who was a follower of John Brown and was hung for his anti-slavery principles in Virginia. Mr. H. was married in Johnson County, Kansas, April 31, 1866, to Malona R. Stephenson. They have two living children, Archie and Addison, and four deceased.

WILLIAM HUNDLEY, farmer, Section 4, P. O. Olathe, was born in Henry County, Ky., April 12, 1832, and removed with parents to Platte County, Mo., in 1840, where he was reared on a farm. He came to Kansas in the spring of 1855; located in Leavenworth County, where he followed agricultural pursuits and lime burning. In 1857 he came to Johnson County, but only remained a few months. Returning to Leavenworth he again followed lime burning, carrying on that business in connection with agricultural pursuits. In 1870 he returned to Johnson County, and has since given his attention to farming and raising stock. He owns 240 acres, all well improved, and has on his place a fine orchard. He is a charter member of Grand View Grange. Mr. H. took an active part with the Free-state party in the troubles of 1856, and also served in the Kansas State Militia during the late war. He was married July 17, 1856, to Mary Roberts. They have a family of seven living children.

HON. DAVID B. JOHNSON was born in Mayfield, Cuyahoga Co., Ohio, July 1, 1840. In 1842, his father and family emigrated to Lake County, Ill., and in 1852, moved to DeKalb County, Ill. In 1859, the family came West, and settled in Shawnee Township, Johnson Co., Kan. In 1861, the subject of this sketch joined the Union Army for the suppression of the rebellion; served as First or Orderly Sergeant, Recruiting Commissioner, Sergeant Major and Assistant Quartermaster until December, 1865, when he was discharged at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., with his regiment. During his nearly five years' service he enjoyed perfect health, and never failed to discharge his duty as a fearless and consistent soldier; morally, Mr. Johnson was an exemplary soldier, and being a teetotaler as to the use of spirits, tobacco, cards, etc., his record as a soldier stands without a blemish. After his discharge from the army, he remained at home on his farm, near Shawnee, until the following fall, when he entered the State University at Lawrence, where he completed a thorough business education. In 1869, he was elected to represent his district in the State Legislature, and although among its youngest members, secured the passage of a bill by which the State assumed the payment of a war claim of $500,000. This famous measure had been before the three preceding sessions of the Legislature and as often failed to become a law. But it remained for our young legislator to announce to his constituents, who were largely interested in the claim, the payment in full. In 1870, he was re-elected by a vote of three to one, notwithstanding the district had given a majority vote the previous year for the opposite party. During this session there were two questions before the Legislature that thoroughly tried the honor, grit and judgment of Mr. Johnson. The first was the memorable senatorial election that sent Alexander Colwell to the United States Senate. Immediately before casting his vote, Mr. Johnson rose in his place, and with uplifted hand, swore that he would not vote or support any man that he had reason to believe would use money to secure his election, and his votes corresponded to his oath. The second was the scheme to divide the important county of Johnson. In this contest Mr. Johnson showed a degree of determination and judgment that might have been accorded older and more experienced heads; after two years hard contest, he returned to his county with the scheme defeated, his enemies vanquished, and a law on the statutes to prevent its re-occurrence; and everywhere went the happy greeting, "Well done, faithful servant." In 1874, Mr. Johnson was married to Miss Alice C. Pearson, formerly of Elkhart, Ind. They have one child, a bright boy—Jesse, three years of age. In 1877, Mr. Johnson leased his farm near Shawnee, and purchased a store building and stock of goods from Walters & Holsinger, at Wilder. He is now doing a general mercantile business, carries a large stock of goods, and does a large and profitable business. Besides merchandising, Mr. Johnson is engaged in shipping stock, grain, sand, etc., and largely engaged in farming. In politics, he is an active, sound and consistent Republican, and a leading, enterprising citizen of his county, and enjoys the confidence and friendship of a large acquaintance.

BOYD KAY, farmer, Section 33, P. O. Olathe, was born in Bedford County, Pa., April 4, 1856, and came to Kansas with his father, Thomas Kay, in February, 1866. He assisted his father in farming in Monticello Township, Johnson County, until in the spring of 1876, when he began to farm on his own account. He moved on to his present farm in March, 1881. Has 220 acres, all improved, 210 of which are in cultivation. Also raises considerable live stock. Mr. Kay is a member of the "Union Horse League." He was married at De Soto, this county, July 1, 1877, to Emma Jackson.

THOMAS J. KAY, farmer and dealer in live stock, Section 14, P. O. Wilder, was born in Bedford County, Pa., March 3, 1833; reared on a farm, and after reaching the age of manhood carried on a farm, and also raised considerable stock for some years. In November, 1865, he came to Kansas and located in Monticello Township, Johnson County. In October, 1881, he moved on to his present farm. He has 120 acres of land, all improved, and a nice orchard. Mr. Kay is also engaged in dealing in grain and live stock. He was for two years Trustee of the township. He was married in Bedford County, Pa., December 22, 1853, to Mary E. Smith and they have a family of six children.

LEWIS D. KENTON, farmer, Section 9, P. O. Wilder, was born in Champaign County, Ohio, September 30, 1814, and reared on a farm. In 1839 he removed to Jasper County, Ind., where he conducted an extensive stock farm. In November, 1864, he came to Johnson County, Kas., and located in Monticello Township. Mr. Kenton owns 280 acres of land, of which 150 are in cultivation. On his place is a good orchard, and he also raises considerable live stock.

F. L. KUCKER, farmer, P. O. Monticello, was born in Germany in 1836, and in 1844 emigrated to Randolph County, Ill., where he was reared and followed farming as an occupation. In the spring of 1874 he came to Kansas and located on his present farm. He is one of the progressive farmers of the county, owns 280 acres of land, 240 of which are under cultivation. He has a beautiful residence which he built in 1880. Mr. K. was married in Randolph County, Ill., in 1862, to Mary C. Reitz. They have five children—George, Charles, Mary, Emma, and William.

WM. J. MANN, farmer, Section 5, P. O. Wilder, was born in Muskingum, Ohio, January 3, 1837, and about 1850 his parents moved to Putnamville, Ind., where he learned the carpenter trade, which occupation he followed in various portions of that State until June, 1857, when he came West and located in Johnson County, at a small place called Princeton, where he carried on a small grocery business in company with his brother Aaron. A year later he returned to Indiana. In 1859 he again came to Johnson County, located in Olathe, and followed contracting and building for a year or so, when he returned to Indiana and was employed in a pork packing establishment at Terre Haute. Early in 1865 he enlisted in Company K, One Hundred and Forty-ninth Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and served four months, after which he again emigrated West and farmed for a year at Westport, Mo. He then came to Monticello Township, and in 1868 located on his present farm. He has 190 acres, all improved, and raises considerable live stock. Mr. Mann was married at Olathe, Kan., in October, 1859, to Priscilla Logan. They have a family of two children—Charles and James.

NICHOLAS REITZ, farmer, P. O. Monticello, was born in Monroe County, Ill., February 4, 1839, and reared on a farm. He enlisted August 1, 1862, in Company H, One Hundred and Seventeenth Illinois Infantry, serving until August 5, 1865. He came to Kansas in March, 1868, and located on his present farm. He owns some 200 acres, 185 of which are under cultivation. Mr. R. was one of the Trustees of this township for several years, and elected Sheriff of the county in 1873, serving a term of two years. He was married in Monroe County, Ill., July 24, 1860, to Magdaline Huth. They have five children, Martin, Mary, Julius, Milton and Amelia.

DR. W. A. H. SPRATT, Section 12, P. O. Monticello, was born in Withe County, West Virginia, March 19, 1808. After reaching the age of manhood he became connected with the Methodist Episcopal Church, and was for eight years engaged as an itinerant preacher. In the year 1832 he preached to the Delaware and Shawnee Indians in Kansas. He studied medicine at Transylvania College, Lexington, Ky., and graduated there in the class of 1840 and 1841. He then practiced medicine in various parts of the State of Missouri until March, 1869, when he came to Kansas. For eighteen months he practiced his profession in Wyandotte County. Then came to Johnson County, and has since resided on his farm, practicing but very little. He has 120 acres of land, all well improved.

HON. THOMAS G. STEPHENSON, farmer, P. O. Cedar Junction, was born in Hampshire County, Va., February 15, 1823, and removed with his parents to Athens County, Ohio, in October, 1824. In July, 1841, he removed to Lee County, Iowa, where he followed farming and stock-raising. He was for two years County Commissioner of that county, and in the fall of 1861 was elected Representative to the State Legislature, and served two terms. He came to Kansas in 1866 and located on his present farm. Has 240 acres of land, eighty-five of which is in cultivation. Has an orchard of about four acres, apple, peach and cherry. In 1869 he was elected Justice of the Peace and served about four years, and in the fall of 1871 was elected Representative to the State Legislature for a term of two years. In 1877 was elected County Commissioner of Johnson County for a term of two years, and re-elected in the fall of 1879 for a term of three years. Was Chairman of the Board continuously for four years, and with the assistance of his associates effected a compromise of all the railroad bonded indebtedness of Johnson County, reducing the same from the sum of $41,800 to $28,800. Mr. Stephenson was married in Denmark, Lee Co., Iowa, September 6, 1849, to Miss Sarah D. Brown, daughter of Wm. T. Brown, Esq., of Denmark. They have six children—Lucie, Marie, George, Susie, Frankie and Wm. T.

LEXINGTON.

Lexington Township is in the northwest corner of the county. The first settler was J. Weathers, who built a cabin in March, 1857, on the northwest corner of Section 10, Township 13, Range 22 east. In this township are De Soto, Prairie Center, Cedar Junction and Crozier Station.

Lexington was laid out in 1857, three miles from De Soto, and for a number of years was its rival town. A two-story hotel was built by Mr. McKinney in 1858; it was burned down in 1859, and re-built by Mr. Potter in 1860. De Soto was a Yankee town, Lexington a Southern town, hence there was political as well as business rivalry between the two. But the latter town was gradually deserted, and its site is now an excellent farm.

PRAIRIE CENTER.

Prairie Center is located in Lexington Township, about ten miles directly west of Olathe. It was so named because it is situated on prairie, and nearly equally distant from four other towns lying in different directions—Edgerton, eight miles south; Gardner, seven miles southeast; De Soto, seven miles nearly northeast, and Eudora in Douglas County, about eight miles northwest. It thus seemed to be in the center of the prairie, the towns named being as it were on the circumference. The first settlement was made here by David Vestal, April 9, 1871. Dr. W. C. Barnes came in in February, 1877, and H. T. Simmons in November. The postoffice was established in February, 1872; David Vestal appointed Postmaster, who had opened a store the previous year. In 1874 the first school was taught by Edwin Stanley, in a schoolhouse built that year, and in which Rev. Charles H. Lovejoy preached the first sermon in the town. The Friends built a church this year, one-half mile north of the postoffice. Recently there have been built two other churches, one by the Methodist Episcopal organization, the other by the Free Methodists.

At the present time there are in Prairie Center, besides the three churches and postoffice, one store, a blacksmith shop, a wood workman and about seventy-five inhabitants. The surrounding country is excellent farming and grazing land, and is settled up quite thickly with an intelligent and enterprising class of farmers.

The first child born in Prairie Center was Eli J. Vestal, July 27, 1874, and the first death that of Melissa A. Vestal, May 13, 1875.

DE SOTO.

This town is situated in the northwestern part of the county, on the south bank of the Kansas River. The surrounding country is rolling, partially timbered and fertile prairie. The town was laid out in the spring of 1857 by a town company composed of B. W. Woodward, James F. Legate, James Findley, and G. W. Hutchinson, and named De Soto, after the great Spanish adventurer of that name.

The first frame building upon the town site was occupied for a short time as a store by Zera Nichols. During this same year, 1857, Stratton & Williams built a saw-mill on the river bank, employing D. Rolfe to construct the mill and run the engine one year. Mr. Rolfe arrived July 12, 1857, and was so well pleased with the country that he sent for his wife and family, who arrived April 3, 1858. During the year 1857, two or three buildings were erected in De Soto. In 1858, Perry Teters, erected a double dwelling in which his family and that of John Van Rankin lived for some time. In August of this year the De Soto hotel was completed, and Mr. Rolfe moved into it, thus being the first hotel keeper in the town. John Van Rankin started the first regular store, in 1859. The postoffice was established in 1860, with James Smith first Postmaster.

The Methodist Church was organized in 1858, Elder Beach being the first minister. Services were conducted for some years in private houses, and in the hotel, until in 1870, a stone church was built at a cost of about $2,500.

The Presbyterian Church was also organized in 1858. They built a stone church in 1879, costing $2,000. Rev. William H. Smith became Pastor in 1860, and still remains in charge.

The first birth in De Soto, was that of a child of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gentry, the death of which child was the first death.

The first marriage was a double one—Truesdale Barclay to Miss Melissa Gentry, and Robert Todd to Miss Mary Gentry, the ceremony occurring in 1859.

De Soto now contains two general stores, two drug stores, one hotel, one notion store, two blacksmith, one wagonmaker, and about seventy-five inhabitants.

In 1879, a brick flouring mill was erected near the railroad depot, by Skinner & Barrett. It is two stories high and contains two run of buhrs. The mill is now owned by J. M. Hadley.

WASECA.

This town is located in the northern part of the County, in the Kansas River Valley, at the junction of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, with the Kansas City, Lawrence & Southern Kansas Railroad. The surrounding country is somewhat hilly and covered with timber.

The first building completed was put up by Henry Gallagher. It was commenced on the 10th and finished on the 11th of March, 1882. The second was the section house, commenced in January and finished toward the latter part of March, 1882, costing about $1,200. William Childs completed a residence about the same time. The railroad depot was finished in June.

The postoffice was established June 26, M. W. Robinson, Postmaster. A Union Church organization was effected between the Methodists and Baptist early in the summer. On August 1, 1882, about seventy-five people were living in houses, and one hundred and fifty in tents.

The town site is owned by E. R. Courtney, who filed his plat July 17, 1882. Waseca is thirteen miles from Kansas City, and has one of the finest springs in the county.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES—LEXINGTON TOWNSHIP.

JAMES BURNETT ABBOTT, was born in Hampton, Windham County, Conn., December 3, 1818. His paternal ancestors were English. They trace their genealogy back to George Abbott, who tradition says emigrated from Yorkshire, England, about 1640, and settled in Andover, Mass., in 1643. He lived and died on the farm owned in 1847 by John Abbott a descendant of George, of the seventh generation. Asa Abbott, grandfather of the subject of this sketch, on account of being a cripple, took no personal part in the war of the American Revolution. His patriotism was however as intense as that of any of the Revolutionary fathers, for although not subject to military duty himself, he employed a substitute, and paid him ten dollars per month, throughout the seven years of that eventful struggle. Asa Abbott married Mrs. Sarah Fuller, whose first husband, Stephen Fuller, had been killed by the Indians, in the Wyoming Massacre, July 3, 1778. In a book compiled in 1847, by Rev. Abiel Abbott, D. D., and Rev. Ephraim Abbott, entitled "General Register of the descendants of George Abbott, of Andover," page 55, is found the following sketch: "Stephen Fuller married Sarah Bidlock. He, with others taken by the Indians, in the Wyoming battle, July 3, 1778, was led to a wheat field where the Indians piled around them sheaves of wheat, and burned them to death. The Fort was surrounded and taken, the men cut to pieces, and the women and children perished in the flames of the Barracks. A few escaped by flight. Mrs Fuller with some others, went in boats down the Susquehanna to Northumberland, and in about fourteen days she returned to the battlefield to seek the body of her husband. She found the heads of the men scalped, and their bodies so cut, bruised and torn, and altered by the summer heat, that she could not recognize an individual. From this distressing scene she went to her house, hoping to obtain some clothing and provisions; but the Indians and Tories had been there. The feathers of her bed were emptied on the floor, and her bedding, clothes, furniture and provisions all taken away. About the evening twilight, she went to the river, and called to the boatmen to take her across, but they, fearing there might be Indians or Tories lying in wait to kill them, would not go for her. She therefore passed alone the anxious, fearful night. Soon after she returned to Hampton, Conn., on horseback, accompanied only by her daughter, two or three years old, who afterwards married Judge Ebenezer Griffin, of Hampton, Conn. Mrs. Fuller afterwards married Asa Abbott." James Abbott, son of Asa and Mrs. Sarah Fuller Abbott, was a Captain in the war of 1812. He was a man of good education, a teacher by profession, a lover of music and a skilled musician. He was a man of superior moral character, and of great liberality in his religious views. He married Asenath Burnett, daughter of James Burnett, a soldier of the American Revolution, who served during the entire period of that long conflict, under General Putnam. Mrs. Abbott was a woman of great energy of character, a strict, kind-hearted Puritan, and most devoted wife and mother. She was born in 1791, and died in 1878. The Burnett family is supposed to be of Scotch descent. James Burnett Abbott, was the son of James and Asenath Abbott. His education was obtained primarily in the Connecticut common schools, but was finished at the Academies of Pottsdam and Gouverneur in the State of New York. After leaving the academy he taught school two winters. When eighteen years old he broke his leg, which misfortune rendered farm labor impracticable for him. He accordingly learned the shoemakers' trade, and afterward worked in a tin-shop until he became again able to resume his labors on the farm. Upon the attainment of his majority he married Amanda Atwood, of Gouverneur, N. Y., returned to Connecticut and entered mechanical business. From 1840 to 1854, he was engaged in various industries,—making pencil-cases, forks, spoons, and spectacles, electro-plating, and electrotyping; manufacturing boots and shoes in Connecticut, gold pens in Cincinnati, and acting as inspector for the Rogers Bros.' mammoth plated-ware, establishment at Hartford. He was one of the first successful electro-platers in the United States. In 1851 his wife died, and in 1852 he was married to Elizabeth Watrous, a Hartford lady. In 1854, in company with the third party of New England immigrants, he came to Kansas. He arrived at Lawrence, October 10, and fixed his residence at that place, but located his claim near the Wakarusa, from which fact he was known in those early days as "Abbott of the Wakarusa Country." Across that river he built Blanton's bridge, which was indicted by the border ruffians as a nuisance, for the, to them, sufficient reason that it accommodated more Free-state than Pro-slavery men. He was appointed by Governor Reeder, one of the judges of the election of March 30, 1855. Upon the decision of a majority of the board of which he was a member, in favor of the right of the Missourians to vote, he withdrew from the board. During the following summer he joined a militia company, which was raised for the defense of the Free-state men and their interests. Of this company Henry Saunders was elected Captain, and Mr. Abbott, Lieutenant. Lieutenant Abbott was sent to Boston to procure arms for the company. He returned to Kansas with one hundred and seventeen Sharpe's rifles, and a twelve pound howitzer. From St. Louis to Kansas he was watched at every turn and movement, suspected of being James B. Abbott, by certain parties who had learned what his errand East had been, and on that account followed him with the intention of putting him out of the way. Mr. Abbott, however, who was travelling under the name of J. Burnett, was not for a moment off his guard. He sang songs and played cards frequently with the very men who were set as spies upon his trail. During a game of cards, one of these spies attempted to throw him off his guard by saying suddenly to him, "Abbott, it's your turn to deal, isn't it?" Abbott looked around as if to learn who had been addressed, and replied, "You must be mistaken, it is my turn." Such was Mr. Abbott's continuous calm presence of mind, that every attempt to make him reveal his identity was equally futile. Subsequently one of these spies was a deputy under Sheriff Jones, and at the attempt to arrest S. W. Wood, recognized Abbott as the man who had outwitted him on the boat. The Sharpe's rifles and howitzer had been shipped on a different boat from that on which Abbott returned; the former having been taken apart, packed in as short boxes and casks as possible, and consigned as hardware to Harlow Hutchinson & Co., merchants at Lawrence; the latter was shipped from New York in boxes, but did not arrive until November. On November 21, 1855, occurred the murder of Charles W. Dow, by Franklin N. Coleman. This murder caused the most intense excitement. A meeting of the Free-state men was held next day, at the place of the murder, for the purpose of investigating its cause and deciding what action if any should be taken with reference thereto. On arriving home from the meeting, Lieutenant Abbott was informed that Sheriff Jones had passed his house about six o'clock in the evening, with a posse of fifteen armed men, on his way to arrest an old man named Jacob Branson, who was a personal friend of Dow, and the principal witness of his murder. Some half dozen men who had attended the meeting had stopped at Abbott's house on their way home. With them a consultation was held and it was decided that Abbott and S. N. Wood should immediately ride over to Branson's, and ascertain what had been done by the posse, and return to Mr. Estabrook's house, about half way between Branson's and Abbott's, where it was agreed that the Free-state settlers should assemble for consultation. On the arrival of Abbott and Wood at Branson's, they learned that Branson had been captured and carried away by force of arms without being given any authority therefor; his captors leaving his wife in doubt as to what his destiny was to be, leaving the impression on her mind, however, that he was in some manner to be killed. An attempt was made to follow the trail of the posse, but they soon scattered in different directions over the prairie and it was impossible to learn what direction they had taken, but it was expected they would make their way to Franklin, then a small border ruffian village about three miles east of Lawrence. So the posse hunters returned to Estabrook's and directed the men assembled there to report at once at Abbott's house, which they had to do on foot. Abbott and Wood rode back on a double quick, and upon arriving there found some half dozen men, and one boy named Howard Dix. Some were armed with sporting rifles and some with Sharpe's rifles, while the boy was armed with a gun without a lock, and one man with nothing but a pocket full of rocks. While this little party were consulting as to what course to pursue, the posse was discovered coming from the south in the road passing on the west side of and very near to the house; Lieutenant Abbott immediately called for every man to form on the north side of the house and waited till the posse came within about ten paces, when with their pieces to a ready, the Lieutenant led his men across the road in front of the Sheriff's posse, which halted without orders from Jones. A tolerably full account of the rescue of Branson from this point is given on pages 116 and 117. One incident omitted there, is given here. Branson having ridden over to his friends, found himself unable to alight from his mule. He was over sixty-five years old, and weighed nearly two hundred pounds, and having ridden for over two hours a miserable, old, sharped-back mule, with neither saddle nor blanket, was so exhausted and chafed as to be helpless. Mrs. Abbott, therefore, who was standing at the left of the little square, ran and helped him to dismount and to walk into the house. In accordance with the advice of the Free-state leaders, at Lawrence, the rescuers of Branson dispersed and secreted themselves for the time being. During the troubles of the spring of 1856. Lieutenant Abbott was in command of a company, and participated in the first fight at Franklin. He afterwards commanded the Third Regiment of Free-state, Infantry and acted as officer of the day at Lawrence, when 2,700 Missourians laid siege to the town. He was a member of the first House of Representatives, and afterwards elected Senator under the Topeka Constitution. He was a member of the House of Representatives of the first State Legislature, and was State Senator during the years 1867 and 1868. In 1859 he led the party which rescued Dr. Doy from the St. Joseph jail, a full account of which daring exploit will be found in the history of Douglas County. From June, 1861, to the fall of 1866, Major Abbott acted as agent of the Shawnee Indians. During all the time he was their agent he took a paternal interest in their welfare, and managed their affairs with strict integrity, good judgment and capacity. He has always been their friend and the able champion of their rights, as against the politicans who would feign ride into power by aid of the votes of the settlers upon their reservations. When the rebel General Price, threatened to overrun Kansas in the fall of 1864, he organized a company of Shawnees, consisting of every adult male member of the tribe, except one, on the reservation, and those who were already in the volunteer service, and led them on a number of dangerous and successful scouting expeditions. In the winter of 1880-81, he initiated a movement for the organization of a State Asylum and school for feeble-minded children. He successfully urged the Governor to recommend an appropriation for that purpose in his annual message; he then carefully prepard bills providing for the organization and had them early introduced into both branches of the Legislature, and by devoting his entire time and energies during the whole session to enlisting the sympathies of every kind hearted member of both houses, he succeeded in the very last hour of the session in getting his bill passed, and the school is now in successful operation, and one of the permanent institutions of the State. It can be truly said that no act of his eventful life affords him more gratification or satisfaction than this. He still resides at De Soto, and by his neighbors is esteemed for his personal worth and generosity. He is as kind hearted and charitable as he has always been modest, chivalrous and brave.

CARDNER.

Gardner, so named in honor of Gov. Gardner, of Massachusetts, is beautifully situated on level prairie, ten miles southwest of Olathe, on the Kansas City, Lawrence & Southern Kansas Railroad. It was surveyed and platted in 1857 by a Town Company composed of O. B. Gardner, Benjamin B. Francis, A. B. Bartlett and others, who built the first house in the town. This was a frame building, 14x20, and designed merely for temporary purposes. Benjamin Davis kept the first hotel in a small log building; then in a frame one, and in the spring of 1858, J. W. Sponable built and opened a store, the first in town.

The Town Company built the stone hotel in 1857. It was 36x40 feet and two stories high. Daniel O'Sullivan was the first blacksmith, having opened his shop in the fall of 1857. Dr. W. M. Shean arrived in 1857, and was the first physician in the town. In the spring of 1858, S. H. Church and S. G. Sponable started the second store, and for some years both stores in Gardner did a wholesale as well as a retail business. In the same spring W. H. Page started a shoe shop.

The first school taught in Gardner was a private one by Miss Myra D. Shean, now Mrs. L. W. Swan. The school district was organized in the winter of 1858-59, and the first public school taught the next summer by Miss Mary Williams. A stone schoolhouse was built in 1861, and in 1879, a fine two story frame schoolhouse at a cost, including furniture and apparatus of $3,000.

The first church organization was that of the Methodists, a temporary one, in 1857. They were re-organized in 1859, and built their church edifice in 1878, at a cost of $2,200, and dedicated by Rev. J. C. Telford, who was minister at the time. He was succeeded by Rev. Mr. Wolford, and then came Rev. Mr. Osborn.

The first child born in Gardner was a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Gardner, July 25, 1858. The first marriage was that of W. J. Ott to Miss Emma Davis, in the fall of 1859, and the first death that of Asa Thayer, in June, 1858.

The Presbyterian was the first permanent church organization in the town, having been effected in 1858. Their church edifice was erected in 1870, at a cost of $3,000. Their ministers have been Rev, Messrs. Beach, William H. Smith and J. N. Rankin, the present incumbent.

The Catholic Church was organized in 1870, after the completion of the railroad to this place, and their church building erected in 1870, costing about $2,000.

The Baptist Church was organized in 1878, and their church built in 1879, at a cost of $2,000. Their ministers have been Revs. W. A. Stewart, A. Jenkins and S. A. Smith.

A Grange store was opened here May 29, 1882, under the auspices of the central store at Olathe, with S. McMillan as manager.

Gardner now contains four general stores, one hardware store, two blacksmiths, one agricultural implement dealer, two drug stores, two hotels, and about two hundred and fifty inhabitants.

Gardner Lodge A. F. & A. M., No. 65, was organized in October, 1871, with eleven charter members, and the following officers: E. Clark, W. M.; I. B. Uhl, S. W.; J. B. Bruner, J. W.; I. D. Clapp, secretary. The present membership is thirty-four. Gardner Lodge I. O. O. F. No. 23, was organized September 21, 1866, with five members, and was the only Odd Fellow Lodge in the county. The charter members and officers were as follows: W. I. Bigelow, N. G.; V. R. Ellis, V. G.; G. M. Waugh, P. G.; Wm. Roy and Isaac Darland. The present membership is forty-two.

The Good Templars were organized February 6, 1879, with twenty-seven members. The officers were S. F. Wilson, W. C. T.; Miss Tennie Humbert, V. T.; Walter Jones, secretary; Miss Lillie Ott, financial secretary, and Miss Georgie Ott, treasurer. The present membership is ninety-three.

The Gardner Library Association was organized in 1862. The library contains at present 600 volumes.

The town of Gardner was sacked October 25, 1861, by Up Hays' gang. No houses were burned and no murders committed, but about $3,000 worth of goods were stolen from the stores.

At the breaking out of the war Gardner Township had 103 voters, and signalized herself by sending into the army eighty-three soldiers.

O. B. Gardner, after whom the township and town were both named, was killed in the fall of 1864, by Jesse James, when on the way to Fort Smith, Arkansas. He was Chaplain of the Thirteenth Regiment, and had been North with a party of refugees, and was on his return to the regiment.

J. B. ARMSTRONG, M. D., was born in Lee County, Iowa, in 1843, and reared in Appanoose County on a farm. He enlisted in April, 1861, at eighteen years of age, and July 17 of that year was mustered into Company D, Iowa Infantry. At battle of Shiloh wounded in left hip; June 27, 1864, at Kenesaw Mountain he was wounded twice, once in the left knee and again in the left lung. He served in all about four years, being in all the battles of Sherman's army. After the war he began the study of medicine at Cincinnati with Dr. J. M. Sturdivant and attended the College of Physicians and Surgeons at Keokuk, graduating in the class of 1867 and 1868. In the fall of 1868 the doctor came to Gardner and at once began the practice of his profession. Since 1873 has off and on carried on a drug store, principally for the accommodation of his patients. He is also interested in farming, owning in all some 320 acres of land in this county. Mr. Armstrong holds the office of Examining Surgeon for the United States government pensions since 1871.

V. R. ELLIS, farmer and stock-raiser, P. O. Gardner, was born in Virginia, July 2, 1833, and was reared on a farm in Rush County, Ind. He came to Kansas in October, 1857, and located on his present farm in Gardner Township, Johnson County, which he has improved to a high state of agriculture. He owns some 200 acres, seven of which are laid out in a fine orchard. He is also engaged in the breeding of blooded stock. During the late war Mr. Ellis served in the State Militia. He was elected a member of the Board of County Commissioners of Johnson County in 1873 for a term of two years, and was for sixteen years a member of the District School Board. He is a charter member of the Gardner Grange No. 68, organized in 1873, and was the first master of that body, and is the present incumbent. Mr. Ellis is one of the leading farmers of the Township. Was elected a member of the State Legislature in 1882, without opposition.

A. B. FRITZ, farmer, was born in Montgomery County, Pa., January 26, 1826. At the age of sixteen years he learned the trade of carpenter and followed it in that neighborhood for about three years, and for some time in Philadelphia as a contractor. He came to Kansas in the fall of 1857, and was for a few months employed as a carpenter in Leavenworth, and moved onto his present farm in Gardner March 24, 1858, consisting of 160 acres, of which four or five is an orchard. He served in the militia during the war. Mr. Fritz is one of our go-ahead farmers and has his premises well improved. He was elected a Commissioner of Johnson County in the fall of 1880, for a term of three years.

J. HOBART HUNTING, farmer and stock raiser, P. O. Gardner, was born on Mount Desert Island, Me., July 8, 1821. He was in his younger years employed on a farm; also he learned the carpenter's trade. In 1846 he moved to Lake County, Ohio, living there and in Ashtabula County fourteen years. He first came to Kansas in 1856 and purchased the southeast quarter Section 35, Township 14, Range 22 east. He moved his family there in the spring of 1860 and has since resided on the same. Mr. Hunting was married in Guilford, Me., in 1846 to Miss Sarah G. Robbins, daughter of Deacon Chandler Robbins of that place. They have had five children, three of whom are living, namely, George Hobart, Charles David and Frank Edward, and engaged in stock raising in Russell County. Born of Puritan stock in both parents, his father a Baptist minister, he has given credit to his ancestry by being a radical in his opposition to slavery, rum, tobacco, secret societies and church gambling, and his children have not degenerated from the old stock.

WILLIAM E. KELLY, farmer and stock raiser, P. O. Gardner, was born in Ireland December 4, 1837, and immigrated to Butler County, Ohio, in 1845, with his mother. Here he was for some years employed at general farm work. In 1857 he removed to Peoria County, Ill., where for about thirteen years he carried on a large farm and was largely engaged in raising stock. He came to Kansas February 27, 1870, and located on his present farm in Gardner Township, Johnson County. This place he has finely improved in the past twelve years. He has a fine orchard of about five acres, and a splendid residence which was built in 1880. His farm is divided up with beautiful Osage orange hedges. Mr. Kelly now owns about 327 acres of land, and is considered one of the most substantial farmers in the county. He is a member of the Lone Elm Grange. The subject of our sketch was married in Butler County, Ohio, March 11, 1857, to Catherine Dowd. They have a family of fourteen children.

WILLIAM J. MCCLINTOCK, farmer, P. O. Gardner, was born in Allegheny County, Pa., March 8, 1838. At the age of sixteen years he removed to Bureau County, Ill., and followed farming as an occupation. He enlisted September 10, 1861, in Company B, Thirty-third Illinois Infantry, and in 1863 was transferred into the United States Army Hospital Department, and served in all five years, after which he was engaged in mercantile business in McDonough County, Ill., until he sold out and came to Kansas in March, 1868. He farmed for about one year at Lanesfield, Johnson County, then moved on to his present farm. Mr. McC. has a well improved farm of 120 acres, and a nice orchard of about four acres. He is a member of Gardner Grange, No. 68. The subject of our sketch was married in Bureau County, Ill., in October, 1866, to Mary A. Bell, a native of England. They have six children—Eliza, Georgia, Austin, William, Ralph, and Agnes.

JOHN MEAD, farmer, P. O. Gardner, was born in Ireland in 1831, and at the age of nine years he emigrated with his parents to Lake County, Ill., where he learned the trade of blacksmith, serving an apprenticeship of three years. He then worked at his trade as a journeyman in the States of Wisconsin, Indiana and Michigan. In 1866 he came to Kansas, located in the city of Olathe, and for about sixteen years conducted a plow and blacksmith shop, six years of which he was in company with A. E. Moll. In the spring of 1882 he moved on to his present farm, consisting of 100 acres in Gardner Township, all well improved. He also owns considerable property in the city of Olathe. Mr. Mead was married in Winnebago County, Ill., in 1856, to Mary T. Godfrey. This union has been blessed with five children—Thomas, John B., Mary T., Kate A., and Ella A.

REV. WILLIAM J. OSBORN, pastor of First Methodist Episcopal Church, was born in Trumbull County, Ohio, December 20, 1838 and reared on a farm. He followed school teaching several years in Pennsylvania and Indiana, and was for three years engaged in mercantile business in Stark County, Ohio. He began the study of law in that county in 1868, and two years later commenced studying for the ministry. In 1874 he began as a local preacher. Mr. O. came to Kansas in 1877, had charge of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Linden for three years, after which he had a church at Auburn, Kas., until the spring of 1882, when he came to Gardner and entered upon his present duties. He was ordained a Deacon of the Methodist Episcopal Church, at Salina, Kas., in March, 1878, by Bishop Elder, and Elder in March, 1882, at Abilene by Bishop Warren.

WILLIAM J. OTT, farmer and stock-raiser, P. O. Gardner, was born in Maryland, October 17, 1827, and reared on a farm in Virginia. He followed farming in that State until 1855, when he removed to Marshall County, Iowa, where for about two years he was employed as a carpenter. In April, 1857, he came to Kansas, pre-empted 160 acres in Gardner, Johnson County, and has since given his attention principally to cultivating his farm and raising stock, making a specialty of breeding horses and mules. Has also, off and on, done considerable work as a carpenter and builder since his arrival in this State. He owns at present 150 acres of land. Mr. Ott was married in Gardner, Johnson Co., Kas., in 1859, to Amy D. Davis. They have nine children—Georgie A., Lily V., Elsie A., Charles W., Thomas R., Mabel, D. Ralph, Harry, and Louisa.

THOMAS E. PEARCE, farmer and stock-raiser, P. O. Edgerton, was born in Boone County, Ind., August 6, 1831, and during his early youth assisted his father on the farm and in the saw and flour mill. At eighteen years of age he moved to McDonough County, Ill., and was for some years engaged in farming and raising stock. He came to Kansas in March, 1866, and located on his present farm, in Section 3, Township 15, Range 22. He has some 337 acres, 320 of which are improved. On his place he has a very fine residence, which he erected in 1870 at a cost of over $2,500. He cultivates 270 acres of his land, and is largely engaged in breeding Short-horn cattle and blooded hogs. Mr. Pearce was elected a Commissioner of Johnson County in the fall of 1877, and held the office three years. He was married in McDonough County, Ill., December 27, 1855, to Sarah Belle Fleming. They have six children—Mina B., John, Edward, Vinnia, Albert, and Allen. Mr. Pearce is a member of Edgerton Grange, No. 435.

EDGERTON.

Edgerton is situated in the southwestern part of the county, near the junction of two branches of Bull Creek. The land here is of excellent quality, the surface of the country is gently undulating and considerable building stone is found along the creeks. The town is located on the farm of Judge David Martin, one of the oldest settlers in this part of the county, he having come here in June, 1857. The railroad was completed to this place in July, 1870, and the station named Edgerton, after the chief engineer of the road, hence the name of the postoffice and town.

The first building erected other than the railroad station, was a dwelling by Creel & Morse in the fall of 1870. The first store was built by S. C. Rankin about the same time, and the second by Dr. Rezon Addy; shortly afterwards Reuben Perkins built the first hotel in 1871; D. C. Dewyer moved his blacksmith shop from Lanesfield to Edgerton in July, 1871. The first family that moved into the town was that of A. V. McKim, in the fall of 1870. The Presbyterian Church built in Lanesfield at a cost of nearly $2,000, was moved to Edgerton in the summer of 1871. Rev. J. N. Rankin was pastor at the time and continued to minister to the church until 1881, when he removed to Gardner, being succeeded in Edgerton by Rev. Mr. Stout, present incumbent.

The United Presbyterian Church was organized here and built their church in 1871, at a cost of $2,400. Their ministers have been, Rev. J. W. Martin, until 1874; Rev. J. N. Smith from 1875 to 1881; and Rev. W. A. Anderson, commencing in 1881.

The Methodist Church was moved from Lanesfield to Edgerton in 1873 and rebuilt at a cost of $1,200. The ministers of this church have been: Rev. J. C. Telford, Rev. Mr. Havermill, Rev. J. O. Roberts, and the present pastor, Rev. Mr. Osborn.

The schoolhouse was built in 1871. It is a two-story frame and cost $2,100. The first school taught in it was by Robert B. Quay, in the winter of 1871–2.

Edgerton Mills, Larrick Bros. proprietors, was built in the fall of 1879. The building is a three-story frame, and with the machinery cost $9,000. It contains three run of buhrs and a pony, propelled by a steam engine of forty-horse power, and has a capacity of 200 bushels in twenty-hour hours.

A grange store was started November 1. 1880, with S. B. Barker manager. In addition to this store there are three general stores, two drug stores, one hardware store, four agricultural implement stores, two hotels, and a population of about 350.

Edgerton is the home of S. M. Crockett, whose father was a nephew of David Crockett of historic fame. Mr. Crockett moved into the county January 24, 1847, with his father who, at that time, came to the Methodist Mission to assist Rev. Thomas Johnson in teaching the Shawnee Indians. Mr. Crockett bears the distinction of being the earliest resident of the county now living within it.

McCAMISH.

McCamish was laid out in 1857 by Richard D. McCamish, and named after its projector. At the time there was quite a number of settlers in the township, among whom were C. L. Dille, B. F. Detar, O. Hulett, Judge Martin, James Pyle and R. Perkins. Previously to the laying out of the town a postoffice had been established here and named Hibbard. McCamish was situated on Bull Creek, near the center of the township, and about two miles northeast of Edgerton.

In 1858 a rival town was laid out across the creek from McCamish, and named "Lanesfield," in honor of Gen. James H. Lane.

McCamish grew, though very slowly, then ceased to grow and was at length abandoned as a town. Lanesfield, its rival, outstripped it and became a town of some size, having at one time three stores, three churches, and nearly 100 inhabitants, but when the railroad was built from Olathe to Ottawa, the whole town, with its stores and churches, moved to Edgerton, in order to secure the advantages of railroad communication.

Mr. Walker was appointed Postmaster of this place in July, 1874, and appointed Notary Public April 15, 1881.

OXFORD.

Oxford was situated in Oxford Township, adjoining Little Santa Fe, in Missouri. It was laid out in 1857, Christopher Columbus Catron being one of the early settlers here, and the leader in the enterprise of laying out and building up the town. In the three or four years following, Oxford grew to be a town of some importance, containing at the breaking out of the war a number of good stores, which carried on a large trade with the surrounding country. Its citizens, however, being for the most part in sympathy with the Southern cause, joined the Confederate army, or the bushwhackers, or moved with their personal property, including slaves, to Texas, or some other Southern State. The dwellings and other buildings thus left unoccupied, were used as barracks for Union soldiers, and were in most instances destroyed in various ways. By the close of the war there was little or nothing left of the town, and now nothing marks the site of the once famous town but beautiful green pastures and waving fields of grain.

It was here that the famous Oxford frauds were perpetrated. Or, to speak more accurately, it was here a regular election was held on October 5, 1857, at which but one or two illegal votes were cast, but the returns from which election were taken by Henry Clay Pate, to Little Santa Fe that night, and to which a large number of names were added, the same operation being repeated next day at Westport, Mo., until in the aggregate about 1,600 names were added to the forty-two or three names of legal voters who had in a proper manner deposited their ballots on the day before.

The first settlement was made in 1866, by Samuel Weir and John McCaughey. Rev. M. B. Griffin preached the first sermon in McCaughey's grove. The postoffice was established January 21, 1879. R. P. Edgington being appointed first Postmaster. A store was opened here January 28, 1880, by J. W. Hunter.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES—OXFORD TOWNSHIP.

ROSWELL ALLEN, farmer and stock-raiser, P. O. Lenexa, was born in Orleans County, N. Y., July 24, 1824; emigrated to Clinton County, Ill., in 1840. In May, 1847, he enlisted and went to Mexico, under Col. Alton R. Easton; after seventeen months of service he was discharged at Independence, Mo., and returned to Clinton County, Ill., where he turned his attention to farming; in 1861 he went to Colorado and engaged in mining with Quartz Mill until 1864, when he went to Montana and engaged in gulch digging; returned home in 1865, and in the spring of the year following came to Kansas and located on his present farm; he owns 560 acres of land, all well improved and is largely engaged in raising graded cattle and Berkshire hogs. Mr Allen was married in Clinton County, Ill., November 28, 1846, to Clarissa Bradshaw, a native of England. They have six living children—Henry, Ross, George, Nellie, Julia, and Lottie, and three deceased, Annie, Clifton and Rhinaldo.

JOHN W. CROOKS, farmer and stock-raiser, P. O. Morse Station, was born in Carroll County, Ohio, December 25, 1832. He learned the trade of carpenter and for several years followed that occupation. He took an academic course at Richmond, Ohio, after which he gave his attention to teaching school. In 1857 he came to Kansas, but remained only two seasons, during which time he followed his trade; returning home he taught school and worked as a carpenter. In August, 1862, he enlisted in Company F, One Hundred and Twenty-sixth Ohio Infantry; was appointed Second Lieutenant and promoted to First Lieutenant in 1863, and to Captain in 1864, serving, in all, some three years. After the war he resided in Akron, Ohio, and was for two years engaged in the boot and shoe business. He returned to Kansas in May, 1868, and located on his present farm, which is the northwest quarter of Section 2, Town 14, Range 24. His farm he has improved yearly until now it is under a high state of cultivation. On his place he has a good orchard of about six acres, and a splendid residence, which cost some $3,500. Mr. Crooks was married in Carroll County, Ohio, in 1859, to Charlotte Amos, who died December 23, 1860, leaving one daughter, Charlotte. He was married again in Akron, Ohio, in 1865, to Mary C. Harper; she died December 23, 1876. They had four children—James, Edgar, Helen and John.

CHARLES HENRY EWING, farmer, P. O. Olathe, was born in the city of New York, November 3, 1836, and reared in Randolph County, Ill., where he followed farming. In the spring of 1865 he came to Kansas and located on his present farm in Oxford Township in the following fall. He has 160 acres of land, nearly all of which is under cultivation. On his place is a fine orchard, and his farm is tastefully laid off with Osage orange hedges. He is quite extensively engaged in raising hogs. Mr. Ewing was for fifteen years a member of the District School Board, and has had many other local offices. He was married in Randolph County, Ill., November 3, 1859, to Jane Bickett, a native of Scotland. They have seven children—Mary E., Thomas S., William R., Charles H., Henry E., Minnie A., and Lydia Jane.

JOHN EWING, farmer and stock-raiser, P. O. Olathe, was born in Ireland, in January, 1827, emigrating to America ten years later. He resided for four years in Kentucky, then removed to Randolph County, Ill., where he learned the trade of blacksmith, and for many years carried on a general blacksmith business in connection with which he also farmed. In April, 1866, he came to Kansas, resided for a short time in Franklin County, and in the following August located on his present farm. He owns over 400 acres of land. His residence farm is splendidly improved, being laid out in fields of forty acres; on this place he has some seven or eight miles of beautiful hedge and one of the prettiest residences in the county. Mr. Ewing is quite extensively engaged in raising cattle and blooded hogs. He was married in Randolph County, Ill., in 1851, to Elizabeth J. Ewing, of New York. This union has been blessed with twelve children, five of whom are living—Thomas J., Mary A., Charles S., Fannie M., and Eva J.

HON. THOMAS N. HANCOCK, farmer, P. O. Stanley, was born in Wyandotte County, Ohio, in December, 1839. At the age of eight years his parents moved to Marshall County, Ill., where he was reared on a farm. In September 1861, he enlisted in Company B, Seventeenth Illinois Infantry, and served three years. He came to Kansas in the fall of 1866 and located on his present farm. He has 240 acres and is quite extensively engaged in raising stock. In 1873 he was elected to the State Legislature and served one term. Mr. H. was married in 1868, at Yates City, Ill., to Elizabeth Corbin. They have three children, Evalenah M., Lyman E., and Inez S.

JAMES HUTCHESON, farmer, P. O. Olathe, was born in the County of Armagh, Ireland, on January 1, 1829, and emigrated to America when very young, and was reared in Guernsey County, Ohio. In 1845 he removed to Pittsburgh, Penn., where he learned the carpenter trade, remaining there until 1852, after which he returned to Guernsey County and took a farm. In October, 1858, he removed to Page County, Iowa, where he followed farming. He came to Kansas April 8, 1865, and located on his present farm in Oxford Township. He has 200 acres, 180 of which are highly improved, and three acres of which are an orchard. His principal business is grain farming. Mr. Hutcheson was married in Lawrence County, Penn., in 1852, to Sarah Martin, who died in March, 1862, leaving four children, Robert J., Sarah A., Jemima M. J. and Isabella M. He was married again in Page County, Iowa, October 22, 1864, to Sarah S. Taggart, a native of Indiana.

JEFFERSON KENNEDY, farmer and stock raiser, P. O. Meadow Brook, was born in Peru, Indiana, in 1843; emigrated with his parents, in 1851, to Jackson County, Mo., and was reared on a farm. In August, 1862, he enlisted, at Kansas City, in Company B, Sixth Kansas Cavalry, and served three years; he came to Johnson County, Kansas, and assisted his father in conducting a farm in Oxford. In the spring of 1870 he moved on to his present farm in Oxford Township. He has eighty acres all under a high state of cultivation and is quite extensively engaged in raising and dealing in live stock. Mr. Kennedy was married in Johnson County, in December, 1869, to Elizabeth Franklin. They have five children, Cora, Walter, Gertrude, Franklin and Sidney.

H. L. MARDIS, merchant, Stanley, was born in Laurel County, Ky., in January, 1845, and reared on a farm. He came to Kansas in October, 1866, located with his father in Oxford Township, Johnson County, and assisted him in farming until 1868, when he was appointed Postmaster at Stanley, which office he still holds. He has, since 1867, been engaged in mercantile business, for the past seven years in company with his father, John Mardis, under style of Mardis & Son. He is also engaged in grain business and farms to some extent. Mr. M. was married in Oxford Township, in June, 1873, to Medora Wallis. They have three children, Walter, Mabel and Myrtle G.

JOSEPH M. MARVIN, breeder of blooded stock, P. O. Olathe, was born in the city of New York, March 25, 1833, and reared in Randolph County, Ill., where he was for some years engaged in farming. He came to Kansas in October, 1860, remaining only a short time, returning to his home in Randolph County. In 1864 he finally settled in Oxford Township, moving on to his present farm in the spring of 1866. He owns 160 acres of land, all well improved. His principal business is breeding Jersey cattle and Normandy and Hambletonian horses, also mules. Mr. Marvin also has a fine orchard of twelve acres of various kinds of fruit. During the war he took an active part here and in Randolph County, Ill. Mr. Marvin was married in Randolph County, Ill., in February, 1855, to Agnes Redpath. They have five children, Jane R., James H., Mary E., Margaret A. and Fannie R.

DR. J. S. STOUGH, farmer, P. O. Lenexa, was born in Tuscarawas County, Ohio, February 28, 1827. He studied medicine at Kenyon College, Knox County, Ohio, and attended Rush Medical College, Chicago, Ill., graduating from the latter in 1852. The doctor began the practice of medicine in 1850 in DeKalb County, Ind., where he continued for about twenty-nine years. He came to Kansas in February, 1879, practiced at Longton, Elk County, until October, 1881, when he came to Johnson County and located on his present farm near the station of Lenexa. He has some eighty acres of land—forty for farming purposes and forty of timber. The doctor has quite an extensive practice, notwithstanding his short residence, being quite popular in the farming community.

JOHN TOWNER, farmer and stock-raiser, P. O. Olathe, was born at Crown Point, N. Y., and reared on a farm, and also learned the carpenter trade, which he followed there and in Livingston County, Ills., for some years. He spent ten years in traveling through various Western states. In May, 1864, he came to Kansas and located on his present farm in Oxford Township. He has here 320 acres, 240 of which are under cultivation and four acres orchard. He is engaged to some extent in raising stock. Mr. Towner was married in Livingston County, Ills., in 1855 to Caroline Williams. They have eleven children—Ephraim, Rhoda, John, Warren, Henry, William, Franklin, Norah, Lorena, Benjamin and Matthew.

HENRY WEDD, farmer and stock-dealer, P. O. Lenexa, is a native of England and immigrated to America at the age of thirteen years, locating in Kalamazoo County, Mich., for five years; he followed farming; then near Rochester, N. Y., engaged in same capacity. In 1858 he came to Kansas, and in 1859 to Johnson County, locating in Oxford; he was engaged in farming and stock-raising, in company with J. C. McCoy; when the war broke out he was compelled to leave, and resided for a short time in the city of Olathe. In 1862 he moved on to his present farm in Oxford Township. He had little or no means when he arrived here; has now 740 acres of land nearly all improved, and is largely engaged in dealing in Short-horn cattle, Norman horses, and Berkshire hogs. On his place he has a fine residence and a good orchard of four acres. Mr. W. was married in Monroe County, N. Y., July 3, 1846, to Lucy J. Converse. They have seven children—Henry, Charles, George, Mary, Willard, Albert and Elizabeth.

AUBRY.

Aubry Township was organized by the County Commissioners May 11, 1858. Previously to this time a large number of settlers had taken claims in this part of the county, the first of whom was Wm. H. Brady, who selected his claim February 22, 1857.

The town of Aubry was surveyed and the Town Company organized in March, 1858. The company was composed of A. J. Gabbart, President; Greenbury Trekle, Secretary; Wm. H. Brady and Felix Franklin.

The first school district was organized in the summer of 1858; a school-house, 20x24, was erected, and the first school taught by Sylvester Mann. Rev. Mr. Duval preached the first sermon in February, 1858, in A. J. Gabbart's house. The first church organized was of the Christian denomination, in May, 1859, by Rev. A. Clark.

The first marriage was that of Samuel Medell to Miss Nancy Middleton, in September, 1858. The first birth was that of a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Mann, in 1859, and the first death, in the township, was that of a son of A. Purley, in September, 1859.

The township of Aubry was a bloody battle ground during the border troubles and during the war. Five newly arrived citizens, who went out one evening to gather honey, promising their wives to return early, were murdered by Quantrill's men, and the place of their burial is not known. Greenbury Trekle, a Mr. Whittaker, Washington Tullis, —— Ellis and John Cody, all were killed by border ruffians, the latter treacherously murdered by one pretending to be a reformed rebel, and wearing the Union uniform at the time. Greenbury Trekle's father, seeing Quantrill's force passing into Kansas from Missouri, informed the commandant at Aubry that a raid into Kansas was on foot, which warning, had it been promptly acted upon, might have prevented the sacking of Lawrence. For sounding this note of alarm, old Mr. Trekle lost his life. On January 31, 1864, Norman Sampson was murdered by Dan. Vaughn's men, who were dressed in the Union blue, and who professed to be Union soldiers.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES—AUBRY TOWNSHIP.

He was married in Lewis County, Mo., in 1857, to Elizabeth Hamilton; they have six children—Lizzie, Eliza, Maurice, Minnie, Mattie, and Lulu.

COFFEY COUNTY.

COFFEY County lies in longitude eighteen west from Washington and in eighty-eight north latitude. It is bounded on the north by Osage County, on the east by Franklin and Anderson counties, on the south by Woodson County, and on the west by Lyon and Greenwood counties. The general surface of the county is undulating, and 13 per cent of the territory is bottom land, 87 per cent upland, 8 per cent forest and 92 per cent prairie. The average width of the bottoms is two miles. The average width of the timber belts is one and one-quarter miles, and the varieties of the timber are hickory, walnut, ash, oak, sycamore, cottonwood and hackberry. Coal underlies a large portion of the area of the county. The quality is good and the average thickness of the veins is fifteen inches. Lime and sandstone of good quality are found throughout the county, and fine flagging stone is obtained in Rock Creek and Neosho townships.

The Neosho River enters the county from the west, eight miles from the northern boundary and nineteen miles from the southern boundary, and runs southeast, leaving the county and entering Woodson on the south, five miles west of eastern boundary line and nineteen miles from western. The Ozark range of mountains forms in Coffey County, north of the Neosho River, and the streams that rise in this county north of the Ozark range, flow into the Marais des Cygnes River and from thence into the Missouri. The streams that rise in the county south of the Ozark range flow into the Neosho River and from thence into the Arkansas. The streams that rise north of the Ozark range are as follows: Rock, Pottawatomie, North Long, Frog, Cole, Coal, Joe and Sand. Those that rise south of the Ozark range are as follows: Turkey, Big, South Big, Four-Mile, Otter, Rock, Troublesome, Eagle, Hickory, Lebo, Wolf, Lost, Crooked, Long, Kennedy, Spring, Benedict, Scott, Indian, Rock, Dinner, Locke, Price, Badger and Varnel branch of South Big Creek.

The quality of the soil is black limestone and it is best adapted to the growth of wheat and corn, though everything that can be produced in the soil of the West can be raised here. The uplands and valleys have the same character of soil, but the uplands require more rain than the bottom lands, owing to the inability of the former to retain moisture like the latter. The soil is productive and yields abundantly of every product adapted to this latitude. Fruits of all kind do well. The county possesses superior advantages for the growth of live stock. Tame grasses grow luxuriantly, corn is always a sure crop and the climate is healthy. The farmers are rapidly accumulating wealth by raising cattle and hogs, and markets for their stock and grain exist in their own county. Superior water powers abound in the Neosho River all along its course through the county, and substantial improvements have been made at Burlington and LeRoy. The manufacturing interests have been only slightly developed in the county as yet. A flouring mill at Burlington and a flouring mill at LeRoy are the only institutions whose motive powers are propelled by water.

EARLY HISTORY.

Prior to 1854, it is not known that any white man ever lived in the county. The Sac and Fox Indians, whose reservation was north of the county, had a burial ground near the site of the city of Burlington, and an Indian trail from the Sac and Fox agency to the buffalo hunting ground in southwestern Kansas, also ran through the county, crossing the Neosho River at the point where Burlington now stands, and this trail was used for many years after the settlement of the county. The first white man who is known to have settled in the Neosho Valley was Frederick Troxel, who erected a log house in the woods three-fourths of a mile south of the present town site of Le Roy. Mrs. Troxel was a sister of Gen. John B. Scott, one of the founders of Le Roy. Gen. Scott and Thomas Crabtree were, at this time, Indian traders at the Sac and Fox agency. Mr. Troxel moved immediately into his cabin, upon its completion, with his family. They were the first white people who ever lived in Coffey County. Abijah Jones, with his son George, and William R. Saunders and his brother Alban Saunders, all from New York, landed at the present site of Le Roy December 27, 1854. They went down the river and crossed, came up on the south side and crossed again to the northeast side, about three miles above Le Roy, where Jones selected his claim and built a log house. William R. Saunders and his brother both selected land on Long Creek, where they built houses, and then went back for their families, returning to their new homes in February, 1855. Washington Vickery, who had been down in 1854, brought his family in the spring of 1855, and settled in the river bend, about a mile west of Le Roy. Levi Heddens arrived September 15, 1854, and is said to have been the first white man that ever crossed the Neosho River with a wagon. In March, 1855, Dr. Hamilton Smith settled near the mouth of Eagle Creek. He was a native of Indiana. April 25, 1855, he settled near what is now Ottumwa. He was an ardent Free-state man, and distinguished himself in the cause. During the summer of 1855, he led a company of Free-state men from this county to the defense of Lawrence, from the attack of Pro-slavery ruffians from Missouri. The company did patrol duty for about six weeks at the fords on several roads south and east of Lawrence, living on the beef from Dutch Henry's herd that had been taken by the company under the command of Capt. John Brown, Sr. Smith was a member from Coffey County of a convention held in Topeka, September 13, 1855, to take measures to form a State constitution, and he was one of a committee that was appointed by that convention to prepare an address to the citizens of Kansas, calling an election for delegates to a constitutional convention at Topeka. At an election held October 9, 1855, he was elected a delegate to the Topeka constitutional convention and assisted in framing the constitution adopted by that body. He was one of the proprietors of Ottumwa and died at that place in February, 1858. Thomas Bowen settled on the present town site of Ottumwa about the last of April, 1855. He, with his family, moved from Ottumwa, Iowa, and when the town of Ottumwa was started, it was named in honor of the town from which he came in Iowa. He was an ordained minister of the Missionary Baptist Church. He was elected a member of the Legislature under the Topeka constitution and was a member of that body when it was dispersed by Col. Sumner, of the United States army, by order of Franklin Pierce. He was the first man elected to any legislature from Coffey County. He died near Ottumwa in 1859. Morgan Dix came to Coffey County in the spring of 1855, from Indiana, striking the Neosho River at Le Roy, and passing up the river by the way of Stubblefield's, he settled near Ottumwa, where he has resided ever since. Simpson Despain also settled near Ottumwa early in the spring of 1855, and lived there until he died in 1874. Hiram Hoover, Judge Strawn and Joe Lebo also settled at or near Ottumwa the same spring; also a Mr. Crall settled on Lebo Creek at the same time. John Bowen (a son of Thomas Bowen, before referred to), and a daughter of Mr. Crall were married in April, 1856, by the Rev. Matt. Fennimore. Andrew Johnson married a daughter of Mr. Bowen about a month before.
